CIVIL WAR ON IN ROUMANIA

CANAL BATTLE PROVED NAVY'S FUEL POVERTY

Not Enough to Train in Maneuvering.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

BALBOA, C. Z., March 30.—Serious inefficiency in the handling of our fighting ships in the recent maneuvers and tactical drills of the United States fleet has been disclosed, according to high authority.

The marksmanship displayed in the firing on the Iowa, in view of the circumstances, is pronounced excellent by naval experts. Those qualifying circumstances are the use for the Iowa firing of the worn out guns of the Mississippi, a battleship which stood low in gunnery last year, and the fact that a large proportion of the gun crews consisted of men of short training. The Mississippi guns had been fired so many times previously that they could not be aimed with exact accuracy and they are now to be dismounted and relined. Despite this handicap, the Mississippi sank the Iowa in seventeen minutes when fifty regular shells were fired at a distance of eight to ten miles.

Fleet Maneuvers Faulty.

When it comes to maneuvers and tactics, however, the higher naval authorities pronounce the fleet seriously lacking in the efficiency that would be vital in battle. There was considerable faulty handling of battleships in the fleet maneuvers, at one time one big ship getting so far out of line that it blanketed another in the succeeding evolution into firing position.

The destroyer torpedo practice is characterized as a joke. The destroyers launched a multitude of dummy torpedoes, some of which made hits, but the tactics of the destroyer force were so faulty in execution that in actual battle it would have been easy prey for enemy cruisers.

Salvage Work Was Excellent.

The torpedoes fired were regular torpedoes, rendered nonexplosive. They are valuable and not to be wasted in practice. All were recovered floating by small boats afterward. This explains the remark of an admiral when he was asked his opinion of the destroyer torpedo practice.

"It was a magnificent exhibition of 100 per cent recovery of torpedoes," he said.

The deficiencies are attributed partly to the large proportion of untrained men in the navy, but mainly to the lack of sufficient fuel for more frequent exercises in gunnery, maneuvers, and tactics. Congress has reduced the fuel appropriation to a point that makes impossible the holding of these drills more than once a year normally, while, as a result of the disorganization of the navy immediately following the war, this has been the first time in several years that war games on a large scale have been attempted.

Training of Recruits a Big Task.

The fleet, with 56,000 enlisted men afloat, is being compelled this year to absorb 36,000 recruits. As a result, the officers are working under a tremendous strain to keep the ships going and to assimilate this large untrained, undisciplined personnel and at the same time maintain the fighting efficiency of the ships. Any one familiar with life on a ship of war would regard such a task as impossible. Nevertheless, the impossible is being achieved, although it would be idle to assume that the fleet is ready for battle.

The fleet is a vast training school working under the highest pressure. Never has so severe a task been given to the officers, chief petty officers and the older petty officers to keep the ships in operating condition.

Condition of Unpreparedness.

Such a state of affairs can be met in peace time, but when it is realized that the navy is the first line of defense, that the existing personnel is supposed to be the trained body forming a nucleus that must be vastly expanded in time of war, it is disheartening to officers to find that 65 per cent of that nucleus is itself untrained and much in the position of the new war recruit.

Such conditions are due, in part at least, to the vacillating policy of a congress which, among other things, passed a law for two year enlistments, permitting tremendous overturns in the operating force, extravagant and wasteful.

Enlistment Is Improving.

The navy believes there will be no difficulty now in getting recruits for straight six year enlistment. No two year men are being taken now, all enlistments being for four years. Congress probably will be asked to pass a bill for the longer term.

24 PERSONS LOST IN EVERGLADES; FEAR FOR LIVES

Miami, Fla., April 7.—[Special.]—Searching parties have been sent out from Miami and Fort Meyers to hunt for a motor party of nineteen men and five women which, it is feared, is lost in the Everglades.

The party started from Fort Meyerz on Wednesday and were due in Miami yesterday. Their mission was to boost the Tamiami Trail, a proposed route across the southern part of the state. When they failed to arrive on schedule time an investigation was made. It showed that the road had been washed out, both from the Fort Meyer and the Miami ends, by a storm which flooded the glades on Thursday night and Friday morning. Somewhere between the two cities the party is stranded. The distance between the two is less than 100 miles.

According to dispatches from Fort Meyers the party consisted of the following:

Ora E. Chapin, head of the trust department of the Lee County Bank, Title and Trust company, and Mrs. Chapin.

Frank Whitman, newspaperman, and wife.

Russell Kay, business manager of the Florida Grower at Tampa, and wife.

L. A. Whitney, former secretary of the Fort Meyers Chamber of Commerce, and wife.

WHEELS BABE 52 MILES IN 12 HRS.

5 Mothers Push Prams in Long Race.

BRIGHTON, England, April 7.—[By the Associated Press.]—Mrs. Lily Groom of Eastbourne, wheeling a perambulator in which nestled her baby, finished first today in the fifty-two mile perambulator race from London, covering the distance in 12 hours 20 minutes.

Mrs. Groom was loudly cheered by crowds of spectators who gathered to see the finish of the race. She was still going at a good pace when she crossed the "finish line," followed 14 and 23 minutes later by two others of the five who started out from London.

The mothers who finished second and third likewise showed little exhaustion, while all three babies appeared happy and contented. Two of the mothers were left resting by the roadside.

Start Early in the Morning.

The five mothers pushing perambulators each freighted with a baby crossed Westminster bridge in London as Big Ben chimed 5:15 o'clock.

The contest was the outgrowth of a controversy between the mothers of the north and the south of England as to which section had the hardiest and speediest baby carriage chauffeurs.

Officials of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children entered a protest against the affair, declaring the proceeding harmful to the children and asserting that if the little ones suffered the mothers would be prosecuted.

Three Babes Under a Year.

Three of the babies are under a year old, the youngest only 5 months. The remaining two are both 2 years old.

It quickly became apparent that shoe leather and stamina were not the only factors in the race, Mrs. Ada May Edwards of Manchester, mother of the 5 months' old baby, wheeling a light folding pram, took the lead at the start over the four heavier baby carriages, but soon lost her advantage when she had to halt to nurse her offspring, who had been loudly noising its demand for nourishment. It was a quick lunch. Mrs. Edwards shoved the infant back into the pram after such a short interval that only one competitor passed her.

The pace for the first four hours was so hot that several men accompanying the marching mothers were fatigued on their arrival at Redhill, but the merry matrons were going strong.

The winner received a silver "shoving" cup and about enough money to buy a new pair of shoes.

FREE CHAMBLISS, SENT TO PRISON FOR LURING GIRL

Dorsey Chambliss, a colored policeman whose connection with the case of Bertha Wiebeck, a 16 year old white girl, caused him to be sentenced to Joliet prison, yesterday was released on parole. Chambliss, who was taken to the prison in August, 1920, had served about half of the maximum term stipulated by the jury, which was five years. The state pardon board recommended that he be paroled.

Much controversy attended the case before he was convicted.

The Wiebeck girl, who had come to Chicago from Pawnee Rock, Kas., to seek employment, was rescued from a dive after she had dropped a note from a window. She said that, becoming lost, she had looked for a uniformed policeman to ask directions, and had found Chambliss. He escorted her, she charged, to a resort operated by Mrs. Emma Ross, a colored woman, where she was kept prisoner.

The girl was ill when rescued, and died about a month later at the county hospital. Pneumonia was given as the cause.

KING MAY QUIT; NEW RIOTS IN MEMEL START

Europe Trembles at Outbreaks.

While the Ruhr situation continues pregnant with dangers that may engulf all Europe again in war, news came last night from two other trouble spots.

Civil war is reported in Roumania, and it is feared outbreaks there may turn the balance wheel which would range France and her allies against Russia and Germany.

Serious rioting occurred in Memel, which the Lithuanians seized by a recent coup against the allied occupationary forces. Lihuania, whose relations with Poland are already strained over the disposition of Vilna, charges that the Poles are inciting the rioters.

PARIS, April 7.—The civil war in Roumania threatens to engulf Europe in another world war. The continental chancelleries and embassies are feverishly watching the Bucharest crisis, fearful of outbreaks which may precipitate a world cataclysm.

Roumania's frontiers are closed by the strictest censorship. Every traveler going out is submitted to a rigorous questioning, and the news of the real situation is colored. Advices from Budapest, Hungary, indicate that the worst is likely to happen in Roumania.

The Roumanian legation in Paris denies there is any trouble, but there is no attempt made to explain the contradictory news from Bucharest.

King May Abdicate, Report.

King Ferdinand is reported to be ready to abdicate in favor of a republic if the opposition finds a satisfactory candidate for the presidency.

The cabinet is rumored to have ordered a mobilization of the loyal classes, but thus far the troops have not responded to the call to the colors.

M. Marghiloman, reported to be the strongest man in Roumania, may be called to form the next government, which means that Bucharest will be pro-German and a free rein will be given the Transylvanian irreconcilables, who insist on a retrocession of Transylvania to Hungary.

Fear Attack by Russia.

Bessarabia is another problem, as the Roumanians realize that the bolsheviki are massed on the Dniester, awaiting an opportunity to seize this territory, which was taken from Russia in the settlement of the world war.

France is vitally interested because a change in the status of Roumania means the obliteration of the little entente, which is France's chief counterweight in the east against Germany and Russia, and leaves Poland alone facing the bolsheviki.

Premier Bratiano Resigns.

BUCHAREST, Roumania, April 7.—Premier Bratiano has tendered his resignation and the king has accepted it. Bratiano was the leader in the movement which culminated in the adoption of Roumania's new constitution.

RIOT IN MEMEL

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MEMEL, April 7.—Serious riots occurred today when the Lithuanians administering Memel refused the demands of the labor unions to reduce the price of foodstuffs, restore German as the official language, abolish martial law and censorship of newspapers, and cancel the order to deport many German political prisoners.

A general strike, beginning yesterday, has left Memel without water or electricity. The workers today attempted to hold parades and mass meetings. They were dispersed by the Lithuanian troops, who opened fire on the workers. The total casualties are unknown.

Charge Poles Incite Trouble.

Stores and banks are closed. Governor Budry has ordered them to open Monday, but the storekeepers refuse to open until order is restored. The situation here has been at a critical stage since the capture of Memel from the allied occupationary forces by the Lithuanians on Jan. 18, because the Litts have been attempting to assimilate the German population and compel them to use the Lithuanian language and currency.

The unions, which are closely affiliated with the German unions, are believed to be obtaining support from East Prussia, which still claims Memel.

The Lithuanians are rushing more troops to Memel, claiming the revolution was incited by Polish influence because of Lithuania's opposition to the league of nations award of Vilna to Poland.

Rum Dividend for Lucky 150 Brews Storm

Liquidation joy of the 150 "stockholders" of Grommes & Ullrich was short lived and turned to apprehension yesterday. The 2,000 cases of rare old "stock" that were stored in 150 cellars Friday night, after the dissolution of the famous liquor concern, overnight had become the target of all the pro-Volsteadians in the city. Federal grand jury action, search and seizure proceedings were promised by city, state, and government officials.

Federal Prohibition Director Roscoe C. Andrews had given his official O. K. to the plan by which the "stockholders" divided up the $200,000 pre-prohibition liquor, and a guard had been furnished to convoy the treasures of the participants. But apparently no other officials had placed the stamp of their approval on this apportionment.

Then Protests Begin.

Secrecy had been the watchword until the Grommes & Ullrich warehouse was depleted and the 150 cellars enriched. Then word of the transaction was allowed to reach the less fortunate public.

A high federal official admitted last night that he had yielded to the pressure and set in motion the machinery of the department of justice. The first step will be to determine when the "stockholders" obtained the stock certificates which they cashed in for liquid stock.

A demand is to be made first on the company and then on Director Andrews for a complete list of the beneficiaries. They will be required to tell the date of their stock purchases to a grand jury, according to the official, who hesitates to let his name be known at this time because he anticipates that political influence will be directed against his efforts.

Brundage Waits Complaint.

The first step may be the issuance of search and seizure warrants, it was admitted. The Rev. Elmer L. Williams, representing a citizens' organization coöperating with the Anti-Saloon league, has declared he will ask for them.

Attorney General Edward Brundage said that if any citizen makes complaint to him he will act. Dr. Williams and E. J. Davis, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, were emphatic in saying they will not only ask him to act, but will insist that he do so.

"Of all the smooth ways of attempting to violate the Volstead law, this is undoubtedly the most barefaced," said Mr. Davis. "The whole deal is illegal, a deliberate and vicious transaction intended to violate the constitution of the country. To allow it to succeed would spell disaster to all the laws of the land.

"We'll Go to Washington."

"We shall unquestionably go before the grand jury, and to Washington if necessary to get action. We want the federal grand jury to find out if shares in the company have not been peddled about promiscuously, at high prices, with the assurance that the buyer would obtain liquor for his money."

Attorney Charles A. Williams, who handled the legal phases of the dissolution, had stated that the distribution of the liquor among the stockholders was legal under the eighteenth amendment. The Rev. Mr. Williams didn't agree with him.

"Even if that were so, the distribution is an obvious violation of the Illinois search and seizure laws," he said. "That's where Mr. Brundage will come in. We expect and have a right to believe he will do his duty. The first step is the seizure of this illegal booze. Punishment can come later."

Other "drys" were equally as shocked and horrified at the distribution of the 2,000 cases.

Davis Asks Questions.

A combined brief of the theory of the deal and of the objections of the foes of liquor, as summarized by Mr. Davis and put in the form of questions to which he wishes the authorities to get answers, is as follows:

"Didn't a large percentage, 95 per cent at least, of the stockholders acquire their stock within the last year or two?

"Were not some of them permitted to deposit the money in escrow until such time as 'liquidation' would take place?

"Were they not told that for every $100 invested they would get at least a case, twelve quarts, of the finest bourbon or its equivalent in Scotch, brandies, wines, cordials, gin and the like?

"How was the federal prohibition agent 'bamboozled?'"

SUBWAY START NEAR AS DEVER APPROVES PLAN

Public May Expect Action Soon.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Better transportation now becomes again the great engrossing topic of Chicago, to applause from an army of straphangers grown lopsided from years of swinging by their arms. The word from French Lick that Mayor-elect Dever has given his approval to the Schwartz plan for acquiring the traction lines, surface and elevated, yesterday roused interest betokening that the traction problem is to be tackled by the new administration as the first big job on hand.

The traction plan on which the local transportation committee has been at work under Ald. U. S. Schwartz, chairman, have two main phases—the financial plan and the physical plan, the latter of which embraces subways, rapid transit, elevated and surface extensions, relief and expansion of transit facilities in all parts of the city on a comprehensive basis. The physical plan is being worked out, and a program is expected to be ready for presentation within a week or two.

Would Issue Certificates.

The Schwartz plan for financing municipal ownership, which is the part of the program reported approved by Mr. Dever, proposes that the city shall issue public utility certificates for the acquisition of street railway property under the public utility act of 1913.

These securities are to be a lien on the properties of the street railway companies, elevated railroad companies and subways which are acquired. The fares are to be high enough at all times to bear all cost of maintenance and operation of the property and to meet interest charges on the certificates and to permit the accumulation of sinking funds.

In case the city fails down in payment of interest and in payments into the sinking fund, the holders of the securities are to have the right to institute mandamus or other proceedings to require the city to maintain a rate of fare sufficient to pay the interest and provide for the sinking fund.

How Paper Is Secured.

The lawyers for the transportation committee in discussing the financial plan say the public utility certificates are to be issued under a mortgage deed of trust, secured by the property acquired through the certificates; that the interest and principal of the certificates shall be payable solely out of the net revenues to be derived from the utilities, the revenue being pledged to secure the payment of such principal and interest. The lien of the mortgage is to be restricted solely to the property acquired, and safeguarded by an agreement by the city that fares shall always be high enough to meet obligations.

The question is whether such certificates will constitute a part of the bonded indebtedness of Chicago, which is limited by the constitution. The lawyers for the transportation committee declare the certificates would not be within the city's bonded indebtedness.

Unlike Mueller Proposal.

They are held to be quite different from the Mueller act certificates, with which Chicago years ago sought to get municipal ownership. In January, 1906, the city council passed an ordinance to issue $75,000,000 of Mueller certificates to acquire the surface lines and the voters in April approved the ordinance. The Supreme court, however, held that these certificates would constitute an indebtedness of the city, which would run the city's debt far in excess of the constitutional limit.

The reason set forth for this was that the Mueller certificates provided that in the event of a foreclosure, the purchaser at the foreclosure sale should have a franchise to operate the traction properties for twenty years. The court held that the right to operate street cars in the streets was an asset of the city which in no way represents any part of the money derived from the sale of the certificates. In other words, in the event of foreclosure the security holders could claim other property than that purchased—so the securities were held a part of the city's general indebtedness.

What Court Held.

The Supreme court, however, the lawyers point out, set forth in this and other cases that certificates limited in their lien to the actual property acquired and to the revenues derived from it, and expressly excluding all general liability on the part of the city, would not constitute a part of the city's bonded indebtedness.

The publicity utility certificates proposed by the Schwartz plan follow this principle laid down by the Supreme court. William H. Sexton, former corporation counsel, Stephen A. Foster and Jerome N. Frank, counsel for the transportation committee, in extended briefs and opinions, maintain the financial plan is sound and in full accord with Supreme court rulings.

An advisory committee of bankers last March said provisions could be incorporated that would make the certificates attractive, if approved by the courts. The Supreme court would have to pass upon their validity.

The proposal of the Schwartz plan is that, using these certificates, the city shall purchase the properties at an agreed price, the companies accepting the public utility certificates in exchange for the transfer to the city of the title to the properties free and clear. The 1907 traction ordinances expire Feb. 1, 1927, and the suggestion is that this should be the date for transferring the legal title of the properties to the city. There will be much discussion over this question.

Under Commission Rule.

On control, the plan suggests that the transportation system should be operated by a commission, the majority of whose members would be appointed by the city authorities and a minority by the investors in the properties. Mr. Dever is reported as taking the position that it would be fairness to give the holders of the traction certificates a voice on the commission.

Meanwhile, relief in the way of extensions, more cars and fewer straps, and higher speed by thinning out traffic congestions is to be taken up.

Construction of one or more subways to give rapid transit and to be linked up with elevated railroads and surface lines is the keystone of the proposed betterments, and this time the outlook is that the phrase "make the dirt fly before Christmas" may prove something besides mere words.

The transportation committee says its tentative physical plan will be ready within two weeks. This physical phase has not been passed upon by Mr. Dever as yet, but all indications are that he has views of his own, based upon experience in the council. His position is that there must be "an adequate subway in places where surface and elevated development has reached its limits," and that the "L" roads, supplemented by subways, should be the great part of a rapid transit system.

DEVER'S O. K.

French Lick, Ind., April 7.—[Special.]—Mayor Elect Dever today authorized Ald. Ulysses S. Schwartz to proceed at once with the development of the Chicago traction scheme known as the "Schwartz plan."

This means that rapid strides will be taken immediately toward the solution of Chicago's vexed transportation problems. The proceeding indorsed by the new executive embraces the acquisition of the traction properties under the utility certificates to be issued for the purchase of the lines.

Municipal ownership thus becomes a reality which may be expected to materialize within a short time.

Summary of Mayor's Views.

Mr. Dever's viewpoint may be briefly expressed as follows:

He believes the Schwartz plan for utility certificates is good.

He has been informed that the bankers would agree to turn over the traction properties to the city in exchange for them, if a price for the properties could be agreed on.

He is convinced that the taking over of the traction employés under civil service, strictly enforced, would eliminate any danger of those employés becoming an adjunct to any political machine.

He is inclined to give the traction interests some representation on the traction operating board.

He would stand for no excessive valuation, declaring with emphasis that there would be no repetition in Chicago of the Seattle situation.

He believes that the elevated roads should form the chief part of the city's rapid transit system, supplemented by adequate subways.

He regards the price to be paid for the traction properties as perhaps the biggest feature of the problem.

Against Seattle Unloading.

"In considering valuations, I shall be guided considerably by what the properties earn. I will stand for no excessive valuations. There will be no repetition in Chicago of the Seattle affair. No excessive valuation will be loaded on the city.

"The elevated railroads will constitute the chief part of the city's rapid transit system. We will build subways where they are needed—adequate subways—and will extend them as needed.

"I think the traction interests should have some representations on the traction operating board. Although apparently the certificates would give full security, being secured by earnings, with the provision that the fares should be sufficient to meet the interest on these certificates, yet some might fear the possibility of city operation impairing the value.

The mayor elect evidenced the thought that he was convinced there would be no failure in public operation. He brushed aside the argument that some have advanced that there was danger of the traction employés becoming adjuncts of a political machine.

"Civil service, strictly enforced," he said, "would fully protect that situation. The men would be protected by law and would be free men and free from political control. Civil service, too, would protect the public in the matter of efficiency."

CITY PLUM TREE CENSUS REVEALS ONLY 198 JOBS

Few Juicy Salaries on the Mayor Elect's List.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Many of the faithful sons of Jefferson firmly believe that Mayor-Elect Dever has about 4,000 jobs to distribute—and of course each worker wishes one of them.

Technically speaking, there are a trifle more than 3,900 city jobs at the disposal of Mr. Dever, for which there are appropriations this year of approximately $6,165,000. Divide the $6,000,000 by the 3,900 places and it is perfectly apparent that those are not the sort of jobs which "the boys" are now so industriously hunting. More than 3,700 of these jobs mean work—hard labor. Nearly all of them involve dirty work as well as hard work. They are not white collar, swivel chair positions.

Prepare for Shock, Boys!

Assuming that there will be no juggling of civil service and that no attempt will be made to play politics in the public school system, there are only 198 jobs now available in the municipal service that are exempt from the merit system. And at least 62 of these jobs pay less than $2,000 a year each. All these may be dished out as political discretion dictates.

The figure of 198 will be a shock to some of "the boys." They have read that there are more than 18,000 city employés, excluding those of the board of education, and that the salary roll for the 18,000 is more than $33,000,000 a year. But nearly 96 per cent of these jobs are under civil service.

Only about 800 places are exempted. Most of them are in the election commissioners' offices and in the Municipal court. The Democrats already have the places devoted to oiling the election machinery. Only a few are held by Republicans—the number being 41 the day before the election. All the jobs in the Municipal court are filled, and the Democrats have the bailiff's office exclusively. Also included in the 800 places are eighty elective positions.

Peak Salary Is $10,000.

Simmering it all down, there are 198 exempt places, paying about $575,000 a year, at the disposal of the new administration. None pays more than $10,000 a year. In that class are the commissioner of public works, corporation counsel, city controller, chief of police, and commissioner of health. In the $8,000 class are the fire commissioner, city electrician, fire chief, commissioner of buildings, and two assistants to the corporation counsel. In the $7,500 class are the president of the civil service commission and another assistant corporation counsel. On the $6,000 basis are the city collector, commissioner of public service, business agent, city prosecutor, city attorney, and another assistant corporation counsel.

Mayor's Secretary Gets $5,500.

Among the exempt employés only the private secretary to the mayor gets $5,500, but at $5,000 are two civil service commissioners, the president of the board of local improvements, the commissioner of public welfare, the deputy commissioner of public works, and five assistants to the corporation counsel.

The oil inspector gets $4,800. Two assistant corporation counsels and one assistant city attorney receive $4,500 each.

In the $4,000 group are four members of the board of local improvements, the city physician, the superintendent of the bridewell, and the harbor master.

At $3,600 are the city sealer, city boiler inspector, and secretary of the boxing commission. Then there is a large number at between $3,600 and $2,000 a year.

3,700 Laborer Jobs Available.

The other 3,700 jobs available are laborers. Legally they are required to take a physical examination by the civil service commission, but their tenure is insecure. Consequently these are available, if the administration desires to utilize them.

For those who do not care for a laboring job it is suggested that they start a campaign to get a team working. The city hires a large number of teams. In the street bureau alone approximately $2,451,000 is available this year for team hire at $10 a day. The sewer bureau uses more than $66,000 for team hire, and still more teams are employed in the water pipe extension bureau.

It might be pointed out there are some temporary positions under civil service, which practical politics may decide shall be grabbed for loyal Democrats. These are positions for which no eligible list is now available and which are being filled by temporary employés. These persons may be thrown out and others substituted until examinations are held. The number of these jobs varies from day to day, but there are usually scores of them.

M. V. L. ANALYSIS OF NEW COUNCIL HOPEFUL IN TONE

Majority Likely to Back Public.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

"The city council, as now constituted—with the aid of Mayor Dever—can solve most of the city's problems, if it will," said Harold F. White, president of the Municipal Voters' league, yesterday in his view of the effect of the recent aldermanic elections.

"Last September," Mr. White's statement continues, "the league called attention to the fact that the unprecedented graft revelations and the performances of the $1,000,000 real estate experts, the raids on school funds, European junkets, etc., could never have occurred if the majority of the council had exercised its legal powers to keep crooks off the school board, to check unlawful and extravagant expenditures, and to investigate and discourage illegal acts of administrative appointees.

Response by Citizens.

"The citizens throughout the city responded to the appeal to clean up the council as the first step in cleaning up local government."

Regarding the effect of the effort Mr. White says:

"Of the sixty-six aldermen in office last September four resigned to take other offices, fourteen dropped out without seeking reëlection, eleven were beaten Feb. 27, and five on April 3, so that thirty-two aldermen were reëlected to the new council along with eighteen new men."

As the caliber and tendencies of these, Mr. White opines:

"The league believes that a number of aldermen with indifferent records will show improvement under the conditions that will exist in the new council.

How They Stack Up.

"Judged solely on their past performances, however, the new council might very roughly be classified as follows:

Kind.	Number.
Strong and reliable	22
Fair	13
Weak	15

"Thus thirty-five out of the fifty aldermen can reasonably be relied upon to vote in the public interest, if an aroused and alert public opinion stands behind them.

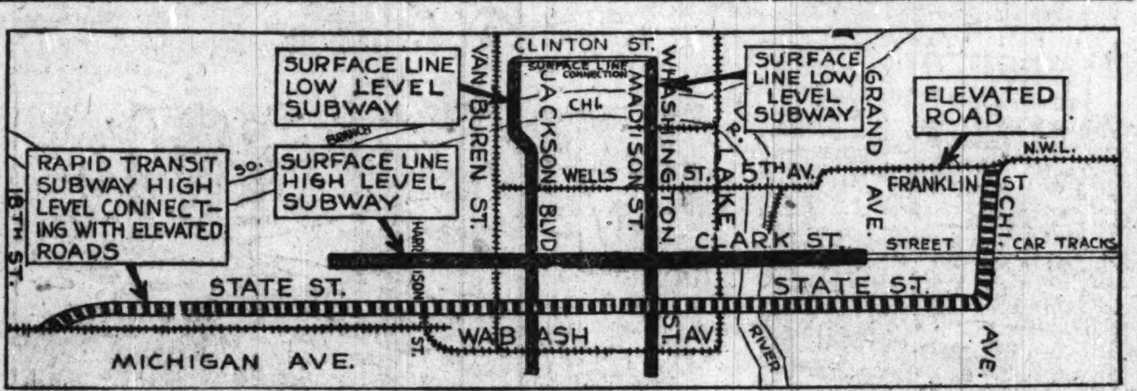
"Influences thrown around the new council in the next few years are likely to be clean and constructive, tending to strengthen the backbone of the weaker men, and encouraging the stronger men to real accomplishments."

It would have been enlightening to have had Mr. White indicate the basis of his last view.

Tasks Before Council.

He points out some tasks before the councilmen in the following language:

PLAN OF INITIAL SUBWAY



"The council faces big problems. The municipal service, to a large extent wrecked by an unprincipled ring, must be rebuilt from the ground up. The school, traction, subway, public improvement, civil service and other questions, cry for action. The tone of the police and other departments must be raised. Vice conditions must be radically improved. In all these matters the law makes the council a most important factor."

Mr. White makes this definite recommendation to the council:

"The finance committee, which was one of the weak spots in the old council, should be reduced in number, and should include the strongest men in the council. In fact, the whole committee organization should be undertaken on a sound business basis of fitness, without regard to political or personal advantage."

The council is scheduled to have an informal meeting next Tuesday to pick its committee on committees. This will be held in the council chamber.

Louisiana Drops Charges Against Klansmen Suspects

New Orleans, La., April 7.—[Special.]—Attorney General Coco today dropped the murder charges against the alleged slayers of Watt Daniel and Thomas Richards. He blames the Bastrop grand jury for failing to indict any of the men acused. Monday he will file charges against thirty citizens for minor offenses. Capt. J. K. Skipwith, "Old Skip," head of the Moorhouse klan, will be charged with lying in wait while armed with a deadly weapon.

Nucleus of System

Initial subway plans, so devised as to form the nucleus of a comprehensive transportation system for Chicago. The engineering experts submitted this plan to the local transportation committee last year. It is expected to be revived in the next report, which is looked for within two weeks.

Ordinances were tentatively drafted covering a north and south rapid transit subway from Chicago avenue to 18th street and two east and west subways, extending from terminal loops in Grant park to the street car tunnels at Van Buren and Washington streets.

The cost of these three subways was estimated at $25,400,000. The cost of a surface line subway on Clark street, shown in the map, was placed at $9,000,000. Total estimate for this initial system, $34,400,000, the estimates being for structures only, ready for the installation of tracks and equipment. The traction fund now amounts to some $36,000,000. A subway ordinance will require approval at a referendum.

WOMAN, CRAZED BY PAIN, BURNS SELF TO DEATH

Miami, Fla., April 7.—Crazed with pain of long illness, which three operations had failed to alleviate, Mrs. Helen Simms, 46 years old, of Miami, drenched herself with kerosene tonight, lit a match to her clothing, screamed once, and burned to death.

Police at first worked on the theory that the woman had been murdered and, because of her smallness of stature, believed her to be around 16 years old.

The woman's husband later was found and he identified the body as that of his wife. He said she had been demented over her illness.

REFERENDUM ON WET QUESTION IS FAVORED BY DRYS

Wisconsin Bill Gets Antis' Approval.

Madison, Wis., April 7.—A referendum on the question of repealing the eighteenth amendment to the United States constitution is asked in a bill prepared for introduction into the legislature by Senator W. A. Titus of Fond du Lac. This measure has the indorsement of the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon league. B. F. Hicks, its legislative counsel, announces.

The bill states that at the general election to be held in November, 1924, the following question shall be submitted to the electors:

"Shall the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States be repealed?"

If a majority of the votes cast at this election "are in favor of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment," the bill declares, "then the secretary of state shall communicate to the congress of the United States, by transmitting to each of the presiding officers of the houses thereof, a memorial petitioning that body to initiate an amendment to the constitution repealing the eighteenth amendment."

STATE GIVES UP; ALL CHARGES AT HERRIN DROPPED

Prosecutor and Judge Row Over Verdict.

Marion, Ill., April 7.—[Special.]—The Herrin massacre case has blown up. The state of Illinois figuratively threw up its hands in despair here today, and nolle prossed all murder and conspiracy to murder indictments.

Thus, seventy-six residents of "Bloody Williamson" county need not defend themselves against the charge that they had part in the deaths of twenty-one nonunion miners and mine guards at the Herrin strip mine on June 22, last.

The explosion which shattered the prosecution's hopes of convicting any body for the wholesale murders was attended by a dispute between Judge D. T. Hartwell, who conducted the two trials, and Special Assistant Attorney General Middlekauff, head of counsel for the state.

Charges of Unfairness.

Tonight's outbreak between the jurist and the prosecutor followed a statement issued by the latter shortly after court convened this morning. State's Attorney Delos Duty wearily arose and addressed the judge.

"Your honor," he said, "the state is through. I am not going to try any more of these cases. I have done my best; I have done my duty; and the thing is hopeless. The attorney general does not think we should drop these cases while the most remote chance remains for us to convict. But I am through. I therefore ask that all remaining indictments be dismissed."

Immediately afterwards Mr. Middlekauff issued the following statement:

"The prosecution is reluctantly obliged to admit that justice cannot be obtained in Williamson county. No impartial jury can be secured.

"The law compels the state to prosecute in the county where the crime was committed, and for five months the prosecution has vainly striven to secure a conviction.

"Witnesses, reliable and trustworthy, at great risk of personal violence, have testified to what they beheld only to be impeached by witnesses who plainly were interested in the defense and who clearly were testifying falsely. Two juries have returned verdicts of acquittal regardless of the evidence.

Blames Court's Rulings.

"Intimidation, prejudice, or downright dishonesty actuated them. Under the rulings of the trial court, when jurymen were being examined, any man who admitted he had an opinion as to whether the massacre of the disarmed and helpless men was lawful or unlawful was disqualified for jury service.

"On the other hand, all men contributing to the defense fund, voluntarily or otherwise, have been held to be competent jurors, but in my view of the law such men are not competent and could not be impartial jurors."

Judge Hartwell lost no time in answering this statement. He attacked Mr. Middlekauff's motives in issuing the statement for Attorney General Brundage.

Declaring Mr. Middlekauff's remarks concerning his rulings were "not true," the statement explained at length his rulings concerning the competency of jurors holding opinions and as to jurors contributing to the defense.

In the latter case, he said, "it is not true that I held persons competent who had contributed to the defense fund. Mr. Middlekauff wanted to hold a separate hearing to prove that the miners had contributed 1 per cent of their earnings toward the defense fund. Every miner admitted he was contributing or that he did not know.

Not Forced to Take All.

"Almost without exception every coal miner was disqualified, and the state was in no instance, or at no time, forced to take persons on the jury who had contributed to the defense fund."

The judge then reviewed the peremptory challenges and stated that when the jury was picked in the first trial they had "seventy-eight challenges left" and that when the second jury was completed, the state had eighty challenges remaining.

Earlier in the day the following statement was issued by attorneys for the defense.

"The statement issued on behalf of the attorney general is remarkable and extreme. It ignores the wanton slaughter of three unarmed union men on the day previous to the killing of guards.

"It ignores the invasion by armed guards equipped with high powered pistols and rifles, riot shotguns and machine guns, and the daring challenge to the citizenship and law enforcing officers of that county. It fails to acknowledge that the jurors were of the county's best agricultural citizenship, most of them not interested in mining."

Great Victory: Farrington.

Springfield, Ill., April 7.—[By the Associated Press.]—President Frank Farrington of the Illinois Mine Workers today characterized as "a splendid victory" and one that "confirms my faith in the innocence of our indicted members," the acquittal at Marion of the six defendants charged with murder in connection with the Herrin rioting.

Prosecution of persons charged with responsibility for the Herrin mine rioting having ended, an attempt from another angle to fix responsibility for the disorders will be started next week by the investigating committee of the house of representatives. The committeemen will hold a preliminary hearing here before going to Herrin.

Hands Off, U. S. Policy.

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—Unless new facts are developed, federal prosecutions will not be undertaken against those charged with responsibility for the Herrin mine killings, it was indicated today by high officials of the department of justice.

HOPELESS, BRUNDAGE SAYS.

Justice cannot be obtained in Williamson county, in the opinion of Attorney General Edward J. Brundage, who returned to Chicago yesterday from Marion.

"The state's attorney at Marion this morning nolle prossed all the remaining cases," Mr. Brundage said. "Inasmuch as justice in these cases cannot be obtained in Williamson county there seems nothing further that can be done."

COLD WAVE RIDES INTO CITY FOR ONE DAY STAND

Chicago slipped through yesterday without a visit of the predicted cold wave, but the escape was temporary, for the wintry blasts which chilled Colorado on Friday have moved northeast and today are scheduled to arrive over Chicago and Lake Michigan.

Already, reports show, the storm has caused heavy snowstorms throughout the upper lake region. Last night after 7 o'clock the mercury in Chicago slid down from 61 degrees until at 1 a. m. it had reached 28 degrees.

The cold wave will remain in Chicago only for a daya, and tomorrow, weather officials say, will move on toward the northeast.

Snow a Foot Deep.

Green Bay, Wis., April 7.—[Special.]—Northern and central Wisconsin, northern Michigan, and most of Minnesota are covered with a blanket of snow ranging from a few inches to a foot deep. It is the sixth snowstorm in a month, said to be unprecented this late in the records of the weather bureau.

Heavy Fall in Iowa.

Sioux City, Ia., April 7.—[Special.]—Sioux City is having another heavy snow fall driven by a stiff northerly wind. Northwest Iowa, northeast Nebraska, and southeast South Dakota counties are covered with a fall of five inches.

Traffic Halted in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., April 7.—The heaviest snow fall of the year blanketed the northwest today—the seventeenth day of spring. Rail traffic was tied as more than six inches fell here between midnight and morning.

Kingdon Gould Sails for Europe with His Family

New York, April 7.—Kingdon Gould, son of George J. Gould, who has been seriously ill in France, sailed for Genoa on the Conte Rosso today with his wife and two children. Mr. Gould explained he had canceled plans to rush to his father's bedside last week because a cablegram advised him his father was on the road to recovery.

FATHER IS IMPROVED.

CAP MARTIN, France, April 7.—[By the Associated Press.]—George J. Gould Sr. of New York was decidedly better today than a week ago. Dr. Stanley Rendall, who came here from Paris to attend Mr. Gould, remains with him constantly, however.

FORMER MEDICAL CHIEF TO STAND TRIAL FOR BRIBERY

H. H. MILLER.
[Moffett Photo.]

William H. H. Miller, former director of registration and education under Gov. Small, recently found guilty of conspiracy to sell physicians' and dentists' licenses to unqualified persons, will stand trial in the near future on a charge of bribery as a result of the investigation of the other charge.

A motion to dismiss the bribery indictment was overruled by Judge Oscar Hebel in Criminal court yesterday. Attorney Lloyd Heth contended in his argument for the motion that the alleged bribery affair has been taken in during the previous trial and therefore could not be carried out.

No date for the hearing was set, but it is said that Miller will be placed on trial as soon as possible.

GENERAL WEDS DAUGHTER OF SENATOR LODGE

Washington, D. C., April 7.—Maj. Gen. Clarence C. Williams, chief of ordnance of the A. E. F., and Mrs. Constance Gardner, daughter of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, and widow of Representative Augustus P. Gardner of Massachusetts, were married here today. Only members of the immediate families were present at the wedding. Gen. Williams is a native of Georgia. He was born in 1869, and graduated from West Point in 1894.

St. Louis, Mo., April 7.—Announcement of the election of the Rev. Dr. A. H. Post of Chicago, assistant superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois, as superintendent of the league in Missouri, with headquarters here, was made today. Dr. Post is a minister of the Congregational church.

PRESS OF TOKIO RENEWS WAR ON PREMIER KATO

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

TOKIO, April 7.—Representatives of fourteen of the leading Tokio newspapers last night adopted a resolution demanding that Premier Kato make a frank statement regarding the alleged compromise of the cabinet and the privy council over the Chinese postal treaty dispute, in which the council charged the cabinet with disregarding the constitution, thereby insulting the throne.

The Japanese press has been almost solid in opposing the government, which was attacked viciously through the last session of the diet in an effort to force its resignation. Premier Kato's survival in face of the opposition of the press and a large section of the house of peers is stinging the journalists into a continuation of the attack.

Premier Kato is standing strongly in favor of the Liberalists' policy toward China. A faction of the peers desires a mailed fist policy for China. The policy seems to be warmly supported by the great bulk of the public.

BOOZE SEIZURE 18 MILES AT SEA IS HELD LEGAL

Washington, D. C., April 7.—A seizure by Florida prohibition agents of a schooner fifteen miles beyond the three mile limit has been sustained in the Florida courts, according to a report today to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes by A. L. Allen, Florida prohibition director.

"This decision gives us the boat and liquor," Allen reported, "and five men convicted in this case probably will be sentenced. Our boat chased them from within the three mile limit for more than eighteen miles before overtaking them."

In the absence from Washington of Commissioner Haynes and other high officials of the prohibition bureau no comment on the effect of the decision on rum running was available.

Supreme Court Bars I.W.W. from State of Kansas

Topeka, Kas., April 7.—The I. W. W. as an organization and all of its members are barred from Kansas in a decision handed down by the Supreme court today affirming the granting of an injunction against the order to prevent "depredations against property by criminal syndicalism and sabotage in Kansas."

GORMLEY LOSES COUNCIL SEAT; FRAUD CHARGED

Hold Election Clerk, Seek Others in 12th Ward.

ERNST J. KUNSTMANN.

Discovery of what is termed a "deliberate attempt to steal an election," yesterday caused the board of election commissioners to proclaim Ernest J. Kuntsmann, Republican candidate for alderman in the Twelfth ward, elected over his Democratic opponent, William J. Gormley.

While the election officials were hearing evidence in connection with the alleged fraud, detectives from State's Attorney Crowe's office had arrested one of the election clerks said to be implicated and were searching for half a dozen more. Michael Dennehy, Democratic clerk in the eighteenth precinct of the ward was the man arrested. He refused to talk and is being held on charges of conspiracy.

Official Election Figures.

The official proclamation of the board of election commissioners, made public late yesterday afternoon, showed that Judge William E. Dever, the Democratic candidate for mayor, defeated Arthur C. Lueder, the Republican ticket leader, by a plurality of 105,319 votes. This is a gain of 1,517 votes over the police returns, which gave Dever a plurality of 103,748. The official figures for mayor are:

William E. Dever	390,413
Arthur C. Lueder	285,094
William A. Cunnea	41,186
William Hale Thompson	2

John A. Cervenka, Democratic candidate for city treasurer, won over John V. Healy, the Republican, by 65,763 votes, and Al F. Gorman, Democratic candidate for city clerk, won over William H. Cruden, the Republican, by 71,736.

The first reports of the election laid stress on the statement that "Lueder lost the Fourth ward by twenty-eight votes despite the efforts of the Harding-Levy organization," or words to that effect. The official canvass shows that the ward went for Lueder by 251.

Other Results Unchanged.

With the exception of the Twelfth ward there was no change in the list of aldermanic winners from that published the day after the election. In the Twelfth ward the proclamation showed Kuntsmann a winner by 291. Before the board had made the discovery of fraud, Gormley was leading by 248.

Rumors that the election in the Twelfth ward "was rotten all the way through" caused State's Attorney Crowe to begin an investigation several days ago and resulted in County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki hurrying back from French Lick, Ind., where he had been vacationing with Mayor-Elect Dever, to sit at the fraud hearing. This hearing was held yesterday in the offices of the election commissioners.

Two precincts, the eighteenth and the 24th, were disputed by Attorneys George F. Barrett and John F. Tyrrell, representing Kuntsmann, while Attorney Henry A. Berger, for Gormley, fought hard to keep the board from hearing any evidence.

Woman Clerk Involved.

The evidence introduced yesterday revealed that after the records of the election in the Twenty-fourth precinct had been taken from the polling place, changes had been made in the tally sheets which were in the possession of Mrs. Marie Kowalski, one of the officials.

The other judges and clerks testified that in this precinct Gormley had received 281 votes and Kuntsmann 226, but the tally sheets, plainly showing erasures and additional markings in different colored ink, gave Gormley 381 and Kuntsmann 126. One hundred votes had been taken from Kuntsmann and given to his opponent. Who did this is unknown, as Mrs. Kowalski, in whose possession the tally sheets were, has disappeared.

In the Eighteenth precinct it was shown that after the records left the polling place the vote of Kuntsmann, who got 113, was changed to 18, and Gormley, who got 356, was changed to 472. Dennehy, the clerk being held by the state's attorney, is an official in this precinct, but the others are missing.

One Votes "No."

The ruling to investigate the charges of fraud made by attorneys representing Kuntsmann was preceded by argument on the part of the attorneys, Mr. Berger insisting that the board had no jurisdiction. He was upheld in this by Commissioner Robert W. McKinlay, but the other four members, Judge Jarecki, Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Breen and Commissioners Anthony Czarnecki and Harry Lipsky, voted against him.

Before voting, Commissioner McKinlay stated that if Judge Jarecki, who appointed him, wanted him to vote the way he directed he would do so, but, if not, he was going to vote the way he wanted to. The judge retorted that he didn't care how the commissioner voted and McKinlay voted "No."

There is a possibility that the Democrats may seek to contest the election of Kuntsmann, but in view of the showing made yesterday it is not expected that they will take the matter into court.

GIRL SUES WIFE OF NEWTON BAKER AND 3 OTHERS

Says Jealousy Made Them Oust Her from Job.

Cleveland, O., April 7.—[Special.]—Charges that "jealousy of her success" as leader of a Girl Scout troop led to her removal because of false accusations against her character were contained in a suit for $100,000 damages filed against four prominent Cleveland women by Miss Dorothy Clayton.

The defendants, named as members of the Cleveland Girl Scout council are: Mrs. Newton D. Baker, Mrs. Benedict Crowell, Mrs. Morris A. Black, and Pearl J. Anderson, scout director of the Cleveland girls' council, with offices in the Electric building.

Miss Clayton, in the petition filed in common pleas court, alleges that Mrs. Baker referred to her on Oct. 27, 1922, as being "wholly unfit to associate with decent girls," and that Mrs. Black, addressing Miss Clayton's mother on Nov. 14, indicated she "had been guilty of felonious conduct of such extreme gravity that it was punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary."

Miss Clayton declared the statements of the defendants were "false and malicious," and that as a result of them her good name and reputation had suffered "grievous harm" and she herself had been "rendered nervous and sleepless."

Mrs. Crowell is the wife of the former assistant secretary of war and Mrs. Black is the wife of Morris A. Black, president of the H. Black company.

SEEK MISSOURI BANK OFFICIAL; $70,000 SHORT

St. Louis, Mo., April 8.—Circuit Attorney Howard Sidener early this morning requested the arrest of Donald W. Ross, former deputy state finance commissioner, for the liquidation of funds of the defunct Night and Day bank here. He is charged by State Finance Commissioner Frank C. Millspaugh with having diverted to his own use $70,926.99, which had been collected from depositors of the closed bank.

Ross, according to Millspaugh, admitted having improperly drawn some of the checks, but said he would make deposits in other banks to cover the alleged shortage.

The Night and Day bank closed January, 1922, with a loss of approximately $1,000,000.

Wall Paper

A Few of the Many New Wall Decorations

Brushed Warp Tapestries

A spirit of luxury seems to permeate these unusual wall papers. They represent a combination of plain and figured fabric effects combined. The color arrangement and style bring to you simplicity and restfulness.

Pastel Florals

The accent of style in wall papers of today is in the arrangement of design. Our color schemes are so gracefully allied with the designs that these ideas are just the decoration for the bedrooms.

Colorful Chintzes

The new chintz designs show a decided arrangement of all-over brightness of color. Threaded and embroidery effects that are unusual and which make pleasing color schemes.

Verdure Tapestries

Cheerful, artistic and restful are these beautiful tapestries. Displaying a splendid distribution of color throughout the leaves, they make a pleasing decoration for any important room.

Gold Thread Damasks

Over Jaspe backgrounds are printed copies of original damask designs. Threads of gold alternate with those of color to produce a two-toned effect.

GERMANY POURS 7 BILLION MARKS A DAY INTO RUHR

Smuggles In Vast Sums to Fight French.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, April 7.—The "passive war" gainst the French invaders of the Ruhr is now costing Germany 7,000,000,000 marks daily, according to estimates issued today by the finance minister.

How this money is being poured into the Ruhr to be used to pay striking workers, feed their families and aid in the payment of wages of thousands of other workers, who are receiving vastly increased pay in order to keep them from aiding the French, is one of the romances of the occupation and a secret that is carefully guarded by the German government. It is admitted that more than 1,000,000,000,000 marks have been sent into the Ruhr since the French seized the rich industrial area.

The French have made numerous seizures of large sums of marks, which so far total about 32,000,000,000, and have also confiscated at least one "money mill," established by the Reichsbank in a newspaper office.

Cut Last Road to Cologne.

The French have cut off the last roads leading from unoccupied Germany into the Cologne bridgehead, according to German papers. French troops entirely surround the British area.

The German government has endorsed the Anglo-French agreement regulating rail traffic, after the British threatened to withdraw all their troops from the Cologne area, it is reported here.

The Waltorp mine at Buer is in danger of being flooded, according to reports. The workers went on strike, even abandoning the pumps, after the French occupied the mine.

Church bells will ring throughout Germany for thirty minutes Tuesday morning in the memory of the victims of the tragedy at Essen a week ago today. The day has been consecrated as one of national mourning for those men who lost their lives at the Krupp plants and other Germans who have died from violence since the French entered the Ruhr.

Rejects "Loucheur Plan."

Repeating the assertion that Germany is ready to accept any reparation settlement that she is able to meet, Gustav Stresemann in the Vossische Zeitung tomorrow will declare the so-called Loucheur plan is unacceptable to Germany as the basis for negotiations.

The spokesman for the industrials asserts that the sum of 50,000,000,000 marks as immediate reparations and the various proposed financial reforms are beyond the ability of Germany to meet, but he reiterates the declaration that Germany always was and still is ready to do everything in her power to fulfill the program of reparations within her capacity.

He scores severely the suggestion to separate the Rhineland from Prussia and place it under the league of nations as infringing on German sovereignty, declaring that to determine whether the Rhineland is a Prussian province or not rests with the German people alone.

BRITISH HANDS OFF

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, April 7.—Louis Loucheur, France's richest man and formerly a cabinet minister, spent two hours today at the foreign office outlining to Premier Poincare what took place during his visit to England. The steel magnate also visited President Millerand.

It is learned that M. Loucheur was able to inform M. Poincare that Great Britain will not attempt to intervene in the Ruhr and reparations problems following M. Loucheur's pledge to Prime Minister Bonar Law that France does not intend permanent annexations or the creation of a separate state in the Rhineland. The British leaders are said to have promised to leave M. Poincare's hands free to arrange a settlement with Germany.

See Five to Ten Years' Occupation.

The British are said to have resigned themselves to five to ten years' occupation of the Ruhr, as it is generally agreed it will be impossible now for Germany to float a foreign loan even with the allies' help, since the printing of three or four trillion paper marks monthly has depreciated German exchange to worthlessness and killed the confidence of foreign investors.

The powerful Conservative Echo de Paris demands that the government explain how far the Ruhr policy of Premier Poincare has been compromised by M. Loucheur's visit to London and also how much President Millerand is involved in M. Loucheur's plans, and also whether Premier Poincare is backing down on the Ruhr. M. Pertinax, the author of the article and the political director of the paper, previously was considered close to Premier Poincare. The other papers suddenly are abandoning their bitter attacks and are contenting themselves with general statements.

FENCE OFF ROADS

BY PAUL WILLIAMS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

DUSSELDORF, April 7.—A company of French infantry with 4,000 yards of barbed wire today made the main street in Gronenberg popular beyond the dreams of the greatest optimist. By fencing off all other roads, all traffic from Solingen, in the British zone, to Elberfeld, in unoccupied Germany, must now pass along the principal road bisecting Gronenberg and through the French customs barrier.

This measure was taken to minimize smuggling, heretofore carried on on an extensive scale. While the French have been seeking auto trucks fleets of these have been engaged in smuggling, steering just closely enough to escape the customs lines.

All traffic from Remscheid to Elberfeld is similarly controlled at Ronsdorf.

A continued resistance was unanimously voted by representatives of the trade unions in the occupied territory at a meeting in Dortmund today.

The pope intends to make an effort to restore the Ruhr to normalcy, according to Mgr. Testa, who spoke today to chairmen of the Catholic unions of Germany, and Fritz Thyssen.

DAWES FLAYS POLITICIANS, PEOPLE'S FOE

"Vociferous political demagogues who seek to increase their votes and neglect the welfare of the average American man and woman" were denounced last night by Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes in an address at a banquet at the Congress hotel, which closed the sixty-seventh national convention of the Theta Chi fraternity.

"There never was a time in the history of America," the general said, as he rattled the glasses on the speaker's table with thumps of his hands, "that we had such cowardice, hypocrisy, and blatancy as we have in our politics today. We haven't any leaders. The politicians are allowing the rights and liberties of the individuals to be encroached upon by organized minorities and they aren't doing anything to stop it."

In demanding that the politicians and officeholders "stand out before us in their true colors," Gen. Dawes emphasized his remarks by stamping so forcibly that the creaking of the speakers' platform was audible.

"We see no attempt being made by officeholders to curb lawlessness," he asserted. "They are too busy looking for votes. But we see hundreds of men and women, in Chicago and other cities of the United States, unjustly prosecuted and murdered and injured. The politicians are ignoring them. We have lax enforcement of the law."

Gen. Dawes demanded that Americans be saved from the encroachments upon their personal liberties by "labor organizations, the Ku Klux Klan, the I. W. W. and other organizations which undertake to take the law in their own hands."

He suggested that the only possible solution for America today is the revival of American patriotism and "the rising up of the average American men and women to fight for their rights."

GERMANS BOMB JEWS; ANTI-SEMITISM WAVE SPREADS IN EUROPE

BERLIN, April 7.—Anti-Semitic disturbances have broken out in several cities of south Germany, according to authentic reports received here. In Mayence a mob invaded the Jewish section, scattering bombs in Jewish homes, smashing windows, destroying gardens, and cutting telephone wires. In Gusenhausen bombs were placed in the Jewish cemeteries.

WARSAW, April 7.—Squads of infantry and cavalry are patrolling the streets, following the excesses against the Jews occasioned by the execution by soviet authorities of the Roman Catholic vicar general.

Bomb Thrown in Vienna.

VIENNA, April 7.—A bomb exploded in the vestibule of the stock exchange last night after trading hours. It is thought the explosion was intended as a mark of sympathy with the anti-Jewish manifestations at Warsaw.

Plan Organization of Siberian Service Vets

A massmeeting to organize all the veterans who served in the American northern Russian expedition during the world war is to be held today at the home of Dr. Timothy McInerney, 6900 South Halsted street, who served with the forces. All members of Company 339, infantry; Company 337, ambulance corps; Company 337, field hospital, and Company 310, engineers, are asked to attend.

WOUNDED CHIEF IDENTIFIES ONE OF AUTO GUNMEN

Man Nabbed in Riddled Car Taken to Bedside.

Henry Pein, Melrose Park police chief, severely wounded yesterday in a street pistol fight with two gunmen, last night identified Dick Evenoff, 312 West Adams street, as one of his assailants. The identification was made at the Oak Park hospital just before Pein lapsed into a comatose condition from the two bullets fired into him from behind by one of the bandits as he lay grappling on the ground with the other, whom he had disarmed.

Pein could not identify Steve Nickoloff, a second suspect taken in a quick roundup by Chicago detectives.

Physicians said that while Pein's condition was critical the same courage which sent him single handed against the gunmen in a losing battle might supply the stamina for a winning fight in the hospital.

Hailed as Hero.

Pein's actions from the time he received word that suspicious looking men were loitering near Melrose Park manufactories which receive pay rolls every Saturday were marked by heroism.

William Korrell, coal dealer at 22d and Main streets, telephoned the chief about 10:45 a. m. that three men had driven up in a closed car and had parked on 22d street at the Northwestern tracks.

Pein drove over in the police car alone. One of the men was walking up and down the tracks. Another stood by the car, while the third was at the wheel. The man beside the car drew a gun as Pein approached. The police chief grappled with him and as they fell obtained the weapon. While they were wrestling the driver opened fire.

Empties Gun at Machine.

One shot went through Pein's left arm, a second into the pelvic region. As the two men speeded away in their car Pein rose to his feet, fell, and then emptied six shots from his gun into the machine. The windows were broken and one man is believed to have been wounded.

Taken to the Oak Park hospital, Pein, although evidently in agony, lay quietly for two hours while X-ray picture were made. He begged that his wife be kept unaware of his fight because she was ill, but then called for pencil and paper and scribbled this note to her:

"Dear Ma: Don't worry about me. I'm all right. HENRY."

When the doctors were ready to administer an anæsthetic he said none was necessary, but was overruled. The bullet was not removed, however, the physicians deciding against it after probing.

Pein could not say whether Evanoff was the man he wrestled with or the one who shot him.

Taken in Sheridan Road.

Evenoff was arrested at Cornelia avenue and Sheridan road after his car had collided with the machine of M. L. Jennings, 3820 Greenview avenue. Two bullet holes were in the side, the windows were broken, and on the back seat were two guns, one a .38 caliber, with all the bullets discharged. Pein was shot with a .38.

Sifting numerous stories told by Evenoff, Lieuts. Norton and Grady, with their squads, found the car had been stolen from East Chicago, Ind. They then went to Evenoff's room, arrested Nickoloff there, and later arrested more than fifty persons in the neighborhood. The car was positively identified from the license number—436687—which Pein got as it was driven away.

License Plate Stolen.

The license plate was issued for a small car belonging to Charles H. Craig, business agent for the Metal Polishers, Buffers, and Platers' union local No. 6, who said it was stolen from his car Friday night.

Evenoff and Nickoloff told many stories, but in all denied the shooting. They were held by the Chicago detective bureau last night while squads searched the west side for the third man, who was deserted by the two in the car.

It is believed the bandits were planning to hold up pay rolls for the Solon-Sturgis company, the National Malleable Iron Casting company, or the Edward Hines Lumber company.

SUSPECT, VICTIM

$750,000 Worth of "Dope" Confiscated in R. R. Yard

New York, April 7.—Federal agents today officially confirmed seizure in the New York Central railroad yards last night of 1,221 pounds of morphine which, at peddlers' rates, would have brought more than $750,000. The narcotic was found in a freight car destined for Canada.

MASKED WOMEN IN GHOSTLY GARB PARADE IN TEXAS

Dallas Is Scene of Klan Auxiliary March.

Dallas, Tex., April 7.—Downtown Dallas was jammed tonight to watch a parade of members of the "American Women," reported as being an auxiliary of the Ku Klux Klan in Texas. The parade was the first held by the women's order since its organization a year ago.

The parade was led by horsewomen, three abreast, carrying the American flag, the Lone Star flag of Texas, and the American Woman's flag, followed by a seventy-five piece band playing "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

The women, in a long line following the band, marched two abreast, wearing white robes with red crosses the right sleeves. They wore a peaked cap with a red tassel and were masked.

Women from all over the state were in line. Sheriff's deputies were on hand following reports today that rats, snakes, and mice would be turned loose. Police guards were everywhere.

It was reported that the organization is not in any way connected with the "Kamelia," or klan auxiliary being formed by Emperor Simmons of Atlanta.

RIVAL OFFICIALS HEAD BOARD TO OPERATE KLAN

Atlanta, Ga., April 7.—After a week of legal bickerings between supporters of William Joseph Simmons, emperor, and H. W. Evans, imperial wizard, the affairs of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan today were placed in the hands of a commission of three men, to be administered by them pending further orders from the court.

Superior Judge E. D. Thomas in announcing his decision today named Mr. Simmons, Mr. Evans, and J. M. George, marshal of the Municipal court, as the committee to carry on the operations of the klan.

Following the action in Judge Thomas' court T. J. McKinnon, chief investigator for the klan, and N. N. Furney, cashier for the order, were placed on trial in Municipal Judge T. O. Hathcock's court on charges of larceny after trust. Both were dismissed for lack of sufficient evidence.

Charges that the legal batle to oust him from control of the klan is being engineered by Edward Young Clarke and Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler Grow, former associates in the propagation department of the klan, were made tonight by Imperial Wizard Evans. Clarke, recently ousted, is being sought on a white slave charge.

Anti-Klan Suspect Freed in Print Shop Bombing

John Fleming, formerly subscription solicitor for Tolerance, the official anti-Ku Klux Klan organ, who had been arrested as a suspect in the throwing of a bomb which partially wrecked the printing plant of Dawn, the pro-klan paper, was released yesterday after he had stoutly denied any complicity. The arrest followed an alleged threat made by him against J. L. Forcum, part owner of the klan organ.

KIN OF JUDGE IN SMALL TRIAL ON KAUFMAN'S BOND

Indicted Gunman Hastily Freed Under $5,000.

It became known yesterday that Russell E. Edwards, an employé of the Security Savings bank of Waukegan and a brother of Judge Claire C. Edwards, trial judge in the Small case, signed the bond upon which Eddie Kaufman, Chicago beer runner and gunman, was given his liberty Friday night. The bond was signed before State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county had been informed of Kaufman's arrest or given opportunity to question him.

Col. Smith yesterday launched an investigation into the reason for the speed with which Kaufman was arrested, rushed to Waukegan, and set at liberty. Kaufman is under indictment with Eddie Courtney for conspiracy to bribe John B. Fields, one of the jurors who acquitted Gov. Small.

Why the Haste Over Bond?

The state's attorney questioned Sheriff Edward Ahlstrom as to his reasons for allowing Kaufman to visit the office of his attorney, W. W. O'Brien, arrange for a $5,000 cash bond, and take J. H. Murphy with him before returning to Waukegan.

It was while the state's attorney was inquiring into this matter that it developed Murphy had turned $5,000 in currency over to the judge's brother and the latter had signed the bond.

How Kaufman, a fugitive for many weeks and reported penniless—in fact, the governor's son, Leslie Small, is said to have admitted before the grand jury that Kaufman visited him in Springfield seeking money—was suddenly able to furnish a $5,000 cash bond is somewhat of a mystery. On top of that, he appeared before Judge Adam C. Cliffe yesterday and succeeded in having a forfeited $15,000 bond in a federal beer running case reinstated.

Brother of Judge May Be Called.

Harry Edwards of Gray's Lake, another brother of the trial judge, it was learned, may be called as a witness when the grand jury reconvenes on April 21. An affidavit signed by him is said to be in the possesion of the state in which he admits having been placed on the city pay roll in Chicago as an investigator for Corporation Counsel Ettelsons' office during March of last year, the month in which the Small jury was being drawn.

The affidavit, it is said, sets forth that Edwards was sent to see William J. Stratton of Antioch, then a member of the board of supervisors of Lake county and since the trial chief game warden in the Small administration. Stratton, it is said, sent him to see "Ike" Volz, Lundin's secretary, and the latter in turn sent him to see Fred C. Franke, secretary to Corporation Counsel Ettelson.

Admits Being on Pay Roll.

Edwards denies he ever saw Ettelson personally, but admits having been placed on the pay roll at a salary of $150 a month. He is also said to admit that he did little or no work as an investigator in Chicago. Most of his time during the period of his employment was spent in Lake county.

Attorney Emory J. Smith, who filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the Superior court on Friday to obtain the release of William J. Riley, now being held by Col. Smith as an important state's witness in the bribery cases, announced yesterday he will withdraw the petition tomorrow. He was given permission to see Riley yesterday, and the latter assured him that he intended to stand by his confession and that he did not wish to be removed from the custody of State's Attorney Smith for the present.

EDDIE KAUFMAN'S BONDS IN BOOZE CASE REINSTATED

Eddie Kaufman, one of the alleged principals in the plot through which certain jurors who acquitted Gov. Len Small are said to have been bribed, yesterday appeared before Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe in time to have his bonds in a government case declared reinstated.

Because he had been a fugitive in connection with the Small jury investigation at Waukegan, Kaufman failed to appear Friday when called in Federal Judge Wilkerson's court to answer to charges of "booze running." Judge Wilkerson declared his $5,000 bond forfeited. Later, however, Kaufman was arrested by state officers at 63d and Halsted street and rushed to Waukegan, where he was given a preliminary hearing and released on a cash bond of $5,000.

Judge Wilkerson did not hold court yesterday, and for that reason nothing was done in connection with Kaufman's Chicago troubles other than the reinstatement of the bonds. It is probable efforts will be made to get a delay in the federal case until the state charges against Kaufman are disposed of.

TWO AUTOS KILL CHILD AT PLAY AND SPEED ON Second Car Unawares Adds to Tragedy.

To escape being "tagged" by a playmate, 8 year old Mary Elizabeth Corrigan of 1315 Mohawk street ran into the street in front of 1303 Clybourn avenue last night and was crushed to death under the wheels of two automobiles.

Her cries at play turned to a scream as she saw the first automobile, a big black touring car, bearing down upon her at high speed. Playmates echoed her cry and pedestrians shouted a warning. There was a grinding of brakes applied too late and the girl was thrown into the middle of the street car track.

Second Car Strikes.

The car which had struck her put on speed and was vanishing down Clybourn avenue when the driver of a second car, hearing the commotion, stepped on the accelerator in an effort to overtake the "vampire" car. In his excitement he overlooked the huddled figure on the car tracks and the child again was struck.

A Clybourn avenue car was brought to a stop within a foot of the lifeless little body after the motorman's attention had been attracted.

Neither of the two automobiles returned to the scene of the accident.

"Auto Widow" Awarded $7,500.

Joseph and John Dudeck, father and son, whose auto last June killed John Wojicek, 1329 South 52d avenue, Cicero, must pay their victim's widow damages of $7,500, a jury in Judge Francis S. Wilson's court ruled during the day.

Nine witnesses testified that the elder Dudeck, who lives at 15639 South Halsted street, and his son, living at 4316 South Marshfield avenue, were intoxicated when their speeding machine struck Wojicek, the father of five small children, at 63d street and Ashland avenue. The younger man, who was driving, was recently acquitted on a manslaughter charge.

Victims of the Day.

Dragged from the step of a street car by a speeding motor truck, John Zubak, 42, 1120 West 19th street, died at the county hospital.

Frank May, 5353 South Wood street, driver of the truck, attempted to commit suicide by hanging himself with a belt last night in a cell in the Maxwell street station after he learned that Zubek had died. The lockup keeper found May hanging from the upper bars with his belt looped around his neck. He was cut down and a physician was called who revived him. Later a police guard was placed over him.

When Charles A. Klebenow of 6134 South Green street, driver of the motor truck which seriously injured 5 year old Charles Green Jr., failed to appear in court to answer assault charges, his $5,000 bond was forfeited and the bond increased to $10,000. A capias for his immediate arrest was issued.

Anthony Nokolas, 14 years old, 6538 South State street, was probably fatally injured and his cousin, Peter Vrounas, 14 years old, 815 South Halsted street, suffered bruises about his body last night when they were struck by an automobile while at Wallace and West 57th streets. Harry Kinney, 7807 South Green street, driver of the automobile, was taken into custody by the police.

GROCER IS SLAIN WHEN RESISTING LOOTING OF SAFE

Cops and Bandits Stage Running Gun Fight.

George Oswald, 35 years old, owner of a grocery at 157 West 31st street, was shot fatally early last evening by a Negro when he resisted the robber after he found him rifling the cash register at the front of the store.

Stanton avenue police took him to the People's hospital, but he died on the way.

Della Oswald, his wife, was in the front of the store, while he was in the rear working when the robber entered. He ordered Mrs. Oswald to raise her hands, then went to the cash register and took out $15.

Oswald, hearing the noise, ran to the front of the store and rushed at the Negro, who shot Oswald in the left side. The robber escaped.

Pistols Blaze in Chase.

Sergts. Keeler, Ebbe, and Fellon of the West North avenue station, Capt. James E. Doherty in command, engaged three bandits in an early morning revolver duel. Scores of shots were exchanged and the police believe they wounded one of the highwaymen.

The detectives in the police "flivver" drove from Washtenaw avenue into West Division street, when they were fired upon from a dark green touring car parked there. They returned the fire and immediately the chase was on, with shots popping thick and fast on both sides.

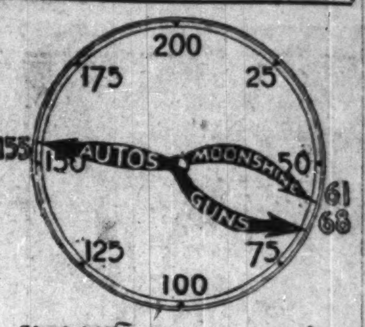
The chase continued at fifty miles an hour for more than three miles through the streets, until finally at Ashland avenue the detectives were outdistanced by the large machine.

Attempt to Slay Cop.

Policeman Joseph Lamb of the South Chicago police was fired upon by one of three occupants of an automobile, one of whom, he says, was a young and fashionably dressed woman, at 97th street and Commercial avenue. The policeman declared it was a palpable attempt to murder him.

Mrs. Katie Hardin, colored, 30 years old, 3757 Giles avenue, was shot and killed by her husband, William, when she went to the stockyards to remonstrate with him for not coming home on Friday night.

HANDS OF DEATH



Clock indicates number of persons killed in Cook county since Jan. 1 last, by automobiles, by shooting, and by moonshine.

BUDGET CLAUSE STOPS WORK ON CITY BRIDGES

Work on a number of city improvements, including the Roosevelt road viaduct, the Western avenue tunnel, and repairs on numerous bridges, is to be stopped, because of a clause in the annual budget passed last week by the city council.

This clause provides that no contract for work costing more than $500 can be let without a special order of the city council, and inasmuch as Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Breen has held that there is no council in existence, City Engineer Alexander Murdock doesn't know what to do.

Special orders for him to go ahead with the improvements probably will be passed at the meeting of the new council scheduled for April 16.

Bolt Explodes Gas Meter; Woman and Girl, 7, Burned

Hammond, Ind., April 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Edward Fryer and her 7 year old daughter were badly burned when lightning struck their home this afternoon and caused the explosion of a gas meter, sending a sheet of flame over woman and child. They are in the Hammond hospital.

2 PARTIES SEEK BALM TO CURE INTERNAL ILLS

Booze, League and World Court Divide Leaders.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—Prohibition, the league of nations, the world court, legislative bloc, and other issues were bringing serious rifts in both major parties, political observers said today. This, with presidential year approaching and with a closely divided congress in the offing, is being viewed with trepidation by leaders in both parties.

Clarke Raises League Issue Again.

Efforts to restore harmony in the Democratic ranks and present a United front for the 1924 campaign are getting nowhere fast. With William Jennings Bryan demanding bone dry prohibition enforcement and Gov. Al Smith of New York urging beer and light wines, the outlook for tranquility was bad enough, but those who have been trying to pour oil on the waters were in consternation today over the speech of John H. Clarke, former justice of the United States Supreme court, insisting that the league of nations be made the chief issue of the 1924 campaign.

Judge Clarke's speech was thought to lend color to the reports that he is the favorite candidate of Woodrow Wilson for the Democratic nomination. His speech, particularly when he likened article X. to the Monroe doctrine, sounded singularly like an echo of Mr. Wilson's appeals for ratification of the league covenant in 1919.

It was an interesting coincidence that on the very day of Judge Clarke's speech ex-Senator Hitchcock [Dem., Neb.] declared the league dead as a political issue. Senator Hitchcock's views are shared by many other Democratic senators who followed Wilson in the last ditch fight for the league.

These senators recall Gov. Cox's fervent advocacy of the covenant in 1920 and what happened to him. They contend that they have given the league a thought test, and they want to see next year's campaign waged upon issues nearer home. Hence they were anything but pleased with the militant and defiant vigor of Judge Clarke's pronouncement.

Storms for Harding in World Court.

The Republicans, however, are in no position to laugh at the Democratic discomfiture. One of the problems which President Harding must face when he returns from Florida tomorrow is whether to defy the "irreconcilable" faction in his own party and push the world court plan to the limit or whether to quietly lay it aside. He is getting advice both ways. Secretary of State Hughes, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, and others want him to go ahead with the world court proposal. On the other hand, some senate leaders believe that it would be most unwise politically to antagonize the "irreconcilables" and give them cause for insurging with the presidential campaign so close at hand.

A plea for Republican leadership to assert itself and weld the various factions of the party into a harmonious majority in congress was voiced today by Senator Jones [Rep., Wash.], chairman of the senate commerce committee.

Senator Jones' statement generally was viewed as a reply to the recent speech of Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho], charging the Republican party with gumshoeing. At the same time it was regarded as a notice that Senator Jones and others of the moderate group would not join in any move seeking to ostracize progressives and radicals in party activities.

"The need of the hour," Senator Jones said, "is to bring the different elements of the majority together. That is the prime duty of the Republican leadership. With a full and frank exchange of views mutual concessions can and will be made. If we do this we will succeed. If we do not, how can we hope to succeed? Even if the people believe in the fundamental policies of the Republican party they will not continue to support that party if it shows by its lack of cohesion that it cannot bring results.

WILSON TALKS ISSUE

Washington, D. C., April 7.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for vice president in the last campaign, talked politics for an hour today with former President Wilson and later said that a definite foreign policy for the United States will be the outstanding issue of the approaching campaign. Mr. Roosevelt, however, declined to divulge the views expressed by Mr. Wilson.

"Mr. Wilson is taking a keen interest in the political situation," Mr. Roosevelt said. "He seemed in much improved condition, and not at all wearied after our long talk."

Referring specifically to the league of nations issue, Mr. Roosevelt said there have been great changes in the world since the covenant of the league was written.

"Conditions have changed," he said. "I believe that every one who thinks the United States should join a league believes it must be a revised league."

PEPPER FOR A LEAGUE

Philadelphia, Pa., April 7.—[Special.]—Senator George Wharton Pepper believes the time has come for the United States to make application for entry into the league of nations, first insisting, however, that the league undergo certain changes.

"The league of nations," he said, "is being crystalized into the kind of association which the United States can enter. The league is willing now to surrender its objectionable features."

Believes League Sees Errors.

Senator Pepper, from the beginning, has been one of the most ardent opponents of the league in its original form, while firmly believing that some such body was essential to the peace of the world. Today he is convinced that the league had seen the error of its ways—that sentiment here is in favor of entry with the objectionable features removed and that the matter soon will be brought up in a national way.

"The question," he said, "will not be an issue in the 1924 presidential campaign. When the situation clears up there will be an overwhelming sentiment in this country in favor of making a proposal to the league for such changes in its structure as will enable us to enter.

"On the other hand, if any party were to be so unwise as to advocate our entering the league without such changes, the overwhelming sentiment of the country would repudiate the suggestion."

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST

Little Miss Marion Mathie makes friends with the llama at the circus.

PARENTS ENJOY IT

The old theory that the circus is for the children was exploded last night when just as many old folks as children filled the Coliseum to see the opening night performance of the Sells-Floto circus. And it was the adults who provided all the laughs and appreciation.

There was nothing missing, from the sawdust to the aerial trapezes, from the monkeys to the elephants, from the contortionist to the equestrienne.

TWO GIRLS SAVED FROM KIDNAPERS; 5 MEN ARE HELD

One Tells How She Was Lured from Dance Hall.

Two young girls were rescued yesterday from men wh were holding them captive for immoral purposes. One of the girls was Azalia Anderson, 15 years old, daughter of George Anderson, wealthy west side manufacturer. The other was Martha Stearns, 13 years old, daughter of Harold Stearns, 1311 18th avenue, Melrose Park.

The Anderson girl disappeared from her home at 110 North Laporte avenue on March 22. Yesterday she was found. Her story caused the arrest of three men, Robert White, 3956 West Roosevelt road; W. McCabe of the same address, and James McIntyre, 1800 West 22d street. It brought a search for four others—James Hayes, "Red" Munger, James Harding, and a man known only as Graff.

Went to Dance Hall.

On the night she disapepared, the girl said, she went to a dance hall in Cicero. There she met Hayes, with whom she danced. He persuaded her to go home with him. White was there when they arrived.

The men kept her a virtual prisoner, the girl said, and invited their friends to call at the apartment.

"I had a good home and kind parents," she sobbed, "but I ran away to see something different."

Found With Motorists.

The flight of the Stearns girl was revealed by the arrest of two young men near Geneva, Ill., on a charge of driving an automobile without a license number.

Motorcycle Policeman W. E. Orr, noticing the car parked by the side of the road, arrested the two men inside. They gave their names as James De Trado and Robert Kalamfreo. The girl was with them. She disappeared from her home a week ago. She said that the two men had forced her into their automobile on the day she disappeared and taken her to a room at 1527 West Adams street, where they held her prisoner.

Girl Taken Home.

Afterwards they took her to Geneva. They were on their way back to Chicago when they were arrested. The girl was taken home to her father. The two men were held in Geneva until the arrival of the Chicago police.

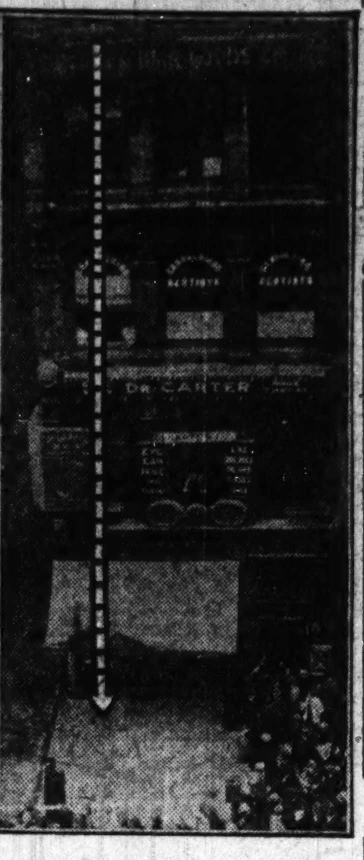
Charged with attempting to attack a 5 year old girl at whose home he was begging, Arthur Rader, 54 years old, 440 South Clark street, was fined $200 and costs yesterday by Judge Joseph Burke.

Frank Dolan, 22 years old, of Cleveland, O., was fined $5 and costs yesterday for accosting young women in front of a loop store.

Masher Makes Date with Woman; Meets Cop; Fined

For two nights Mrs. Sol J. Collanger, a widow, of 4169 Grand boulevard, was annoyed by the attentions of George McLaughlin, a salesman of 3903 Michigan boulevard, who, she asserted, called her up three or four times a night and "talked silly." On the advice of the police she invited him to call at the house where he was arrested. He was find $100 and costs yesterday.

GIRDER FALLS



Where and how four persons were injured when girder fell from the fourth floor of the Singer building at 120 South State street on visiting shoppers.

POSTAL RECEIPTS IN FIFTY CITIES SHOW INCREASE

Washington, D. C., April 7.—Postal receipts in fifty industrial cities for March showed an increase of 12.91 per cent over March, 1922, the postoffice department announced today.

While the increase was reported as general throughout the country, the southern states showed particular gains. Waterbury, Conn., led the fifty industrial cities with a gain last month over March a year ago of 48.69 per cent. Other cities showing marked increased receipts include: Cheyenne, Wyo., 43.23 per cent; Manchester, N. H., 27.49 per cent; Charlotte, N. C., 27.30; Birmingham, Ala., 25.21; Butte, Mont., 24.19; Jackson, Miss., 23.54; and Shreveport, La., 22-56.

FOUR HURT BY FALLING STEEL GIRDER IN LOOP

Girl Hit by Beam After 4 Story Drop May Die.

Four persons were injured, one of them, an 8 year old girl, probably fatally, when a 200 pound steel bar fell from the cornice work on the fourth floor of the Singer building, 120 South State street, yesterday afternoon crashing into a crowd of State street shoppers.

Dozens of other persons were held out of the danger zone by a motor truck which was just entering an alley.

The injured:

Minnie Dogel, 8 years old, South Holland, Ill.; skull fracture.

Harry D. Young, 49, also of South Holland; lacerations of the shoulder and side.

Miss Bernadine Pickwood, 22, 408 1st avenue, Maywood; lacerations.

Miss Blanche Pickwood, 20; severely cut.

On Shopping Trip.

The Dogel girl had come to Chicago with her mother, Mrs. Mary Dogel, on a shopping trip. They were accompanied by Mr. Young.

Seeing the truck of a loop store about to enter the alley, the three hurried across in front of it, closely followed by the Misses Pickwood.

A sudden scream came from the crowd held at the curb on the other side of the alley by the passing truck as the whirling girder hurtled down on th eunsuspecing five. They looked up and the mother dodged to one side, making a desperate clutch at her child. The girl, bewildered, stood stock still and one end of the bar struck her on the head. The other four were brushed by the falling object, receiving only cuts and bruises.

Crushed by Doors.

William J. Ashfield, 30 years old, was crushed to death, and Duston Alltop, also 30, was probably fatally injured, when twenty steel doors, each weighing about 375 pounds, slipped from the grip of a crane by which they were being loaded into a gondola car in the Forsyth Brothers' shops at Harvey. The men, who were piling the doors, were pinned against the side of the car.

"HARDING AT HALFWAY POST" TO BE TOPIC OF TALK HERE BY FESS

Senator Simeon O. Fess of Ohio will be the principal speaker Monday night at the thirty-third annual banquet of the Hamilton club, to be held in the club building at 18 South Dearborn street. His subject will be "President Harding at the Halfway Post," and he will discuss the problems met by the Republican administration and what the President and his cabinet have accomplished during the two years he has been in office. Oscar E. Carlstrom and Douglas Malloch will be the other speakers, while President Wirt E. Humphrey will preside.

Prof. Zeublin Says France Needs a New Government

If France and Germany are left alone to settle the question of the Ruhr, nothing can save the world from becoming involved in another great war, Prof. Charles A. Zeublin contended yesterday in a lecture, given in Hotel La Salle under the auspices of the Elementary and Home Education association. "France needs a new government," he asserted. "It's present officials are leading it into a worse situation than Alsace-Lorraine brought to Germany."

Funeral Auto Service That Excels

¶ Perfectly natural and commendable is the desire of any family that the last obsequies in honor of a departed loved one should be memorable.

¶ Whether a funeral will be soon forgotten or long remembered by those who attend depends upon the ability of the undertaker in charge to make its every detail impressive and distinctive.

¶ To pay a generous and even exorbitant price for a burial casket, to spend more money for special music and for flowers and then to have these efforts discredited by the unsightly appearance and condition of the undertaker's automobiles is always a grievous disappointment.

$25.00 pays for a cloth covered Casket of excellent quality, lined with silk and mounted with six handles in old silver finish. Finer grades up to $1,000.

¶ In keeping with the high standard throughout of Skeeles-Biddle Company undertaking service are the late model Pierce-Arrow seven-passenger cars which we use exclusively.

¶ No funeral cortege could be more impressive than one of the stately Skeeles-Biddle Company hearses followed by a cavalcade of these big, clean, roomy, high-powered cars with their luxurious upholstery and comfort-giving springs.

¶ You may well ask any friend in need of such advice why he should be satisfied with the usual type of nondescript funeral auto service—dilapidated, unreliable, second-hand cars of assorted types and makes. For Skeeles-Biddle Company auto livery cost no more, while our prices for caskets and funeral supplies are from 40 to 60 per cent less than others ask.

¶ No part of Chicago or suburbs is too remote to be reached quickly by one of our executives. You assume no obligations whatsoever in telephoning for all the information desired.

FOSTER HAILED AS RED HERO BY RADICALS HERE

Tells Crowd of "Victory" at Michigan Trial.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

To the measured, choir-led singing of the International, the song of the workers, the waving of red roses, and wild cheering from thousands of young radicals, W. Z. Foster returned home last night as a victor from the red trials in Michigan.

The red leader made his first public appearance at Ashland auditorium, where he was made the lion of a celebration originally intended to celebrate the first anniversary of the Jewish Daily Freedom, official organ of the Workers' Party of America, a part of the communist movement.

Stood by Their Guns.

"Charles E. Ruthenberg and I took the witness stand and stood faithfully by our principles," he told his comrades as soon as the cheering and singing incident to his arrival in the packed hall had died away.

"We were asked if we believed in a soviet form of government for the United States and we said yes."

Waves of applause followed this statement.

"We were asked if we wanted the dictatorship of the proletariat for this country and we said we did."

"Yes, yes, we do," came the cries from the delighted audience.

Tells of Converts.

"When we went over to Michigan," Foster continued, "we found sentiment against us. The newspapers and the department of justice had been stirring this up. There was one woman called to the jury box. She was asked if she knew what Reds were and she said 'ignorant foreigners.'

"She did not stay on the jury but there was another woman who did. And she was a descendant of revolutionary people and had two sons in the American Legion and a husband who was superintendent of a box factory. Yet after she came to understand our cause she was one of the principal leaders in the struggle in the jury room to free me.'

"Despite all propaganda against us, we succeeded in changing public sentiment and we split the jury in the middle. Ruthenberg will go to trial next Monday and he will stand by his principles. I do not think the prosecution will be able to convict a communist in Berrien county, Mich."

Urges Workers' Press.

Foster then pleaded for the support of the workers' party organ.

"There is one supreme thing the workers must do," he said, "and that is to create a press. The bosses understand that. Look at the wonderful weapons by which they control the masses."

He asked for donations for the paper and soon had checks and money rolling to the platform. Some of the branch organizations of young workers gave hundreds of dollars.

This audience was made up of intelligent young Jews, well dressed, smiling, earnest, sacrificing to their cause. Dr. M. Olgin, auditor of the paper, and another speaker told of Russian problems and aroused great enthusiasm for the Russian soviet. Red literature was sold freely. The Workers' party is said to have taken on new momentum since the Michigan trial.

RUSSIA DENIES GIVING HELP TO MICHIGAN REDS

Says Nation Minds Own Business.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MOSCOW, April 7.—[Tribune Radio.]—The soviet government is keen about having foreign countries abstain from interfering in its internal affairs and it takes the view that any action of the American communist party, even when taken in accordance with the plan of the third internationale, does not constitute Russian interference in other nations' affairs.

According to an official of the foreign office, the Foster trial in Michigan, no matter what evidence is produced showing the third internationale in Moscow directed American communist affairs, does not interest the soviet government.

Explains Russian Position.

Russia's position is explained thus:

"The Russian communist party governs Russia the same as the Conservative party now governs England. here is an international communist party which meets in Moscow annualy to discuss the program for international communism. Coincidentally some some of the leaders of the Russian senate are also leaders of the international communist organization, but the Russian government does not direct the affairs, plans, or theories of the international communist contingent.

"Thus, while Leon Trotsky, in the capacity of a commissar, directs the Russian army officially, he was never an officer of the international congress. At the international congress, in the capacity of a private member, he held heated controversies with the American members, who participated in the stupid blunders in the Michigan woods. In fact, the black shadow of the Michigan flasco hung over the American delegation.

"Russia Not Responsible."

"The third international congress discussed a direct communist movement throughout the world and outlined a plan for a united front, which meant particiaption in every labor upheaval, strike and demonstration, whether conducted by communists or noncommunininists. These plans were formulated by such leaders as Messrs. Trotsky, Radek, Bucharin, and others, some were government officials and some not. The soviet government takes no responsibility for their actions in the communist convention."

Orchestral Din to Flood Arcadia at Jazz Band Meet

Jazz orchestras, competing against each other for the first time in Chicago's history, will fight for a first prize of $1,000 at the Arcadia auditorium on Tuesday night. Each will be allowed to play from two to four pieces, the prize awards depending on ability only and not according to size or volume. Many well known dancehall orchestras have entered the contest.

LONG HUNT FOR PAMPHLET BY N. W. U. PREXY ENDS

Twenty-five years ago, President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university began a search for a small pamphlet entitled "He Did His Best." Written by the Rev. William A. Spencer, it told the story of Edward W. Spencer, a student of the university, who saved seventeen lives from the wreck of the Lady Elgin, off Evanston, on the morning of Sept. 8, 1860.

A few days ago, Miss Sadie Thompson, who is on the staff of the Lunt library of Northwestern university, was looking through some relics. There she found a copy of the pamphlet and sent it to Dr. Scott. So far as is known, it is the only copy extant.

Lodger Escapes Bailiff but Leaves Cash in Clock

When a deputy bailiff called at the house of Mrs. Anne Dzierwa, 1534 Fry street, to serve a writ of eviction on her lodger, Stefan Klaniczywski, who owed three months' rent, he found that the roomer had fled. A search of his rooms revealed that he had left a gold watch and chain and $80 in cash behind him, hidden in a clock.

$500,000,000 TREASURE MOVED AS BANKS MERGE

J. J. Mitchell President of New Institution.

While directors of the Illinois Merchants' Trust company were in conference yesterday to elect officers for the new institution formed recently by a merger of the Corn Exchange National, the Merchants Loan and Trust and the Illinois Trust and Savings banks, the gigantic task of moving the millions in cash and securities into the new bank home at West Jackson boulevard and South Clark street was got under way.

JOHN J. MITCHELL.
[(C.) Moffett Photo.]

All of the treasure, representing over $500,000,000 in value, had been transported and was stowed safely in the new vaults by 4 p. m., according to Sterling B. Cramer, vice president in charge of organization, who was general supervisor of the moving work.

J. J. Mitchell President.

John J. Mitchell, previously announced as chairman of the board of the new institution, was elected president. The naming of a new president became necessary following the sudden death a week ago of Edmund D. Hulbert, originally head of the Merchants' Loan, who had been elected president of the merged institutions. Mr. Mitchell is now in California on vacation.

Three other major officers of the new bank were elected at the meeting, which was held in the Illinois Trust building and presided over by Chauncey Keep. They are John J. Geddes, former cashier of the Merchants'; William H. Geddes, former assistant cashier of the Illinois, and L. L. Loehr, former secretary of the Merchants', all of whom were made vice presidents. Mr. Loehr and F. F. Taylor, secretary of the new bank, will have charge of the trust department. J. I. Cooper, cashier of the Illinois, retains that position in the merger.

New President Soon.

Mr. Mitchell, for the present, will serve also as chairman of the board. It is expected, however, a new president will soon be selected to succeed him as president. Ernest A. Hamill, chairman of the Corn Exchange, which in the merger retains its individuality as a national bank, is also at present serving that institution as president.

Other promotions announced make assistant cashiers of J. G. Dickson and C. G. Nelson of the Illinois bank, F. G. Lets and R. G. Gadsen of the Merchants, and J. W. Rubecamp, formerly of the Corn Exchange. A. B. Hussander and S. G. Morse of the Illinois and H. G. Fairweather of the Merchants' were appointed assistant secretaries. E. S. Layman and C. F. Monahan of the Illinois were made managers respectively of the foreign service exchange and the savings department.

All employés of the banks in the merger are to be retained by the new institution, it is announced.

Raze Noted Structure.

Yesterday's conference was the last which will be held in the Illinois bank building. Work of demolishing the structure, the interior of which was long considered one of the most beautiful and impressive in the country, is to begin Monday. The building became historic in Chicago in July, 1919, when an airship, touring over the loop, caught fire and fell upon the building, causing the loss of seventeen lives.

Unsuccessful attempts were made to "give away" the building to any organization which would take it. Among organizations which considered acceptance were the Chicago Historical society, the Lincoln park commission and Northwestern university. The structure, valued by architects today at over $1,000,000, was built during the "tight money" period of 1893 at a reported cost of less than half a million.

Upon the vacated site is to be erected the west wing of the new building to be occupied by the Corn Exchange.

Heavy Guard for Moving.

The services of more than 600 men and dozens of vans were necessary to accomplish the moving. Minute details of the transfer of coin, currency, securities, valuable records and office furniture were prepared by Mr. Cramer weeks in advance. The moving, proceeding as by clockwork, under protection of guards armed with rifles, will be completed by tomorrow dawn, it was declared.

EXPECT LUEDER TO GET BACK HIS POST IN CHICAGO

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.—Arthur C. Lueder, defeated candidate for mayor of Chicago, probably will be reappointed postmaster of Chicago, it wis indicated in official circles today.

President Harding is expected to make a decision in the matter soon after his return tomorrow from Florida. For the time being Mr. Lueder probably will be designated as acting postmaster, postoffice department officials holding that by virtue of his resignation to enter the mayoralty campaign he is not eligible for recommissioning as postmaster until a new nomination is sent to the senate."

OUR DIPLOMATS AND OUR POLICY.

It has been said that the chief duty of our ambassador at the court of St. James is to get invitations for his fellow countrymen to the king's garden parties, and the cynicism contains more truth than the home folks suspect.

We make a serious mistake if we carry this notion too far. Our diplomatic agents will always have grave responsibilities. If their duties as negotiators are greatly diminished their importance as sources of information and advice remains very great. A misreading of the situation and of the forces in a foreign country may be decisive with an ambassador's government, and in a crisis may precipitate a fatal course of action. The case of Prince Lichnowsky, German ambassador to Great Britain in 1914, may be in point, although there is doubt as to the facts. But, at any rate, he was blamed for misinterpreting British opinion and intention and thus encouraging the German foreign office to believe that England would not act with France to the extent of going to war. This blame may be an alibi for the government, but the fact remains that the judgments not only of Lichnowsky but of all the diplomatic representatives of all the powers involved were extremely important factors in the shaping of their respective courses of action.

We cannot afford therefore to commit our diplomatic service to unfit men on the theory that our representatives are hardly more than office boys for the secretary of state. All the great governments, save ours, have developed a system of representation based on preparation, experience, and fitness. Blunders are inevitable, since any system is fallible, but our system, so far as we have one, is not such as will produce the service we need and shall need more as our foreign relations become more complicated and important to our welfare.

Perhaps the outstanding weakness of our service is the humiliating susceptibility of American representatives to the influences of the court to which they are accredited. The social charm of an old and sophisticated society, the glamour of titles and ancient forms, the atmosphere and paraphernalia of an aristocratic court, the finesse of European politics and diplomacy are too much for most of the men we send to the higher places. There is also the fact that the American husband is predisposed to be influenced by his wife in social matters, and as a tyro in diplomacy he does not realize that the society he enters is saturated with politics. He assumes, good easy man, that European society, like American, is a thing apart from serious affairs, and meanwhile his wife innocently enough is pursuing her ends, the winning of a social distinction that is negotiable, not merely abroad, but at home.

It is negotiable at home because American society, in the narrow sense of the word, aspires to recognition from the older society of England and France, and relations established in London and Paris are the highest prizes at Newport.

It is significant that our really powerful and effective representatives abroad have been immune to these influences, as our earlier diplomats were, as, for example, Charles Francis Adams was. Perhaps the struggle for independence and the sense of triumphant nationality gave these men an Americanism stalwart enough to withstand all blandishments. But, strangely enough, as the United States has waxed in power our representatives have declined in national pride and self-respect. And where this has not occurred we have had the unconscious colonial-minded and the sentimentalist who labors under the delusion that somehow he ought to represent altruism in foreign affairs rather than the interests of the great nation he has the honor to represent.

This weakness of our diplomatic service is not confined to the higher missions and we offer no remedy for it, although with the weakness realized a President or secretary of state might make more careful selections. But there is another weakness for which no single government and no ambassador nor minister is responsible. It is our lack of a well defined foreign policy. Our representatives are at a great disadvantage in lacking the guidance and sustaining force which a knowledge of the national purpose would give. As it is, they must often be moving in a haze and groping for a point of view. Even as observers they often cannot know what to look for, what forces and tendencies to study, what group of phenomena to analyze and report upon. In such a situation we can hardly blame them if they become victims of adroit emphasis and partisans of special interests in the court in which they find themselves. The European diplomat, on the other hand, is saturated in tradition and policy. He always knows in a general yet pretty definite way what his government is after, what ports his country is sailing for. Therefore he knows what must be watched, what must be interpreted, and he is usually on guard because he knows what he has to guard.

We don't know when we shall have a well defined foreign policy, representing the continual purpose, not of a party, but of the enduring will of the nation. Perhaps a democracy can never evolve and maintain a well defined, consistent, and persistent foreign policy. That remains to be seen both with us and with the new democracies of the old world. But until we do achieve some order in our international thought and action we shall continue to drift, as in the main we have drifted, blown often out of our course by winds of mood or passing sentiment, becalmed often by indifference or preoccupation, when we should have been under way.

RELIGION AND MORAL INSTRUCTION OF YOUTH.

The Chicago Sunday School association, a Protestant interdenominational body, estimates that there are more than half a million of the youth of Chicago who are receiving no religious instruction of any kind, Jewish, Catholic, or Protestant.

As a corollary, the association believes, crime among adolescents in Chicago has increased 30 per cent since the war began. Bishop Nicholson is quoted as estimating that 85 per cent of Chicago's crime is committed by boys under 21 years of age. We do not know whether this figure has a statistical foundation, but the association cites Judge Humphrey of Queens County court, New York, in the conclusion that "our crime is committed almost wholly by those whom the Sunday school does not reach," and he adds that "of the thousands of cases before me during the last sixteen years there has been only one offender actively connected with the Sunday school."

The association further asserts there are fifteen schools maintained by radicals in New York, employing Sunday school methods for the inculcation of radical ideas on religion and morality; that three have been reported in Chicago and that many more are planned for American cities.

We think the association is emphasizing one of the most serious problems before the American people. Roosevelt said "people educated in intellect and not educated in morals and religion will become a menace to our nation," and we would add that moral and religious instruction, if it is to have effect, must be given in youth while mind and character are forming.

Powerful agencies exist for religious and moral education in the churches through their Sunday schools and many related activities, and the Catholics, the Lutherans, and in the Atlantic states the Episcopalians maintain also a system of parochial schools in which secular education as well as religious instruction is provided. Among the Protestant churches interdenominational organizations like the Sunday School association and the Sunday School council, now merged, are at work unifying and extending the educational forces of the Protestant churches. The service to the social health of American society of these many religious agencies is inadequately realized. If it were realized and if the need of the nation for it were realized it would be better supported. Certainly our country and its institutions, founded as they are upon the character of our people and not upon mere legal and political forms, cannot hope to prosper without the current of religious and moral influence kept flowing by these organizations.

But while we may hope the increasing scope and efficiency of religious agencies will progressively reduce the number of our youth which is out of their reach, the fact cited by the Sunday School association, that over a half million of Cook county's youth get no religious or moral instruction of any kind, must remind us that we have here a special problem. We believe that instruction in morals must lack a good deal of force when divorced from religious inspiration, but morals have a validity apart from any religious sanction, and it is of the gravest social importance that all our youth should be taught the significance and value of those principles of right conduct upon which civilized society depends.

This is a duty of society to itself, a prime responsibility of the state. Our constitutional principle, which separates church from state, involves the problem of separating religious from moral instruction if we are to include the latter in the public schools. It does not imply that the state, because it keeps out of the religious field, can also afford to neglect moral instruction of its prospective citizens. President Emeritus Eliot, one of the greatest of American educators, says that ethical training is the most important subject to be brought back into American schools. "We desperately need," he writes for a symposium in Current Affairs, "to have the general principles of justice, honesty, truthfulness, mercy, and good will to men, to all sorts and conditions of men, taught in our public schools."

RED RUSSIA PREPARES.

The main object of the organization known as the Third Internationale is to make the world unsafe for democracy.

So far as Europe and Asia are concerned, the Internationale, according to reports of its discussions, depends upon the Russian army as the decisive agency when a people's misfortune and a Red propaganda have prepared the way. A Red revolt which promises results is to be promptly supported by an attack from the Russian army.

The fifth anniversary of the Red army was recently celebrated and Trotzky has been reviewing the history and present situation of that formidable military agent in the press. He says its efficiency is due to its revolutionary (bolshevist) nucleus and to the huge quantity of peasant reserves. "We have reduced the Red army to 600,000," he says, but adds "this, in fact, is a cadre (skeleton), not an army." He plans to have every private in this nucleus equal to a noncommissioned officer of the old army, and he urges that Russian industry develop to meet all military needs, since the material equipment which the czarist army obtained from capitalist countries cannot be expected because "the bourgeoisie looks upon us—and perhaps not without justification—as the wedge breaking and undermining every balance of the capitalist world."

This is not the talk of a bolshevist orator at a session of the Third Internationale. It is an address to the Russian people by the head of their army, and that army, despite its deficiencies of technical equipment, aeroplanes, tanks, and artillery, is probably the most powerful military force in the world after that of the French. Trotzky is speaking of his nucleus. A reliable estimate of the existing military strength of Russia is 1,000,000 in the regular army, 500,000 armed communist workmen, 500,000 armed government political militia (Cheka force), 1,000,000 conscript reservists, 2,000,000 world war veterans, or a total of 5,000,000 available for mobilization as effectives within a reasonable period of time.

The serious weakness of the Russian military situation, especially from the viewpoint of aggressive operations, is, of course, Russia's industrial backwardness. But Trotzky is not thinking of the present merely. "We are speaking," he says, "of the tasks of the army in the next five years. It is only too clear that the Red army will be necessary a year hence, two years hence, five years hence. The revolutionary development of Europe may, indeed, after the present period of comparative quiet, take suddenly a more stormy tempo. But undoubtedly the epoch of imperialist wars and revolutionary earthquakes will last not months or years but tens of years, seizing the world after short breathing spaces with new and ever severer and more painful spasms."

In this pleasant prospect Trotzky sees Russian bolshevism, armed to the teeth—having gradually developed or acquired by alliance, perhaps, the highest technical equipment, gas, tanks, aeroplanes, artillery in abundance—delivering the final fatal thrust to capitalism and sweeping over the world to supreme power; the proletarian world revolution, setting up by the sword a dictatorship over all peoples, masterfully organizing the Marxian millennium, and henceforth ruling the affairs of mankind from the Kremlin.

We are not expecting that event in a year, or in tens of years, yet the possibilities of mischief which the bolshevist military power represents, are considerable. Until western and central Europe contrive to make peace that power will remain a threat to civilization.

THE COMMUTERS' TICKET.

All changes arrive, even the last. The present seems tenacious but not even the past is that. It requires only a few thousand years to obliterate nearly all the footprints, and yet today is a bold day with nothing belittling behind it and nothing dismaying ahead of it. There is a lark in the meadow where one was expected and a bluebird on the post.

Juncoes, the snow birds which arrive in the fall before the snow and come again in the spring after the snow has gone, are running over the fallen leaves. The oaks must now give up their winter cerements, clung to in the east wind. New life is behind these dead of last year and a bud must come where the dead cling.

What if life be inexplicable in its past, unstable in its present, and uncharted in its future? It is spring, with the lark in the meadow, and the garden is to be made. The bud is full, the blossom is coming, and the wind's in the south, and who is man to think of his cradle or consider his end? The seed puts out a shoot and the shoot comes to leaf and flower and then to fruit. If then to decay, there is another seed when again the lark is in the meadow.

WILL DOWNSTATE VOTERS BOW TO SMALL'S LASH?

An editorial from a downstate newspaper, whose editor, we are reliably informed, is on Gov. Small's patronage roll for $3,600 a year, comes to us recommending the proposed $100,000,000 road bond issue. Specifically, it wants a new road from the home town to another town. It is eager to bind the property owners of the state to pay $100,000,000 and interest of some $50,000,000 to get that road. It would trade the political freedom and self-respect of its community for that road.

Such political influences make life hard for legislators who, in the interest of economy, scientific road building, and noncoercive politics, oppose the $100,000,000 proposal. Their communities want more good roads. The Small sycophants within them organize a delegation, lead it with a brass band to Springfield, whoop it up for Small, get his assurance that the roads will be built as soon as the community proves its loyalty to the Small practices and the bond proposal, and carry the word back home.

Tremendous political pressure is thus put upon the representatives of such a community. If they oppose Small or the bonds they are promptly accused of working against the roads and the welfare of their constituencies. It is grossly unjust to honest representatives, and equally unintelligent.

The facts are that these communities can and will get their roads much more cheaply, and just as quickly, and certainly if they support independent and self-respecting representatives as they will if they send men to Springfield who will bang their foreheads on the floor at the feet of King Len. The legislators can tell the governor what to do with as much authority as he can tell them. Those who are doing so should not be discredited. They represent the best thought of their communities.

If the taxpayers and voters have any self-respect they must resent the administration's efforts to coerce them on roads to which their right is unquestionable and superior to politics. They can prove their self-respect by supporting senators and representatives who are fighting for their rights rather than those who are capitulating for a consideration.

OUR HEROIC FRENCH ASSOCIATE.

[Free translation from German Abendpost.]

Since the man who made America infamous, Woodrow Wilson of the fourteen broken oaths, erected his Versailles treaty, and since the quintet Hughes-Hoover-Herrick-Harvey-Harding has so ably started to keep our nation from retrieving its honest name before God and men—since that time the crop of hatred between nations has been shooting up merrily. The following "bulletin," which is being distributed throughout Westphalia and elsewhere, shows what respect the present enormous military efforts of France, the victor by the grace of America, are calling forth in Germany:

"Great Headquarters—Northern Theater of the War: The great movement to encircle the Ruhr district has now been closed. A few advances on unfortified places serve merely to secure what has heretofore been accomplished. Yesterday's assault against two railroad stations led again to a full success; 8,000 rails, 33,685 ties, 88 switches, countless fishplates, bolts and screws and empty railroad cars fell into our hands. The population was unable to regain even one inch of the lost ground. Prisoners will be taken in a few days, as soon as the newly occupied railroad stations have been protected by tanks. Southern Theater of the War: No events of especial importance. France may look with satisfaction and pride on the incomparable achievements of the troops under my command.—Disgust, the General-in-Chief."

Since that "report" was written the southern "theater of war" has been considerably enlarged. But official America, which five, six and seven years ago was overflowing with moral indignation; America, which had been splitting the air with the program of righteousness which she would realize, provided only the German people would disarm and would turn away from her war lords; America keeps hiding her head in the sand. To rush to the arms in favor of England, to which country we were under no obligation, was a necessity, to be sure; but even to do as much as say one word in favor of Germany, of the German people, whom we have deceived in the most shameful manner—that is quite another thing!

METABOLISM TESTS.

K. S. M. writes: "May I ask you to give your readers an article on metabolism? A concise and comprehensive article."

REPLY: Stedman's medical dictionary defines metabolism as "tissue change, the sum of the chemical changes whereby the function of nutrition is effected."

Life is dependent on chemical change. The body, in doing its work, produces heat and energy. In addition, it repairs the wear and tear of its own cells in doing their work. The chemical changes through which energy is generated, work is done, heat is made, and tissue is repaired are called metabolic changes. The sum total is what is called metabolism.

To produce work, energy and heat, and to effect repairs, food is eaten, digested, absorbed, and burned. Physiologists have long sought, and are still seeking, methods of measuring the metabolic rate of the body. One way of doing that was used by Atwater and called the "respiration calorimeter." It was too complex and difficult for use outside of a well equipped laboratory. A far simpler method now in general use has popularized such terms as "metabolism tests," "metabolism rates," and is doubtless responsible for your inquiry.

This consists in collecting the air breathed out of the lungs in a certain fixed period of time, and of very carefully estimating the amount of carbonic acid it contains. From this the metabolism rate is calculated. The calculations must take into account the size and weight of the individual under test. To make the test fairly accurate, conditions, as physical and mental quiet, time of the day test, relation of time to meal times, and temperature of the room, must all be taken into account.

The theory is this: Most of the tissues and foods burned by the body are finally reduced to carbonic acid. By accurate measuring of the amount of carbonic acid thrown off by the lungs, a fairly accurate estimate of the brightness of life's fires can be made.

When the food eaten and the tissues of the body are burned to make heat and energy, to carry on life, there are several end products. One of these is carbonic acid; another is water; urea is a third; uric acid a fourth; a group of mineral salts such as salt might be called a fifth, and so on down a fairly long list. The at present used metabolism test takes account of just one of these. Some day we may have a simple, feasible, practical test which makes use of all of these end products and calculates from them the fuel consumed and the work done. But now we must depend upon results obtained by calculating from this one waste. And the results appear to be reasonably correct.

Of course the method of catching and measuring a waste, and calculating from that both the fuel and the energy produced, is well known and frequently used in other fields by engineers and laboratory people. A metabolism test is, in a certain sense, a measure of "pep." For instance, a "peppy" thyroid-plus individual has a high rate; a "pepless" thyroid-minus individual has a low metabolism rate. The test is especially valuable in such diseases and conditions as diabetes, goiter, myxoedema, acidosis, obesity, spareness, apoplexy, and in frequent headaches.

Maybe the time will come when it will be used in advising well men as to their habits, advising some to slow down and others to speed up.

MORE WINTER ITCH.

E. H. G. writes: "I once thought I had what you called 'winter itch,' but I will say that it is too much for me, and I have had two doctors take a shot at it. By the combination of all I could use I finally, as I thought, cured it, but this winter it had made its appearance again. It seems to me that the skin or pores are throwing off small fragments of something, for when I feel this crawling sensation, I rub my fingers over the place and I will get some small fragments that look like meal. (I believe it is the same as dandruff). Of course, I won't get but two or three. What baffles me is that it is worse after a bath than at any other time. Even though the bath be a cold or a hot one. But when I get hot, it makes me almost wild. It doesn't take scratching to relieve it, rubbing is best."

REPLY.

Your symptoms plainly indicate winter itch. Keep out of doors. The cool, moist, open air will quickly cure you.

In your section the spring cure is at hand. Greasing your skin may help some.

LET HER CRY IT OUT.

Mrs. F. J. S. writes: "Can you tell me what to do to wean a 14 months old baby? She wakes up five or six times during the night and cries until I nurse her. I give her milk or water to drink, but she refuses it. A couple of times I let her cry it out.

"Does crying a half hour continuously, harm?"

REPLY.

Let her cry it out. It is the lesser of evils. You are late in the beginning of her character training, but better late than never.

EXAMINATION ADVISED.

Mrs. M. A. writes: "In a first pregnancy during the fourth month a miscarriage occurred. The child had grown fast to the womb and it was necessary to use instruments for its removal.

"Would you kindly give me your idea as to the cause of that, and do you think it would necessarily do the same in a succeeding pregnancy?"

REPLY.

It would be wise to have an examination. There may be some local or constitutional trouble.

ENLISTED UNDER ASSUMED NAME.

Chicago, April 2.—[Friend of the People.]—A man I know enlisted in the United States army for service in France and as his father objected to his enlisting he did so under an assumed name. The man is now receiving government training, as he was injured during his two years in France. Is there any way he could have his name changed to the rightful one for army records?

E. V. P.

This is a matter of army regulation rather than of law. He should take up the matter with his commanding officer.

MARRIES UNDER FOREIGN NAME.

Chicago, March 31.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you kindly advise me through your columns if a marriage is legal if the man does not get married under his legal name, which is foreign, but uses the one by which every one knows him. The change in name is simply a matter of using the English pronunciation and steps are being made to change his name legally.

M. F.

Yes, the marriage would be valid.

No legal proceedings are required to make a change of name valid. It is sufficient if you use a new name and give notice of the change to those persons to whom the information may be material. In transactions in which your old name appears we suggest that you continue to use it to avoid confusion. For example, if real estate records show title in you, when you come to sell you should use the recorded name.

Fifteen Spanish War Vessels Leaving Cadiz.

PREPARATIONS FOR WAR.

Madrid, Via Paris, April 7.—Fifteen Spanish men-of-war will leave Cadiz immediately for Cape Verde Islands and several battalions have started to reinforce the garrison at the Balearic Islands in the Mediterranean. The provincial militia in the Canary Islands will be placed on a war footing.

Lieutenant General Correa, the Minister of War, and Admiral Bermejo, the Minister of Marine, are actively at work in their departments despite the holiday.

SUMMARY OF DEVELOPMENTS

The representatives of European powers in Washington tendered their good offices in averting war. President McKinley replied that the situation in Cuba had become insufferable.

General Lee is called home and will haul down the American flag in Havana and sail for Key West on Saturday.

Senor Gullon, the Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs, stated to the European Ambassadors that the demands of the United States would not be granted.

The Spanish ministry is united in refusing to allow American intervention or independence for Cuba.

A large fleet is about to sail from Cadiz and war preparations are going forward actively in Spain and Havana.

Republican Congressmen agree to sustain McKinley's policy of intervention without recognizing Cuban independence.

UNITE IN PEACE AS IN WAR FOR PUBLIC GOOD.

Marquette, Mich., March 30.—The people of the United States always become united in great national crises. Conflicting interests fuse in the white heat of patriotic fervor, and one mighty purpose animates the entire collective body of our citizenship. Why, then, cannot the same thing or something like the same thing occur when great national improvements are contemplated that would benefit the nation as a whole?

For example, take the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway under consideration. More than one-third of all the states of the union would be benefited directly if this projected waterway were to become a fact, and it takes no very great intelligence to comprehend the fact that the whole nation would also be benefited. For, if the total wealth of a nation be increased, every part of the nation would ultimately benefit. The foregoing is fundamental; it is axiomatic. The great states lying adjacent to the great lakes region want this waterway, and they want it and need it badly. While New York, as is natural when selfishness and greed dominate men, emphatically does not want it.

New York, through its able representatives, states that there are 50,000,000 horse power in the United States that are capable of hydro-electric development. Well, what of it? Is that any argument against developing water power on the St. Lawrence as secondary to the main purpose, that of a ship canal? Then, too, New York claims that it would have to pay 30 per cent of the projected waterway. Grant, for the sake of argument, that this statement is true. I would like to ask the proponents of the New York idea where it gets the money to pay for things; this and any other thing? Isn't New York exacting tribute from the whole nation, and hasn't it always exacted such tribute, just because it is the nation's seaport?

When the very existence of our country seemed in danger, treasure unstinted was poured out to save us from the enemy. Peace has its conflicts as well as war. And it is time that the nation as a whole waked up to some of the things we need as a nation to make us prosperous and great. Let the people rouse themselves as in time of war. Let all unselfish interests be submerged in the general good. Let all good citizens work together for the glory and prosperity of our common country, the greatest the sun e'er shone upon.

PROTECT EVEN THE MURDERERS AND THE VANDALS OF BIRDDOM.

Chicago, April 2.—I think that your editorial on birds is the worst thing I ever saw in a newspaper.

Has THE TRIBUNE become such a power that it can rule both the human and the animal kingdom?

You are writing in direct opposition to the government and the Audubon society. Our birds are rapidly disappearing and why hasten their destruction? I was in Michigan last summer, where many birds spend their summers and rear their young. Many were inquiring, "What has become of our birds? There are no more crows nor bluejays and there used to be numbers of them!" Many said they were in favor of putting a stop to the killing of birds altogether. There is too much shooting going on all the time, and there is no end to the lawbreakers.

I am a member of the Audubon society, and I have been a close observer of birds for years. I have yet to see the first crow or the first sparrow or bluejay harm other birds. Take Chicago, for instance. I have observed the sparrows destroying hundreds of insects. Hawks live for the most part on large insects, especially grasshoppers.

I have recently come from Louisiana, where I have been spending the winter. In the bird reservations there is no trouble among the birds. They live together in peace.

MISS AUDUBON.

MANY PERSONS WOULD BE THANKFUL EVEN FOR A PLUSH SEAT.

Chicago, April 2.—Some of us who use the elevated road are very much concerned at the announcement that the new cars will be furnished with plush instead of rattan seats. The plush seats will be hot, dusty and uncomfortable in summer, and insanitary all the time.

I have heard at least three persons express a similar opinion, and say that they will use the elevated as little as possible when the new cars are installed.

TEACHERS OF GOOD CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, April 2.—In answer to "P. E. H.'s" letter on "good citizenship," I would say that there are several institutions that engage in the teaching of that very quality.

1. The homes where the parents themselves are good citizens—they teach it by both precept and example.
2. The Sunday schools of our land.
3. The Boy Scout organization. If "P. E. H." wishes to contribute toward that movement now is the time for him to do so.
4. Our public schools.

Every true teacher of our public school system tries to give her children such healthy interests that they will not be tempted to play the part of hoodlums. The child that loves to draw does not spend his time smashing street lamps.

NO STANDEES IN BUSSES, MR. HERTZ!

Chicago, March 30.—May I answer through your column Mr. Smith's letter which appears in today's TRIBUNE?

The bus on the south side will never be a reality. Did Mr. Smith ever travel on the north bus at about 6 p. m. and note how crowded they are? Many times it was too crowded to get my hand into my pocket for my fare. Can you imagine traveling like that in a south side bus with 75 per cent colored folks? Would he like to be squeezed in a jam like that?

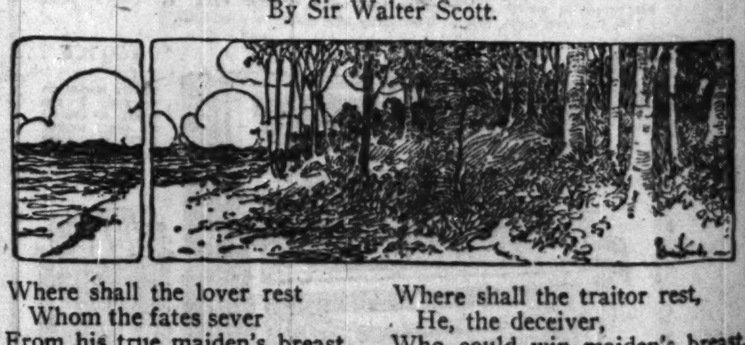
POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

SONG FROM "MARMION."
By Sir Walter Scott.



Where shall the lover rest
  Whom the fates sever
From his true maiden's breast,
  Parted forever?
Where, through groves deep and high,
  Sounds the far billow;
Where early violets die,
  Under the willow.

There, through the summer day,
  Cool streams are laving;
There, while the tempests sway,
  Scarce are boughs waving.
There thy rest shalt thou take,
  Parted forever,
Never again to wake,
  Never, O, never!

Where shall the traitor rest,
  He, the deceiver,
Who could win maiden's breast,
  Ruin and leave her?
In the lost battle,
  Borne down by the flying,
Where mingles war's rattle
  With groans of the dying.

Her wing shall the eagle flap,
  O'er the false-hearted;
His warm blood the wolf shall lap,
  Ere life be parted.
Shame and dishonor sit
  By his grave ever;
Blessing shall hallow it—
  Never, O, never!

The Chicago of FIVE MILLION

THE Chicago of five million inhabitants is not a dim and distant hope of the future—it is an impending reality.

The factors which have created the greatness of Chicago, today the third city of the world, are actively operating to create the greater Chicago of the future, and Chicagoans with the vision to see their opportunities will not fail to share handsomely in the benefits of the stupendous development which is taking place about them.

It is quite generally known that city growth and increasing property values are the inevitable results of increasing population, which demands increased housing facilities, and locations for more and more homes, business establishments, retail stores, jobbing houses, banks, theatres, and so forth.

It is true that the tremendous and rapidly continuing growth of Chicago guarantees great increase in city property values, but it does not follow that one may purchase indiscriminately and still be certain of profit.

Growth, development and increasing values in communities and neighborhoods, while often apparently phenomenal, are not the results of accident; they conform, in general, to certain fixed and definite laws; they are the results of certain causes, and when these causes are present, like results invariably follow.

But the average person is not sufficiently well versed in the principles governing value in city property to recognize and appraise great developments while they are yet in their early stages. He doesn't know with any degree of certainty when it will be most profitable to buy—where to buy—when to hold, or when to sell.

For the benefit, therefore, of those who own Chicago real estate, and have a vital interest in the future of their present holdings, as well as for those who might by investment participate in the substantial profits which the growth of this city assures to owners of well selected properties, this old, experienced and successful firm will publish a series of educational editorials treating the subject of real estate as an investment, and Chicago real estate in particular.

These editorials will first present graphically the story of Chicago's rapid growth, present greatness and certain future. They will deal subsequently with all the factors which enter into real estate values, and knowledge of which is essential to intelligent real estate investment.

This information is not to be offered as a blanket formula for guidance of real estate investors; but in its compilation leading authorities have been freely drawn upon, and their observations combined with the knowledge gained by this firm in twenty-nine years of successful, practical experience and large scale operations in Chicago. It should, therefore, be helpful in reducing errors in judgment to a minimum and in guiding many to profitable investment. The first editorial of the series will appear in space too large to be overlooked in next Friday's Tribune.

Buy Chicago real-estate through competent, experienced, reputable firms and your investment, its earnings and its future value will be as safe and as certain of growth as Chicago itself. The firm of W. K. Young & Brother was founded in 1884—its reputation for responsibility and integrity may be confirmed through any leading Chicago bank or trust company.

CRONKHITE CASE MYSTERY GAINS MORE TANGLES

General Finds Himself Out of Army.

BY DONALD EWING.

CHAPTER VIII.

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Capt. Robert Rosenbluth, indicted for willful and premeditated murder of Maj. Alexander Cronkhite at Camp Lewis, Wash., is free today and Roland Pothier, similarly indicted, is in jail in Howard, R. I., because court officials in New York and in Rhode Island have taken opposite views of the case.

Rosenbluth, when he was arrested last October following federal indictment in Seattle, raised the point that Camp Lewis did not belong exclusively to the government at the time of the shooting and that consequently the government had no jurisdiction in the case—that it was a case only for Pierce county, Wash., to handle.

Jurisdiction Dispute.

A hearing on the point was arranged before State Commissioner Hitchcock of New York. W. E. Joyce, assistant United States attorney, was carefully coached on the legal points by the department of justice and by Thomas P. Revelle, United States attorney at Seattle, whose brief held that the government had jurisdiction.

Revelle's chief points were:

1. That, while a sovereign power could specify that its citizens must give deeds in completing transaction of land, there was no power that could say that a sovereign power must or must not give a deed.

2. That the Washington legislature in an act had authorized Pierce county to give, through condemnation proceedings, the Camp Lewis site to the government and had specified that after all the property was transferred exclusively to the government a deed should be given simply as evidence of the transfer.

3. That, since the deed was merely to be evidence, the land actually became the government's as soon as condemned and turned over to it.

4. That a state Supreme court decision confirmed this.

5. That the scene of the shooting had been condemned, turned over to the government, and consequently was in its exclusive jurisdiction at the time of the shooting.

"Not Federal Land."

The defense contention was that the land was not the government's until the deed itself was made out—which was done after the shooting.

Rosenbluth's friends again raised the cry of racial persecution. So, a few days before the hearing, Joyce was removed and two Jewish attorneys, Solomon and Selig, who knew nothing of the case's history, given charge.

Revelle's brief was not presented. Commissioner Hitchcock ruled that the government did not have jurisdiction, but ended his opinion with:

"I now direct the matter be placed before a District judge and to facilitate prompt judicial determination of the fundamental question of jurisdiction, I am prepared to return to the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York the entire record, including the indictment, the testimony and the exhibits before me."

The case never was taken before a District judge in New York.

In Pothier's case, Federal Judge Brown at Providence held that Pothier must return to Washington state for trial. The appeal now is before the Appellate court and from there will go to the United States Supreme court, if Judge Brown's opinion is upheld. Pothier was refused bail and is in jail.

Now, to finish the developments affecting Gen. Cronkhite. Last January he was found to be fit in the regular army examination. Jan. 12 Gen. Pershing wrote him asking him to retire to make room for younger officers. He refused and wrote to President Harding.

Gen. Cronhite Put Out.

Feb. 1 he was retired by the President's order. He had reached the retirement age. His friends say he was railroaded out of the army because he had uncovered alleged carelessness in the war department's handling of his case. Several conferences had been held concerning him, it is known. The attitude was that he had been of no use to the army for two years because of his activity in the investigation and was preventing promotion of younger men by refusing to retire.

The attitude of the war department toward Rosenbluth is expressed at least once in correspondence. On Nov. 17, 1921, Secretary of War Weeks, replying to a request from Rosenbluth through W. H. Allen of New York for permission to inspect certain papers in the case, wrote Mr. Allen:

"Any action with an incriminatory tendency which may have been taken in the case of Capt. Robert Rosenbluth was instituted by the department of justice and is a matter over which the war department has no control and one in which it has no real interest. Consequently it would be contrary to a rule of long standing to permit Capt. Rosenbluth to inspect personal files of another officer for the purpose of clearing his name."

Charge "Persecution."

During the last year a steady campaign—whether organized or not is not known — charging racial persecution has been carried on by Jewish papers and organizations. The New York Jewish Tribune printed a statement that Gen. Cronkhite was pushing the case so he could remove the letters "S. I. W." from his son's tomb in Arlington cemetery. It explained "S. I. W." meant "self-inflected wound" and was placed on the tombs of suicides. As a matter of fact, there are no such letters on the tomb and Maj. Cronkhite is buried at West Point.

Other canards have appeared against Rosenbluth and against Cronkhite. Senators Carter Glass and David Reed are pushing a move for a congressional investigation. Senator Glass announces he is certain Cronkhite was murdered. Rosenbluth's friends also are calling for congressional investigation. Congress has no punitive powers, but in investigating the acts of government departments might bring out all the evidence.

The department of justice says it has no fear of such an investigation, but feels that the only real ending of the case can come through a trial. Rosenbluth refuses to stand trial.

Rosenbluth's reasons for refusing to plead to the indictment after he had previously insisted that he wanted a prompt trial, were given to THE TRIBUNE by Rosenbluth himself as follows:

"Personally, I would be glad to stand trial, but just after the indictments, Mr. Revelle, in a newspaper interview, said either side could raise the point of jurisdiction and that it might take four years for it to go through the various courts of appeal and be definitely settled. In the meantime I would be in jail under a murder charge and would not be permitted to give bail. So my attorneys insisted that the point of jurisdiction be settled before a trial was started. Commissioner Hitchcock held there was no jurisdiction. That seems to me to settle it. Revelle also said he hoped the point of jurisdiction would be raised. That indicated he might later raise it and the decision in my case be thrown out by a supreme court after I stood trial."

Mr. Revelle explained:

"I never said it would take four years to settle such a point. As a lawyer, I of course hope that some day a final court will pass on my brief contending the government has jurisdiction and will uphold it. Mr. Rosenbluth can come out here any time and get an immediate trial, and rest assured the government will never raise any such point. It would be foolish for the government to contest its own contentions."

Here Story Ends?

That ends the story—as far as it has gone. There are many rumors and reports of sensational nature, but only the facts, as they could be obtained from authentic records, have been presented here.

Prosecuted murderer? Persecuted martyr? Accident? Wilful murder? The answers to all of these questions, the government insists, can come only through a trial of Rosenbluth and Pothier—a trial now only a remote possibility so far as the immediate future is concerned.

FOR FLOWER SHOW

Miss Helen Ehlers is shown among a mass of blooms, which with thousands of other flowers, will be on display during the Chicago Spring Flower show.

The first public appearance of Mayor William E. Dever probably will be made a week from Monday evening, when he is expected to open the spring flower show in the Broadway armory. This was announced yesterday at a meeting of the program committee of the Woman's National Farm and Garden association, which is in charge of the opening day of the show and the general program throughout the week. Exhibits from the private conservatories of Louis F. Swift, D. Mark Cummings, Clyde M. Carr, J. Ogden Armour, and others will be featured the opening day.

HUNT LOONEY AS 3 ROCK ISLAND AIDS GO TO 'PEN'

Rock Island, Ill., April 7.—Search for John Looney, fugitive publisher of the Rock Island News and said to be the king of the underworld there before the state commenced its vice probe, will be the next move in the clean-up of Attorney General Brundage, it was said today, following the conviction of Mayor Harry M. Schriver, Former Chief of Police Tom Cox and Lawrence Pedigo on charges of conspiracy to defeat the state anti-gambling laws and protect organized vice. The three were sentenced to from one to five years at Joliet.

The state announces that the Bill Gabel murder case will be the next tried and in this Looney, now a fugitive from justice, is under indictment for first degree murder along with Cox and Pedigo, Joe Richards, alias Joe the Gadget, and Walker, a Negro. Richards and Walker have also fled.

A total of sixty-eight persons were indicted as a result of the state's vice crusade and several of these are expected to plead guilty and throw themselves on the mercy of the court now that Cox, Schriver and Pedigo, said to be leaders of the vice ring, have been convicted.

LEGION DAY TO BE CELEBRATED HERE ON NEXT FRIDAY

"American Legion day" is to be observed in Chicago next Friday, when legionaires of the city will stage a demonstration. National Commander Alvin M. Owsley will be present and will talk to business men and legionaires at a luncheon at the Hotel La Salle. Charles G. Dawes will preside.

After the luncheon the guests will go to Fort Sheridan, where Col. Owsley will present colors to the Fort Sheridan post of the American Legion. The regular troops will be paraded for the ceremony. In the evening Col. Owsley will address the alumni banquet of the Beta Theta Phi fraternity at the Drake hotel.

Record Missionary Drive to Be Directed in Chicago

Beginning with a conference here from May 17 to May 23, the greatest missionary campaign since the Crusades is to be directed from Chicago during the next two years, it was announced yesterday by a committee of local bankers, churchmen and evangelists, headed by Albert M. Johnson, president of the National Fire Insurance company. The meetings will be held at the Gospel tabernacle, Clark and Halsted streets, presided over by Paul Rader, president of the Christian and Missionary Alliance in the United States and Canada.

ASKS ARREST OF MATE SHE AVERS HAS THREE WIVES

Believes He Has Made Fourth Alliance.

EDWARD F. HOFFMAN.

Declaring that her husband is a "professional marrier, with a wife in every part of the country," Mrs. Edward F. Hoffman, wife of the former vice president of the Industrial Investigating corporation, 431 South Dearborn street, yesterday appealed to Assistant State's Attorney William F. McLaughlin to begin search for Hoffman, who disappeared from his home, 2901 North Harding avenue, three weeks ago.

Hoffman has been married to three different women during the last few years, according to Mrs. Hoffman, and on no occasion has he taken the trouble to obtain a divorce from any of them.

Planned to Elope, She Says.

When he was last seen in Chicago, she said, he was making arrangements to elope with his stenographer. The latter has not been seen recently, she added.

"I was married to Hoffman in Boston in 1913," the woman told Mr. McLaughlin. "We lived there for a while, and then moved to Chicago. He had just been discharged from the army. I did not know at that time that he already had two wives. He told me as much during the heat of a quarrel in our home several weeks ago.

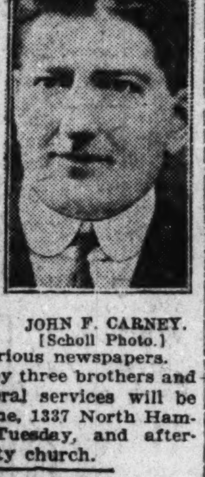
"He said he was married to a woman he called 'Grace' in Kansas City in 1909. He lived with her for a year or so and then deserted her to join the marines. While in Boston two years later he married Anna Heffering, 111 B street. Three years later he left her and married me.

Sought in Los Angeles.

"On one occasion I discovered him embracing his stenographer in his office. I told him he would have to stop or I would get a divorce. A few days later he disappeared. I found he bought a compartment to Los Angeles."

Mr. McLaughlin notified Los Angeles police to watch for Hoffman.

JACK CARNEY, 25 YEARS WORKER ON PRESS, IS DEAD



JOHN F. CARNEY. [Scholl Photo.]

"Jack" Carney, for more than twenty-five years a familiar figure in the newspaper world of Chicago, died in St. Anne's hospital yesterday from pneumonia at the age of 42. He had been ill only a few days.

Carney, who was known probably to every newspaper man in Chicago, started as a reporter and later had charge of the night tube service of the City Press association, superintending the transmission of copy to the various newspapers.

He is survived by three brothers and one sister. Funeral services will be held from his home, 1337 North Hamlin avenue, on Tuesday, and afterwards at Maternity church.

CECIL, LEAGUE ADVOCATE, WILL ARRIVE APRIL 14

Lord Robert Cecil, of England, who will come to Chicago to speak under the auspices of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations in Orchestra hall on Monday afternoon, April 16, will arrive here from New York on Saturday evening, April 14.

While here he and his party will be the guests of Geo. F. Porter, 1336 North State street, and Dr. Geo. S. Isham, whose residence is next door at 1340 North State street.

Lord Cecil will speak at the Orchestra hall meeting on "The League of Nations and International Coöperation."

Victor Elting is president of the Council on Foreign Relations, headquarters of which are at 35 North Dearborn street.

Former Auditor for Movie Concern Dies Suddenly

Cyrus Roswell Cooper, formerly auditor for the General Film and Famous Players-Lasky corporation, died suddenly here yesterday. He was well known among movie interests. Funeral services will be private.

DEATH CALLS MRS. SCANLAN, CHURCH WORKER

Mrs. John F. Scanlan, widow of the founder of the Catholic Order of Foresters, aunt of Circuit Court Judge Kickham Scanlan, and sister of the late Congressman Frank Lawler, died in her home at 4333 Indiana avenue yesterday.

Mrs. Scanlan was born at Rochester, N. Y., in 1841 and had been a resident of Chicago for seventy-eight years. In the early sixties she was an active leader in the affairs of Holy Family parish, and for the last fifty years had been a member of the Third Order of St. Francis. She received the first policy issued by the Catholic Order of Foresters, at the time of its formation by her husband.

Mrs. Scanlan is survived by four sons, four daughters, and one brother, all of Chicago. Funeral services will be held on Tuesday morning at St. Elizabeth's church, East 41st street and Wabash avenue.

All is Grandeur at 'Hursen's'

Hursen's 3 "funeral-homes" are among the wonder-sights of Chicago. Each is a palace, furnished in mansion elegance. Many people prefer to have funerals held at any one of Hursen's 3 establishments, instead of at home, because of their magnificent roominess, their facilities for even the largest funerals, their exclusive community meeting-rooms for societies and lodges—and their uplifting environment!

There is no reason why those who are in sorrow should be expected to be thrust into a place that is dingy, crushingly small, dark, depressing and desolate! There has been a rebellion against the undertaking "shop," such as exists in every neighborhood in Chicago.

The moment you step into any one of Hursen's 3 "funeral-homes" you feel something superbly comforting in the broad spaces, something uplifting in the mellow-lighted splendor all about you. Your soul rises! There is space! There is light!

It is one of Hursen's invariable rules that Hursen charges are from one-third to one-half the charges made elsewhere. Hursen quality and elegance are never sacrificed. Hursen quality far excels any hitherto known in America—without exception. Call Hursen, of course!

CAPTOR OF MORON 'MONSTER' GIVEN $100 HERO PRIZE

Quarry's Razor Failed to Awe Policeman.

For the arrest of an alleged moron, armed with a razor which was smeared with the blood of his latest victim, THE TRIBUNE awards Patrolman Jeremiah J. Curtin $100. The award is the thirty-ninth since this newspaper began its monthly bravery awards to policemen, firemen, and life savers, in January, 1920.

Curtain's quick action on meager information brought an end to the activities of Julius Cholly, 7021 Wood street, a man of huge stature, and referred to by the women who identified him as a "monster." Soon after his arrest Cholly, who is the father of nine children, was identified by both Mrs. Ellen Horaites, 8507 Bishop street, and Mrs. Frieda E. Brainard, 8108 South Winchester avenue, as the man who attacked them.

Dozen Women Attacked.

Cholly's arrest followed reports of more than a dozen attacks on women in the ill lighted neighborhoods of the south and southwest sides of the city.

Mrs. Horaites was attacked in the vicinity of 84th street and Ashland avenue shortly before 9 p. m. March 10. During her struggle with her assailant he drew a razor and slashed her several times on the checks and neck. Her screams frightened him away and Mrs. Horaites was taken to the office of a physician at 78th and Halsted streets for treatment.

Shortly before this occurred Patrolman Curtin, while traveling his post between Racine and Western avenues, met Alton P. Brainard, 8108 South Winchester avenue, who informed the policeman that his wife had been attacked by a burly individual, who appeared to be an Italian, at 79th and Marshfield avenue.

Faces Cop with Razor.

Brainard gave Curtain only a slight description of his wife's assailant and the policeman hurried to the intersection of 79th street and Marshfield avenue. When he reached Ashland avenue he saw a man of unusual stature hurrying north on Marshfield, which in that vicinity is unlighted.

Curtin took after him and when the man turned on him with a razor in his hand the policeman drew his revolver and ordered the man to throw up his hands. The big man did so, but as he raised his hands he threw the razor into the prairie.

On searching the man, Curtin found in his pocket a shiny piece of gas pipe, so fashioned that when its elbow was buried in the palm of a large hand the pipe gave the appearance of the barrel of a nickel plated pistol.

Recovering the razor, which was stained with blood, Curtin reported to the station and was told of the attack on Mrs. Horaites. A patrol wagon took the man to the physician's office at 78th and Halsted streets, where Mrs. Horaites was receiving first aid. There she positively identified Cholly. Later he was also identified by Mrs. Brainard.

Cholly was held to the grand jury on two charges on March 29 under bonds of $4,000.

Two Get Honorable Mention.

Two heroic deeds by policemen at fires during March are given honorable mention by THE TRIBUNE.

About 7 p. m. on March 19, Patrolman Frank J. Dwyer of the West North avenue station rescued Mrs. Sophie Mashen, an aged woman, from a burning building at 2745 West Chicago avenue. Dwyer had to crawl on his hands and knees through a smoke filled hall and up a flight of stairs to drag her to safety.

On the morning of March 9 Patrolman Andrew Wodarczyk of the Cottage Grove avenue command rescued Mrs. Mary Lanergan from the second floor of 332 East 24th street, and when driven back by the flames from the front staircase, went to the rear of the building and climbed a drain pipe in an attempt to rescue another woman. Wodarczyk fell when the pipe broke, fracturing his left elbow.

HERO FOR MARCH

Policeman Jeremiah J. Curtin awarded The Tribune's $100 hero prize for month of March because of daring capture of moron.

BLAST STARTS $40,000 FIRE.

Fort Worth, Tex., April 7.—Five residences located on Hurley avenue burned at noon today with a loss of $40,000. Explosion of an auto pump engine handicapped the firemen and gave the flames a chance to spread.

MINER SLAIN IN MYSTERY; FOUND HANGED TO TREE

The body of Frank Rammage, an Oklahoma miner who was on his way to Chicago to invest his savings, was found hanging from a tree on a farm near Coal City, Ill., yesterday under circumstances which, the Grundy county authorities say, indicate one of the strangest murders on their records.

Rammage, a foreigner whose real name is believed to be Rammiencz, was hanged with two pieces of wire, consisting of one barbed piece attached to a noose of small cable wire.

His hat lay in a field 250 yards away, one shoe was twenty yards in one direction, and his coat lay an equal distance in another.

An empty pocketbook, believed originally to have contained a large roll of bills, was hidden under the house of Arthur Staman, on whose farm the body was found. The authorities attached no suspicion to Staman.

Staman told Sheriff Mack that Rammage had come to his house about 11 o'clock Friday night.

"He knocked on my window and placed a big roll of bills against it," said Staman. "I opened the window a little and he told me that two Negroes were following him and he wanted a gun. He offered me $250 for any kind of firearm, but I didn't have one, and he went away."

In tracing Rammage's movements, the county officials found he had got off a Chicago and Alton train at Braidwood and had requested the station agent to have his hand baggage, which he left on the train, held for him in Chicago.

His footprints were found leading up to Staman's house. Alongside them were another set of footprints and the marks of wagon wheels.

An inspection of the tree from which the body was hanging convinced the officials that Rammage had not climbed it and hanged himself.

In Rammage's pockets were several deeds to Oklahoma mining land and letters written in a foreign language believed to be Lithuanian. One letter was unmailed and was addressed to Mrs. Bessie Rammienez, 812 35th place, Chicago, but no one of that name could be found there. First citizenship papers taken out by Rammage at Wilburton, Latimer county, Okla., on Feb. 23, 1923, also were found.

Staman discovered the body when he got up yesterday morning. It was within thirty yards of his house.

Slayer of Relative Is Held on Murder Charge

Although exonerated by a coroner's jury, George McCluskey, 627 West 43d street, who shot and killed his brother-in-law, Joseph J. Kline, when the latter attacked him with a knife, was arrested yesterday by the Stock Yards police and charged with murder. He was held in bonds of $10,000.

DOCTOR SLAIN; TWO FRIENDS HELD.

Hemphill, Tex., April 7.—Dr. M. W. McCown, 50, was shot and killed here late last night in front of his home and Levy Holbert, a farmer and lifelong friend of the dead man, is in jail with his son charged with the killing.

FIND MAN SHOT TO DEATH NEAR RIVER FOREST

The body of a well dressed man, shot through the head, was found yesterday lying under a tree on the banks of the Des Plaines river near River Forest. Underneath the body was spread a bed of newspapers and close at hand lay a revolver. Chief Frank W. Laatz of the River Forest police declared the man a suicide.

Marks of identification had been carefully removed, except laundry marks and a stencil in the man's hat. The shirt bore the marking "J. W. B.," the hat the initials "J. J. W." The body was clad in a dark overcoat of good material, a blue coat and vest, with black trousers, white shirt with dark stripes, blue knit tie, and black shoes and socks. An empty purse, a small comb, and a pair of tortoise shell rimmed glasses were the only articles found in the pockets.

A theory that the man might be Lewis E. Larson, missing Chicago realtor, was set aside by relatives of the missing man, who declared the body was not his. The body was taken to Dreschler's undertaking rooms at 1116 West Lake street, Oak Park.

Finding of the body today preceded a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane which a coroner's jury returned in the case of George W. Krauser, a former associate of Larson in Willoughby & Co., loop realtors. Krauser was found shot dead in his home at 3527 Broadway last Friday.

Emmanuel Loeb Battles Court Bailiff; Arrested

Emmanuel Loeb, 69 years old, head of Emmanuel Loeb & Co., lithographers, with offices at 223 West Jackson boulevard, was arrested yesterday on a charge of resisting an officer as the result of a battle with Municipal Court Bailiff Lewis Beiger. The row took place in the company's offices when the bailiff called to serve a writ of replevin.

CHILDREN GAIN LENIENCY FOR BOOTLEG WOMAN

Her four small children secured a lenient sentence yesterday for Mrs. Anna Karbinski, 2349 West 38th street, charged with having intoxicating liquor in her possession and with operating a still. Judge Peter H. Schwaba fined her $200 and costs and placed her on probation for six months.

George Wilson, 2147 West Congress street, formerly a policeman, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $1,000 on a charge of extortion. He was accused of having, by threats of arrest, extorted money from a number of persons whom he found manufacturing moonshine.

Two raids, one on the soft drink parlor of Jacob Piller, 634 Willow street, the other on 220 West Erie street, revealed the presence of a large quantity of wine and moonshine.

HANG TEXAS MURDERER.

Alpine, Tex., April 7.—Harvey Hughes, 22, of Detroit, Tex., was hanged here this morning for the murder of C. H. Rogers, of a prominent pioneer Travis county family, on Jan. 24, 1922.

BEGIN REVELRY AS YOLANDA'S WEDDING NEARS

Italian Royalty Gathers for Event Tomorrow.

BY CLAIRE ALEXANDER.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, April 7.—[Tribune Radio.]—The celebration of Princess Yolanda's wedding with Count Carlo Calvi di Bergolo, an Italian, began today. Count Calvi's father, mother, sisters, and brother arrived in Rome this morning. They were received at the station by Prince Humbert. They will be the guests of King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena at the quirinal during the three days of festivities. The Duke and Duchess of Aosta, Count Turin, Prince Udine, the Duke of Abruzzi, and other members of royalty also arrived today.

Scores of rooms have been prepared at the quirinal, the king's palace, and Queen Margherita's palaces to accommodate the distinguished visitors. Among the foreign princes who will attend the wedding are Prince Vigo of Denmark and Prince Conrad of Bavaria.

Reception to Diplomats.

At 9:30 this evening the diplomatic corps and court officials were received at the quirinal. The diplomats presented felicitations, personal and on the part of the country they represented.

The bride and groom will receive communion from Mgr. Beccaria, court chaplain, at a private religious service in Paolini chapel, within the quirinal, tomorrow morning.

Mgr. Beccaria will officiate at the wedding Monday morning. The civil part of the ceremony is to be performed by Premier Mussolini.

The bride's trousseau, from Italian and French houses, is said to be one of the most beautiful ever made. The bride will go to the altar in a white satin gown, draped with old priceless lace. She will wear no jewels.

Thousands of Gifts.

Thousands of gifts have been received from friends of both families in Italy and abroad. Three large halls in the quirinal are littered with them. The queen mother and Queen Helena each gave the bride a string of pearls. The groom gave her a platinum ring with a sapphire stone. Other precious gifts have not yet been enumerated, but they are roughly estimated to be worth 5,000,000 lire (about $250,000).

The king today gave 100,000 lire (about $5,000) to charity in celebration of the event.

Jail for Hubby When Wife Says He's Nonessential

"Can you do without your husband for a few days?" Judge John Richardson asked Mrs. Christina Blancher yesterday, when her husband, Charles Blancher, 352 West 37th street, fined $30 and costs for attempting to assault his wife with a knife, confessed his inability to pay. "Easy," said Mrs. Blancher. Judge Richardson thereupon sent Blancher to the House of Correction.

POOR HEALTH PROMPTS SUICIDE.

Mrs. Z. Karchner, 50 years old, a stenographer, was found dead in her room at the Kenwood apartments, 6318 Kenwood avenue, yesterday with the gas jets fully open. It is believed she committed suicide while despondent over ill health and financial worries.

AIRPLANE ENGINE GOES 573 HOURS WITHOUT A STOP

Washington, D. C., April 7.—Completion of a record breaking test of a new airplane engine was announced tonight by the navy department.

For 573 hours the machine, known as a "Wright model E-4," ran without a stop with the throttle wide open, and data accumulated during the run indicated "a saving of 90 per cent in the operating cost of aircraft engines of this type." An indication of the remarkable endurance of the new engine will be given, engineers said, by comparison with the types used in the world war, when 100 hours was considered a long run.

The engine was built by the Wright Aeronautical corporation of Paterson, N. J. During the test it would have covered at the usual cruising speed maintained by the navy at sea a distance of approximately 60,000 miles, or two and half times around the world at the equator.

2,000 ACRES OF DUNES SELECTED FOR STATE PARK

Years of planning and effort culminated yesterday in selection of 2,000 acres in the heart of the Indiana dunes country, to be set aside as a state park and insuring the preservation of the wild beauty of the region, unequaled in this country.

The National Dunes Park association, at its annual meeting at Gary, recommended to the Indiana dunes park commission that the site start one-quarter of a mile west of Waverly beach and extend three miles east along Lake Michigan, taking in the three principal sand mountains.

Plan to Raise $1,000,000.

W. T. Gleason, president of the association and general superintendent of the United States Steel corporation mills at Gary, announced at the meeting that a movement had been launched in Chicago to raise $1,000,000, matching the recent appropriation of the Indiana legislature, and making possible the purchase of an additional 2,000 acres adjoining the site proposed.

The sixty acre tract of the Prairie club of Chicago, on which an elaborate clubhouse has been constructed, is included in the section which it is proposed to purchase, and Frank Bedley, representing that organization, was informed that the club's land will be condemned if they are not willing to sell.

Inspection Set for April 28.

On April 28 the Indiana dunes commission will make a tour of inspection of the tract recommended for purchase and will not officially announce its decision until that date, although the action taken by the National Dunes Park association was at the request of the commission and is regarded as tantamount to a definite conclusion.

BANKER'S DAUGHTER FREED.

Mrs. Martha Poppenbarger, 23 years old, daughter of a New Boston, Ill., banker, charged with larceny from a loop department store, was placed on six months' probation yesterday after making restitution.

HERO OF SEA

DONALD T. M'DONALD.

Donald T. McDonald, 5817 South Maplewood avenue, is one of five members of the ten United States submarine S-11 who have been commended by the government for "exceptionally meritorious conduct" in connection with efforts to bring medical aid to a sick seaman, marooned in a boat in Provincetown harbor, Feb. 15, last.

The men, in a small boat, battled a northwest storm in reaching the shore and returned with a physician to aid George Winn, the sick engineer.

Trails, Then Loses Man Who Robbed Him of $500

Robbed of $500 in an elevator in the State-Lake building yesterday, Timothy Keeler, connected with Chicago offices of the B. F. Keith vaudeville exchange, trailed one of the men he suspected of picking his pocket to the elevated railroad and thence to South Central Park avenue and West Roosevelt road. There he lost him without having during the whole journey seen a policeman whom he could summon to assist him.

JEWELS WORTH $3,000 STOLEN.

Theft of jewels valued at $3,000 from the apartment of Mrs. Anthony Ettlinger at 6803 East End avenue was reported yesterday. The robbery took place some time late Friday night.

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

Have You High Blood Pressure?

The constantly increasing number of people who suffer from high blood pressure is truly alarming. Physicians advocate complete bodily and mental rest and relaxation as the best means of lowering blood pressure.

But they point out that complete relaxation is impossible on the ordinary bedspring. It is not built to fit the human body. It therefore causes discomfort and the mental irritation which increases blood pressure.

To relieve such conditions the Rome De Luxe Bedspring has been scientifically designed. It molds itself to every curve of the body, and does not sag into great spine-twisting hollows. The result is absolute bodily comfort, and mental tranquility—the prime requisites for restful, relaxed sleep.

Ask for Rome De Luxe at your dealer's today. It is interchangeable—fits either wood or metal beds.

BOXING GLOVES REPLACE SILVER SPOONS OF "400"

Rich N. Y. Kids Taught Art of Self-Defense.

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—The wealthy and fashionable residents of Fifth, Madison, and Park avenues are sending their boys to a place where the youngsters learn to take the hard knocks of life—literally.

About thirty sons of New York persons prominent socially attend daily a gymnasium on the second floor of a brownstone residence at 825 Madison avenue, where boxing, wrestling, jiu-jitsu, fencing, and all sorts of "manly arts of self-defense" are taught.

Announce the Battlers.

Fancy hearing the well known announcer begin:

"Ladies and gentlemen, in this corner we have Nathaniel Wales II., weighing thirty-nine pounds, ringside, 7 years old, of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, and Fifth avenue, New York City.

"And in this corner we have Steuart Davis Jr., weighing forty-one pounds, ringside, 8 years old, the pride of Madison avenue, who will meet today in a three round bout for the child championship of the four hundred."

The two youngsters were introduced in such a bout a few days ago in a regular roped arena at the gymnasium with a dozen or more mothers and fathers present. The occasion was "an exhibition of boxing and wrestling by the boys of Mr. Temple's classes."

Act Like Professionals.

Young Nathaniel and Steuart took their respective corners, had honest-togoodness seconds, and waited calmly for the gong. Imagine a "fight by rounds" description!

Nathaniel's mother, Mrs. Nathaniel Wales of Boston, and Mr. Steuart Davis, a naval officer, watch tensely as their children astound them with an unsuspected ability to take care of themselves. There is no running to mother or father with tears. The little lads are getting stiff bumps and blows, which sometimes bring bloody noses and mouths. But they are grinning through it all!

"The remarkable part of the exhibition to me," Mrs. Wales said afterwards, "is that those boys can learn to control their temper so well even while fighting. And the knocks do not seem to hurt them at all!"

Wins Bible Class Contest Prize

N. Y. METHODISTS DEMAND PROBE OF WHERE FUND GOES

New York, April 7.—Demands for an inquiry into expenditures for missionary and administrative purposes were voiced today by delegates to the New York Methodist Episcopal conference after Dr. Morris W. Ehnes, treasurer of the Council of Boards of Benevolence of Chicago, had been questioned regarding disposition of the church's $18,500,000 apportionment.

On a motion made by Dr. Fields Hermance of Ossining, N. Y., a committee of three from each of the four districts of the church was appointed to consider the matter and to report to a secret session of the executive board on Monday.

The motion was made after Dr. Ehnes had been questioned regarding an expenditure of $865,000 for the "committee on conservation and advance." The Rev. Dr. Raymond L. Forman of St. Paul's church, New York, asked if the sum was not wasted.

Criticism of expenditure of the $18,500,000 apportionment was expressed by the Rev. Dr. Arthur Thompson of Fordham church, the Bronx, who said that members of his church had resigned when they discovered the amounts spent for staffs in charge of mission work in the churches and for similar purposes.

BAKULE CHORUS IN AMERICA TO SING ITS THANKS

New York, April 7.—Here to show what the help given to them has really meant, thirty-five crippled boys and girls from the slums of Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, with gratitude on their faces and songs in their hearts, disembarked today from the steamer Volendam.

Treading in the paths of their ancestors, the wandering minstrels of central Europe, these children, organized into the Bakule chorus, will give their first American concert at Carnegie hall Wednesday night. They come disavowing a trip for money or for propaganda, but to show they have well used the money sent them by the Junior American Red Cross.

Takes Children from Strets.

The school was founded by Frantisec Bakule, who was an instructor in a children's sanitarium before the war. In the conflict the school lost all government support and its wards were forced into the alleys and gutters of Prague until Bakule, with nothing but a purpose, obtained a barn and instituted a new home.

One of the main financial contributors to the school during the war was a boy, then 15 years old, born without arms and destined for beggary, who was picked up from the streets by Bakule and taught to make fancy toys with his feet and toes.

Children Sell Toys.

The other children sold the toys and the institution survived until after the war, when the aid of the Junior Red Cross could penetrate to the Czechs.

The Bakule chorus of twenty-four girls and eleven boys is one of the famous choral organizations in Europe. Its programs mainly are folk songs.

The children were accompanied here by five attendants.

WEALTHY YOUTH IS FOUND SLAIN IN FREIGHT CAR

Philadelphia, Pa., April 7.—[Special.]—The body of a youth believed to be George B. McAllister, 19, of Woodbury, N. J., son of the late George McAllister, wealthy Philadelphia commission merchant, was found in a freight car at Hamilton, O., yesterday. The authorities believe he was murdered after being robbed.

In the young man's pockets were found an identification card, his photograph, and several letters to Frank R. Powell of the Devereaux school for boys, Berwyn, Pa., of which he was a student.

According to Woodbury police, McAllister had been in poor health lately and a month ago left the school for a vacation in Norfolk, Va., where he had friends. He is said to have had a large sum of money with him.

LIQUID HYDROGEN IS PRODUCED IN TEST AT CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., April 7.—A small quantity of frozen hydrogen and about two quarts of the same element liquified were produced today at the bureau of standards in a successful test of liquifying apparatus conducted by Prof. C. W. Kanolt.

This represented the result after chilling many thousand cubic feet of the gas down to a point close to absolute zero, at which heat is entirely absent. The frozen hydrogen was described as similar in appearance to snow, while the liquid was colorless.

In order to liquify the gas a temperature of 253 degrees centigrade—about 420 degrees Fahrenheit—below zero had to be attained. The hydrogen ice began to form a few degrees lower, about 430 degrees Fahrenheit below zero. All the low temperatures were produced by expanding the gas itself after it had been compressed under pressure of 3,000 pounds per square inch.

GROVE FRONTAGE BRINGS $1,000 A FOOT AT 79TH ST.

In 1911 the owners of the southeast corner of Cottage Grove and 79th and the southwest corner of Maryland and 79th street, sold the above mentioned properties to Martin J. McNally for $14,000. The lots fronted 305 on Maryland and 289 on the Grove.

Yesterday Mr. McNally sold 125x125 at the southeast corner of 79th and the Grove to Charles Bobinsky for $125,000, or at the record price of $1,000 per front foot, and then offered Mr. Bobinsky a $5,000 bonus if he would erect a building within eighteen months. The latter accepted the offer and plans a three story structure.

WEEKS REFUSES TO DROP QUIZ OF ARMY'S SCANDAL

Says Publicity Reflects on Military Service.

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—Secretary of War Weeks today refused to call off the inquiry he ordered last week into the circumstances leading up to the sensational suit for $100,000 brought by Capt. and Mrs. Edwin H. Randle against Col. A. L. Conger at San Antonio, Tex., for alleged defamation of character. The fact that the suit has since been withdrawn will not halt the inquiry, he stated.

Exchange of Telegrams.

The following telegram was received by the secretary from Mr. Randle:

"An understanding having been reached here, I desire to withdraw my request made to you for an investigation by an inspector general and to request that no action be taken as based thereon."

Secretary Weeks replied as follows: "I regret that it seems necessary for me to have a thorough investigation made. It is of much broader importance than a personal difference between you and Col. Conger. The recent publicity creates in the minds of the people a serious reflection on those connected with the military service and I wish to know all the facts."

Reason for Dropping Suit.

San Antonio, Tex., April 7.—The veil of secrecy surrounding the withdrawal of the suit for $100,000 by Capt. and Mrs. Edwin Randle against Col. Arthur L. Conger, was turned back, according to a story in the San Antonio Light today, when it was learned the reasons why they agreed to drop the suit.

Three reasons were given: First, it was agreed that the military investigation being conducted by Col. Lincoln F. Kilbourne, inspector of the eighth corps area, would be discontinued; second, Randle was assured of a transfer to another organization, with a position equally as responsible; third, Randle also was assured that the unfavorable efficiency report submitted by Col. Conger would be rewritten.

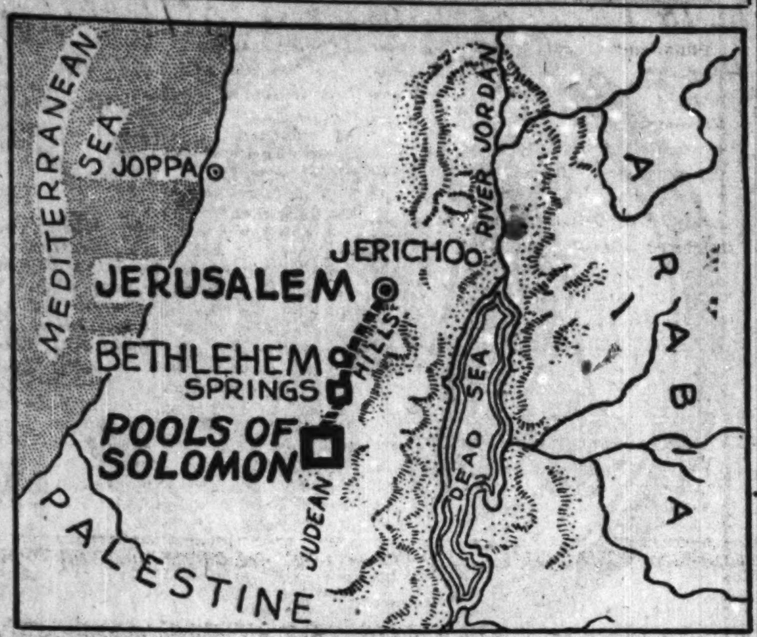
DRY RAID IN N. Y. NETS $2,000,000 WORTH OF LIQUOR

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—In two raids on warehouses today, one in Manhattan and the other in Jersey City, federal agents seized more than $2,000,000 worth of liquor, made seven arrests and with their backs against a wall in Jersey City and with drawn revolvers, held a mob at bay until the arrival of police reserves. One of the agents was knocked unconscious when struck with a cotton hook.

The first raid was on the Dominion warehouse, West Broadway and West Houston street, where 5,000 cases of imported champagne, fancy wines, and whisky valued at about $2,000,000 were seized.

The raid in Jersey City netted the government agents liquors valued at more than $50,000, which were seized only after a desperate battle with several hundred Italians armed with steel cotton hooks and clubs. Hundreds of stones were hurled at the government agents. Agent Charles Brucklaka was struck on the head with a cotton hook and was made unconscious. He was taken to the Jersey City hospital.

JERUSALEM USES SOLOMON'S POOLS



In order to furnish an adequate water supply for Jerusalem, the Pools of Solomon in the Judea hills, built in the time of the famous king or perhaps even before then, have been rebuilt as vast reservoirs and for the first time in its history the city will have a sanitary water supply.

WOMEN'S DEATH IN N. J. LAID TO VENDETTA BAND

Feared One Would Tell of Murder.

New York, April 7.—Authorities investigating the murder of Mrs. Irene Blandino of Jersey City and that of another woman, whose hacked bodies were found in a road on Staten island early yesterday, voiced the conviction tonight that the crime was the result of a vendetta.

Bayonne police officials identified the body of the other woman tonight as that of Miss Ethel Phillips, 17 years old, who lived with her parents in Bayonne. She disappeared from her home two weeks ago, police said.

Detective Captain von Wagner, in charge of the investigation, said he was bending all his efforts toward learning the nature of information possessed by Mrs. Blandino regarding the murder of her first husband, Frank Bongiovanni, who is said to have been the leader of a gang in Jersey City, who was killed with a stiletto.

Told Names of Slayers.

According to Von Wagner, Mrs. Blandino had told intimate friends the names of men whom she suspected of having killed her first husband. This fact became known, the detectives said. Miss McMahon was killed for no other purpose than that she was with her friend, they thought.

Capt. Von Wagner said, however, a careful examination of the body of Mrs. Blandino failed to disclose the usual sign such as members of southern European vendetta bands place upon their victims.

Discard Booze Theory.

Capt. Von Wagner said he had discarded a previously advanced theory that Mrs. Blandino had been killed because she threatened to "squeal" upon a group of Jersey City bootleggers.

Blandino and his assistant, Rosario De Lorenzo, still are held on short affidavits charging homicide, however. Unable to furnish $25,000 bail each, they are locked in the Stapleton jail.

JERUSALEM USES SOLOMON'S POOLS TO STORE WATER

Rebuild Reservoirs of Biblical Days.

JERUSALEM, April 7.—[By the Associated Press.]—The pressure of an electric button put in motion the machinery bringing the waters of the pools of Solomon to the Holy City. It is the consummation of years of work, involving a large outlay and much engineering skill.

Formerly the city had but one small fountain, so that the people were almost entirely dependent upon cisterns, which were often so foul that outbreaks of typhoid and malaria were common.

Use Solomon's Pools.

The military administration under Gen. Allenby discovered springs in the Judean hills, about seven miles south of Jerusalem, and by building a reservoir on a neighboring hill they were able to pump into this and then have the water flow into Jerusalem by gravity. This, however, proved inadequate.

Engineers finally turned their attention to three immense reservoirs a few miles south of Bethlehem, known as Solomon's Pools. Although they bear the name of Israel's great king, they doubtless date from the Herodian period, but they were repaired in the sixteenth century by the sultan, Suliman the Magnificent.

Through Solid Rock.

These pools had been out of repair for several hundred years. Two have been cleaned and recemented and will greatly increase the Jerusalem water supply. The water for these pools is more than three miles further south and over half of this distance it is brought through a tunnel cut through the solid rock.

Aviator Killed When Plane Is Splintered at Dayton, O.

Dayton, O., April 7.—Capt. Richard Derby, 28, Dayton, was killed today when his airplane went into a nose dive and fell 2,000 feet at McCook field. The plane struck a barn and was splintered.

SCHOOL BOODLE CASES PUT OFF ANOTHER WEEK

Lundin and Rohm to Seek Separate Trials.

Fred Lundin, Virtus Rohm, and their associates in the $1,000,000 school board boodle case were given another week in which to prepare a defense to the blanket indictment conspiracy charges by Judge Charles A. McDonald yesterday.

The ruling, which continued the opening date of examination of prospective jurymen from April 16 to April 23, was entered after Attorney Clarence Darrow pleaded that even in two weeks it would be nearly impossible to meet charges filed by the state after months of investigation.

First Venire Summoned.

All preliminaries to the trial, with the exception of pleas for severance of trials on behalf of several defendants, have been disposed of and the first venire of 100 talesmen has been summoned.

Lundin, his nephew, Virtus Rohm, and Jens P. Aggerbeck, head of the Aggerbeck Printing company, will seek separate trials, it is known. Among others who have indicated they may take similar action is James C. Michaels, president of the Chest Creek Coal company, recently convicted in federal court of defrauding railroads.

Wilson Gets Separate Trial.

James Wilson, former manager of the same coal company, was granted a severance when Assistant State's Attorney General Marvin Barnhart declared that he would be produced as a state's witness. William Bither, former school board attorney, convicted in another phase of the conspiracy, also was granted a separate trial.

Reports that the defense counsel would move for a change of venue from the local courts were denied by Attorney Darrow.

U. OF W. PLAY IS STUDENT PRODUCT EVEN TO "DROPS"

"Kikmi," the two act musical comedrama which will be presented at the Aryan Grotto temple Monday night by the University of Wisconsin Haresfoot club, is almost entirely an undergraduate affair. The scenery and drops were designed and constructed by two students. The play was written by Henry Scott Rubel. The score was written by three students.

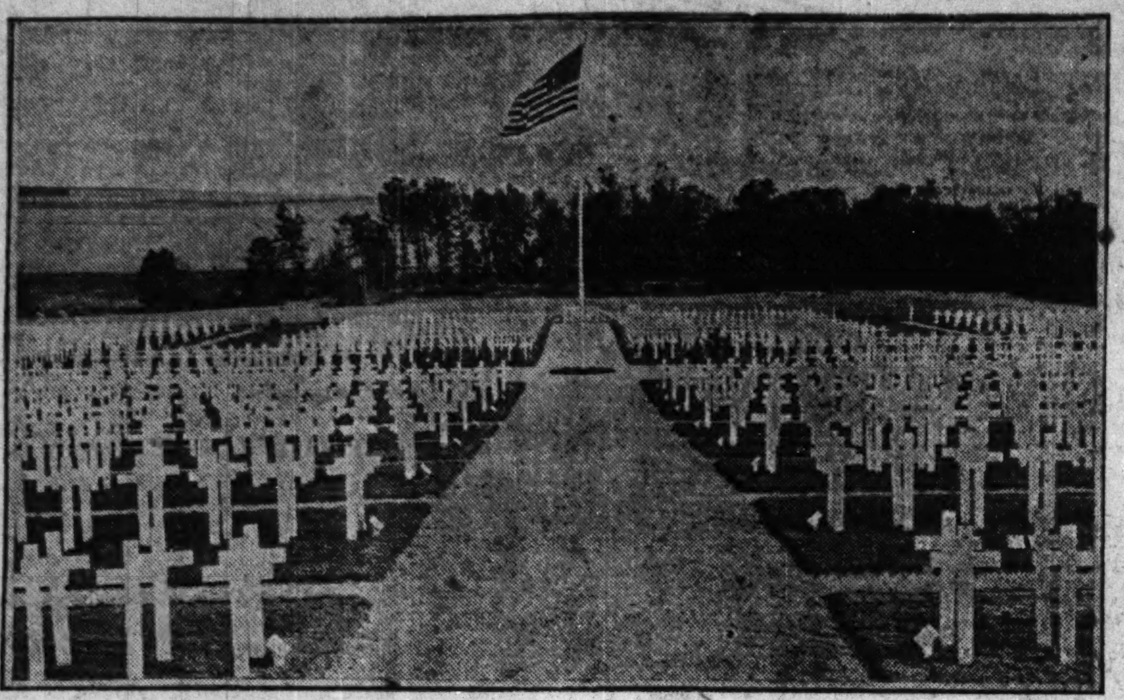
Pirates, sailors, dancing girls from the harem [all popular campus men], a sheik, and American tourists comprise the background of the piece. The climax comes when the hero succeeds in getting his bride on board the S. S. Imbecilic and sails for home.

Seats may be ordered from the box office of the Aryan Grotto temple by mail or may be purchased direct.

Ocean Liner Delayed by Strike of Coal Handlers

New York, April 7.—The first disruption of schedules because of the Coal Handlers' clubs four day old strike on the water front was reported today, when the French liner La Savoie had to delay departure because of insufficient coal. The crew of 150 men have been working three days to get 3,000 tons of coal into the bunkers for the voyage.

HELP DECORATE THESE HERO GRAVES



This is a view of part of the Oise Aisne American cemetery near Fere-en-Tardenois. The cemetery contains the graves of more than six thousand American soldiers.

Legion Asks $100,000

A campaign to raise an endowment fund of $100,000 to provide for the permanent annual decoration of the graves of 32,100 American heroes of the world war, who still rest in Europe, has been launched by the American Legion. The drive will be conducted through the 11,000 posts of the organization and will close Memorial day.

The decoration of these graves was originally undertaken by the Paris post of the legion, which was the resipient of a fund of money raised in this country, but this sum was found to inadequate, the income being so small that the capital is being depleted.

Returns from the proposed endowment, with private contributions totalling a similar amount, are expected to be sufficient to carry on the work for all time.

Contributions have already been received by the legion. Numbered among the donors are many world war leaders, the first personal contribution to be received being that of former President Wilson.

While many legion posts probably will not make any outside campaign, money raised by the sale of the silken replicas of the French poppy, to be sold by legionnaires a few days prior to May 30, may be partially diverted to this purpose.

France and Belgium have 31,400 of these graves. There are 488 in England, 140 in Scotland, and forty in Ireland. One American sailor was buried in Spain.

BURLINGTON R. R. TO OPEN TWO NEW FREIGHT HOUSES

Two new freight houses of the Burlington railway's Chicago terminal, one of two stories and the other of one story, will be opened for business tomorrow. The larger one is located between Harrison and Polk streets, east of Canal street, and the smaller one is south of Polk street. They constitute the first completed unit of an extensive plan to provide unsurpassed freight terminal facilities. There will be two other warehouses, north and south of Polk street.

BIGGEST SCHOOL TEACHES 93,962 LAME FROM WAR

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—The United States veterans' bureau is maintaining the largest school in America, with classes in hundreds of buildings scattered in as many villages and towns throughout the country, Gen. Hines, director of the bureau, announced today.

"Disabled veterans of the world war to the number of 93,962, coming from all grades and walks of life in the main cross section of American manhood, constitute the personnel which is being rehabilitated by this governmental organization to which is entrusted the task of returning these war disabled individuals to civil life as wage earning, self supporting citizens," said Gen. Hines.

"Since the creation of the different government agencies, which were later consolidated into one organization, the veterans' bureau, 161,887 veterans have entered training. 29,119 have been rehabilitated and approximately the same number placed in employment."

LEGION NOTES

Evanston Camp No. 57 of the United Spanish War Veterans will hold a meeting at 1911 Central street, Evanston, at 8 p. m., Thursday, to plan for the celebration of their twenty-fifth anniversary.

Plans so far outlined call for two patriotic demonstrations, short talks by comrades in all Evanston and Wilmette schools and the departmental banquet at the Hotel La Sallé, at which President Harding, Secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of Labor Davis and Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord have been invited to be present.

$9,000,000 PONZI ON WAY TO SERVE FOUR YEAR TERM

Samuel J. Pandolfo, president and leading promoter of the Pan Motor company of St. Cloud, Minn., who engineered the collection of $9,000,000 through an alleged fraudulent stock scheme, yesterday appeared at the office of United States Marshal Robert R. Levy and announced he was ready to begin serving a ten year sentence in Leavenworth penitentiary.

Pandolfo was taken to the prison last night, having made the request that not a day be lost in getting his "stretch" under way.

Tried Before Judge Landis.

The convicted man, who once was one of the best known individuals both in the northwest and southwest, was tried in 1921 in former Judge Landis' court with twelve alleged associates in the promotion of the Pan stock scheme, which entailed extensive use of the mails. All of the co-defendants were acquitted.

In the course of the trial testimony was introduced showing Pandolfo's share of the profits from the stock sales was more than $1,000,000.

When he appeared on the stand, he insisted the promotion was legitimate, inasmuch as the company had $113,000,000 in orders for automotive vehicles, which he said, the company would have been ready to manufacture but for the government's interference.

After his sentence Pandolfo has made a spirited fight to prevent serving time in the penitentiary. He appeared twice before the United States District Court of Appeals.

Fails in Supreme Court.

The first hearing resulted in affirmation of the Landis sentence and the second denied a petition for a rehearing. On Jan. 25 of this year he was given a stay to enable him to appeal to the United States Supreme court. On March 12 the Supreme court refused to review the case.

Following the Washington action, Pandolfo was expected to surrender, but failed to do so. Finally he was ordered to surrender on or before last Thursday. He failed to do so and arrangements were being made to ask forfeiture of his $25,000 bonds, when he showed up at the federal building yesterday.

During the month just closed we sold in our Chicago stores the almost unbelievable amount of 813,400 pounds of A. & P. Flour — sufficient to bake over a million and a quarter loaves of bread. This figure compares very favorably with our sales of the popular advertised brands, being 70,000 pounds more than the next best seller, and only slightly under the combined sales of the two brands next favored by the public. These figures speak louder than any words, and prove the superiority of A. & P. Flour, which is rapidly becoming a prime favorite with the Chicago housewife.

3216 Jewett Salesmen in Chicago —They're Jewett Owners!

balance monthly, buys this Jewett Sedan. Seats five in comfort. All side windows are adjustable to weather conditions. Full steel-paneled body. All wanted appointments. Full 50 h. p. Paige-built motor sedan "with open car performance." Demonstration upon request.

Jewett Six deliveries started in Chicago less than a year ago.

Today there are 3,216 Jewetts running in Chicago and vicinity. Which means there are 3,216 Jewett "salesmen" in Chicago. Seriously, this is absolutely true.

Ask any Jewett owner to tell you about his Jewett. We'll rest the Jewett case in the hands of any one of them—confidently.

Every day we make sales of Jewetts to friends and acquaintances of Jewett owners. Such is the enthusiasm of these 3,216 Jewett owners. Think how fine a car Jewett must be to have "arrived" so decisively in less than a year—a popularity record that stands alone in the industry.

Prove it yourself. Make this interesting experiment:

The next time you see a Jewett, ask the driver what he or she thinks of it. Ask several. You will hear a truly interesting and, we haven't a doubt, an amazing story of Jewett power, Jewett economy, Jewett dependability, Jewett comfort.

Jewett is Paige-built. This means it has a Paige-built motor, Paige-Timken axles front and rear. Six-inch deep frame. High-pressure, hollow crankshaft oiling system that forces 2 gallons of oil per minute through all main and connecting rod bearings. We know of several Jewetts right here in Chicago that have gone over 30,000 miles and are in perfect condition, silent, active as ever, easy to drive—altogether a pleasure to own.

Jewett, you will notice, is not a flimsy, small, light six. It weighs 2,805 pounds—200 pounds more than any car in its class. Heavy enough to be comfortable over all roads—heavy enough to be rugged, and enduring.

You'll hear about Jewett pickup—from 5 to 25 miles per hour in 7 seconds. Also about how easy it handles. Gears shift smoothly, noiselessly. You cannot "miss" nor "clash," thanks to the Paige-type clutch. Women love the easy handling of the Jewett.

We invite you to talk with any of the 3,216 Jewett owners in and near Chicago. It is one of the most sensible ways to obtain an accurate estimate of a car's worth. Then, when you have received a first-hand, unbiased opinion ask us for a demonstration. No obligation, of course.

9 IRISH REBELS SLAIN IN BATTLE; DUBLIN BOMBED

Republican Terrorist Tactics Renewed.

BELFAST, April 7.—[By the Associated Press.]—Nine Republicans were killed in a running fight with Free State troops at Glencar, County Kerry, yesterday, it was announced in an official statement. The troops surrounded a house in which the Republicans were meeting and put them to flight. The government forces suffered no casualties.

Land Mines Shake Dublin.

DUBLIN, April 7.—Dublin was shaken this afternoon by the explosion of two land mines in a railway car on a bridge at Grand Canal street, the objective probably being the cutting of the Southeastern railway.

Two bridges over the Fane river near Dundalk were blown up almost simultaneously, severing, according to one report, Great Northern railway communication between Dublin and Belfast.

The country residence of Sir John Dillon at Lismullen, County Meath, was burned today by six armed men. The raiders appeared at midnight, told Sir John and his wife and daughter that they were "sorry," but were acting under orders; then helped remove a few articles selected by the family before setting fire to the place.

Not more than 2,000 or 2,500 irregulars are resisting the Free State government now, it was stated today by Kevin O'Higgins, minister of home affairs.

Rebel prisoners, he said, were coming in at the rate of 200 a week.

The republicans are sending circular letters to the regular newspaper advertisers forbidding them to buy space in newspapers supporting the Free State, but the advertisers, after considering the matter, have decided to ignore the threat. The distillers also have been warned against paying duties to the Free State government, with death threatened as the penalty.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

In its report of the grand jury inquiry into city hall graft published Saturday morning, THE TRIBUNE stated that W. B. Dennis, assistant manager of the Adams-Beatty-Francois corporation, "had been forced to admit to the jury that only three of the company's field and staff appraisers were so qualified." This gives an erroneous impression, as Mr. Dennis was a voluntary witness and was one of the first to come forward with the truth about the appraising concern. Frederick A. Brown, assistant attorney general in charge of the grand jury investigation, said yesterday that Mr. Dennis had been of great help and had given his testimony voluntarily and that he was not involved in the alleged graft.

REDS INTENSIFY WAR ON CHRIST AT EASTERTIDE

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MOSCOW, April 7.—[Tribune Radio.]—Dramatic and paradoxical contrasts are seen everywhere here these days. This is Easter holiday week and every day all church bells, except those of the Kremlin, peal joyfully. Silent are the bells of the Kremlin, which was once the heart of the Greek Catholic church. In their shadows lies Premier Lenin, sick in bed. Crowds rush eagerly to read the bulletins on his health, debating every added respiration and every fraction of a temperature increase.

Other crowds are obvious of anything but the Easter holidays and scramble madly to reach fruit, candy, and liquor counters.

"Christ is risen" is the time honored holiday greeting which comes to the lips of many. This is answered by "Verily, he has risen," and kisses follow. That is one side of the shield. On the other there are the nation-wide activities of the league of communist youths which is trying to bring into the homes of the city workers and into the huts of the Siberian peasants an anti-religious message.

Soon to Try High Churchman.

And looming over all the Easter holiday making is the forthcoming trial of Patriarch Tikon of the All Russian church, who is accused, like the late Vicar General Budkiewicz and Archbishop Zepliak, of counter revolutionary and treasonable conduct against the soviets. His trial will begin Wednesday, with the same judges, prosecutors, and defending attorneys as in the trials of the Roman Catholic priests.

Archbishop Tikon's appeal to the Archbishop of Canterbury, which was sent secretly, will figure in the trial. With him Metropolitan Niandere of Moscow and Superintendent Guirev of the holy synod of Novgorod will face Prosecutor Krylenko's charges, which, if proved, will call for the death penalty.

Called Soviet Chiefs Thieves.

The charges include also resistance to the requisition of church treasures, stirring up religious prejudice among the masses, creating opposition to the government by calling the soviet leaders "thieves, plunderers, and murderers," that Patriarch Tikon prayed for the success of the foreign invaders at the time that Americans and others were at Archangel, and sending proclamations to other countries from Russia.

In the meantime the daily press reports that there will be an intensification of the anti-religious campaign.

ASSAILANT OF COP BRAGS AND LANDS IN CELL

"I'm a tough guy, I am," boasted Thomas Cherok, 29 years old, 10056 Torrence avenue, to his acquaintances in a saloon in Whiting, Ind. "Did'ja hear what I did to a cop in Chicago? No?" and he proceeded to tell the tale. It was a good one, but one of his listeners retailed it to the police later.

The Whiting police had a description of a man wanted for assaulting Policeman Frank Jarvis of the Brighton Park station, with a ginger ale bottle in a saloon at 1341 South Morgan street. Cherok's story corresponded exactly.

Now he is in a cell at Maxwell street station awaiting trial.

EIGHT ARRESTED AS SHOPLIFTERS WITHIN AN HOUR

Eight arrests in an hour is the latest record for the rounding up of shoplifters, made yesterday by Sergts. Edward McGuire and William Gorman of the detective bureau. The detectives announced that they would ask Judge John Richardson tomorrow to take some judicial action to put an end to this type of larceny, which, they say, is increasing steadily and causing losses amounting to thousands of dollars a day.

Miss Lydia Larson, 1729 North Mozart street, and Miss Eileen Wells, 1275 West Washington boulevard, were arrested on complaint of a loop store. Alleged stolen goods to the amount of $100 were found on them.

While waiting for the Central patrol to take them to the station, the detectives arrested the other six persons charged.

WOMAN LOSES DIAMOND BRACELET.

Mrs. William Shakman, a guest at the Congress hotel, last night reported the loss of a diamond bracelet, valued at $2,200, while she was walking on Michigan boulevard, between Congress and Monroe streets.

Why Do Grocers Succeed?

Nineteen out of twenty don't.

Merchandising experts—and inquiring housewives—are asking why the 95% fail. Chances are, the housewives will come nearer the truth than the experts.

Straws show which way the wind blows. Sherlock Holmes reads in a bit of cigar ash the habits of the smoker. And any housewife can read the habits of her grocer in so small a thing as a paper bag.

The housewife knows how much pains her grocer takes to buy clean foodstuffs. She sees, right in his store, how careful he is to keep them clean, protected by glass and screens.

But in the third step of service—delivering them clean—some grocers are inclined to slip. They forget the importance of protecting all foodstuffs in clean, sanitary Victory Food Containers.

A little thing? Perhaps. But the final touch of clean, up-to-date grocer service. So why—unless through thoughtlessness—should the grocer overlook protecting all her purchases with the world's cleanest, strongest, most sanitary food container?

The housewife knows that Victory Food Containers cost no more than ordinary bags. She feels entitled to this crowning touch of service. She may not mention this to her grocer, but she draws her own conclusions.

Remember, you are entitled to have ALL your groceries protected in clean, sanitary Victory Food Containers.

Victory Food Containers come in three popular brands. All three reach the dealer in sanitary, sealed cartons, as pictured below.

COAL

Be Safe—Buy Now

The people of Chicago may depend upon us for facts, but we frankly admit we cannot predict the future.

It is up to you to study general business conditions and to recall to you what has happened in the past. Then decide for yourself.

If we don't have improved railroad facilities and better car supply and if the general business prosperity keeps up, many honest students of business conditions say, "Put your coal in now."

We know what existing conditions are and we are putting coal in our yards today, because we cannot gamble on the future.

We cannot foresee what may happen in the next six months. We know what we can do today. "Your bin full of coal is worth more than a thousand tons in the mine."

Fill your bin before house-cleaning, before the lawn and the shrubbery are green, and before you go on that vacation. Your order will be delivered in turn, "first come, first served."

Anthracite Hard Coal Strike?

We are trying to keep away from propaganda. Nevertheless it is our duty to tell you that the anthracite miners' present arrangement expires August 31, 1923. Whether or not they will strike, and how long the strike will last, are things for both of us to think about.

Whether you buy anthracite, or any other coal, an affiliation with us is the strongest protection in times of trouble. If our storage yard in your vicinity should run out, we have 40 other yards throughout the city to draw from, and we have 200 trucks and 700 horses to do the transferring in quick order. This is genuine service.

Read what the Federal Fuel Distributor for the entire United States advises the public to do.

From Chicago Tribune Wednesday, March 28, 1923

Lay in Winter Coal in Summer Advice of Fuel Distributor

Washington, D. C., March 27—Coal consumers were advised today by F. R. Wadleigh, federal fuel distributor, to make plans to buy their winter fuel during the Spring and Summer.. Retail dealers were asked to facilitate such steps, in order to increase public assurance against any difficulties in labor or transportation next winter.

Householders who do this, Mr. Wadleigh said, will likely get better grades of coal, and in addition will help industrial conditions by keeping mines busy in the Summer, and assisting railroads to move freight in the most economic manner.

Our Service Guaranteed Coal

Coal is not manufactured. Nature makes it. It is found mixed with slate, rock, and other impurities. Coal from the same mine often varies in quality, but we buy our fuel only from dependable producers, which have a reputation for grading their coal carefully. At our yards we do everything practical to make the fuel satisfactory for your purpose.

Our guarantee has no strings. When the coal is delivered, it must be right and every ton is covered by this warranty:

Consumers Company Unreservedly Guarantees the Quality, Full Weight and Satisfactory Delivery of any and all Guaranteed Products, making it a part of the Transaction to cheerfully remove the goods at their own expense and refund Your Money if You Are Not Satisfied.

PRESIDENT

Full Weight—Clean Coal

Chicago needs an institution like Consumers Company. Householders and industrial plants can rely upon us in matters of coal. Our reputation is being built on clean coal and on honest weight and top-notch service.

And in the face of so many uncertainties we have made good with our customers.

Our reward has been the confidence of the public and a greater volume of business. Our growing business enables us to offer greater service and large facilities and greater buying economy.

Community Service

If you will refer to the telephone book, you will find the location of our yards throughout the City and suburbs. Pick out the yard nearest you.

Our local yard manager, who is in fact the acting president of Consumers Company in your section, will call, upon telephone request. He may be able to point out heating economies in your heating plant. There is no obligation to you whatever. If there is anything at any time you want to know about coal, call up your local yard, or the general office if you prefer.

We have more than 2,000 employees. These men know our instructions about service. Every one of them knows that full weight and honest value is the gospel of our company. Their jobs depend upon the way they serve you.

WOMEN TO MAKE PEACE BIG ISSUE AT CONVENTION

Voters' League Convenes at Des Moines Tuesday.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—World peace and how to get it will figure prominently among subjects to be discussed at the fourth annual convention of the National League of Women Voters, which will open in Des Moines next Tuesday.

Frederick J. Libbey, executive secretary of the council for the prevention of war, will address the committee on international coöperation to prevent war, one of the seven standing committees of the league, on Monday afternoon, when pre-convention open committee meetings will be held.

Hold U. S. Peace Factor.

"Responsibility of America for World Peace" is the topic for discussion at the mass meeting on Wednesday night, which will be presided over by Miss Ruth Morgan, chairman of the league's committee on international coöperation to prevent war.

Lord Robert Cecil, the most prominent advocate of the league of nations, will be the principal speaker at the open meeting at the Coliseum on Friday night following the banquet of which Miss Katherine Ludington of Connecticut, treasurer of the league of women voters, will preside.

Change Former Policy.

The fact that Lord Robert has been invited to address the convention indicates a distinct change of policy on the part of officers of the league of women voters, who successfully prevented any mention whatever of the league of nations at the convention in Baltimore last April, although a resolution which amounted to an indorsement of the league was brought in at the last moment by Mrs. Caspar Whitney of New York and adopted with enthusiasm by the convention.

That the interest of all the women in attendance on last year's convention was centered on the prevention of another war clearly was apparent, and was manifested by the creation of the standing committee on international coöperation to prevent war and the repeated arguments in favor of making world peace the principal object of the organization.

League Center of Fight.

The determined effort of the national officers to prevent the stampeding of the convention for the league of nations overshadowed in interest even the struggle between the two factions in the organization over the plan of work for the coming year, one of which, led by the president, Mrs. Maud Wood Park, who was reëlected, favored the retention of the standing committees on child welfare, education, living costs, social hygiene, uniform laws, and women in industry, and the other, led by Mrs. John O. Miller of Pennsylvania, urged greater concentration on practical political work.

CHICAGOANS OFF TODAY

Several hundred women from Chicago and vicinity will leave today to attend the opening session of the National League of Women Voters, in Des Moines tomorrow.

Among the women going to the convention from Chicago are Miss Julia Lathrop, president of the Illinois league; Mrs. Kenneth F. Rich, vice president; Mrs. Clair E. More, secretary; Mrs. Henry W. Cheney, former state president; Mrs. George M. Mathes, Mrs. Emmons Blaine Jr., Mrs. William G. Hibbard, Mrs. Noble B. Judah, Mrs. Zonia Baber, Mrs. W. G. Brown, Mrs. F. R. Moulton, Mrs. W. H. Hess, Mrs. J. Paul Goode, Mrs. Irene Goins, Miss Edith Rockwood, Miss Josephine Perry, Miss Elizabeth Christman, Miss Maud Freeman, and Miss Esther Dunshee.

LOSES DIAMOND

Mrs. Valentine Crane, daughter-in-law of Herbert P. Crane, millionaire, reported to the police of Los Angeles, Cal., yesterday that she had lost a diamond ring valued at $4,000. She missed the ring after leaving the station in the California city following her arrival from the east. Mrs. Crane is making her home at 888 East Washington street, Pasadena.

SOCIETY STANDS DIVIDED OVER CHADWICK CASE

Chicago society yesterday took a divided stand on the Douglass-Chadwick case, in which Mrs. Rosamond Chadwick of Beverly Hills is defendant in a suit for the recovery of $25,000 worth of jewels by Mrs. Honoré H. Douglass of the Hotel Metropole.

Friends of the wife of Clarence Chadwick, president of the Bankers' Supply company, recall her humerous charities and cite an incident which occurred recently. Mr. Chadwick, in discussing his wife's gifts to struggling musicians and others, said: "Why, look what she did for a woman she felt sorry for. She asked her to come to dinner and she stayed a year."

The woman, it is reported, was Mrs. Douglass, who admits living in the Chadwick home for nine months.

Over against this gossip is the incident which, according to Mrs. Douglass' colleagues, occurred at a meeting of the woman's committee of the opera guarantors, in which Mrs. Chadwick was a worker. Some of the women criticized her methods and Mrs. Russell Tyson, it is rumored, made a speech denouncing Mrs. Chadwick's conduct.

Mrs. Chadwick, who accompanied her husband to Hot Springs a week ago, declared yesterday that she will return to Chicago in time for the trial, April 16.

CORPORATION ACT AT STAKE IN BILL AT SPRINGFIELD

Defeat of Amendment May Kill Law.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Springfield, Ill., April 7.—[Special.]—Failure of the Dahlberg amendment to the corporation law endangers the entire act and means at least an appropriation of $20,000 from the state treasury for refunds to corporations which have paid franchise taxes on no par value stock, Secretary of State Emmerson declared today.

The Dahlberg bill was offered to cure a defect found in the corporation act by the Supreme court which held that the secretary of state could not collect a franchise fee on no par value stock for the purpose of collecting the fee. The bill establishes a uniform value of $100 on no par value stock and fixes the fee at 5 cents per share.

The measure was the first bill to pass the house and has been pending in the senate since.

Aimed at Entire Law.

Little effort to defeat it was made on its journey through the house, but since the bill has been in senate hands opposition has been developed by the Illinois Manufacturers' association. Friends of the measure declare that the opposition is really trying to defeat the entire corporation law.

Secretary Emmerson's statement regarding the bill follows:

"As the result of the decision we already have refunded to corporations more than $200,000 of fees under orders from the court. Many thousands of dollars more is held up under protest and must be paid back unless the pending bill is passed. If this bill is defeated all of the corporations having stock of no par value will, of course, demand the refund of fees paid on these shares.

$3,500,000 Paid Yearly.

"Moreover, failure to pass this bill will endanger the entire corporation act, because it will, of course, be discriminatory to tax shares of a definite par value and not to tax shares of no par value. This act has proved immensely beneficial to the people and brings into the state treasury annually $3,500,000.

"It is hypocritical to say that stock of no par value should pay a franchise fee based upon its value. The only reason for issuing stock of no par value is because its value cannot be definitely determined.

"Franchise fees are assesed irrespective of property value for service the state renders, and means much to the taxpayers."

FAIL TO SOLVE STRANGE ATTACK.

No explanation has been found for the attack yesterday morning upon Thomas P. Monahan, 42 years old, found unconscious in his room in the Monroe hotel, 406 South State street. He was taken to the county hospital suffering from wounds which may prove fatal.

MISS PARDRIDGE IS MARRIED TO COLUMBUS HEALY

Only the immediate families attended the ceremony yesterday afternoon which made Miss Harriet Pardridge the bride of Columbus Healy. The Rev. John Herbert Edwards read the service at 4:30 o'clock in the chapel of St. James' Episcopal church, and following it there was a small reception at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Edward W. Pardridge, 1100 Lake Shore drive.

Gown of Ivory Satin.

The bride's gown of ivory satin was trimmed with lace and pearl embroidery and her tulle veil was held in place with a pearl fillet. She carried orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Alfred Schoellkopf of Buffalo. She wore a gown of beige chiffon with a hat to match and carried orchids.

Member of Junior League.

Marquette A. Healy served as best man for his brother. Mr. and Mrs. Healy will be at home after June 15 at 219 Lake Shore drive. The bride is a member of the Junior league and popular in local society. The bridegroom is the son of the late Patrick J. Healy.

Ravenswood Church Plans New School and Convent

A drive for a new school and convent is to start this week in Ravenswood for old St. Mathias Roman Catholic parish. The church, which was built about seven years ago, has been entirely paid for. Summer Residence Is Delightful and Not Costly in

Hotel Sheridan-Plaza
SHERIDAN ROAD AT WILSON AVENUE

Few hotels anywhere, however costly their accommodations, can match the Sheridan-Plaza's large, well furnished, pleasant rooms—from many of which there is a beautiful view of the lake—its good service, congenial environment and its general contribution to comfort. This you will appreciate when you have compared, as we ask you to, rooms to be had here, upon a permanent residence basis, at $27.50, $30, $31.50, $33.50 and $35 a week, with rooms renting for $40, $50 and even $60 a week in other hotels of highest standing.

Hotel Sheridan-Plaza's conservative management has won the patronage of an especially desirable class of guests—a matter of large importance in the consideration of permanent residence. The main restaurant and the Narcissus Grill—cafeteria—both of which have attained wide fame, are sources of great satisfaction to Sheridan-Plaza guests, and to others from far and near.

Whether or not you are considering an early change of residence, it would be a pleasure to me to escort you upon a tour of this hotel today. You will be greatly interested in its many features, including the beautiful Turquoise ballroom, the various banquet rooms and other facilities for private entertainment.

Louis XIV. Walnut Dining Room Suite

Sideboard	$570.00
Cabinet	450.00
Extension table	400.00
Serving cabinet	360.00
Chairs, each in denim	130.00
Arm chair, in denim	170.00

YOU may have just the right dining room for this beautiful suite. It is one of the new designs; solid walnut, hand carved, and of the higest quality throughout.

It is a good example of the way modern craftsmen are following the styles set in the days of Louis XIV. Those were the times just before the great names appeared in England—Chippendale, Hepplewhite, Sheraton; when the real artists in furniture were in France and Italy. The reign of heaviness was beginning to decline, but the lighter mood of the great English artists had not yet come.

You see the solidity here; but with it you see the grace and elegance which under the later Louis XV. and XVI. developed into the extreme of decoration; and in England into the delicacies of Sheraton and Hepplewhite.

This suite is one that will be a continual joy to any one who possesses it; and it is built for long and substantial service.

The Romance of Personal Transportation in Chicago

FROM pioneering to automobiling! Thus in one breath may be summed up the vast development of Chicago. Progress has come down the years on wheels.

Miles are not what they used to be. Paving has smoothed them. The automobile has shortened them. With quickened pace we have slowed up the clock. We have snapped the fetters of distance.

In the latter-day advantages of Chicago life Overland and Willys-Knight motor cars have been dominant factors in personal transportation. And in the city's health and happiness.

Overland and Willys-Knight cars are helping men forge ahead in business. They are carrying hundreds of doctors on errands of mercy. They are giving thousands of families healthful recreation and pleasure. And they are enabling women to go shopping when and whither they please, with ease and in comfort.

Collectively, the many thousands of Overland and Willys-Knight cars in Chicago really constitute an enormous transportation system. A trackless system. Every city street or country road is a right of way. Owners come and go at will. With their Overlands and Willys-Knights they are as free to go as birds of the air.

And go economically. That is the beauty of this great Overland and Willys-Knight system. Twenty-five miles to the gallon of gasoline is the common Overland average, and twenty miles that of Willys-Knight. And as months and miles accumulate, further economy is enjoyed in performance that is lastingly dependable.

Backing every owner are 30 complete Overland and Willys-Knight service organizations. No matter where you live, competent service with friendly consideration is just around the corner. The quality of the cars, their remarkable economy and the unshirking responsibility behind them, all assure you the very limit of motoring satisfaction.

The new Overland is the best Overland ever built—at the lowest price. No other car in its field gives you an all-steel body with a hard-baked enamel finish—or Triplex Springs (Patented), which yield the riding ease of a car of much longer wheelbase—or duplicates the sturdy Overland axle construction with so many genuine Timken and New Departure bearings.

All the beautiful body designs of the new Willys-Knight are powered by the marvelous Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine—the engine that improves with use. It is quieter and more powerful at fifteen thousand miles than when new. Carbon only makes it better. There are no valves to grind. Many owners report 50,000 miles and more without a single engine adjustment. And no Willys-Knight engine has ever been known to wear out.

Chicagoans can well count themselves fortunate to have personal transportation so trustworthy, so economical, and so adequately serviced.

SOX AND CUBS VICTORIOUS AGAINST DIXIE TEAMS

LAYTON DEFEATS KIECKHEFER BY 720 TO 658 SCORE

Augie Wins Final Block, but Loses Match.

St. Louis, Mo., April 7.—[Special.]—World's Champion Johnny Layton defeated Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, former titleholder, in their 720 point three cushion billiard match tonight by taking the afternoon block, 60 to 45, and losing the evening block, 63 to 60. The final score was: Layton, 720; Kieckhefer, 658. The entire match required 769 innings.

Layton ran out in 75 innings in beating Kieckhefer in the afternoon block. The champion's high run was 6. The Windy City expert went out in 74 innings at night, his high run being 4.

In the evening block Kieckhefer reversed the high run score on Layton, having a run of 6 against 5 for the champion.

INDUSTRIAL PIN TEAMS GET OFF IN BIG TOURNEY

The largest crowd that ever attended the opening of a bowling tournament in Chicago was at the Randolph alleys last night for the first round of play of the championship meet of the Industrial Bowling association. All the officials of the Chicago Association of Commerce, under whose auspices the tourney is being staged, were on hand. President Thomas Nolan of the Industrial Bowling association acted as master of ceremonies. Avery Brundage, chairman of athletics of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and Judge Howard, representing the American Bowling congress, made talks.

The pin getting was fairly good, especially for an opening night. The Illinois Bell Telephone company No. 6 shot 2,735 for th top mark of the night, followed by the General American Tank Car company with 2,667. The Executives team from the C. A. of C. was the banner attraction of the night. They rolled on the first squad and piled up a grand total of 1,677, to the delight of the crowd. Robert Beach made his debut as a bowler and celebrated with 253 pins for his three games. Scores:

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

KENTUCKY DERBY CHOICES.

At great expense, The Wake has secured for the benefit of Helpers the services of Mons. Jean De Flanayshon, an experienced follower of the ponies, to give his opinions on the Kentucky Derby to be run May 19.

Mons. De Flanayshon dates back to the old days of Chicago racing, when he was a consistent player of the dollar books. From that start he accumulated a bank roll which enables him to play the handbooks now (for a short period after each pay day). His first article on the Derby follows:

The Derby this year will be run on a muddy track. Not in recent years have there been so many high class 2 year old mudders as last season. Standing out slightly above the others is Zev from the Rancocas stables, which bids fair to be as high class as his predecessors from the same stable, Grey Lag and Kai Sang, in their 3 year old form, although neither started in the Derby.

Sally's Alley won one good race in the mud, beating Silk Tassel, El Dorado, and Crocket, but her best races have been on a fast track.

Despite tradition that fillies do not win Derbies, she will have a strong following.

Ranking after Zev in the mud, we have Edict, Wilderness, Dunlin, Enchantment, winter book favorite; Bud Lerner, Vigil. Then we have Martingale, Donges, Bright Tomorrow, Betty Beall, Blossom Time, and Skeezix, which are good on any kind of track. General Thatcher and Goshawk are bears on a fast track.

Martingale is my future book choice because he is a high class colt, Garth is a first class trainer and C. Kummer is a first class jockey. Martingale can run in mud or on a fast track. He ran all distances up to and including a mile as a 2 year old. He is not essentially a front runner, which would be a handicap in such a large field.

Watch for the next installment of Mons. De Flanayshon's feedbox chatter!

Friend Harve: I reduced my regular game 24 strokes by batting the pill against a canvas for three months preceding the open season of 1922. Here is the lingo to which I listened from the instructor:

"Go back slow. Head down. Stick with the ball. Don't rare back, the ball won't bite you. Keep your head still. Folley the ball out. What you stoppin'yer club for?

"Hit it, hit! No pep. Put your wrists into it. Snap right into it. You looked up too soon or that would a been a pippin. Loosen up. Relax. Quit grindin' your teeth."

As I said, after three months of this I reduced my regular game 24 strokes—to 115 gross.

THREE HIT WIN FOR DAVENPORT, HOSE 'WILD MAN'

Beats Birmingham, 2-1; Bruins Cop Shutout.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Birmingham, Ala., April 7.—[Special.]—Joubert Lum' Davenport lived down his reputation for wildness today and pitched his white hosed mates to a 2 to 1 victory over the local Southern leaguers. Only three hits and one pass were collected off the excollegian.

DAVENPORT.

The Sox themselves had considerable trouble getting runs across. Three digerent hurlers faced them and one was about as tough as the other, the only inning in which more than a lone bingle was exploded being the seventh, when Gleason's men counted both their tallies.

Davenport Baffles Foe.

Davenport's twirling was a delight. He zipped over his fast ones, curves, and slow foolers with unerring accuracy, and until the eighth didn't permit a runner to reach second. Then a fluke hit, followed by a clean drive and an error at short, let a run score. His work proved conclusively that he can pitch, if he tries.

Most of the Sox clouting was cornered by Eddie Collins and Roy Elsh, who is subbing for Hooper pending recovery of the latter's ailing hoof. The aged but agile second sacker peeled off two singles and a double, while Elsh let loose three clean line drives for one sack apiece. He also stole second and third, after getting on with a hit in the third inning.

Elsh Starts Scoring.

It was one of Elsh's wallops that started the Sox on the way to their runs. He opened the seventh with a drive over second and moved ahead on Johnson's sacrifice. Collins followed with a single and Elsh stepped to third. Strunk grounded into a forceout to score Elsh, and then went to third on a steal and the catcher's bad throw. Sheely counted him with a single.

Misfortune visited the squad this morning when Gleason had his men out for practice. In pursuing a fly ball, Leverett turned his ankle.

CUBS, 6; FT. WORTH, 0.

Fort Worth, Tex., April 7.—[Special.]—The Cubs cut up as hitless wonders today and turned a scant half dozen blows into enough runs to give them a 9 to 6 victory. This was accomplished by getting safeties behind bases on balls.

Ten times a Cublet paraded and four times the man who strolled completed the circuit. Six Fort Worth errors had considerable to do with the net results.

Slim Osborne went six innings, the second being the only bad one when H. Moore poled a home run over the left field fence with a man on ahead of him. Osborne was steady the rest of the way. Aldridge finished the game and did not have to bear down very hard. He allowed three hits in the seventh.

Friberg was the best batsman for the Cubs with a double and a homer over the distant left field fence. It was a liberal sock on a line that cleared the boards easily.

The Cubs showed the best form they have displayed this spring. Their few hits were most timely and they scampered all over the place on the defensive. Statz ended the game by taking a fly with one hand close to the center field fence. It was the ability to hit safely with men on bases that pleased most.

Alexander appeared as a pinch hitter in the sixth and filed out. The Cubs play at Dallas tomorrow. Score:

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." For today's question E. G. Thatcher, 510 N. Walnut street, Van Wert, O., was awarded $5.

The Question.

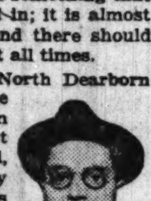
Should big league baseball players be given representation and a voice in the conduct of organized baseball?

Where Asked.

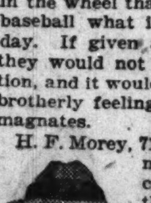
7 South Dearborn street.

The Answers.

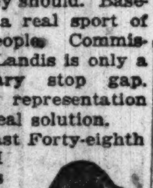
E. M. Fitzgerald, 2935 Quinn street, photographer — I certainly think that the players should have a voice in the conduct of organized baseball. I believe the public would like to feel that the players have recognition on the national commission. Baseball is something that the public is interested in; it is almost a public institution, and there should be absolute harmony at all times.



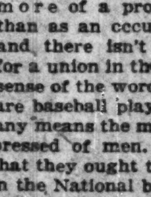
Sol W. Harris, 127 North Dearborn street, attorney — The players should be given a voice in the conduct of organized baseball, for these reasons: They are the necessary cogs in the wheel that made baseball what it is today. If given a voice they would not be subject to temptation, and it would tend to foster a more brotherly feeling between players and magnates.



H. F. Morey, 717 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park, Ill., accountant — I believe that they should. Baseball is a real sport of the people. Commissioner Landis is only a temporary stop gap. Player representation is the real solution.



Wm. R. Ford, 225 East Forty-eighth street, salesman — I look upon baseball as more of a profession than as an occupation, and there isn't a call for a union in the strict sense of the word. Nor are baseball players by any means the most oppressed of men. But at that, I feel that they ought to have representation in the National baseball commission.



H. E. Schory, Columbus, O., salesman —I'd think that the boys should be given a voice in it, for the simple reason that baseball is their livelihood. I know in my own game I have been asked frequently to give my views about the business. This creates a mutual feeling of respect, one for the other; it reacts as an incentive for greater coöperation between employé and employer.

22-Year Old Chicagoan Is Fifth in A. B. C. All-Events

Milwaukee, Wis., April 7.—[Special.]—Tomorrow night marks the end of five men team rolling in the American Bowling congress tourney, with Lincoln Lifes of Fort Wayne, 1922 champions, trying to retain the laurels gained at Toledo.

They will find an altogether different mark to shoot at than the 2,957 they bettered by rolling 2,984, for the world's record has been broken twice since then in this tourney and 3,139 now confronts them.

Only two days remain to smash the one remaining unbroken record, 729 in the singles. Wallie Lundgren's shot last year at Toledo has not been equaled, although every other record ever established has fallen in the bombardment since the tournament opened March 10.

Former Champs Slip.

Today a pair of former champions rolled in the doubles event, they being Satorious and Holzschueh of Peoria. They went the general way of title holders, getting but 1,136.

It was a Chicago lad, Simon Lock, who furnished the thrill of the matinee pastiming, when he columned his made pace of the evening before while rolling with the Samuelsons by hitting 625 in his doubles and 669 in his singles, thus gaining a nine game total of 1,953, which placed him fifth in the all-events. Lock is but 22 years old.

Co-starring with him were two pairs from Omaha. Tenth place in the doubles was gained by C. Wesley and G. Kennedy when they rolled 1,282. Twelfth place was taken by T. Kneale and A. Krug, due to their 1,280 count.

Chicagoans Get 1,235.

Several other high 1,200 games were rolled, among them being 1,235 by Hautprick and Locke of Chicago; 1,233 by Strasburg and Clark of Port Huron and 1,217 by the Seiple Brothers of Omaha.

High series also were seen in the singles, the leaders being Walter Reppenhagen and Anthony Novak both of Detroit, each getting 685.

Pin getting was of but ordinary calibre during the first squad rolling tonight. Hoover Sweepers, of Canton, were leaders with a total of 2,787. Hotel Windsor, of St. Paul, ranked next with 2,769, and Hummel and Downing No. 1, Milwaukee, third with 2,745.

Notardan and Ewert of McKinley furnished the thrills of the senior competition by tying for first in the 220 yard run.

Hagen Sets Record for Carolina Club Course

Raleigh, N. C., April 7.—Walter Hagen set a record for the Carolina Country club course here today by turning in a card of 72 in the second round of an exhibition match. Par is 75. Hagen and Joe Kirkwood defeated Jack Redmond, Raleigh, and William Goebel of Charlotta, professionals, 6 and 5, in the thirty-six hole match.

TY SHOWERS UMPIRE WITH DIRT; GAME GOES TO CARDS ON FORFEIT

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 7.—Today's exhibition game between Detroit and St. Louis was forfeited to St. Louis, 9 to 0, by Cobb's refusal to leave the game when ordered to do so by Umpire Pfirman. The trouble arose in the sixth inning over a close decision at second base, when Pfirman called Cobb out. The umpire claims that Cobb threw dirt on him when he arose from the bag and ordered the Detroit leader to leave the game. Cobb refused.

Fully 4,000 persons witnessed the game. Neither side was able to score during the six innings. Score:

St. Louis [N.]	9	3	0

The greatest display of basketball skill ever shown on a city court carried the Kansas City, Kan., high school basketball team to national championship heights in the swan song of the great five day classic staged by the University of Chicago at Bartlett gymnasium last night. The Jayhawkers flashed past Rockford, 43 to 21, with an exhibition that roused a packed house of 3,500 to frenzy.

JOHN BORGENDING.

Charleston, S. C., garnered third place honors by upsetting the Muskegon five, Michigan state champions, 35 to 26, in a fray that was cut to thirty minutes' playing time due to the battered condition of both fives.

Rockford, showing a startling improvement over Friday's form, won its way into the final bracket by routing the Dixie contender, Charleston, 45 to 21, while Kansas City hurdled Muskegon, 30 to 26, for its passport in the semi-final games, which were played yesterday afternoon.

Kansas Attack Powerful.

The Kansas machine proved beyond question of a doubt its right to the title of the nation's best in downing Rockford. The Illinois boys fought bitterly, savagely, but helplessly against the Kansas attack that flashed in and out, steadily working its way goalward.

The great trio of Proudfit, Zuber, and Schmidt, with the two guards, Vance and Hartfelder, clinging to and clogging the Rockford attack, steadily mounted up a commanding lead.

The Jayhawkers led at the half, 19 to 9, after choking off the Illinois quintet with three field goals. With the opening of the stretch period Zuber, Proudfit, and Schmidt let loose the greatest passing attack seen in a local tournament. Rockford was unable to stem the tide for the simple reason the ball was never stationary and shot from player to player with astonishing speed and percision.

Schmidt Leads Victors.

Schmidt was the hub of the uncanny machine with seven baskets, and Zuber and Proudfit netted six and five, respectively. Behr was Rockford's high scorer with 9 points, but the entire quintet was unable to get going.

Charleston, S. C., which was a favorite, won third place honors in decisive fashion. The southern team held a 17 to 14 advantage at the half and easily outclassed their Michigan opponents in team work. Douglas and G. Weeks were the stars, while John Borgending's sensational long range shooting was the big factor in keeping the Muskegon team from utter rout.

In the semi-final clashes, Gleichman did the brunt of scoring in the victory of the Illinois quintet, and Kansas City's victory revolved around Zuber.

Tourney Sets Record.

Chicago may take a pardonable pride in the triumph of the Jayhawker quintet, as Coach C. W. Corsant is a graduate of the Chicago Y. M. C. A. college.

The tournament, the fifth annual, went over the top with a bang and set a record for attendance and receipts. It was estimated over 20,000 fans paid about $8,000 to see a selected field of forty teams from thirty-one states battle for honors. The entries included championship teams of thirty states. Director Fritz Crissler deserves a world of credit for the success of the meet.

The City and Suburban league colors were borne by their two champions, Tilden and Morton, and by Hyde Park and New Trier. Hyde Park and Morton fell early; Tilden and New Trier crumbled Friday in stabbing for semi-final berths.

The players on the winning five were given a silver basketball, regulation size, and solid gold Elgin watches. Rockford carried away a bronze ball and third and fourth place teams were awarded medals.

All-Star Teams Chosen.

The first national interscholastic basketball team ever selected as the result of a national invitation tournament was chosen by coaches and officials of the tourney. Following are the teams selected:

FIRST TEAM.

Right forward—Proudfit, Kansas City, Kan.
Left forward—Douglas, Charleston, S. C.
Center—Oosterbaan—Muskegon, Mich.
Right guard—Hogan, Osage, Ia.

SECOND TEAM.

Right forward—Schmidt, Kansas City, Kas.
Left forward—Ford-Westport, Kansas City, Mo.
Center—Zuber, Kansas City, Kas.
Right guard—F. Van Matre, Windsor, Colo.
Left guard—Vaskovsky-Tilden, Chicago.

Among the coaches making selection of the teams were: H. O. Peterson, Springville, Utah; J. F. Jacks, Muskegon, Mich.; L. V. Berger, Tilden, Chicago; C. A. Zimmerman, Walla Walla, Wash.; J. R. Perry, Osage, Iowa; J. E. Ryan, Windsor, Colo.; H. E. Jerney, Charleston, S. C.

Following are the lineup:

BRICKIES AND SWEDES BATTLE AGAIN TODAY

Bricklayers and Swedish-Americans, who meet in the second round at Riverview park, will furnish today's main attraction of three Peel cup soccer matches. A month ago on their home field the Bricklayers won, 3 to 2, but played an ineligible man in George Cant and a replay was ordered. In today's other Peel cup games Currie's North Shore team will meet the Young Men's Hebrew institue youngsters at Foster field, Evanston, and the Gary club will play at Harvey.

In the major league schedule Pullman will meet Canadian club at 103d street and Corlies avenue. The Canucks will be reinforced by Hannah, a full back from Aberdeen, Scotland. Olympia will meet the Thistles at 26th and Kostner. Following is the day's complete schedule:

PEEL CUP.

Bricklayers and Swedish-Americans at Riverview park; North Shores and Y. M. H. A. at Evanston; Gary at Harvey.

MAJOR LEAGUE.

Thistles and Olympia at Cermak park; Canadian Club at Pullman.

DISTRICT LEAGUE.

British Legion and [illegible] at Cicero and Roosevelt road; Sparta-Union and Pullman at 27th and Kostner [3 p. m]; Western Electric and Jugo-Slavia at Sherman park; Ulster United and Danish-Americans at 79th and Drexel.

SONS OF ST. GEORGE LEAGUE.

Mistletoe and Ivy-White Rose at 52d and Cottage Grove; Snowdrop and Laburnum at Ogden park.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE.

Sture and Victoria at Potomac and Laramie; Sparta II. and Hungarians at 27th and Kostner [1:30 p. m.]; Swedish-American II. and Norwegian American at Winnemac and Robey; Luxemberger and Young Men's Club at Greenview and Wrightwood; Norwegian II. and Victoria II. at 46th and Fullerton.

All games start at 2:30 unless otherwise noted.

KANSAS U. RELAYS DRAW FIELD OF FANCY SPRINTERS

Lawrence, Kas., April 7.—The special 100 yard dash event of the first annual University of Kansas relays here on April 21 will bring together a classy group of sprinters.

Capt. Harold "Boots" Lever of the University of Pennsylvania team, Ayres of Illinois, and Brookings of Iowa are three stars who will await the starting gun in the century event. In addition there will be the dash stars of the Missouri Valley conference and possibly several from smaller colleges.

Lever holds the world's record for 75 yards at 7 1-10 seconds. His best time for the 100 yards, however, has been :10 flat. Ayres won the 75 yard dash event at the Illinois relays in 7 1-5 seconds and Brookings ran second to him. Noble and Lloyd of Nebraska cleaned up in the indoor dashes in the Missouri valley this season and will make dangerous opponents over the century route this spring.

N. PARK COLLEGE NINE DRILLS FOR BUSY CAMPAIGN

North Park college has begun a busy season of outdoor sports. After working indoors for the last few weeks baseball and track men are now limbering up outside. Prospects look good for a good baseball team. Six veterans are left from last year, and thirty candidates answered Coach Edgren's call. The schedule:

April 21, Lisle college at Lisle, Ill.; April 25, Crane Jr. at Crane; April 28, Wheaton at Wheaton; May 2, Wheaton at North Park [Chicago]; May 5, Elmhurst at North Park [Chicago]; May 9, Lisle at North Park [Chicago]; May 16, Elmhurst at Elmhurst; May 18, Crane at North Park.

Commercial Athletic Association to Meet

The regular meeting of the Chicago Commercial and Industrial Athletic association will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at Hotel Sherman, room 116. The association is composed of several leagues of special industries. There also will be four other leagues organized, one south, one loop, one west and one north, composed of various manufacturers and commercial houses in the respective districts.

NOTES OF THE CUE ROOMS.

Semi-final matches in the Illinois state balkline championship will be staged April 10, section No. 1 playing at Mussey's Jackson boulevard room and section 2 at the new Loyola Recreation room, 1227 Loyola avenue. The two high men in each section will compete in the finals on April 16, in which Bob Campbell, present champion, and James J. Peabody, former champion, will play. Three players in the semi-finals will be from outside points, Decatur, Waukegan, and Lawrenceville. The tournament will be run by Secretary T. B. Wadleigh of the Illinois Billiard association.

DECIDE CAGE TITLES.

Basketball champions in three divisions were determined at West Pullman park last night between quintets of the South End Fans' association. Palmer Park won the 110 pound title by defeating Roseland Presbyterian church, 18 to 11; Darry Juniors took the 130 pound class, trimming the Salacons, 13 to 12, and the Alibis captured the unlimited championship, defeating the Moaners, 19 to 9.

BYLLESBY & CO. WIN TITLE.

The Investment Bankers' Basketball league closed the season Friday, at Lake Shore park with H. M. Byllesby & Co. taking first honors in the play-off after tying with Pearson-Taft Co., with seven games won and two lost.

PEPPERY KANSAS HIGH SCHOOLERS TAKE NATIONAL BASKET TITLE

MICHIGAN RUNS OVER KENTUCKY U., 23 TO 6

Lexington, Ky., April 7.—[Special.]—Michigan overwhelmed Kentucky, 23 to 6, in a weird contest here today. The game was a pitchers' battle until the sixth, when the Wolverines began to solve Gregg's offerings. In the seventh they let loose an avalanche of base hits which, combined with Kentucky misplays, brought in thirteen runs. Score:

Michigan ....100 013 1332—23 21 4
Kentucky ....100 100 301— 6 6 7

Batteries—O'Hara and Blott; Gregg, Stokes, Robertson and Pribble.

ILLINOIS, 6; LOUISIANA, 6

Baton Rouge, La., April 7.—[Special.]—The Illini ended their southern training trip in Dixie with a 6-6 tie with Louisiana State university today, gathering three runs in the eighth on two triples and a single before the game was called so the northern collegians could get a train for home. Illinois played a slow game and ran bases in reckless fashion. Score:

Illinois ....010 010 40—6 10 3
L. S. U...................000 001 23—6 8 5

Batteries—O'Connor, Mohr, and Robinson; Hansen and Babin.

EASY FOR BUCKEYES

Columbus, O., April 7.—[Special.]—Ohio State won its opening prewestern conference baseball game, 8 to 1, from Antioch here this afternoon. The Buckeyes showed great promise in the field and on the bases. Score:

Ohio State ....000 150 11*—8 9 8
Antioch 000 010 000 1 7 13

Batteries—H. Workman, Howells, Miller, and N. Workman, Marts; Treleaven, Miller, and Cox.

IOWA, 8; COE, 0.

Iowa City, Ia., April 7.—[Special.]—Iowa slaughtered Coe, 8 to 0, in the Hawkeyes' second game of the season this afternoon. The battle, because of cold weather, went only seven innings. Duhm, pitching six innings, held Coe helpless. The visitors blew up in the sixth, making four errors. Iowa hit freely and fielded well. Score:

Iowa ....002 006 *—8 9 2
Coe ....000 000 0—0 4 6

Batteries — Duhm, Fabricius and Barrett; Rush, Bishop and Wesnimont.

MISSISSIPPI, 6; WISCONSIN, 4

Oxford, Miss., April 7.—The University of Mississippi made it two straight today by defeating Wisconsin, 6 to 4. Barber, Mississippi center fielder, scored two with a homer. Wisconsin left tonight for Starkville, where it will meet Mississippi Aggies Monday and Tuesday. Score:

Wisconsin 4 6 4
Mississippi 6 11 4

Batteries—W. Johnson and Aschenbaker; E. Johnson and Ramsey.

NOTRE DAME, 6; ST. XAVIER, 4

Cincinnati, O., April 7.—[Special.]—Notre Dame won the final game of their southern trip by walloping St. Xavier college in a ten inning game today, 6 to 4. Vergara's double, followed by another by Belman and a sacrifice fly by Sheehan scored the winning runs. Score:

Notre Dame..................102 001 000 2—6
St. Xavier....................000 011 200 0—4

NOTES OF NATIONAL PREP BASKET MEET

An unknown Louisville lad made the brainiest play. On an "out" play under his own basket and with every team mate covered, he bounced the ball off the back of an Osage, Ia., man and quickly pocketed the ball.

Rockford won the music honors. Its fifty piece red coated, white breeched and leather putteed band scored a big hit.

Kansas City, Kas., averaged 41 1-3 points in its first three games and was the greatest scoring team. It crushed Tilden, 44 to 28.

Schmidt of the Jayhawkers made the greatest number of baskets in a single game. He sank eleven ringers when his team routed Fargo, N. D., 47 to 28.

Morton ran up the second score of the tournament by crushing Bangor, Me., 55 to 19.

Smith of New Trier shot the longest basket, the ball traveling three-fourths of the length of the floor.

Mesa, Ariz., had the biggest team. Mesa averaged close to six feet in height and 175 pounds in weight. It fell before the slight New Trier five, 35 to 25.

Walla Walla, Wash., and Bangor, Me., incurred a round trip of over 10,000 miles. Each quintet played 40 minutes and was eliminated.

The Villa Grove, Ill., five, which defeated Rockford in the final game of the state championship tourney, attended yesterday's games. Villa Grove wished to enter the big meet but was unable to secure permission from the faculty.

Northwestern, Armour Battle Halted by Rain

The Northwestern university-Armour institute baseball game, scheduled yesterday in Evanston, was postponed because of rain.

OPEN TITLE PLAY TODAY IN K. C. BASKET LEAGUE

The annual battle between south and north sides for the championship of the Knights of Columbus basketball league will begin this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Broadway armory with champions and runners-up in each section figuring in the round robin.

Today's schedule has been arranged so that Dowling, south section leader, is pitted against De Soto, north side runner-up, while Columbus, the north section's best this year, takes on Auburn Park, runner-up among the south siders. Hectic batles are expected.

Dowling, the south side's pride, cinched its educational title some time ago and since then has taken things easy, resting up its players for the titular series, while Columbus, king pin on the north side, was unable to establish its sectional supremacy until last Sunday.

EMMANUEL AND DIPLOMATS AT OLYMPIC SESSION

ROME, Italy, April 7.—[Associated Press.]—The first session of the International Olympic committee meeting here to discuss details in connection with holding the games in Paris next year opened today in the historic Palazzo Del Campidoglio in the presence of King Victor Emmanuel. It was attended by delegates from practically all parts of the world. The entire diplomatic corps was present.

Colored Stars May Compete.

PARIS, April 7.—[By the Associated Press.]—Charles H. Sherrill of the American Olympic committee said today he believed it likely that such countries as Algeria and Morocco might be invited to participate in the next Olympic games.

"I see no reason why we should draw the color line," he said. "In fact, some of our best college athletes in American colleges have been colored and there never has been any serious objection to them competing on teams with white men."

Mr. Sherrill is in Paris on the way to Rome to attend a meeting of the International Olympic committee.

BEARS DEFEAT CORNHUSKERS IN EAST-WEST MEET

Berkeley, Cal., April 7.—The University of California won the east-west track meet here today from the University of Nebraska by 75 to 56 points.

Nebraska showed its superiority on the track, taking 45 points to California's 32. On the field, however, the Bears smothered the Cornhuskers, taking 43 points to Nebraska's 11. The Huskers won 7 of 15 points.

The high point men of the meet were Neufeldt and Becker of California, each piling up 9 points. Capt. "Brick" Miller of California added 7 points to his team's total, and Lloyd of Nebraska was high point man for his team with 8 points.

The Bears made a clean sweep in both the shotput and discus.

The time of 1:58 4-10, hung up by Gardner of Nebraska for the 880 yard run, was the fastest time made on the California oval in several years.

WALTON LEAGUE HOLDS NATIONAL CONVENTION HERE

BY BOB BECKER.

Chicago will be the fishing center of the nation on April 19, 20, and 21 when the first national convention of the Izaak Walton League of America will be held in this city. Many nationally known anglers and conservationists will attend this convention as delegates, the various sessions of which are to be held in the Morrison hotel.

Among the speakers announced for the banquet, which will close the convention, are Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, who will discuss the problem of stream pollution; Dr. Henry Van Dyke, Emerson Hough, Zane Gray, James Oliver Curwood, Irvin S. Cobb, and Dr. James A. Henshall.

No Roads in Forest.

Chicago canoeists and fishermen will welcome the announcement that the fight which has been carried on by the Walton league against the building of roads in the Superior National forest of northern Minnesota, has been won. The department of agriculture will not construct highways in this great frontier wilderness, with its wonderful canoe routes. At a recent conference called by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, which was held in Duluth, this matter was settled after a day's discussion, during which both sides of the question were heard. The debate on the project was closed by Will H. Dilg, president of the Izaak Walton league, and when a vote was taken 96 per cent of those attending the conference voted against the road building.

Buy Private Owned Lands.

Before adjourning, the conference passed resolutions urging the government to acquire all privately owned lands within the forest, and the Superior National Forest association was organized, officers elected, money raised and the Walton magazine made the official organ of the association.

A. A. F. Announces Mat Novice Championships

Amateur Athletic feredation novice wrestling championships are announced for April 21, 25 and 28 at Stanford park, Union and 14th place. Competition will be at all weights from 105 pound to heavyweight. Wrestlers who have never won a championship in A. A. F., A. A. U., I. G. U., or park championships are eligible. A. A. U. rules will govern. Entries close with Chairman John Nemec at 218 South Clark street, Wabash 8409, April 17.

SCHOOL SKATERS TO MEET.

Roller skaters of eleven schools will race Wednesday at Stanford park for the championship banners to be awarded to the school winning the greatest number of points at the end of the school year. Garfield, Smyth, Rodger, Foster, Gladstone, St. Procopius, Clark, Providence of God school, St. Joseph, St. Patrick, and Dore schools, standing in this order, will be represented. Each school is limited to ten boys and ten girls. A boys' handball tournament for doubles and singles will be held Thursday afternoon. Medals will be awarded the winners. Director P. H. Leiderman of Stanford park is in charge of both events.

CALUMET COUNCIL WINS 135 POUND TITLE IN A. A. U. BASKET MEET

Calumet council, K. of C., won the 135 pound Central A. A. U. basketball championship tournament last night, defeating Alverno A. A., 14 to 13, in one of the hardest fought games ever staged at Broadway armory. The contest was featured by close guarding of both teams and savage battling for points in the second half.

Calumet had to stage a rally in the second period to win out, after trailing 8 to 5 in half time. Alverno A. A. missed a chance to tie the count in the [illegible] seconds. A foul was called on Groark of Calumet as the final gun was fired, and with all the fans on their feet, the regulation time having expired, Christensen tried the free throw, but the ball rimmed the basket twice and fell out.

Chicago Reds took third place in the tournament by defeating Continental and Commercial National bank, 18 to 16. The Reds had a one point advantage at the half. Waukegan girls nosed out Welles Park girls, 13 to 11, in a third round contest. Miss Bidinger led the scoring for the victors, and Miss Christianson was the whole show for Welles, sinking four baskets and a free toss.

The games drew big crowds during the four days play. The unlimited weight division tournament and the semi-finals and finals of the girls' tourney will be fought out this week. Line-ups of last night's feature games:

NEWMAN HANGS UP NEW ENGLISH BILLIARD RECORD

LONDON, April 7.—Thomas Newman today established what is claimed to be a world's record in the semi-finals of the professional billiard championship of England by scoring three successive breaks of 542, 705, and 850. The break of 850 is described as the highest ever scored in a championship match, the previous best being 785, made by William Smith against C. Falkner in 1920.

NOTES OF THE CUE ROOMS.

Frank Burns, the one armed pocket billiard player, defeated K. Kinzo, the veteran Japanese juggler, 71 to 75, in their pocket match at the Kieckhefer Recreation room last night. Burns will play C. H. McElligott tomorrow night.

A., 14 to 13, in one of the rdest fought games ever staged at adway armory. The contest was tured by close guarding of both ms and savage battling for points the second half.

alumet had to stage a rally in the ond period to win out, after trail- 8 to 5 in half time. Alverno A. A. ssed a chance to tie the count in the [illegible] seconds. A foul was called Groark of Calumet as the final gun s fired, and with all the fans on ir feet, the regulation time having pired, Christensen tried the free [illegible] but the ball rimmed the basket ice and fell out.

Chicago Reds took third place in the rnament by defeating Continental d Commercial National bank, 18 to . The Reds had a one point advan- ge at the half. Waukegan girls nosed t Welles Park girls, 13 to 11, in a ird round contest. Miss Bidinger d the scoring for the victors, and ss Christianson was the whole show r Welles, sinking four baskets and a e toss.

The games drew big crowds during e four days play. The unlimited eight division tournament and the mi-finals and finals of the girls' tour- y will be fought out this week. Line- s of last night's feature games:

NEWMAN HANGS UP NEW ENGLISH BILLIARD RECORD

LONDON, April 7.—Thomas New- nan today established what is claimed o be a world's record in the semi- inals of the professional billiard cham- ionship of England by scoring three uccessive breaks of 542, 705, and 50. The break of 850 is described as he highest ever scored in a champion- hip match, the previous best being 785, made by William Smith against C. Falkner in 1920.

NOTES OF THE CUE ROOMS.

Frank Burns, the one armed pocket billiard pla[illegible]r, defeated K. Kinzo, the veteran Japa- nese juggler, 71 to 75, in their pocket match t the Kieckhefer Recreation room last night. Burns will play C. H. McElligott tomorrow night.

YOUTH DOPED TO GRAB HONORS IN SHORTSTOP JOBS

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

ARTICLE V.

Youth insists upon being served. The old masters who have held the lead among the shortstops for baseball generations have been forced back—and at the top of the dope this year we find two kids—Galloway of the Athletics, the brilliant youngster whose rapid advancement last year was the sensation of the American league, and Caveney, Cincinnati's brilliant youngster, who with one season of experience in the majors, has leaped to the top of the list.

True, in establishing Caveney as the leader, and pushing back Hollacher and Dave Bancroft, conditions and condition have been strong elements.

Bancroft, while he appears in better health, is not the player he was a few years ago. He is highstrung, nervous, and his health has not been good.

Puts Sand on the Skids.

Last year he slipped badly and for two months played wretched ball. He rallied late in the season just in time to save the Giants from defeat, and he played brilliantly in the world's series. This spring he seems heavier and in better condition, but disquieting reports have come from the camp regarding his condition.

Hollacher, who normally would have been the leader in the league, has had tough luck with his health this spring and had to desert training. It is impossible that he should start the season in proper condition and something must be taken from his dope value even though later he may come to his full power.

Rabbit Maranville slips back to fourth place in the National, due to aging and the fact that he slumps badly at spots during every season now.

First Four About Even.

Yet there is little to choose between the first four teams in the National regarding short stops. The difference in their dope values is so small that a run of luck or a slight slump would equalize them.

St. Louis, one of the probable flag contenders, is way down in the list. After Rickey looked over fourteen short stops he fell back on Doc Lavan as the starter, and to get St. Louis' proper value it is necessary to figure a combination of Lavan and Holm, as Doc, although starting in superb condition after a winter in Japan, in all probability will slump and the youngster will get the job.

The others aren't worth much. The youngster Sand, who will start for the Phils, cannot hit the size of his hat and the chances are that in spite of the brilliancy of the youngster in defense, Kaumas will replace him when his hitting weakness is exploited.

Gerber in Second Place.

In the American league Galloway, one of the greatest of the new stars, takes the lead with that magnificent veteran Walter Gerber of the Browns, second and close, up and Scott, admitting that he will be as good as he has been until the last world's series, right behind Gerber. So close are the figures between Scott and Peckinpaugh that they show practically no difference between them.

Scott is not showing so well this spring as to encourage his admirers, while Peck, after a dismal year with Washington, has come to realize his position and this spring is in fine shape and hustling and playing better than he has in three years.

Peck may never get back to where he once was—the head of the list—but he will be better than he has been for two years anyhow. Sewell, in spite of his steady improvement, is not yet up to the standard of those above him, and Detroit is wabbly at short.

Rigney Is Erratic.

In spite of the high claims made by Cobb and his players for Rigney, his dope standing fails to bear them out. To the naked eye he looks erratic in handling ground balls, and while he hit hard last year it is impossible to examine his record and give him credit for doing that well during the coming season. Neither Chicago nor Boston rates up with the league standard in shortstops. The others, however, are remarkably well matched, and the American league is very strong in the short field.

The figures shown, however, never should be taken as comparative between the two leagues, since the difference in the pitching they must face often reduces the figure values of a man. No man is as high in figure standing when hitting against strong pitching as he would be against weak pitching—and the difference in pitchers in the two leagues is great—as we will see when we come to study them.

In the next article we will sum up the infields and see how the sixteen major league clubs compare in that respect.

PIRATES HAND TULSA $30,000 FOR BOEHLER

Tulsa, Okla., April 7.—The Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday paid $30,000 for George Boehler, last year leading pitcher of the Western league, who, single-handed, virtually pitched the Tulsa club to the 1922 pennant. Boehler trained with the Pirates at Hot Springs this game. After Friday's exhibition game the Pirates gave the local club a check for the purchase price. Boehler pitched the game, allowing his old teammates one run and four hits. He is a right-hander.

MARSHALL HIGH TO PLAY B. B. R.

Marshall High's lightweight basketball team, which finished its season in a triangular for the title, has scheduled a formidable opponent, the B. B. R. quintet, in a cage game to be played on the Boys' Brotherhood Republic floor Thursday at 8 p. m. The B. B. R. aggregation, 115 pounders, won the recent Cook county basketball tourney in this weight.

INTERCITY LEAGUE.

The weekly meeting of the Intercity league will be held at 128 West Randolph street tomorrow night and every Monday night throughout the season.

BERNIE FRIBERG.

Young players with the Sox and Cubs who are making good. Friberg, who was with the Bears last year and played outfield and infield, has been made over into a third baseman, and is one of the wonders of the Cub spring trip. Earl Adams is doing good work for the Bears in infield positions, working at second base and shortstop. Mack and the Blankenship boys, Homer and Ted, are White Sox pitchers, and Manager Gleason is counting on this trio to help the team up in the pennant chase.

MARTINS AND SPARROWS.

NEARLY every bird fan that gets interested in this fascinating game of attracting birds to nesting houses is keen to land a colony of martins. And you can't blame anyone for wanting martins, as they certainly are sociable, good looking residents for any plot of ground.

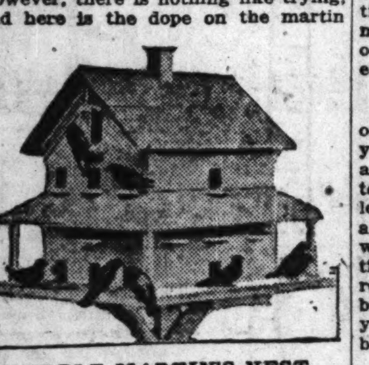
But bagging a colony of these birds is not so easy. Many efforts have been made to establish colonies, some enthusiasts even raising young birds by hand and then liberating them on the ground where the colony is desired. However, there is nothing like trying, and here is the dope on the martin house. It can have any number of rooms. The dimensions of these rooms should be about 6x7 inches, height about 6 inches. The entrance hole should be 2 inches in diameter and about 1 inch above the floor. The completed house (which should be painted white) must be placed on a pole 15 or 20 feet above the ground in an open place—at least not closer than 20 feet to any building.



PURPLE MARTIN'S NEST.

Unless you are mighty handy with tools better not try to build a martin house, as with their many compartments they are rather difficult to make. But if you want to try it you can get a helpful pamphlet from the government which will give you all the dope, including designs for the houses.

This pamphlet is called "Bird Houses and How to Build Them," by Ned Dearborn, and is listed as Farmer's Bulletin No. 609. Address the Bureau of Biological Survey, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for this bulletin. Well made martin houses can be purchased if you do not want to take the trouble to make one. They are not so expensive, either.

English sparrows are the enemies of martins and if you put up a house you want to be prepared to wage war against the former, and let it be a war to the death. The sparrow is nothing less than a curse and the evidence against it as a harmful pest is overwhelming. If you expect to get martins on your ground, go after the sparrows mercilessly. They'll have to be banished. Until the martins arrive you can keep the nesting house closed, but after that it will be up to you.

* *

Practically every device known for waging a war on sparrows is given in a little government publication issued by the Bureau of Biological Survey, Washington, D. C. It is free for the asking and is called Farmer's Bulletin No. 493, "The English Sparrow as a Pest." Better send for it and then get busy on the sparrows if you expect to have much success with the bluebirds, martins or other worthwhile birds.

CUB YANNIGANS TAMED BY TEXAS LEAGUE HURLER

Wichita Falls, Tex., April 7.—[Special.]—Pitcher Darrough of Wichita Falls was an enigma for the Cubs Yannigans here this afternoon, and the Texas league club won, 6 to 2. Darrough refused a hit for more than six innings. Wichita Falls hit Hodges rather hard in the third inning, but during the rest of his régime he pitched good baseball. Stauffer labored the last two rounds. Adams was a star around short and Grigsby looked good in left field. The Cubs scored in the seventh when Weis walked and Barrett and Callaghan slashed twobaggers. Vic Keene will pitch against his old teammates tomorrow. Score:

HEYDLER AND LANDIS CHAT, BUT STAY MUM

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

K. M. Landis, high commissioner of organized baseball, and President John Heydler of the National league held a conference yesterday. No information was given out as to what transpired, but Commissioner Landis characterized it as a "highly agreeable meeting."

President Heydler arrived in Chicago Friday on his way home to New York from the Pacific coast. Commissioner Landis returned to Chicago yesterday from his jaunt around the training camps, and although booked to start east on a noon train, President Heydler waited until yesterday afternoon to meet with the commissioner and then took a late train for home.

Benton Case Expected Topic.

It was expected that the case of "Rube" Benton, Cincinnati pitcher, would be discussed. Landis declared Benton innocent of charges of crooked work and reinstated him to the graces of organized baseball last month after Benton had been transferred from St. Paul to Cincinnati, but in statements given out on the Pacific coast Heydler was quoted as saying Benton was an undesirable and would not be allowed to play, despite Landis' decision.

Neither Commissioner Landis nor President Heydler would affirm or deny that they had discussed the Benton case.

3,000 Cub Tickets Sold.

More than 3,000 tickets for the opening Cub game of the season with the Pittsburgh Pirates on April 17 already have been sold. The tickets can be obtained at Thomas E. Wilson company, Monroe street and Wabash avenue, each day from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., Rube Cook presiding at the box.

Work of painting Comiskey park will be completed by next Saturday, according to present plans. Tickets for the opening game of the Sox and Cleveland April 26 at the south side lot will be placed on sale about a week before the game.

ANDY HIGH OFF TO JOIN ROBINS

St. Louis, Mo., April 7.—Andy High, Brooklyn third sacker, who has been holding out for more money, today departed from his home to join the Dodgers at Fort Worth, Tex. It could not be learned if his demands had been met.

Business Firms Form Loop Baseball League

The Chicago Central Baseball league, composed of amateur teams representing loop business firms, has been organized, with V. C. King president and H. H. Pringle secretary and treasurer. Two franchises are still vacant, and firms wishing to enter teams should communicate with President King at Franklin 0230. The league is divided into two divisions, winners in each to meet in a post-season series for the championship.

Chicago Attorney Gets National League Pass

A sterling silver pass, made in the shape of a baseball, admitting him to any National league baseball park was presented to Attorney Frank J. Hogan by Charles A. Stoneham, president of the New York Giants, yesterday. Mr. Hogan is Judge Stoneham's personal attorney in Chicago.

GRAUMAN AND KENDALL TIE FOR CUE LEAGUE LEAD

With two games each to play, Heine Grauman and Loren Kendall are tied for first place in the race for the William J. Blake trophy, emblematic of the championship of the Chicago Billiard league. The other players are out, as far as the title is concerned. Grauman has yet to play Jacobs and Kendall, while Kendall's other game will be against Jacobs.

By winning two games last week E. H. Towle of the Madison Square room jumped into third place, ahead of Kieckhefer and Kenney, both of whom can tie him.

At the close of the regular schedule the second division men will start play for the Hemmer trophies. The standing:

	W.	L.	H.R.	B.G.
Grauman [47]	18	10	8	43
Kendall [44]	18	10	7	51
Towle [50]	18	12	11	52

McClure [42]	10	19	6	52
Helberg [46]	9	20	7	62
Magnus [46]	8	21	7	64

Tomorrow night Le Gros will play Steffanson at Reading's and Grauman meets Jacobs at Jackson Park.

INTERSTATE CUE RACE

With one or two games not yet reported, but unable to affect the final standing, the race in the National Interstate league is over, leaving Champion John Layton, Robert Cannefax, Tiff Denton, and Otto Reiselt to play off for the Brunswick championship emblem and the salary of $3,000 which goes to the winner.

Owing to the illness of Bob Cannefax, the final series will not start at St. Louis until April 16. Games in Kansas City, New York, and Philadelphia will follow: The final standing in the league is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.
Layton, St. Louis	39	13
Cannefax, New York	37	15
Denton, Kansas City	37	15
Reiselt, Philadelphia	35	15
Jackson, Detroit	32	20
Heal, Toledo	26	26
Maupome, Chicago	25	27
Moore, New York	21	29
Wakefield, Milwaukee	22	30
McCourt, Philadelphia	20	32
Lopez, Cleveland	17	33
Lookabaugh, Pittsburgh	16	34
Hahman, Cleveland	15	33
Gillette, Buffalo	15	37

The prizes to each of the above fourteen players are distributed in this way: Layton, first prize, $2,500; Cannefax and Denton divide the second and third prizes, $2,000 and $1,500, between them; Reiselt, fourth, $1,200 Jackson, fifth, $650; Heal, sixth, $600 Maupome, seventh, $550; Moore, eighth, $500; Wakefield, ninth, $450; McCourt, tenth, $400; Lopez, eleventh, $350; Lookabaugh, twelfth, $300; Hahman, thirteenth, $250; Gillette, fourteenth, $200.

ARMOUR NINE IMPROVES AS BIG YEAR NEARS

Armour institute's baseball nine, after the creditable showing in later innings of its opening game against Wisconsin, is rounding into form for a difficult schedule to the satisfaction of the engineers' athletic leaders. Inclement weather greatly retarded outdoor practice, but another week should find the squad in shape.

Pitching this year will be done by Andre, Ruizck, Van Dyke, Samuels, Eppich, Hanger and Berry, while Sloan and Houlihan are slated for most of the receiving. Walch and Coultrip will handle the initial sack, while Schmacker will be at his old place on the "hot corner."

A wealth of good infield material is available. Cole, Downes, Munday, Joseph and Geiger are included in the list now considered by Coach Walsh. Outfielders of promise are Grimes, Connelly, Schoppe, Viscarillo and Heidman. The schedule:

April 9—Northwestern at Armour.
April 10—Loyola university at Armour.
April 12—De Kalb at De Kalb.
April 13—Bradley Polytech at Peoria.
April 14—Augustana at Rock Island.
April 17—Lake Forest at Armour.
April 19—University of Chicago at Chicago.
April 20—Oberlin at Oberlin, O. [Tentative]
April 21—Toledo at Toledo.
April 24—De Kalb at Armour.
April 28—Western State Normal at Kalamazoo.
May 2—Western State Normal at Armour.
May 4—Toledo at Armour. [Circus day.]
May 7—De Paul at De Paul.
May 8—Chicago at Armour. [Tentative.]
May 15—Lake Forest at Lake Forest.
May 18—Bradley Polytech at Armour.

Central Illinois Towns Form New Baseball League

Decatur, Ill., April 7.—[Special.]—Eight central Illinois towns—Latham, Warrensburg, Niantic, Illiopolis, Mount Pulaski, Elkhart, Maroa and Mechanicsburg—have formed a semipro league and will play a twenty-eight game schedule on Sundays and holidays. Only local talent will be permitted to play on the teams. W. W. Buckley of Warrensburg is president of the new organization, with C. Reeves of Latham secretary and Edward Davis of Niantic treasurer.

ZUNA IS WINNER IN DETROIT A. C. MARATHON RACE

Detroit, Mich., April 7.—[Special.]—Apparently without trace of physical strain from the tremendous grind, his face wreathed in a triumphant smile, Frank T. Zuna of Newark, representing the Millrose A. A. of New York, this afternoon realized his ambition, the winning of the fourth annual Pontiac to Detroit Marathon run held under the auspices of the Detroit Irish-American A. C.

Zuna was after revenge for the 1921 defeat suffered at the hands of Charles L. Mellor, Illinois A. C., Chicago. He got it. His victory was complete. Mellor, three straight times winner of the event and the favorite, finished fourth. Second place went to Arne L. Suominen, Chicago College of Naprapathy, and Frank E. Wendling of Buffalo landed third.

Canadian Is Fourth.

Charles Morton, Hamilton, Ont., Y. M. C. A., finished fifth; Jimmy Dellow, Gladstone A. C., Toronto, sixth; Francis Hughes, Hamilton, Ont., Y. M. C. A., seventh; Victor G. Lance, Saginaw Y. M. C. A., eighth; Percy Wyer, Monarch A. C., Toronto, ninth; Thomas Ellis, Hamilton, tenth.

Mitchell Baker, Sinai Social center, Chicago, said to be the country's oldest marathon contestant, running his farewell race, dropped out after the fifth mile.

For eighteen miles it was a race between Zuna, Mellor, and Ellis. The pace proved too swift for Ellis, however. Mellor, too, was unable to follow the pace set by the Newark man, whose lead was never threatened during the final five miles.

Winner at Boston.

Zuna was once winner of the famous Boston Marathon, and second to Mellor in Detroit in 1921. His time for the twenty-five mile distance today was 2 hours 34 minutes 48 seconds, which is nearly five minutes more than the record for the event held by Mellor.

WOMEN TO NAME ADVISORY BOARD FOR ATHLETICS

Washington, D. C., April 7.—Formation of a commission to act as an advisory and controlling body on athletics for girls and women was decided on today at the closing session of the conference on athletics and physical recreation called by Mrs. Herbert Hoover. The organization, to be composed of women, probably will affiliate later with the National Amateur Athletic Federation of America.

The commission is expected to work out with N. A. A. F. officials a relationship along these lines:

Creation of a joint executive board, composed of men and women, the women members to be appointed by women delegates.

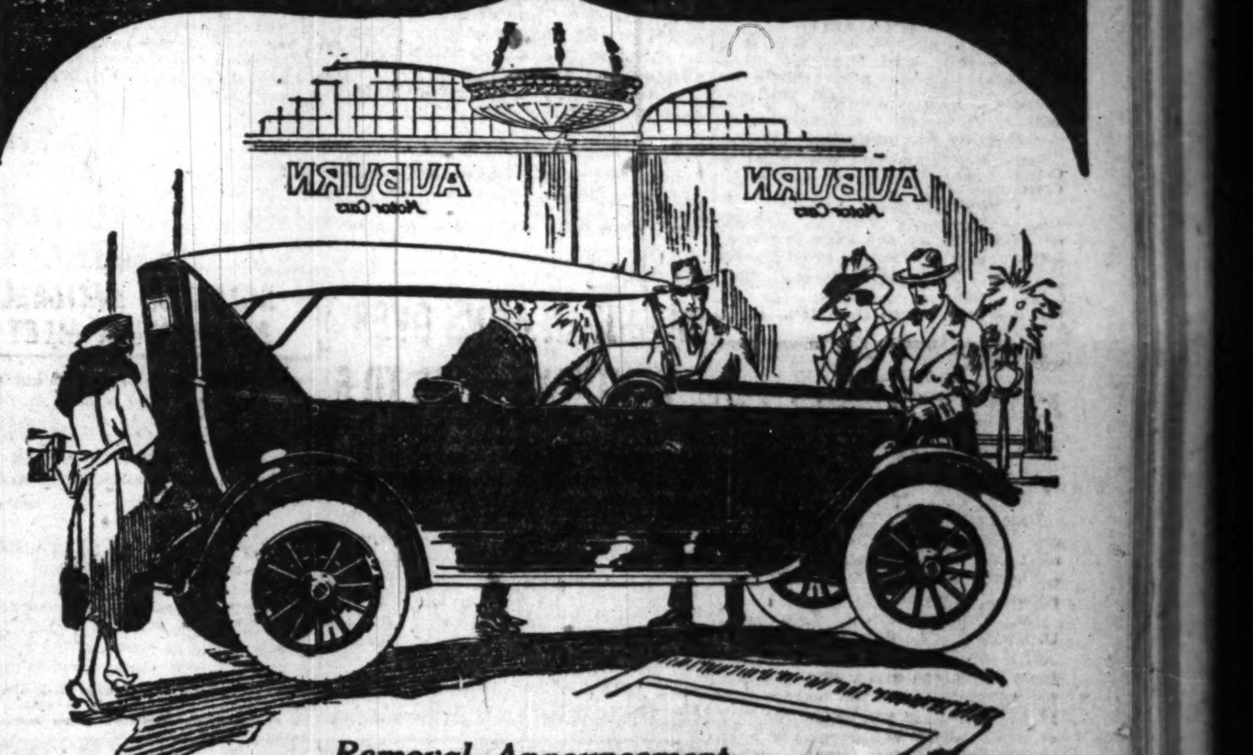
Placing of the athletic and physical problems of girls and women under control of a special organization of women.

Appointment as special executive secretary of a woman authorized to promote and direct the women's program.

Direct control of athletics for girls by women was indorsed by the conference as a means of providing proper chaperonage and control.

The conference declared recent participation of American women and girls in international athletic competition was "inopportune" and a resolution was adopted favoring control of future competitions by the national organization set up by the conference.

AUBURN



Removal Announcement

Big, New Chicago Home

for this fast-selling Six

THE car that made all Chicago sit up and take notice now has a fine, new, three-times-bigger home at

2437-39 S. Michigan Avenue

Too much business for the old quarters—motorists have been coming in bunches for this car that shows something new in pep and life—new standards of value—new ideas of performance!

The six wonderful Auburn models are right at home in the big new salesroom. You can get a real look at them now.

And three floors for our service department! This business has been built on service to the owner—and it's going to continue to grow on service. Owners come first with us. We sell them the best motor car value in America and then we see to it that they get the full benefit of their investment.

This new Auburn home is the very best proof that this car has backed up every claim we've made for it. We've said with all the enthusiasm we could put into our words that the Auburn Car has more pep, more snap, more go! We've said that it has amazing stamina; we've said it has quality in every detail. Prospects came to see; they bought—the business grew, it keeps on growing. All because the Auburn Car proves itself worthy of everything we have said about it.

"ONCE AN OWNER ALWAYS A FRIEND"

CHICAGO AGAIN SITE OF BIG TEN TITLE GOLF PLAY

GOLF IS VOLSTEAD ALLY

BLOOMINGTON, the home town of Sidney Smith, Dick Little, Jim Condon, and other noted residents of Chicago, is to perform the miracle of converting a nineteenth hole into an eighteen hole golf course. The Meyer brewery, built in 1858 by Anthony Meyer, has been unable to prosper under the reduced percentage of alcohol. The brewery will be dismantled and a municipal course constructed on the property. Once more the sword will be turned into a ploughshare.

BY JOE DAVIS.

Following a successful inaugural at the Midlothian Country club last season the second annual western intercollegite golf championship will be staged in Chicago. The dates selected are June 18 to 21, but the course has not been selected.

GEORGE HARTMAN.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Directors of the Big Ten favored Chicago because of its central location and a desire to honor A. A. Stagg, who has been a big factor in promoting conference golf. After this year the event will rotate around the conference cities which have vailable courses.

Maroons Lose Champion.

Burdette E. Ford, who won the title last year, has completed his eligibility and will not be available for the Maroons. Capt. George Hartman, who is playing his last year, will have some strong candidates, these including Herbert Skinner of Hinsdale, "Chuck" Windett, and Edward Keating of last year's team. Others are Clyde Homan, Curtis Woolfolk, Bill Kerr, and Solly Miler.

The championship event will be the same as last year, the team event being at 36 holes medal play, the lowest sixteen scorers qualifying for the individual championship.

Arrange Busy Schedule.

Chicago will have matches with Northwestern, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Purdue, and Minnesota, and play a practice match dith Armour.

A new system of selecting the Chicago varsity team members will be tried, the three players turning in the lowest scores in the first dual meet to be tentatively teamed, in numerical order with their achievements, with Capt, Hartman. The alternate players will be graded in the same manner. Each player has the right to challenge the man above him once a week. The winner advances according to his victories and has the opportunity to place himself in the dual matches. After all the latter have been played the Chicago conference team will be selected.

Budlong Daily Fee Course.

Dr. Francis J. Buss, president of the new Budlong Woods club, states that at a meeting of the board of directors it was decided to discontinue the sale of memberships and make it solely a daily fee course. The rates for play have not yet been decided, other than that there will be different rate for Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. The club may take a few trade association tournaments on week days.

Tom Heneage of the Oak Park Country club has arranged a star four ball match for this afternoon, Willie Hunter, former British amateur champion; Kenneth Durward, official referee of the Royal and Ancient club of St. Andrews; Bill Mehlhorn, formerly assistant professional at the club; and Heneage will make up the quartet.

The Park District Golf club of Highland Park, which sports a fine nine hole course, is planning for an active season. The membership is limited to persons living within the boundaries of the park district and the corporate limits of Highland Park. The charge for nonresident players is $1 for weekdays and $2 for Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays.

President Ambrose J. Krier of the Big Oaks Golf club, located at 6600 Lawrence avenue, reports that the course has wintered well and he hopes an early start will be possible. This club is offering 150 memberships at $100 per season, which with war tax of $10 and locker fee of $5, makes a total of $115. The daily fee charges will be $1 for weekdays and $2 for Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays. The office of the club is located at 1030 Wilson avenue.

The women's Cook county championship has been set for the week of July 30 at Jackson park and the women's city championship will be staged Aug. 30 to Sept. 5 at Marquette park.

Professional Ralph Healy finds the new drainage additions working well at Beverly and predicts an early start.

Frank Hatch has just returned from Pasadena. He played over a number of the Pacific coast courses, and is ready for a home game with O. T. Hinkle, who is back from a six weeks' visit to the Ambassador club at Los Angeles.

The Women's Public Parks Golf Association of Illinois realized a good sum of money yesterday for the state championship tournament fund as a result of the card party held at the La Salle hotel. Mrs. C. Ray Hartman, president of the association, was hostess.

The Women's Western Golf association will hold the spring meeting of the board tomorrow at the Woman's Illinois Athletic club to plan the season's tournament schedule.

North-South Amateur Title Won by Newton

Pinehurst, N. C., April 7.—[Special.]—Frank C. Newton of Brookline, Mass., won the North and South amateur championship title at Pinehurst today, defeating Charles T. Lansing of the Knickerbocker Country club, Tenafly, N. J., 6 and 5, on the thirty-first hole of the thiry-six hole final contest. Lansing was the favorite at the start of the match and was still favorite at the end of the first eighteen holes, although Newton was leading at that time by 1 up.

Vanderbilt Winner Over Tennesseeans on Track

Knoxville, Tenn., April 7.—Vanderbilt university defeated the University of Tennessee, 68 to 63, in a dual track meet here today. The winning of the relay race for five points proved the decisive factor in the victory.

CHATFIELD SHOOT WINNER.

Texarkana, Ark., April 7.—Joe Chatfield of Texarkana won the Arkansas state trapshooting championship today for the fifth consecutive time, breaking 189 targets out of 200. Other scores by shooters not eligible for the title included: Mark Arie, Champaign, Ill., national champion, 194; and Ray Duncan, Lucy, Tenn., professional, 189.

NEW GOLF ELIGIBILITY PLAN FOR U. S. MEET

New York, April 7.—[Associated Press.]—Abolishing a system under which, in effect, the eligibility list for the national amateur golf championship was determined by handicap ratings, the executive committee of the United States Golf association today announced that its 1923 list would be based upon tournament records and personal knowledge of players' ability.

The new requirements were adopted upon the recommendation of the eligibility list committee, of which James D. Standish Jr. of Detroit is chairman.

Why Change Was Made.

The change was made, it was announced, because of the great variation in handicap standards throughout the country and because of a lack of cooperation of a number of sectional associations when handicap lists were requested.

A new method of filing entries for the amateur championship will accommodate players whose names are not included in the original eligibility list, which probably will be published next month. This method is outlined by the U. S. G. A. as follows:

"Any amateur golfer who belongs to a member club of the U. S. G. A. may submit his entry to the eligibility list committee at least three weeks before the opening day of the championship. The ability of all such entrants will be investigated and the player notified of its acceptance or refusal at least one week before the championship."

Aid to New Players.

This system, officials believe, will permit the acceptance of the entries of players whose game during the current season has reached the necessary standard or who may have been omitted from the original list unfairly.

Entries to the amateur championship for players already on the eligibility list will close two weeks before the title event. Entries need not be made through club secretaries, as in the past, but should be sent directly to the U. S. G. A. at its local headquarters. The entry fee of $5 is retained.

OLD CAP SQUIRL.

Old Cap Squirl, my bootlegger friend,
 Who is very heavy with kale,
Recently went on a lovely bend
 And the first I knew was in jail.
Thinking mebbe that he'd be blue
 I took him some hooch sniff,
But I found him happily "smilin' through";
 "I'm away," he explained, "from my wiff."
Old, Cap Squirl said he had no peace
 From the day that he got married;
Each move of his mate only seemed to increase
 His woe; he was hounded and harried.
"She kicked wen I cussed or smoked in bed.
 And she hung my clo'es on a hanger;
She was always fixin' me up," Cap said;
 "She was too daug fussy, gol dang her."
Old Cap Squirl said "she changed her mind
 A dozen times every hour;
"One minute," Cap said, "she'd be mushily kind
 And the next she'd be snarly and sour;
Wen we had chicken she'd gimme the wite;
 She said she could do without it;
She'd eat the dark—which was sure all right
 If she hadn't kept braggin' about it."
Old Cap Squirl for a year is "in";
 I asked him how he got his'n;
"I give myself up," Cap said, with a grin,
 "There's some things that's tougher than prison."

GIVE PLUS RATING TO MISS STIRLING IN GOLF HANDICAP

New York, April 7.—[United Press.]—winning of the national golf title thrice by Miss Alexa Stirling, against ence for Miss Marion Hollins, proved sufficient to give the former plus 1 rating this year, against scratch for the latter, in the annual handicap list of the Women's Metropolitan association, issued tonight.

Last year there was no one above scratch, and the same held good in the 1922 men's metropolitan list, which last week jumped Jess Sweetser, national champion, to the coveted niche. Miss Hollis is alone at scratch this spring, her partner last time, Mrs. William Gavin, having returned to England to live.

STANFORD WATERDOGS BEAT C. A. A., 9 TO 7

Leland Stanford University of California won second place in the national A. A. U. water polo championship tournament at the Illinois A. C. by defeating Chicago A. A. in the play-off, 9 to 7. I. A. C. won the title by defeating Stanford last Thursday night, after the tri-color club had beaten the C. A. A. in the preliminary contest.

The Stanford-C. A. A. game was one of the best ever seen in the I. A. C. pool, the playing going into an overtime period.

The score was tied at 4 to 4 at half time, and was 7 to 5 in the Cherry Circle's favor, with one minute to play, when Stanford spurted and tied. In the extra period the collegians counted twice for victory, holding C. A. A. scoreless. Stanford's team has departed for home.

MADDEN-MAGIN TRAIL IN PARIS SIX DAY RACE

PARIS, April 17.—Egg and Van Kemjen, the Swiss-Dutch team, have a comfortable point lead in Paris' annual six day bicycle race, which ends at 11 o'clock tomorrow night. Aerts and Beyl, the Franco-Belgian pair, are second; Sergent and Pagnoul third, and the all-Australian team of Grenda and McNamara fourth. The cyclists are far behind the record for this stage of the race and all the teams are bunched excepting Georga and Texier, who are one lap behind, and Madden and Magin, the all-American team, who are trailling and last on points.

MESSENGER BOYS SPEND OFF TIME IN GYMNASIUM

BY THOMAS WREN.

"Amateur athletic activities conducted along the lines advocated by THE TRIBUNE is one of the fundamental factors we have for increasing the efficiency and maintaining the morale of the messenger service," declared Harry Lindstrom, manager of the delivery service of the Western Union Telegraph company.

To stimulate athletic activities among messenger boys, the telegraph company has installed a new gymnasium in its building at 427 South La Salle street. The gymnasium is equipped with all modern athletic apparatus. Before and after working hours the boys are allowed the use of the gym. For special events time is found between working hours for the boys to practice. In connection with the gym there is a battery of shower baths.

Interest Boys in Clean Sport.

"The new gymnasium was designed to keep the minds of the boys occupied with clean, wholesome sports," said Mr. Lindstrom. "There are approximately 800 boys employed in the messenger service. They have taken to the gym like ducks to a mill pond.

"At present the boys plays basketball, exercise on the parallel bars, box, wrestle, practice sprint running and setting up exercises. Later we intend to enlarge the scope of athletics among them.

To Organize Ball League.

"This summer we expect to start a baseball league of teams representing the branch offices. If possible, we will stage an athletic field day in the warm weather, in which the boys will be given an opportunity of competing with each other for first honors.

"To top off our athletic program, we have engaged the services of Edward Machle, a West Point graduate, to instruct the boys on proper carriage and enough of military lore to make them stand and walk correctly."

That the new system for increasing the efficiency of the messenger service has proved a success is indicated by the constant and large attendance of the messenger boys in the new gymnasium.

Texas Golf Tourney to Carlton as Cochran Slips

Galveston, Tex., April 7.—O. S. "Ossie" Carlton of Houston won the seventeenth annual championship tournament of the Texas Golf association from Tom Cochran of Wichita Falls this afternoon, 3 and 2. Cochran's playing was off color this afternoon as compared with his brilliant performance this morning, when he lost the round, 1 up.

Winchester Clubs to Hold Convention Here in June

The third annual convention of the National association of Winchester clubs will be held in the Coliseum, June 25 to 28. One thousand hardware and sporting goods dealers attended the first convention and 1,500 the second, both of which were held in New Haven. It is expected that 3,000 Winchester agents will attend the convention in this city.

West secured eight tricks only.

South advertised a strong hand by bidding two hearts on the opening round. Since east had doubled the no trump bid the bid of two hearts was overbidding an opponent instead of taking his partner out on account of weakness.

Therefore north was horrified when he led the ace of hearts and saw the frightful display in dummy. At this stage of the game it seemed that the declarer would probably make his contract and one trick over, making a very expensive deal for north and south; there was no possible way for north to throw the lead to his partner unless south held the king of clubs solace, and north therefore led a small club, although there were eleven clubs in sight in his hand and dummy.

It was reasonably certain that west could not hold both the missing clubs, as in that case he would allow his partner's double of three clubs to stand. The scheme worked all right and north secured his ruff and took the ace of diamonds to complete his book. There remained one slight chance that south might secure a trick in the trump suit and this also turned out favorably, giving north and south a gain of 200 on the deal instead of an enormous loss.

The bidding of south and west, particularly the former, was very poor.

The next deal belongs to the highest class, the play by the declarer being flawless while one of the opponents missed a play which might have been one of the greatest ever made.

West secured eleven tricks.

The lead of the deuce of spades showed an original holding of eight spades in the south hand, and the next two tricks marked south for three red cards only. It seemed to the declarer that these red cards would probably all be hearts as he knew south must have some high card strength outside the spade suit, but the declarer took one round of diamonds in order to play safe, and when the queen of hearts fell on his ace at trick five he knew he was on the right track.

Having the lead forced upon him at trick six north had nothing but spades in his hand and made the obvious play of leading the king and another. From this time the declarer had a sure thing, the remainder of the deal being a regular dummy problem.

By playing out all his remaining trumps he forced north to either throw away all his remaining hearts or to unguard the queen of diamonds so that the declarer could win the last two tricks either with two diamonds or the deuce of hearts and one diamond.

For the benefit of players who find it difficult to keep track of the cards it might be stated that in a case like this the declarer made a mental note that north held the jack and ten of hearts only, the rest of his cards being diamonds after the sixth trick.

During the rest of the deal, therefore, the declarer merely watched for the jack and ten of hearts and did not concern himself at all about the number of diamonds discarded by north. This play by the declarer was first class, but south had an opportunity at trick 7 for a really wonderful play but failed to arise to the occasion.

He should have led a small spade at trick 7 and allowed dummy to win with a singleton queen, thereby, of course, losing his king of spades. Had he done this north would inevitably have won a trick in hearts and one in diamonds, and saved the game.

South could really not have lost by making this play as the trick made by the king of spades must certainly be lost, allowing the declarer to discard from one hand and trump in the other.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Dear Sir: Will you please tell me the proper bid for the following bridge hand: N. dealt, bid 1 heart, E. passed, S. passed, west had D—A, K, Q, J, 8, 7, 4; S—K, Q, 8, 7, 6, 4. West bid 3 D and made small slam, but was told afterwards S. was correct bid.
A. L.G.

Answer—The proper method of bidding two suit hands is to name the higher suit first and switch to the lower. As game at diamonds seems a certainty at this deal, which is a freak, west would seem to have been warranted in dispensing with ordinary rules and bidding five diamonds, securing the honor count as well as the game.

Rickard Denies Story of Gibbons-Renault Match

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—The report that Tom Gibbons and Jack Renault had been matched to meet here some time in May was a little premature. At least, Tex Rickard denied it Friday. Of course, Gibbons is eager to get a crack at the Canadian, inasmuch as the New York boxing commission decreed the other day that, if Gibbons could stow the Canadian away, it would consider him first among the candidates to fight Jack Dempsey.

LASKER STEPS INTO CHESS LEAD IN TITLE SERIES

BY WALLACE ABBEY.

In the fastest and most closely contested match of the series, Edward Lasker, Chicago challenger, last night forged a notch ahead in the race for the chess championship of the United States by defeating Frank J. Marshall of New York, in the sixth game at the end of the twenty-ninth move. The score now stands 3½ to 2½, in Lasker's favor.

Lasker, profiting by his mistakes in the two previous matches here, began to display his aggressiveness on the sixteenth move, when his queen took Marshall's rook's pawn. On his seventeenth move Marshall allowed his knight to grab the Chicogoan's pawn, Lasker responding with a similarly unexpected move.

After the seventeenth move the titleholder was thrown completely on the defensive, and never was able to gain an advantage of Lasker. The match by moves:

"Value of Fine Clothes"

THE crawfish may go backward, but man must go forward.

How foolish to waste today dreaming of yesterday's lost opportunities. The fields of four leaf clover are always just ahead.

Avoid the ruts of commonplaceness—dress your best. Stand on tiptoe, elevate your chin, and look Progress squarely in the face.

Self-respect, like charity, should begin at home. Good clothes indicate that you consider yourself of some consequence—and inspire confidence in others.

By raising the standard of the clothing industry we've made it possible for you to wear the finest clothes in America. They're heart and soul clothes, for you red-blooded fellows who are flirting with Success.

And yet in creating these finer clothes, we have not overlooked the importance of maintaining a fair and consistent price-level. You will realize this in the fullest measure when you see our suits at $85—the ultimate in fine tailoring. Indeed, you can buy a beautiful Capper & Capper suit at $60, and even as low as $50.

To the man who aims to go forward—not crawfish backward—there's a very definite value in wearing these finer Capper & Capper clothes.

TRIBUNE A. A. TO HOLD BIKE DERBY MEMORIAL DAY

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

JULIAN D.

Following its custom to stimulate interest in amateur athletics among the rising generation, announcement is made today by the Tribune Athletic association that its second annual bicycle Derby will be held in one of the west side parks on Memorial day, May 30. Full details of the event will be announced later, but the date is made public so that all who care to enter may start training not only for races for the leading amateurs but also for those to be staged for boys and girls.

Last year the bike derby was held on Labor day and was a huge success. The event was staged on short notice, but this year the riders will have nearly two months in which to prepare for a derby which is expected to compare favorably with any of its kind ever held in the middle west. The program will be so compiled as to include races for all who care to match their skill with others in actual competition.

Move Race Forward.

In moving the bike races forward from fall to spring the Tribune Athletic association will now stage open tourneys during each season of the year. The silver skates derbies, one of the leading ice classics of the country, are held every winter. Every effort will be made to stage another amateur boxing tourney next winter. These will be followed by the bike derby in the spring.

The water carnival featured by eight oared crew races, fours and doubles will be held each summer. Swimming races between some of the world's greatest experts will be held in conjunction with the crew events, while exhibitions of fancy diving and aquaplaning will be part of the program, not to mention novelty events. Last year this event was held in the Lincoln park lagoon and efforts will be made to stage it in the same place this summer.

In the fall, the Tribune A. A. will conduct a real cross country run over a course to be laid out in Humboldt park. Unlike most runs of this sort, the event will be made a real old fashioned race in that contestants will be compelled to jump obstacles, wade through creeks and cover parts of the course in anything but easy going.

A Yearly Program.

With such a yearly program, the growing youth will have events of various kinds to look forward to each season. They can bide their time as to starting training and some may compete in more than one tourney. Competition results in the development of champions and unless the athletes are given encouragement by such events as staged by the Tribune A. A. there is little incentive for them to train.

A sanction to hold the bike derby has been granted by Julian T. Fitzgerald, western representative of the Amateur Bicycle League of America. Fitzgerald and other well known men who have been connected with bicycle racing for years will be asked to act in the capacity of officials.

John A. Pelka, secretary of the west Chicago park commissioners, will cooperate with officials of the Tribune A. A., in laying out the course, while Capt. Gus. Thoma of the west parks police can be depended upon to furnish protection for contestants and spectators in his usual high class manner. In fact, all connected with bicycle racing will put their shoulders to the wheel to make the event successful.

Bikes Back in Favor.

In the last few years, bicycle racing has come back in favor. This was shown conclusively last winter when the two big six day bicycle races at the Coliseum drew capacity crowds. The events held in Newark for amateurs and professionals draw large crowds, as do those held in New York, Boston, and Pittsburgh.

The sports loving fan appreciates the human effort. For a time motorcycle and automobile racing forced the bicycle into the discard. The athletically inclined people, however, soon realized that it was a question of the stability of the motorcycle or auto which determined the winner, and not so much the pilot.

Bike racing depends upon human effort. Efficiency can only be accomplished through strenuous training the same as in any other branch of athletic endeavor in which the muscles are depended upon for results. A successful racer must be an excellent judge of pace and know how to conserve his energy. In each succeeding race he will gain the experience which will eventually fit him to compete successfully with the leading amateurs or jump into the professional class.

All Start as Amateurs.

Ernest Kockler and Carl Stockholm, Chicago products who have made such good showings in recent six day grinds, learned to race in amateur events promoted by local clubs. Bobby Walthour, one of the sensations of the last six day bike race in Chicago, was riding in amateur ranks until he gained the necessary experience to compete with the pros for the desired results. The same is true of most of the professionals who got their start by taking part in races such as those to be conducted by the Tribune A. A. on Memorial day.

Standard Tribune A. A. medals will be given winners of the first three places in each event, and if enough team entries are received a trophy will be awarded to the club whose representatives score the greatest number of points. Details of the event will be announced from time to time in the columns of THE TRIBUNE.

NEW AMATEUR CHAMPS DUE IN U. S. RING MEET

Boston, Mass., April 7.—A new crop of national amateur boxing champions seems assured from the fact that none of last year's winners is in the 100 odd entries to date for the title tournament to be held here on Monday and Tuesday.

Eleven states and the Canadian provinces of Ontario and Quebec are represented in the entries for the eight classes already received at the Boston Athletic association.

NO INTERVENING BOUT FOR N. Y. PRINCIPALS

New York, April 7.—All boxers matched for the milk fund benefit at the new Yankee stadium on May 12 were ordered today to refrain from engaging in any more bouts before that date. The order was signed by William Muldoon, chairman of the New York Athletic commission.

The ruling will affect a proposed bout between Floyd Johnson and Fred Fulton at the Jersey City arena April 16, as Johnson is matched to meet Jess Willard in a fifteen round bout at the milk fund show. The order also applies to Luis Angel Firpo and Jack McAuliffe, who are also scheduled to go fifteen rounds at the benefit.

Displeased at Michigan Bout.

Chairman Muldoon further ruled that all four boxers must establish training quarters in the city by next Thursday, three weeks before the matches. He said his action was prompted by last week's bout at Grand Rapids, Mich., when Johnson met a boxer named Lohman and newspapermen called the match a draw, or else give Lohman a shade.

Muldoon pointed out that Johnson and Willard are each to receive $25,000 for their services at the benefit and that incidents such as the one at Grand Rapids, might have an adverse effect upon the drawing power of the match.

Bay State Body Also Active.

Boston, Mass., April 7.—[Special.]—The Massachusetts Boxing commission today notified Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight, through his manager, that unless he agrees within forty-eight hours to live up to his contract to fight Fred Fulton at Boston, April 16, he will be suspended indefinitely, which may bar him from fighting Jess Willard in New York on May 12.

Fulton and Johnson signed to meet at Boston, according to the complaint filed today with the commission, but when their managers received an offer of considerably more money for the bout at Newark, N. J., it was announced the match would be staged in the latter place.

Willard to Go East.

Excelsior Springs, Mo., April 7.—Jess Willard today began his last two weeks of training here before he breaks camp to go to New York, where he will meet Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight, in the Stadium, May 12. Willard will break up his health resort training camp here April 21 and complete the final three weeks of training in New York, to give the New York boxing commission a chance to look him over.

GOULD RETAINS COURT TITLE FOR FIFTEENTH TIME

Boston, Mass., April 7.—Ja yGould of Philadelphia, for fifteen years the country's best court tennis player, won the national championship of that game again today, defeating C. Suydam Cutting of New York, in straight sets, 6—2, 6—5, 6—2.

The game was one of scoring principally in openings, with few points gained from play on the floor. Cutting's brilliant gets featured, but the champion proved the same master of maneuver, his position play proving the decisive factor.

In the second set, Cutting had Gould 4—3, and the champion pulled out the set with effort, almost every game going to deuce advantage. The match took an hour and a half to play.

COAST NET STAR TO PLAY IN EAST

Los Angeles, Cal., April 7.—Harvey Snodgrass, southern California tennis singles champion and recent victor over Clarence J. Griffin, Robert Kinsey and William M. Johnson, will make his first bid for national fame this summer with a two months' campaign on eastern courts as a representative of the Southern California Tennis association.

Leonard's Manager Denies Any Match with Freedman

New York, April 7.—Billy Gibson, manager of Bennie Leonard, lightweight champion of the world, denied last night he has agreed to a titular match with Sailor Freedman of Chicago on July 2.

HINES, PURPLE'S STAR MAT MAN LEARNED THE GAME RASSLING STEERS

BRYAN HINES, star of the first magnitude in the Northwestern university galaxy of wrestlers, winner of a dozen matches, was asked last night where and how he had acquired his skill.

"On my father's farm at Garden City, Kas., wrestling with steers," replied Hines.

"There is no better training in the world than to have a rangy steer for a wrestling partner. After a man has succeeded in getting a scissors or half-Nelson on a 2 year old, he is set for the genus homo."

"There's more than one way of throwing the bull."

Yale Indoor Polo Team Wins Thirteenth Game

New Haven, Conn., April 7.—The Yale indoor polo team closed its indoor season here today, defeating the Riding club of New York, 11½ to 4. This was Yale's thirteenth straight victory.

PROMOTERS EYE CHARLIE WHITE IN BOUT TOMORROW

Charlie White, local lightweight who meets Johnny Williams of Brooklyn in the windup of the boxing show at Ashland Boulevard auditorium tomorrow night, must win decisively to secure matches which will eventually result in a contest with Bennie Leonard for the lightweight championship.

Frank Flournoy, who makes many matches for Tex Rickard at Madison Square Garden, New York, was in Chicago yesterday and watched White go through the final stages of training for tomorrow night's bout. After the workout Flournoy held a conference with White and asserted he would use the local lightweight in the east on May 3 providing he is returned the popular winner over his opponent tomorrow night. Flournoy would not say who Charlie's opponent will be, but intimated it might be Rocky Kansas or Lew Tendler. The matchmaker is on his way from his home in Memphis to New York.

White Near to Weight.

White boxed eight rounds aside from the usual gymnasium work. After his workout he scaled a trifle over 136 pounds, the weight he must make at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. He will indulge in gymnasium exercise today and then dry out until weighing in time.

Williams completed strenuous preparation at the Arcade, where he boxed eight rounds with three different sparring partners. He appears to be in superb condition and Manager Joe Sullivan expects him to give White at battle from bell to bell. He is well under the weight and welcomes the opportunity to box in Chicago.

Joe Jawson, Milwaukee lightweight, who will meet Joe O'Hara of Fort Dodge, Ia., in one of the other ten rounders, arrived in Chicago and worked at the Arcade. Eddie Coulon of New Orleans, who will meet Harold Smith of the stockyards in another bout of ten rounds, tapered off work under the watchful eye of Eddie McGoorty, who will handle him during the contest. Smith completed preparation at Ferretti's.

Tickets are on sale at the usual places and popular prices of $2, $3, and $5 will prevail.

Kane Home With Bout.

Eddie Kane, manager of Tom Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight, returned from Milwaukee, where he accepted terms for Tom to meet Jack Dempsey at Shelby, Mont., on July 4. According to Kane, the promoters have granted every request made by Jack Kearns, the champion's manager. Dempsey will be given $50,000 the moment he signs articles and the remaining $150,000 of the guarantee after the bout.

Three ten round bouts will feature the boxing show to be held at Dexter park pavilion on April 23 under the auspices of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines post of the American Legion. Patsy Flannigan of St. Louis and Joey Sangor of Milwaukee will meet in one of the bouts at 123 pounds. Bud Taylor of Terre Haute and Eddie Anderson of Moline will clash in another at 118 pounds, while Sammy Mandell of Rockford and Johnny Lisee of New York will be the principals in the other. They will scale 126 pounds. There is a possibility Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, will appear on the same card.

William Sailor, a member of the Minnesota boxing commission, passed through Chicago on his way from New York where he held a conference with William Muldoon, head of the New York boxing commission. According to Commissioner Sailor, a Dempsey-Gibbons match is a certainty for New York in July. He also stated Muldoon on behalf of the commission will recognize Jock Malone of St. Paul as the middleweight champion. Sailor was impressed with Muldoon, who he claims is the victim of certain elements in New York city who want to control the boxing game.

Jim Mullen, president of the Chicago chapter of the National Sports alliance, will leave on Tuesday for New York to attend a meeting of the national body and sign up boxers for future shows.

TOPS ALL EVENTS

WILLIAM J. KNOX.
[Guttenstein Photo.]

This Philadelphia bowler established a world's record when he took the lead in the all-events at the A. B. C. tournament in Milwaukee. His total of pins for nine games was 2,019. In the team event his count was 618, in the doubles 686, and singles 715. Knox was ill when his team reached Milwaukee, but when it was discovered no substitute was available he went on and right away started shooting in championship form.

GARDINI LIKELY ZBYSZKO FOE IN APRIL 23 GO

Officials of the Midwest A. C. will stage another important wrestling show at the Coliseum on April 23 with Ed "Strangler" Lewis, Renato Gardini or Stanislaus Zbyszko, principals in the main event. Indications, however, point to a finish struggle between the Italian and Pole, as the promoters are not anxious to put on another Gardini-Lewis match unless the champion agrees to bar the headlock.

A short time ago, Gardini defeated Zbyszko in a handicap match. Since that time, the Italian has been convinced he can toss the Pole in a best two in three fall encounter. If public sentiment demands, this match will be staged, as Lewis is not willing to meet Zbyszko for the championship again this season.

Zbyszko is willing to meet either Lewis or Gardini and it is almost certain the Italian and Pole will be matched within a few days to grapple to a finish in the main event, which will be supported by two or three other contests.

Offering the Greatest Values Chicago has Ever Known

INDOOR NET TITLE WON BY RICHARDS IN STRAIGHT SETS

New York, April 7.—Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., today won the national indoor singles tennis championship, defeating Francis T. Hunter, 1922 champion, 6—1, 6—3, 7—5, at the Seventh Regiment armory. The victory gave Richards his third national title and a second leg on the indoor singles trophy.

With Hunter as his partner, Richards won the indoor doubles championship yesterday, and with William T. Tilden he holds the turf court doubles title. His last indoor triumph was scored in 1919.

Keeps Hunter on Defensive.

Except for a brief spurt by Hunter in the third, Richards dominated today's match, forcing his opponent to the defensive with his brilliant volleying and spectacular forcing shots. Hunter appeared badly off form, particularly in the first two sets. He found the net repeatedly and displayed unusual weakness in his service, making nine double faults during the match.

With the title slipping from his grasp, Hunter made a determined stand in the last set. He took the first two games with a spectacular driving attack and forced six of the remaining games to deuce, but Richards, spurred to greater heights, rallied to take the last three games after Hunter had led, at 4—3 and 5—4.

Irritated by Decision.

With the count deuced in the final game, Hunter showed his irritation when a service of Richards' close to the center line, that appeared out by a scant margin, was declared good. With but a point separating him from victory, Richards served another ace to the extreme alley line. Hunter made no try for it.

JACK JOHNSON SIGNS FOR BOUT

Milwaukee, Wis., April 7.—Farmer Lodge and Jack Johnson were signed today to meet in a twenty round decision bout at Havana, Cuba, on May 5, according to an announcement by Mike Collins, Lodge's manager.

REAL TIGER TO BE GRID MASCOT FOR PRINCETON TIGERS

PRINCETON, N. J., April 7.—The "Tigers" are to have a real tiger for a mascot. In the future when the Yale bulldog invades the Princeton jungle for football games a native of a real jungle probably will be on the other sideline. Word came by cable today that J. F. Howard, a Princeton graduate, had captured a tiger in India and was sending it to the university.

DATES ARE SET FOR EUROPEAN DAVIS CUP PLAY

LONDON, April 7.—Dates for the competition in the European group of the Davis cup matches have been fixed by the committee here acting on behalf of the international lawn tennis federation. The dates for the completion of the various rounds will be as follows:

First round by June 5; second round by June 19; semi-final round by July 17, and the final in Europe by July 24.

This will enable the winners to go to the United States to meet the American winning group on Aug. 16, 17, and 18.

CRIQUI OFF FOR TRAINING CAMP ON LONG ISLAND

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—Eugene Criqui, European featherweight champion, left New York today for his training camp at Manhassett, L. I., where he will condition himself for his prospective bout with Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland on the Polo Grounds next June 2. For the first few days the French champion will content himself with long walks in the country. His training sparring partners and chef are expected to arrive here about April 15. Real work will begin the following day.

HENRY, CARTER LINCOLN PARK SHOOT WINNERS

H. B. Henry and F. R. Carter were the trophy winners in the 50 "bird" added target handicap event at the Lincoln park traps yesterday. With their handicaps, Henry turned in a mark of 50 and Carter had 49. They took the trophies after shootoffs with several other gunners. The Lincoln park diamond trophy team will shoot a challenging team this morning at 10 o'clock. The event calls for 100 targets per shooter. Yesterday's leading scores:

50 TARGETS—ADDED TARGET HANDICAP—F. A. Moncravie, 49; F. G. Bills [Pro.], 49; H. G. Kirkwood, 48; C. G. Jewett, 48; Deane Bergen, 47; H. B. Henry, 47; F. R. Carter, 47; W. M. Johnson, 47; C. O. Armes, 47; C. G. McGary, 45; J. A. Groves, 45; F. C. Letts, 45; E. C. Buchan, 44; Jack Smith, 44; H. M. Rowley, 43; J. A. Pope, 43; C. M. Brady, 41; J. B. Robbins, 41; W. S. Nicholson, 38; W. L. ASSAULT CHARGE FILED AGAINST BATTLING SIKI

PARIS, April 7.—Battling Siki was called to the police station of the Montmarte district today to give his version of the rough and tumbel fight in which he participated at the Rat Mort restaurant on the night of his return from Ireland. Siki's explanation that he was ridiculed and insulted by the diners, apparently failed to make a favorable impression with the police, as a formal charge of assault and battery was preferred against him.

Firpo's Mate Scores K. O. Over Tom M'Kiernon

New York, April 7.—Carlos Scaglia, light heavyweight boxing champion of South America and sparring partner of Luis Angel Firpo, won a technical knockout tonight over Tom McKiernon, the referee ending the fight in the fifth round after both of McKiernon's eyes were closed.

Rickenbacker
A CAR WORTHY OF ITS NAME

Must Be a Wonderfully Good Automobile to Make This Record

We celebrated our first Rickenbacker anniversary last Tuesday, April 3rd.

In that twelve months the factory has shipped us over 700 Rickenbacker cars—and they have our orders for as many as they can ship this spring.

That's a record that challenges comparison by sales of any other car of similar class.

We use the term "Similar" advisedly, for we know of no other car that can compare in quality, performance, beauty and price with this.

Rickenbacker Six has created a distinct place of its own in the esteem of that discriminating class of buyers who know and demand the best in performance and at the same time insist on full value for the money.

Perhaps our salesmanship, our service—and particularly our code of business ethics—has been partly responsible for this splendid achievement.

We like to think so.

But—the product itself must be wonderfully well made, give wonderful service and satisfaction, to have achieved such popularity in so short a time.

Every Rickenbacker owner is an ardent salesman—every car sold sells two more.

The only way to be sure that you will be of the elect who will drive Rickenbackers the coming season is to order at once.

Today won't be a minute too soon.

Spring Launches New Campaign to Beautify Roads

School Children Lead State in Big Improvement.

BY E. E. PIERSON.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., April 7.—[Special.]—Efforts along the lines of beautification of the right of way on each side of the new concrete boulevards in Illinois are commencing to bear fruit. Women's clubs in many counties are discussing a plan of action. School children are being interested, and in some instances the Boy Scouts.

Planting of trees, shrubs, and flowers is favored, and the removal of dead trees, rubbish, billboards, and other unsightly objects suggested. In connection with this proposed improvement it is desired to preserve the attractive views; to avoid any planting of trees or shrubs that might introduce an element of danger by obscuring portions of the road ahead; to promote the natural appearance by avoiding rows or geometrical arrangement, and to use largely such shrubs and trees as are indigenous to Illinois; and, finally, to utilize as much as possible of existing growth along the roadside and adjacent land.

While many counties are discussing a course of action, Kane is the first to act. The Kane County Plant a Tree association has engaged a landscape artist of Chicago to submit a plan for treatment of the Fox River trail a distance of thirty miles along the picturesque stream, extending from Algonquin to Montgomery. In conformity with his recommendations an army of 19,000 school children of Kane county will be mobilized on Friday and Saturday, April 27 and 28, and they will plant the trees, flowers, and shrubs along the entire highway, each mile to be taken care of by about 600, thus dividing up the work so that it can all be completed in the two days.

The ideas and suggestions of the architect as given for the Fox River trail can be applied to all other boulevards of the state. At one point of the road between Algonquin and Carpentersville he favors the planting of burr oak, white oak, and ash trees to conform with a valley with running stream which extends into woods. In a few years the additional trees on each side of the road will give it the appearance of going through the woods.

At another point he suggests sugar maple and wild crabapple trees, together with bushes of Indian currants, elderberries, roses, dogwoods, aromatic sumach, Virginia creeper, and junipers. At another point, marked by a ravine, he recommended the planting of hawthorns, bittersweet, and viburnums to develop a wooded hillside. Unsightly fences can be covered with thornapples, while bare slopes can be made beautiful with prairie roses, elderberries, sweet briar, hawthorns, wild plums, red branched dogwoods, and Carolina roses. Wild grapes and other vines can be planted effectively along the fences. At other points he suggests honey locusts, barberries, and snowberries.

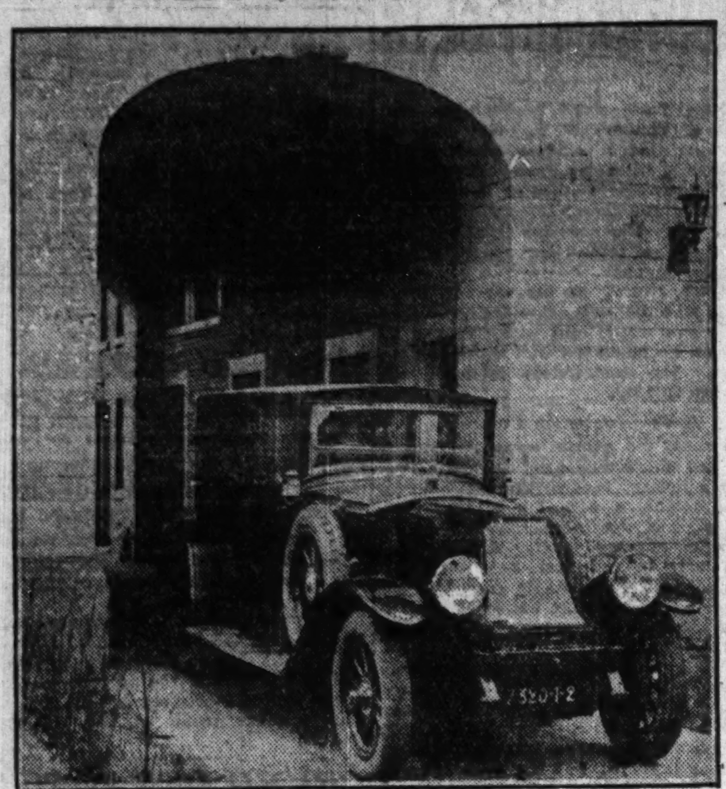
At suitable points rows of elm and oak trees should be planted 200 to 300 feet apart. At other places, where the road is straight, rows of hackberry bushes make an effective border. There can be made an endless variety of landscaping with groups of lindens, maples, ash, honey locusts, Kentucky coffee trees, and wild cherries. Rows of vines and shrubs can be placed artistically and accentuate the beauty of the countryside. Thickets of prickly ash, locust seedlings, hazel bushes, golden willows, quaking aspen, and the numerous species of wild roses can be arranged to conform to the surroundings. Approaches to bridges and culverts can be given especial attention.

It is believed that the most effective results can be obtained by county action and a mile of the road allotted to a certain school. By such a division of the work, it is declared, an undertaking that at first blush would appear all but impossible can be put over successfully and a friendly rivalry ensue, tending to inspire each district to outdo the other.

LATEST FRENCH FASHION



Chicago boulevards welcomed the first Renault six of the season last week when W. H. Hoops, 4105 Drexel boulevard, completed the last leg of a European trip by driving the car he purchased in Paris from New York over the National trail. The car is a seven passenger sedan with body by Henri Labourdette. It is powered by the new six cylinder engine adopted by the French makers this year. Its features include four wheel brakes, applied automatically by the power of the engine itself; automatic magneto control, and carburetor adjustment controlled from the steering column.

British and Yank Interests Tangle on Rubber Rights

AN appropriation of $500,000 was recently made by congress in furtherance of the investigation by which it is hoped to make the great American rubber industry eventually independent of the British rubber producers, who control 80 per cent of the output of crude rubber. In pursuance of this plan, Secretary of Commerce Hoover has asked the rubber and automobile industries of the United States to name a committee to work with government representatives in investigating the possibilities of rubber growing in the Philippines and South America.

Congressional and governmental action in this matter came as a result of the widespread protest by large rubber users in this country against the law of the British colonies restricting the production of rubber, which is declared by these interests to be unsound in economic principle and detrimental both to the United States and Great Britain.

The vital importance of rubber to this country may be appreciated when it is remembered that we use about 75 per cent of all the rubber produced in the world. The consumption of rubber in the United States during 1922 was estimated at 250,000 tons, of which approximately 80 per cent was used in the manufacture of tires. The American automobile industry consumed more than $1,000,000,000 worth of rubber last year. This was made into 32,000,000 rubber tires and 34,000,000 inner tubes. In 1919 we produced more than $1,300,000,000 worth of rubber goods. There are about 30,000 articles in use today made wholly or partly of rubber. More than 27,000,000 miles of telephone and telegraph cables now in operation are insulated with rubber, and in addition rubber is used to insulate more than fifty-six thousand miles of ocean cables.

The demand for rubber is expected to increase greatly this year, especially as the prospect for a record year in automotive production is steadily developing.

How to Park.

Remember that the position of the rear wheels counts most in trying to "make" a parking space. Rear wheels do not track the front wheels, which explains why the rear of the car will be far away from the curb when the front end is placed exactly where you want it to be. The stunt in parking and in "fine" steering around the garage or in a traffic tangle, is to first place the rear wheels where you want them; the front ones will follow easily enough.

PROBE OF GAS PRICE TO BEAR FRUIT IN FALL LEGISLATION

WORK of framing legislation necessary to meet the situation in regard to gasoline prices uncovered in the investigation of the various oil companies by the U. S. senate committee on manufactures, headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette, will begin in dead earnest as soon as congress convenes this fall, according to a letter received by the American Automobile association from Gilbert E. Roe, special attorney for the senate committee.

Mr. Roe points out in his letter that there is much preliminary work to be done and expresses the hope that the investigation will tend to make the big companies hold gasoline prices fairly steady during the summer. In the meantime, at his request the A. A. A. will continue to gather data in order to furnish the senate with the utmost assistance in preparing legislation in the fall.

Save the Finish.

The varnish on a new car should be carefully washed if you wish to preserve the luster. One of the first things to do is to give it a cold bath by turning the hose on it. The cold water hardens the varnish and is less likely to scratch from dust and sand. Overcautious owners have their car rinsed off every night with cold water until the varnish is set. After rinsing with cold water the car should ve thoroughly dried with a chamois. Do not allow any drops of water to remain on the car, as these, when dry, will leave marks on the varnish.

When the car has been splashed with mud care should be taken to remove it as soon as possible, for mud left to dry on new varnish will leave spots which will be almost impossible to remove.

If there should be a little dust on your new varnish and you feel as though you must wipe it off, use a wool duster—not a cloth—as the cloth duster scratches the varnish.

MEN ONLY.

A law has been enacted in Ohio which forbids women to operate taxicabs.

Dixie Motorists Recruit Caravan to Boost Highway

MRS. RUTH KRAMER of Carrollton, Ga., who was with the pathfinding tour establishing the Bankhead National highway, will head an automobile caravan from Washington to the annual meeting o fthe U. S. Good Roads association and the Bankhead National Highway association, which will be held at Greenville, S. C., April 16-21. The caravan will leave the zero milestone in Washington on April 12 and will be joined by automobiles from different cities en route.

Another motor caravan will come from the west from Memphis and the delegates in addition to the business meeting will be taken over to Asheville, N. C., and to the top of Mount Mitchell, the highest point east of the Rockies. They will also visit the famous Chimney rock in western North Carolina.

After Better Roads.

It is expected that the Australian government will introduce a main road bill for New South Wales at the next session, creating a board to take charge of and finance the main roads for that province, says Consul R. Wormuth, Sydney, in a report to the department of commerce. At present there is a lack of coherence and consequent inefficiency in the matter of road building, because the control is divided among hundreds of shires and municipalities. Motor vehicles are already competing strongly with the railroads, but their successful operation is badly hampered by poor roads.

Lower Costs.

Reduction of insurance costs paid by automobile owners, notably the important item of theft insurance, has been diligently sought by the insurance committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Plans are being developed for identification methods to discourage thefts. State laws governing the sale of used cars are having a helpful effect.

Time is the Real Test of its Value

If you pay a thousand dollars for a car and have to buy a new one each year, it is at least twice as expensive as a fifteen hundred and fifty dollar car that looks like new at the end of three years.

We believe a Studebaker Sedan is good for five to ten years of useful, satisfactory life. We are not positive as to the real life because none has yet worn out.

If, when you trade in your car, you learn that you can get only three or four hundred dollars for it because there is no second-hand market for that make of car, then you must add this extra depreciation to arrive at the real cost of the car.

The trade-in price of Studebaker cars shows a very small depreciation, in many sections the smallest of all makes of motor cars. And there is always a ready market for used cars of Studebaker manufacture.

Motor car values find their proper levels in used car salesrooms. Visit one and compare Studebaker second-hand prices with others. The result will be illuminating. The built-in value proves itself each thousand miles of use.

The Standard of Comparison

Low Cost—Comfortable Motoring

This Buick four cylinder, five passenger touring car affords dependable, comfortable motoring for every occasion.

Improvements in the design of both the chassis and the famous Buick Valve-in-Head engine have contributed further to the well known Buick qualities of dependability and economy. Innovations in equipment have provided comforts in the open model that approximate those found in much more expensive closed cars.

For instance, with the Buick designed storm curtains, reinforced by the Buick weather strip, closed car coziness in bad weather has been closely approximated. A signal pocket for the driver, complete instrument board, transmission lock and many other conveniences are features every motorist appreciates.

Survey Disproves That State Built Cook County Roads

But 15 Miles of Crack System Credited to Bond Issue.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

BUSINESS interests, opposed to Gov. Small's proposed $100,000,000 road bond issue on economic grounds, spiked another administration battery yesterday with the announcement that only fifteen miles of Cook county's paved highways have been built by the state of Illinois. The county enjoys 300 miles of pavements carrying the heaviest vehicular traffic in the world, but Small road builders can claim credit for no more than this negligible percentage of the famous system, the authorities declare.

Investigation into the actual state-built mileage is said to be the result of repeated declarations by friends of the governor's finance scheme that Cook county and northern Illinois is opposing the new issue because roads here are already built. This "dog in the manger" charge has spread through scores of counties, it is reported. Linked with the fact that Cook county contributes the lion's share of automobile license fees which pay for all state roads and would thus foot the big end of a new bond issue, the charge is believed to be clouding the entire good roads question downstate.

Basing their survey on the official highway map, used by the administration in its bond issue propaganda, investigators learned that the $60,000,000 bond issue voted to build state highways in 1918 gave Cook county 125 miles of the 4,600 mile system. La Salle county received 124 miles and McLean 119 miles. These three led in mileage of the carefully laid out routes.

Of this 125 miles in Cook county, 81 miles are now paved or under contract. The state itself, however, has built but 15 miles, and refunded payment to the county for 17 additional miles through the bond issue fund. Thus 12 per cent of state work is completed and 14 per cent paid for by refund from bond issue money.

Of the 81 miles built or building, it was found, 31.5 miles are within villages. Of this village mileage, 6.25 were built and paid for by the villages, 1.5 miles by federal aid, 8.5 miles by the county, and 7 miles by state aid. Only two of these miles have been built by the $60,000,000 bond issue. An additional 2.5 miles are under contract and another 3.25 miles are being built by the county.

Outside of villages the 49.5 miles of bond issue roads are divided as follows: 7 miles built by the state, 5.5 under contract by the state, 12 miles built jointly by county and state, 13.25 miles built by the county, and 11.75 miles under contract by the county.

The map issued by the state highway department to show progress on bond issue roads, was found to be inaccurate as far as the mileage shown in Cook county is concerned. This map shows Sheridan road from Chicago north to the state line as completed by the state. In reality none of Sheridan road has been paved by the state. Its pavement is macadam and tar for the most part on a succession of village streets along the north shore. Much of the famous old road is in need of paving and joint repair work on three of its dangerous bridges has been promised.

The map also shows a paved bond issue road from Chicago Heights to the Indiana state line. The Lincoln highway is paved from a point south of Chicago Heights to the line, but the state bond issue road itself was located only recently north of the present paved road.

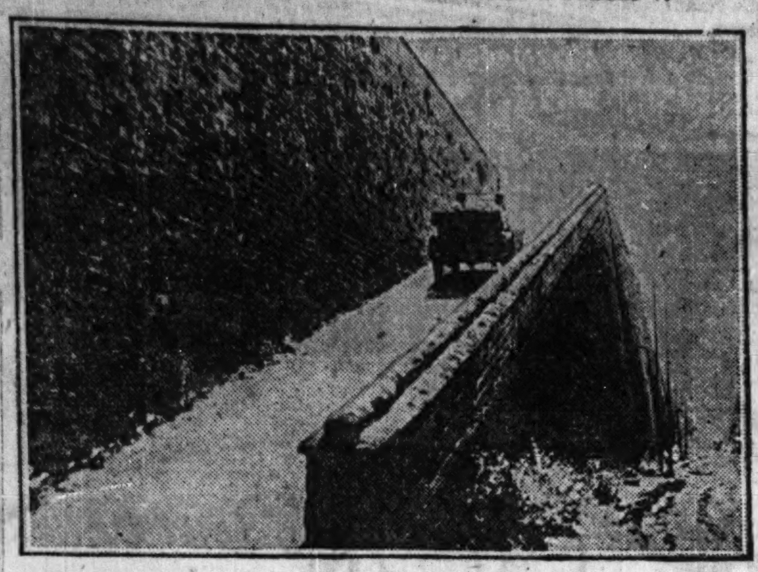
It was pointed out graphically that neither Cook county nor other counties in the northern part of the state, accused of opposing the proposed bond issue for selfish reasons, have nearly as much completed state pavements as other counties. A few of the state routes planned under the first bond issue scheme centered naturally in Chicago in order to best serve state traffic. Politics did not enter into the planning of the routes and the mileage fell where it was most needed by the majority of road users.

Steps Up Speed.

The Italian system of tarring the surface of automobile racing tracks, invented in 1901 by a civil engineer, Guido Rimini, has been described by Senator Silvio Crespi, president of the Italian Automobile club, as the best in existence for the point of view of the speed obtained.

During the grand prix of the Automobile Club of Italy, run at Monza, a driver reached an average speed of 90 miles an hour in bad weather, while at Strasbourg similar cars did not surpass 80 miles an hour under perfect conditions. The Monza track had been treated in the Rimini manner, while the other had not. Sig. Rimini builds his roads of cement and then applies a thick layer of tar.

PRESS AGENT TAKES PEKIN.



Few spots on the globe are immune from activities of busy automobile publicity departments. The ancient wall of Peking, China, fell for this hill climbing demonstration recently. The car used was made in Flint, Mich.

A Few Reflections In Regard to Hupmobile

EVERY MAN is an advocate of his own car in sheer self-defense unless and until it becomes intolerable.

But if you could dig down into the minds of the overwhelming majority of men who own cars, you would find that nearly all of them believe implicitly in the Hupmobile.

If they could indulge in the luxury of entire frankness without casting doubt on their own choice, they would probably say: Buy a Hupmobile.

This general attitude toward the Hupmobile is rare enough to be worth recording, because it goes to the very root of wise automobile buying.

It could not exist—this general habit of making an exception in favor of Hupmobile high quality—if the exceptional qualities themselves did not exist in the Hupmobile.

People in the mass do not continue to see superiorities in a motor car over a long period of years, unless the superiorities are actually there.

And it is an indisputable fact that motorists in the mass do spontaneously, continuously testify to merits in the Hupmobile which make it the wisest, soundest, purchase possible in its class.

IT is interesting to look back and see how Hupmobile sales have steadily advanced for fifteen years.

The Hupmobile business was neither conceived, nor developed, on the theory of huge volume, but rather on the conviction that Hupmobile would make itself known and fix a firm place for itself through downright merit.

AND Hupmobile's total sales have gone steadily up, up, up,—its market constantly broadening—a sound, substantial, permanent thing.

All of these things should interest the buyer, because they represent precisely what he is looking for when his mind holds fast to the one safe principle of all sound buying

By the one safe principle of all sound buying we mean the principle of proven value as it exists in any good product such as the Hupmobile.

The Edwards and Crist Co., distributors of the Gardner Four, are announcing their removal to a finer, larger and better equipped location, at 2437-39 So. Michigan Ave.

Three entire floors are occupied by the Edwards and Crist organization. The first floor is devoted to sales; the upper two to administration and service.

This move has been made in order to extend to present and prospective Gardner owners the type of service on which the success of the Edwards and Crist Co. throughout the past 13 years has been founded.

Unflagging interest in the continued satisfaction of owners and the rendering of service that goes beyond mere mechanical adjustments have always characterized the business dealings of this organization.

With such a service creed behind it, any car would be a desirable investment; with such backing the Gardner Four, remarkable always for performance, economy and dependability, becomes an outstanding motor car value in the Chicago market.

Latest Gardner models are now on display in the exceptionally handsome new showroom of the Edwards and Crist Co. Because of the recently developed Gardner 5 bearing crankshaft, these cars deliver a type of four-cylinder performance superior to anything you have previously thought possible.

The Edwards and Crist Co. extend to you a cordial invitation to visit them at their new place of business and to view the full line of Gardner Fours now being shown.

60,000 Cars Turn Noses to Coast in 1923 Season

Lincoln Highway Head Reports on Famous Trail.

DETROIT, Mich.—Sixty thousand automobiles will travel from coast to coast over the Lincoln highway during the coming summer season, according to an estimate made by A. F. Bement, vice president of the Lincoln Highway association.

This means that about 225,000 persons will travel over the highway between April 20 and Oct. 25, as compared to about half that number for last season.

Bement bases his prediction on the country's increased prosperity and the great improvement in the roads throughout the country, he said.

"With the exception of a few places the 3,300 miles of Lincoln highway is in excellent condition," he declared, in commenting on the condition of the highway.

"From New York to forty-five miles west of the Mississippi river the road is paved and in good condition, except for a short stretch between Pittsburgh and East Liverpool, O.

"There are a few rough stretches in Ohio. One is between Mansfield and Bucyrus and the other between Upper Sandusky and Gomer. The road from Gomer across Indiana and Illinois is in good condition.

"For 300 miles across Iowa to Omaha the road is mostly gravel. There is about 100 miles of graded dirt in separated sections, which is bad when wet. From Omaha for 500 miles across Nebraska and to Cheyenne, Wyo., the road is mostly fine gravel. There is a rough stretch east of Rock Springs and another one west of Green River.

"The only real difficulty likely to be encountered by tourists is between Salt Lake City and Ely, Nev., on the Great Salt Lake desert, a distance of seventeen miles, which is bad.

"The route across Nevada will be in good condition, as much new work will be completed in another week. The road is rough east and west of Austin, Nev., and just east of Eureka, Nev.

"The road from Reno over the summit of the Sierras will open May 15. From Summit to Oakland, Cal., the road is nearly all paved with concrete."

Another Tax?

A bill is now pending before congress providing a special tax on automobiles which are engaged in interstate travel. This federal license tag would be issued annually, and attached to the regular state tag. It would take the place of all special registrations required by various states. The price would be 40 cents per horsepower, with a minimum of $5 on any vehicle. Ninety per cent of this would go into the federal treasury.

New Foreign Field.

Ninety-five foreign cities have asked American manufacturers to enter bids on motorized fire fighting equipment, as a result of the world wide canvass recently made by the automotive division of the department of commerce to uncover potential markets for this kind of apparatus abroad.

One hundred and twenty-six foreign cities have asked for catalogs of automotive and anti-fire apparatus, for future reference and probable purchase of equipment. These results come from 240 cities circularized through commercial attachés.

STANDARDIZATION AND COSTS.

Engineers estimate that 15 per cent is saved yearly through the use of standardized parts and materials which can in no way be considered as limiting individual design.

Port of Call.

According to W. W. Wooden, head of the Automobile club of Kansas City, 100,000 motor tourists will pass through the city in the next six months. Kansas City has become one of the principal stopping places for eastern and southern tourists en route to the Yellowstone and Colorado resorts.

Enduring ruggedness is assured by the double-framed chassis, where power units are cradled in their inner frame mounting.

A guarantee of power and fleetness is the famous 50 h. p. six-cylinder Reo motor, which—with intake valves in head,—large exhaust ports,—a 4-bearing crankshaft, balanced dynamically and statically,—aluminum alloy pistons,—unusual cooling efficiency,—and wonderful accessibility,—

Is truly a remarkable achievement in automobile engine design and manufacture.

MODEL 58, VELIE SIX FIVE-PASSENGER TOURING CAR $1275, F. O. B. FACTORY

Unless You Want to Wait Place Your Order Now!

The demand for Velie cars is greater now than ever before in all our long, successful history. It is taxing the output of our factory to full capacity.

The reason for that demand is Velie Value. Great as that value has always been it is even greater now.

There are many reasons for this demand which you will recognize the moment you see this handsome car.

But the outstanding reason is the wonderful Velie motor which is Velie-built in Velie shops.

Powerful, sturdy and simple in design the Velie Six motor has two great superiorities you will not wisely overlook:

1—The Velie motor is automatically lubricated—even to the piston pins.

2—The Velie motor is vibrationless at all speeds.

Think what those things mean in terms of long service and satisfaction!

Take a ride in the Velie before you buy.

Every time we sell a car we make a friend.

First Warning Goes Out Against Careless Campers

FOREST and brush fires are breaking out in widespread areas in many mountain regions of southern California. Officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California have been asked by various communities to point out the dangers of forest fires to motorists.

A short time ago a state-wide warning was issued to campers and sportsmen that because of the lack of rain at this time of year the brush in the foothills is drying up at an unusually early period and danger from conflagration is exceedingly great.

But now, with recent fires raging near San Juan Capistrano and Santa Ana and small blazes reported from the San Bernardino and Sierra mountains, a second warning is issued to impress upon autoists the responsibility they have in protecting the watersheds.

Forest rangers declare that auto parties are probably responsible for about 90 per cent of the destructive fires which often cost many lives and the loss of millions of dollars in property every year. Motorists who are careless enough to throw lighted cigars and cigarets or burning pipe ashes from a machine are the worst offenders, it is declared.

But the congenial camp fire lighted by picnicking parties to boil the family coffee over is the real offender in the case, it is said. Camp fires should be put out with water or covered with sand when they are abandoned. If a strong wind is blowing do not light a fire and do not light a fire near dry brush or grass.

Safety Always.

Traffic police in Denver, Colo., wear special belts with red signal lights on the front and rear of the leather straps. Small batteries are carried in the pockets of the policemen.

Big Park System.

Denver has a system of nineteen mountain park areas aggregating 5,018 acres, in the Colorado Rockies, through consent of the state legislature. These areas, connected by 100 miles of scenic drives, begin fifteen miles west of the city limits. In 1922 they were visited by 750,000 autoists.

Famous Streets Linked by New Victory Highway

TOPEKA, Kas.—The two most famous streets in America will furnish the termini of the Victory highway, transcontinental, memorial motor route from New York City to San Francisco.

The transcontinental tourist who follows the canary and blue markers of the Victory highway will be guided by them down Broadway to Market street, San Francisco, on the other side of the continent, the final stretch of the famous "path of gold" of the Pacific coast.

The routing of the Victory highway through New York City was arranged for by Ben Blow, national manager of the Victory Highway association, and M. O. Eldridge, chairman of the executive committee of the American Automobile association, on the occasion of a recent visit to New York by Blow.

"The Victory highway is routed down Broadway and crosses the bay by way of an automobile ferry which goes directly past the Statue of Liberty," Blow reported, when he returned to Topeka.

Blow and Eldridge also arranged for the routing of the Victory highway from New York City to Washington in such a manner that it does not coincide, at any point, with the Lincoln highway out of New York.

HOW THEY SELL.

A recent estimate discloses that 71 per cent of the cars built and sold since 1913 have sold for less than $1,000. Seventy per cent of all the cars produced during the first six months of this year are also said to be in this class.

America's Lowest-Priced Quality Six

The studied creation of an organization recognized universally for the excellence of its past productions, the Stutz Six—matured to the last degree—has established itself as the reigning sensation among cars of distinction.

The experience of hundreds of owners now confirms every claim made for it. Day-in and day-out use has established irrefutable proof of its incomparable proficiency.

The Stutz Six virtually re-creates motoring opinion as to efficiency, dependability, power, economy and comfort in a prudently priced car which has been proclaimed by all who have seen it as America's Lowest-Priced Quality Six.

Highways Become Chief Concern of Big Auto Makers

Majority of 285,000 Cars Driven Away from Factories.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., April 7.—[Special.]—Conservative estimates, lacking official figures at this early date, place production for the month of March at 285,000 automobiles. If the output falls below that figure it will be due to conditions not now apparent. For the present at least a scarcity of materials claimed by several manufacturers, does not constitute a serious deterrent. All efforts are being made to sustain production, and to expedite delivery of supplies from producing areas to manufacturing centers to avoid any possible reaction of operations.

The trend toward greater output is indicated by the fact that the Ford plant has now reached the production point of more than 6,000 cars daily, a schedule greater than the company ever before attempted. Back orders which likewise exist with other car makers, are largely responsible for the advance.

The question of deliveries, particularly of the finished products, will be less serious as roads become more passable, and boat service can be utilized. Just now more than one-third of present car deliveries are being made by overland drives, and indications are that, with the speeding up of production, this figure will be maintained if not increased, regardless of what the railroads themselves may do.

From traffic experts themselves come the predictions that but little relief will be possible within the next two months, and that dealers throughout the eastern, middle west and southern territories must continue the driveaways. The demand for cars now made has never been equaled. Reports from the middle west show an increased buying disposition on the part of the farmer, the demand swinging with greater force toward that territory than was anticipated. Similar conditions prevail throughout the southern agricultural districts where the financial position of the farmer has shown vast improvement over that of a year ago.

In an effort to stimulate the demand for used cars, and thus minimize that disturbing feature in the automobile market, many dealers throughout the country are having traded-in cars thoroughly overhauled before attempting to dispose of them, instead of selling them in practically the same condition they were received.

This used car problem, by the way, is attracting no small amount of attention these days, and is of first interest to dealers. Another season is sure to further complicate matters along this line. This will be brought about by a greater number of open cars that will be thrown on the market, and the greatly increased demand for closed models which is sure to develop.

Dealers contend that the manufacturers should concern themselves with the used car problem, while the manufacturers quite as generally hold that it is purely a dealers' affair and that the latter must solve it.

The saturation point, according to many members in the front ranks of the industry, is not coming, for, they claim, it is already here. The percentage of replacement cars today is pretty high and indicates that almost the whole quota of available car owners among the population already are supplied. New owners represent about 10 per cent of all purchasers.

The dealer is best situated to obtain quickest and best returns for used cars, and the dealer, it is claimed, should dispose of a customer's used car. This has grown to be an industry in itself. The dealer, if a successful one, is also a specialist in used cars.

Road to China.

In a volcanic crater in the Sangre de Cristo mountains in San Isabel national forest west of Pueblo, Colo., is an apparently bottomless pit, with black marble sides, in which depth soundings of 1,500 feet have failed to touch bottom.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." For today's question George Westland, 2513 North Sawyer avenue, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Who is the more responsible for our automobile accidents, pedestrian or autoist?

Where Asked.

7 South Dearborn street.

The Answers.

Otto Stadelman, 856 Wilson avenue, clothing manufacturer—The majority of the accidents seem to be caused by careless driving, although the pedestrians are often in too much of a hurry to watch out, or are too engrossed in other business to use proper care when crossing streets. People are talking or thinking about other things instead of paying attention to where they are going, and fail to realize that when crossing a street they are in real danger.

S. G. White, 4035 Sheridan road, clerk—A few months ago I was riding in the country with a friend of mine at the wheel. I was examining a road map; the driver also began looking at the map. Well, sir, that auto began bumping something awful—a good sized tree bringing us to a sudden stop. Driver to blame. In the city I'd say the odds are against the pedestrian. I am careless myself when on foot, but not more careless than the others—we are all too careless.

William F. Wheatley, Summit, Ill., sales representative—It has been my experience that pedestrians do not "stop, look, and listen" before crossing the street. One has to be on guard while crossing a street. People start behind an auto without thinking that another car may be approaching. They fail to realize that an auto can't always stop on a postage stamp.

H. B. Swensnik, 4822 North Drake avenue, clothing manufacturer—Sometimes both. Most of the time the fault lies with the fellow that runs behind or in front of autos. The man who is running the car, if he has his mind on his driving, will avoid practically all accidents. If his mind goes wandering around and he forgets that he's at the wheel, naturally accidents may happen.

Fred S. Jansen, 4836 North St. Louis avenue, civil engineer—To my mind, the pedestrian is the more responsible, for the reason that the autoist is bound by traffic regulations. The pedestrian, it seems, neither wants to learn nor obey the rules. All through the loop the pedestrians pay no attention to the rules. They cut across streets at any time. The autoist waits for the traffic cop to give him the right of way. Pedestrians should do the same.

Hawaiian Islands Ask U. S. Aid in Highway Building

THE Hawaiian islands are entitled to share in federal aid road funds in the opinion of M. O. Eldridge, executive chairman of the American Automobile association.

"Hawaii is six times larger than Rhode Island, pays more internal revenue taxes into the federal treasury than any one of sixteen other states, her contribution being $21,000,000 a year, and owing to her strategic position as an outpost of the United States she is entitled to the protection of Uncle Sam and to share in all federal aid road appropriations made by congress," he declared.

"In other words, Hawaii is an integral part of the United States and is entitled to anything that any other part of the United States is entitled to."

Efforts of the Hawaiian islands to have the provisions of the federal aid road act extended to the territory of Hawaii are meeting with warm support from officials.

C. C. Cottrell, manager of the good roads bureau of the California State Automobile association, has written to headquarters stating that the California association has gone into the questions of roads in Hawaii very thoroughly and is satisfied that the islands deserve federal aid in the building up of a system of good roads.

The visit of Secretary of the Territory Raymond C. Brown to Washington delegated to the task of furthering the federal aid project opened the campaign.

Brown pointed out that the value of Hawaiian imports annually is $56,000,000, while her exports amount to $72,000,000. Hawaii has a population of 250,000 and has expended on roads in the last ten years without any federal help over $6,000,000. The improvement of roads in Hawaii, he said, means increased production and increased revenue to the government as well as better defense for the Pacific coast outpost of the United States.

The plan suggested at present is to have a separate clause written and enacted into law providing that the territory of Hawaii shall hereafter be included under the provisions of the federal highway act. It is felt that it will be better to handle the matter in this way than to attempt to amend the act.

Next Big Issue.

Transportation will be the next big issue before congress, according to Senator Capper of Kansas, chairman of the farm bloc. He also says the truth in fabric bill will be the first measure to be introduced by the farm bloc at the next session of congress.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

FOLLOWING a decade of steadily increasing and expanding activity in the automotive field, the Edwards & Crist company last week settled its organization in new general headquarters at 2437-39 Michigan avenue. The chief feature of the companys' new operating base is the service department, which has been developed through years of motorcycle distribution to encompass practically every function in the motor transportation field. The company, in its new quarters, provides complete service for both Auburn and Gardner cars. The latter line was taken over last month.

Lexington cars figured among the first ten leaders in phenomenal sales reported by Pacific coast distributors this spring, according to word received by O. T. Mitchell, head of the Lexington Chicago company. California sales to date show an increase of nearly 150 per cent over last year. The Lexington hill climbing ability is declared to be one of its chief claims to popularity in the west.

Automobile row helped Lafayette Markle celebrate his first anniversary as Rickenbacker distributor in the Chicago territory last Tuesday with an impromptu reception in the "Rick" headquarters, 2309 Michigan avenue. The popular row veteran marked his birthday by signing for 710 new Rickenbacker cars for spring distribution.

Henry R. Levy, president of the Studebaker Sales company, warned his patrons last week against a serious shortage in new cars during May and June. The executive based his prediction on a national survey which shows that seasonal buying of automobiles is a thing of the past. Factory adjustment to the new situation, which requires a steady supply, rather than seasonal spurts in production, will bring the pinch this year, he declared.

Outstanding features of the 1923 Apperson models include the removal of all levers from the front floor board of the car and introduction of one of the few successful pre-selection, automatic gear shifts. The latter is located on the steering column. The emergency brake lever has been removed from the floor and placed on the instrument board.

Big Savings Are Here for Those Who Act Quick!

You can't afford to wait another moment. The record breaking building program in Chicago and surrounding territory is far exceeding most optimistic estimates. We knew it was coming and were prepared with gigantic stocks at the start of this season, but we never dreamed the demand would reach such colossal proportions. Great inroads are being made on our vast stocks and the outlook for replenishing our supply, at the low prices which prevail today, offers little encouragement. Those familiar with these gigantic sales of ours will need no further reminder, for a word to the wise is sufficient. They will start planning today and do their buying immediately. Quick action is imperative if you wish to avoid the price advances which are sure to come as the growing demand reduces the supply. Now is the time to Build—Improve—Repair!

FARM AND GARDEN

Cook County Truck Growers Ask State Fund for Tests

By Frank Ridgway.

CHARGED with the responsibility of producing vegetables for a growing city of nearly 3,000,000 people, truckers in the Chicago territory of northern Illinois are being forced to search for more intensive methods of gardening. Experimenting has been their only means of finding the best methods and practices.

For years progressive truck farmers have been individually conducting experiments with fertilizers, different varieties of crops, methods of controlling insects and diseases, and practices of planting and cultivating. This has been costly work for even the most successful growers, and they have consequently been handicapped in their attempts to discover the best intensified systems of gardening to follow on their expensive lands.

Centralizing Reduces Costs.

To centralize experimental work and thus avoid duplication of tests and reduce costs, growers are asking the state legislature to appropriate $25,000, to be used in establishing a truck experiment station in Cook county for the benefit of farmers in the northern part of the state.

"Trucking experiments made in other parts of the state are of little value to us," said H. W. Day of Blue Island, assistant farm adviser of Cook county. "There are a lot of good vegetable gardening experiments conducted at the University of Illinois, but they are of comparatively small value to our truck farmers and insufficient state funds have prevented investigators from carrying out these tests in a way that will benefit growers in this and other northern counties.

Intensive Farming Important.

"Our problems are naturally quite different from those facing farmers in the central or southern part of the state. There they are not seriously troubled with the high priced land problem, while the land used in the Chicago trucking section is no longer ordinary farm land, but 'city land' heavily farmed. Our land is high priced, selling, in many cases, for as high as $1,000 an acre.

"Fundamentally our problems are different from those of the average farmer who is satisfied with one good crop each season in his home vegetable garden. Intensive farming is necessary on this expensive land if truckers are to get a reasonable return for their work. For example, they grow three crops in the same season on the same piece of ground."

Seek Manure Substitute.

Finding something to replace the decreasing supply of stable manure is Cook county gardeners' big job. They used to get manure from the city at $10 a carload or less; today it costs them $35, $40, or more per car, and they are not always able to get it even at that price.

Tests with green manuring crops and raw rock phosphate made by August Geweke and Frank Diekman in coöperation with the farm bureau in this county demonstrate the need of an experiment station in northern Illinois. Sixty plots were used, and the fertilizer material was tried out on the more important truck crops.

In these tests an initial application of two tons of raw rock phosphate to the acre was made last spring on the Geweke and Diekman farms, and surprising increases in yields were obtained. The phosphate cost $12 a ton, or $24 an acre.

Rock Phosphate Increases Yield.

Sugar beets, sweet corn, onion sets, and cabbage were grown on the plots treated with raw rock phosphate, and the yield of each was greatly increased except that of cabbage. When the beet crop was harvested last fall, carefully kept records of weights showed an increase of five tons to the acre compared with untreated plots. With beets selling at $7 a ton this amounted to $35 an acre, or $11 an acre above the cost of the raw rock phosphate. Only part of the phosphate was used by the beets, and crops grown on the ground during the remaining part of the four year rotation of sugar beets, sweet corn, onion sets, and cabbage will be feeding on the phosphate left in the ground.

The two ton application of raw rock phosphate also increased the yield of sweet corn 100 dozen ears to the acre. With roasting ears selling at 20 cents a dozen, this amounted to an increase of $20 an acre, only $4 less than the cost of the fertilizer, some of which still remains in the ground. The onion set yield was increased seventy-eight bushels to the acre. At $1 a bushel, the price onion sets sold for in 1922, this amounted to an increase of $78 an acre, or $54 an acre more than the fertilizer cost.

Cabbage Doesn't Respond.

Mr. Day said that the growers were not surprised when they found that the cabbage grown on the treated plots had not shown an increase in yield, because this is a leafy crop and does not need a great amount of phosphate, but large amounts of nitrogen. However, he explained, the rock phosphate is not lost, for sugar beets, heavy phosphate feeders, follow cabbage in the average Cook county gardener's rotation.

Sandy loam and clay loam soils were used in these experiments.

Green manuring crops were tried out by the truckers. Vetch and rye were planted first, but they failed to get good stands last summer, and soy beans were later substituted. They were planted after the onion sets, sweet corn, and cabbage were harvested, and the fertility value of these crops is yet to be determined. The beet crop is harvested so late that soy beans cannot follow them the same year. During the coming growing season growers are going to watch these green manured plots with great interest, for they expect these crops to play an important part as a substitute for stable manure.

DOWN ON THE FARM

"WHEN THE FROST IS ON THE PUMPKIN"—Leslie Meyer and Spot, the dog, are arguing about which one did most in loading this big pumpkin. Spot is doing most of the talking, apparently. This whopper of the Hoosier pumpkin patch was grown on Edwin Meyer's farm near Brunswick, Ind., and was being shined up for the county fair at the time the picture was taken by Anna M. Meyer, 119 Latrobe avenue, Chicago. Hundreds of "Down on the Farm" pictures come to this department without names, address, and full information and consequently cannot be used. Chicago Sets Plan for National Garden Week

National garden week of the General Federation of Women's Clubs is to be held in cities throughout the United States beginning on April 22. Chicago leaders and directors of gardening activities are planning a program for the purpose of raising the standard and stimulating interest in the growing of vegetables, flowers, shrubs, and trees in the city. Mrs. Russell Tyson, president of the Woman's National Farm and Garden association, will be in charge of the local activities during the week.

Gardeners who have radio outfits are urged to tune in on the practical talks on various phases of gardening to be given by Mrs. Jean Cross Weis at 7:30 p. m., April 24 and 28. Mrs. Weis is both a practical and a scientific gardener, having made extensive studies of gardens in this and foreign countries. She has had charge of school and settlement school gardens in eastern cities.

Arrangements are also being made for short radio talks on gardening to be given during the week by various other speakers.

Immediately preceding national garden week, tree planting week, April 13 to 20, will be held in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Ohio, and eight other states in the east and west. Tree Planting week is fostered by the Plan to Plant Another Tree movement, which has its headquarters at Aurora, Ill.

During the same week, beginning on April 16, the Chicago spring flower show will be held at the Broadway armory, 5875 Broadway. Activities on the opening day of the flower show will be under the direction of the Woman's National Farm and Garden association. Lectures on flower gardening and other outdoor activities will be given each afternoon at 3 o'clock and each evening at 8 o'clock, according to Mrs. Tyson.

GARDEN NOTES

Tip burn has come to be known as probably the most serious menace to the potato growing industry in this country. It became so serious in many sections that growers during the last few years gave it up. Scientists at the Iowa State college have been testing the value of Bordeaux mixture for spray on potato plants, and find it the most effective agency in controlling tip burn. The average gain in yield during the seven years was 25 per cent.

Poor soil in city gardens is probably the cause of 95 per cent of the failures in growing head lettuce on back yard plots. It is therefore advisable to select rich soil or manure an old garden plot heavily where head lettuce is to be grown.

POULTRY TIPS

One of the most satisfactory crops to grow on the ground where poultry ranges is the legume. Clover or alfalfa are ideal crops for this purpose. A half acre of ground seeded to either one of these legumes will furnish enough green feed for a hundred or more chickens.

Poultrymen occasionally doubt the value of feeding eggs to baby chicks. Experiments conducted at the University of Wisconsin show that the addition of a small amount of eggs to the ration for baby chicks will give surprisingly good results.

Poor methods of feeding and brooding are the chief reasons given for the heavy mortality of chicks. In the state of Iowa, it is said, nearly one-half of the chicks hatched on farms are never raised to maturity. Iowa farmers are probably no more careless in their methods of handling chicks than farmers in other states. This is a warning to the poultryman who neglects to use well balanced rations in feeding his chicks, and watch the temperature of the brooder to avoid sudden changes in temperature.

Remember that brooding coops for chicks during the first few weeks after they hatch are too small after they are eight and ten weeks old. Now is the time to build big, roomy coops that will provide ample space for the growing chicks during the hot weather of midsummer.

DORT SIX

The outspoken and unqualified welcome which has greeted the Dort Six, companion to the popular Dort Four, constitutes one of the most dramatic events of motor car history. Though the first car left the factory but a bare six months ago, the demand for it has already grown to such broad proportions that production is now far beyond our highest previous point. No greater tribute could possibly be paid either the car or the manufacturing efficiency of the Dort organization. It is the crowning reward of thirty-seven years devoted continuously and conscientiously to the most painstaking and exacting craftsmanship.

A NATIONAL INSTITUTION

MOTOR INDIANA TRUCKS

1898 1923

Truck Value Begins With the Maker

LOOK beneath the surface when you buy a truck—for truck value begins with the maker! Experience, financial strength and constructive policies are essential to the manufacture of the kind of truck you need. INDIANA offers the following facts, and invites comparison.

1. STABILITY: A strong, old-established company, founded in 1898—a quarter-century of steady, solid, substantial growth.
2. FINANCIAL STRENGTH: Ample capital and strong resources, assuring the advantageous buying which makes INDIANA values possible.
3. EXPERIENCE: Twenty-five years of successful manufacturing, of which thirteen years have been exclusively devoted to the manufacture of high-grade motor trucks.
4. POLICIES: A fixed determination to build nothing but the best, to put value and service ahead of all else, and to give the utmost for the money.
5. SCOPE: A nation-wide institution in manufacturing, sales and service; eleven strategically located factory parts-depots covering the entire country, and hundreds of distributor and dealer parts-stocks available in as many cities.
6. PERFORMANCE: Thousands of INDIANA Trucks in service in almost every country—many of them in daily operation 10 years and longer, and many that have gone a hundred thousand miles and more.

We can direct you to companies in your line of business who have standardized on INDIANAS.

SAWDUST or SUGAR?

CAN you tell the difference between the best things to eat and ordinary food?

Musk melons can be fit for a king or taste like a raw pumpkin. Sweet corn can be tender or wooden. Little beets and carrots can be juicy or tough. Peas can melt in your mouth or be hard as bullets. Cucumbers, beans, radishes, lettuce, onions—all can be the best or the worst quality, depending on two things—on freshness and on whether the seed you plant has been carefully bred for quality.

Perfect freshness can be insured only by having your own garden—for superior quality plant Ferry's pure-bred Seeds. They have been developed by the largest and best equipped garden seed organization in the world. The finest parent plants are deliberately selected; the unfit are destroyed. Guesswork is eliminated.

If you can discriminate between the best and something not so good, have a garden of your own and plant Ferry's pure-bred Seeds. Ten cents per paper "at the store around the corner."

To retailers who want to sell Ferry's Seeds

For your convenience, Ferry's Seed Service, Inc., has an office at 208 West Washington street. Phone Franklin 4437 whenever you need more pure bred seeds, or wish a new box. If you have never sold Ferry's pure-bred Seeds, now is a good time to start. Like all fine merchandise, they sell easily.

UNCLE SAM HAS LOANED FARMERS $1,500,000,000

North Carolina Leads in Amount Borrowed.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—Much has been said and done for the financial aid of the American farmer. Much is still being said in furtherance of improved rural credit facilities and a new law extending credit opportunities to agriculture has just been passed. Little is generally known, however, of the actual extent of government aid to the American farmer in the last few years.

The fact is, as shown by the official records, that government advances to farmers to date aggregate nearly $1,500,000,000. That includes loans of the federal farm loan bureau, which has been in operation since 1917. It includes also advances of the War Finance corporation made in the last two years.

Large Loans Made.

Latest available figures show that from Jan. 4, 1921, to March 15 of this year the War Finance corporation advanced for agricultural and live stock purposes $513,067,862.

The federal farm loan bureau since its creation has handled loans aggregating more than $900,000,000 in connection with its supervision of federal farm land banks and joint stock land banks.

Since 1921 the statistical record of agricultural aid shows the advances by the War Finance corporation, both for aiding exports and the financing of crops, to have been as follows:

To exporters	$ 9,722,696
To coöperative marketing associations	190,589,634
To banking and financing institutions	227,702,462
To live stock loan companies	85,048,158
This totals approximately	513,000,000

Funds Well Distributed.

Government funds were distributed among all of the agricultural states. Banking and financing institutions in Iowa and North Dakota head the list of the distribution. A few figures give insight into the countrywide distribution:

Iowa	$24,239,000
North Dakota	21,305,000
South Dakota	15,725,000
Minnesota	12,700,000
Illinois	5,292,000
Nebraska	11,080,000
South Carolina	11,000,000
North Carolina	9,921,000

In addition to these loans to banking institutions financing agriculture, the war finance corporation has made aggregate loans of nearly $200,000,000 to coöperative marketing associations, some of the figures by states showing:

North Carolina	$40,000,000
Texas	19,000,000
Kentucky	22,500,000
Minnesota	15,000,000
Mississippi	12,000,000

Tobacco Market Aided.

The North Carolina entry in the foregoing table includes $30,000,000 to a tobacco marketing association doing business in three states.

The Minnesota advance was to a company in that state which also operated in North and South Dakota.

Some of the larger loans to live stock loan companies by states were:

Texas	$20,004,000
Colorado	10,350,000
Wyoming	11,067,000

The war finance corporation still is functioning and the last legislation by congress extending its life provides that it shall continue in existence until March, 1924. Created during the war, its powers have been gradually extended and changed, until now its chief activity is the promotion of the marketing and exporting of agricultural produce.

CANADA ACTS TO STOP SMUGGLING BY DOPE FLEET

GENEVA, April 7.—[By United Press.]—An international "dope" fleet is operating off the Canadian coast, landing drugs for shipment to the United States and other countries, the dominion government has notified the secretariat of the league of nations.

This flotilla of drug runners operates similarly to the liquor fleet off the New York and New Jersey shores. The notification to the league states that the "dope" smugglers are engaged in transporting cocaine, morphine, and other narcotics.

A Canadian official, it is stated, discovered a regular route for smuggling drugs from Germany to Spain, thence to France, thence to St. Pierre et Miquelon, off Newfoundland, and finally into Canada and the United States.

The international "dope" fleet is composed largely of French trawlers which sail from French ports, the notification said.

Canada also notified the French, Spanish and German representatives on the league's opium advisory commission, demanding that their governments stop the traffic and break up the "dope" fleet.

AMERICAN LABOR PAID BIG WAGES; NOT LIKE EUROPE

BY SCRUTATOR.

Plunging through the jungles of paper money and the thickets of foreign exchange, with his adding machine in hand, a statistician of the department of labor has just figured out the relations of some American and foreign wages. Such figures were common before the war and easily arrived at. Money means nothing now, so it is necessary to go much further in arriving at accurate comparisons.

Figuring real wages from the amount of labor time necessary to buy an identical quantity of foodstuffs, the department of labor's figures show that in one hour an American bricklayer earns as much as a Belgian bricklayer makes in 6 hours, a Frenchman in 5½, a German in 7½, and a British mason in 3 hours.

For carpenters the figures run: American 1½, Belgian 6, Frenchman 5, German 7¼, Englishman 3.

For machinists: American 2, Belgian 6¾, Frenchman 6, German 7¼, Britisher 3.

For linotype operators in job offices: American 1¼, Belgian 6, Frenchman 5, German 7¾, Englishman 3.

Unskilled labor about steel plants: American 5¼, Belgian 8¾, French 7¾, German 7¼, Englishman 4½.

These figures tell many stories. They show why the American people, acting on instinct and against the advice of the great majority of the so-called "educated classes," rejected the league of nations. Stripped of its pretty editorial, oratorical, and clerical trimmings, the scheme meant a pool of resources, and that inevitably meant a rapproachment of wage and living standards. That estimate the homecoming army brought to the folks at home and instinct did the rest.

The figures show why American labor fights immigration and always has fought it.

The fact that California is American, not Chinese, is due to labor agitators, not to the cultured classes of the period in which exclusion was forced down the throats of the equilitarians, who then dominated the schools, the press and the church.

American labor's position relative to foreign labor has evidently improved since the war. Labor believes that the check to immigration did it. From the foundation of the republic until about 1900 wages took an increasing share of the national income. Then there was a halt, followed by a slight decline after 1907, which was coincident with the big immigration wave, that later reached 1,000,000 per year.

The most interesting thing about the figures, however, is the great gulf disclosed between the earnings of American skilled and common labor. No such gap is seen in the European figures. This explains much. It shows why American labor unions have retained the craft form, while European unions have generally approached the industrial or one big union type. The miners in America are a notable exception, and the reason is plain—their labor is relatively unskilled.

Organized labor in America is, for the most part, what it has been called, "an aristocracy of labor." Part of its high pay is due to the relatively lower pay of common labor. The low status of common labor has largely been a result of immigration, which has kept the market for such labor crowded. The often heard complaint that Americans will not do common labor is also explained by these figures. Immigration has worked against democratic conditions in industry, that is plain.

The refusal of American labor to yield to the pleadings of the industrial union agitators like W. Z. Forster and his "amalgamationists," who are mostly college professors, theorists, or social workers, is also explained by the figures. Skilled labor realizes acutely that for it the one big union means one big divvy. No matter how much the amalgamationists may tell American unionists that their organizations are old fashioned and reactionary, the European wage scales bring up the question of what benefit the European workers derive from their up to the minute forms of organization.

KEWANEE BOILER COMPANY

Residence of Mr. H. E. Newman, Oak Park, Illinois
Built by C. W. Gilbert, River Forest, Illinois

Every prospective builder who wants a comfortable, easy-to-heat home will find a valuable suggestion in the way Mr. Newman built his home.

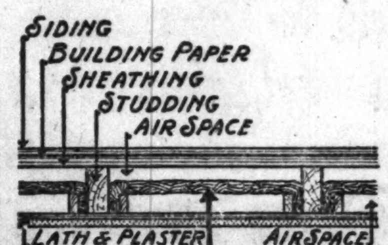
Mr. Newman Wanted a Comfortable Home; He Got it With Flaxlinum

What Flaxlinum Is

FLAXLINUM is a felted material made of durable, chemically-purified flax fibre. When built into the walls and roof of a house it seals the interior against outside temperature changes.

For walls it is made ½-inch thick with flanged edges to permit it to fit snugly between the studding. For roofs, sheets 1 inch in thickness are recommended. In applying FLAXLINUM no special construction is necessary. It will last as long as any house built. It will not crack, break or "sift down."

One-half inch of FLAXLINUM is equivalent in heat and cold resistance to 2½ inches of wood, eight inches of brick and mortar, or 13 inches of concrete.



FLAXLINUM
This is the Material that keeps the Cold Out

WHEN Mr. H. E. Newman's home was still in the plan stage he told his contractor, Mr. C. W. Gilbert, that above all else he wanted a comfortable home—a house that would be warm and dry in winter and cool in summer. His contractor recommended FLAXLINUM insulation for the side walls and roof.

Mr. Newman's report on his completed house contains a message of vital interest to every homebuilder who wants more than a shell of four walls and a roof for a home. In a letter he writes:

> "Last summer was a revelation, the second floor was as cool as the first, enough so that friends visiting us often remarked about it.
> "FLAXLINUM is now saving us a great percent of our fuel bill each winter; we have no trouble in keeping a uniform heat at any temperature we desire; furthermore our walls are always dry and free from moisture."

For twelve years FLAXLINUM has been saving coal and giving year round comfort to hundreds of homeowners. Users by the hundreds report fuel savings of 30% to 40%. In your new home you cannot afford to overlook this money saver and comfort maker. Investigate it now before you forget about it. Write or call for the free FLAXLINUM booklet and sample.

GRAINS SCORE GOOD ADVANCE TO CLOSE WEEK

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Unfavorable weather and crop reports carried the deferred deliveries of wheat, corn, and oats to a new high for the season, with the finish about the top. Longs were good sellers of the May futures, but with an enlargement in the outside interest prices were kept on the upgrade and the finish was about the top. Wheat closed with net gains of 1⅜@2⅛c, while corn was up ⅝c, oats ⅛@1c, and rye ⅝c.

A bull market has been on in all grains the last week, with the lowest figures made early and the highest toward the last. Growing weather has revealed considerable damage in parts of the winter wheat belt, and with drought in the southwest and heavy snow and cold weather northwest, sentiment switched sharply to the buying side of all grains. As compared with a week ago, wheat gained 2¼@3⅛c, corn 2⅝@3c, oats ⅝@1⅛c, and rye ⅝@1c. Provisions showed a stronger undertone, and lard gained 22½@32½c, and ribs 27½@32½c for the week.

Crop Reports Unfavorable.

The lowest estimates as to the probable loss in winter wheat acreage in Kansas are around 2,000,000, and with every indication of a reduction in the spring wheat acreage both sides of the international line, there has been a broadening in the outside trade, especially in the deferred deliveries, which have carried prices up sharply.

Houses with northwestern connections were good buyers of the September on account of unfavorable weather, which is expected to greatly delay seeding of spring wheat. With a crop scare on, routine news counted for little, and values were on the up grade from the start.

Export demand was somewhat less active, but was not a factor. Longs sold May wheat freely, and the difference showed a tendency to narrow early, but the net change for the day was small. Cash wheat at Winnipeg was firmer. Liverpool closed ½d higher.

Cash Corn Situation Strong.

The strong cash corn situation continues, and with bids to arrive up 1c relative to the May, and in some instances with offers of 1¼c to 2¾c over May for No. 2 grades, depending on color and time of shipment, there was free buying by commission houses. Resting orders to sell July around 80c checked the bulge. A local elevator interest was a persistent buyer of May and seller of July, presumably changing over hedges. Exporters were after corn here.

Oats seeding promises to be greatly delayed in many sections of the belt, and with houses with northwestern connections on the buying side and a general broadening in the trade the advance was easily attained. Cash demand was only fair.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

New high prices for all deferred futures of wheat and corn and for September oats were scored and there was a better feeling in all grains. The markets have been lifted out of the rut and there is more inducement on the part of the trade in general to take a cheerful view of the situation. There has been a sharp advance, and the short interest has been cut down. The impression is that values are to work irregularly higher.

It was said by pit traders that the volume of business in wheat Saturday was lagrer than for the combined business in nearly a month. All the big commission houses had buying orders that created the impression that some of the largest shorts were covering, and that new investment buying was in the markets for a turn. The two important factors are bad crop news in the southwest and delayed seeding of spring wheat in the American and Canadian northwest.

Long May wheat came out freely on all bulges, and it was only 2½c over July at the last. There has been an evening up of May trades on both sides for two weeks and the markets are acting well.

"Farmers are so far behind in their field work that prices for grains are not likely to tempt them to sell to any extent," says J. E. Cairns of Jackson Bros. & Co., who has spent a few days in central Illinois. "Labor is scarce as road builders are paying $4 per day and farm workers take that in preference. This is a big factor. Interior elevator stocks are light and cars are scarce for moving grains eastwar dfrom Peoria. The glucose interest is buying corn to get empties to use in shipping its products."

Sales of No. 2 yellow corn were made here yesterday at 80c, by Lamson Bros. & Co., the highest price in more than two years. J. K. Riordon says all grains have been too low and believes that the advance has only started.

Bids in central Ilinois of 12c over for No. 2 corn for this week's shipment to the gulf were made yesterday. This is equal to 74⅝c free on board country stations.

A Toledo house reports small stocks of spot red winter wheat in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

Primary arrivals of grains for the week were 17,938,00 bu, an increase of 4,650,000 bu for the week and 7,720,000 bu over last year. They were also 4,340,000 bu more than the five year average. Arrivals of wheat, corn, and oats were the largest at this time in five years, and the car situation on western roads is better. On eastern roads it is short.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

"From Colby east 100 miles fields are perfectly bare and much wheat acreage is being sown to barley," wired crop expert George M. Le Count to Stein, Alstrin & Co. from Plainville, Kas. "Some stubble wheat has a chance to make some crop, but most of the territory covered the last three days will be almost a failure. Prospects in western Kansas are the poorest I have ever seen. Wheat more promising here. Some fields have fair stand, but general condition is below normal."

Burton Hungerford, who is out for Logan & Bryan, wired from El Reno, Okla.: "Around Chickasha, south and west, green bugs have badly damaged half the wheat fields, and probably a few fields will be abandoned. A few parasites are noted here. Wheat condition good throughout this territory except for bugs."

A decrease of 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 acres in spring wheat in the three Canadian northwestern provinces is predicted by Winnipeg people.

"A great many sections in the northwest had completed seeding at this time last year," said a Minneapolis message to Thompson & McKinnon. "They have not scratched the ground yet this season. Conservative people now predict that general seeding will be a month late even with favorable weather."

A decrease of 2,000,000 to 2,500,000 acres in Kansas is looked for by George Davis, president of the Davis-Noland-Merrill Grain company of Kansas City, in a message to the Rosenbaum Grain corporation. This is in the western quarters of the state. The balance of the state has an excellent outlook, and with normal weather Kansas should raise 120,000,000 bu, and with a good soaking rain within a week in the western quarter 15,000,000 bu more would be added.

Abandoned acreage of winter wheat this year is estimated at 14 per cent by R. O. Cromwell, the Lamson Bros. & Co. crop expert. This compares with an actual loss of 11.5 per cent the previous year. May abandonment figures this year will be more certain than a year ago. Condition is around 78, compared with 79.5 last year. After abandonment this May the remaining acreage will be in better condition in the southwest than is usual, unless April conditions are abnormal. With this abandonment, if the May condition is raised to 81, a production of 579,000,000 bu would be indicated. With the exception of 3 to 5 per cent abandonment the seeded acreage in Illinois on April 1 shows fair to good promise. Condition 83, against 90 in December and 93 last year. Backwardness of the plant, thin stand, and killing of stools, especially of soft varieties, is important. Permanent injury has been done in the average fields. Spring stooling is not heavy in this territory in average years. Loss in acreage in Indiana and Ohio promises to exceed that of Illinois by not less than 3 per cent.

Some sensational damage reports on winter wheat were received from Nebraska during the day, but were not given out to the trade.

42 Years 100% Safe

Established 1881

No. 1 of a Series

Pioneers of Safety

From the time when Mt. Ararat arose above the flood and the rainbow of promise appeared to Noah, land became the safest form of security. During Egypt's pomp and glory, during the Golden Age of Pericles, when Rome ruled the world from her Seven Hills, during the overmastering march of Alexander the Great, when Hannibal the scourge from Africa caused civilization to totter, during the decline of the Roman Empire, down into the dark ages, all through the Renaissance to modern times, there have been accumulators of wealth — investors — and these investors recognized land and buildings—ground underfoot, roof overhead—the first necessity of man—as the safest form of investment.

When J. Lewis Cochran, president of Cochran & McCluer Company, established this investment business 42 years ago, in Chicago, he depended upon Real Estate—land and buildings for safety. Time has proved his wisdom. The policy of this house has not changed. That is why today Cochran & McCluer bonds are sure.

During these 42 years—during the panic of 1893—the panic of 1907—the panic of 1914, the world war—and the depression of 1920, Cochran & McCluer investors were secure. During all this time not a single Cochran & McCluer investor lost a dollar in interest or principal.

Today, Cochran & McCluer Bonds offer you 100% safety—a liberal high yield—7%; opportunity for diversification over a dozen choice issues; maturities from 2 to 10 years, in denominations of $1000, $500, $100—on cash or payment plan.

To the man with civic pride, Cochran & McCluer Bonds also give the opportunity of having a part in building a greater Chicago—in providing homes for Chicago's ever-growing population.

Titles to all property securing Cochran & McCluer Certified 1st Mortgage Bonds are guaranteed by the Chicago Title and Trust Company (Capital and Surplus over $17,000,000). As trustee it identifies and certifies each bond as a genuine first lien.

Build a 100% safe estate by investing in Cochran & McCluer Bonds.

The Choice of Experienced Investors

Our January business was good. We expected it—the bond business is usually good in January—but

In February, we secured more new accounts, and sold more bonds than in January, and a new high record was established for our monthly sales; then

In March, in spite of income tax payments and other things, which ordinarily interfere with the purchase of investments, our volume of sales was the largest we ever had in any one month.

This steady increase in the volume of our business is indeed gratifying. It is not only a strong endorsement of the policy of our Company, but it is also convincing proof of the growing preference for Comlossy First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds.

Our bonds are always secured by a direct closed first mortgage on a new fireproof apartment building, located within three blocks of the lake, on Chicago's Great North Side.

Experienced bond buyers are alert to the special merit of Comlossy Bonds.

No better type of security is obtainable for conservative investors udulent Oil Stock Promotions.

The Pilgrim Oil company of Fort Worth, mentioned in a previous article, is another "merger" company which has developed a new ruse to get the nsophisticated investor. It is a trust tate officered by W. H. Hollister, president; G. M. Richardson, vice president, and H. S. Robinson, secretary treasurer. These three men also serve as trustees. The National Vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World has recently completed an investigation of this company. The committee's report develops the following facts:

The company recruits stockholders from the ranks of failing or defunct oil companies by inducing the shareholders to reënlist with the Pilgrim Oil company by an even exchange of stock plus the purchase of an additional amount equalling 25 per cent of their holdings in the original company. This arrangement was changed later and the incoming stockholders were not required to purchase additional Pilgrim shares for cash, but they were forced to pay a transfer fee on each certificate of stock. These transfers, however, entitled shareholders only to the common stock of the Pilgrim Oil company.

Once they were corralled as Pilgrim common stockholders the trick was sprung. As holders of the company's common stock they were offered an opportunity to buy Pilgrim preferred stock on the basis that the investor should pay in cash an amount totaling the value of his common stock in exchange for which the Pilgrim Oil company would give him preferred stock to the value of two for one. To whip them into line they were advised that the common stock which they held would not participate in any dividend until after the preferred stockholders have received 100 per cent dividends.

In a letter to stockholders of the G. M. Richardson Oil company, of which G. M. Richardson was president, the following opinion was advanced:

"I think the Richardson Oil company stock, which I consider is absolutely worthless, should be exchanged for stock in an oil company that really has something. The business of the Pilgrim Oil company is merging of other companies with assets. Their common stock does not participate in any dividends until after the preferred stock pays 100 per cent."

The trustees of Pilgrim Oil company have all been connected with companies which later "merged" with either the Pilgrim or the Revere Oil company and Hollister was at one time president of the latter.

Another bait for investors was the payment by Pilgrim Oil company of a 3 per cent dividend in August, 1922, two months after it commenced business. It was represented that this dividend was paid out of earnings. The advertisement states:

"The Pilgrim Oil company paid a cash dividend of 3 per cent on Aug. 10, to all those share-owners of record Aug. 1. That was a dividend from actual earnings, from actual production, and was a legitimate dividend, coming from net earnings after paying the expenses of drilling a number of wells. It was real velvet to the shareholders over and above the money that was put back into the company to build its assets to their present high standing."

They also said:

"The Pilgrim Oil company is a dividend-paying oil corporation, the dividends being derived from real earnings and not from questionable sources."

Although the Pilgrim company alleges that the August dividends were paid from actual production, investigation developed the fact that the company had not received any return from pipe lines up until October, 1922. After the first ill-advised dividend was paid, and many new stockholders had been deceived by the apparent thriving condition of the concern, the payment of further dividends ceased.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

The weekly review of F. M. Zeller & Co. follows:

Trading in local unlisted securities was somewhat less active, with few important price changes. While a few issues were inclined to be somewhat reactionary, offerings in the main were readily absorbed. A good demand for Butler Bros. forced this issue up ¾ of a point to high sales at 38¾, but this gain was partially eliminated later, with a close of 38¼ bid, 38½ asked. Trading in Kellogg Switchboard and Supply was extremely light, sales ranging between 51½ and 52½. Hurley Machine changed hands at 44 and 44½—off 1 point.

Ford of Canada relinquished some 6 points at 448 bid, 451 asked. McCord Manufacturing company common was bid up sharply from 5¾ to a close of 6⅜ bid, 6⅞ asked. Offerings of the preferred, however, at 44 again failed to attract possible buyers. Paige Motor ranged between 21 and 21½. Fractional losses were noted in Motor Wheel at 11⅛@11¾, and in Timken-Detroit at 11@11½.

By-Products Coke was quoted at 67 bid, 69 asked, with few actual sales. Northwestern Yeast was traded in at 198 and 199. Fairbanks Morse was neglected and inclined to be lower at 57 bid, 58 asked. Some few transactions were reported in Burroughs Adding Machine at 131 and 132. Albert Pick preferred was wanted at 97½, with odd lots offering at 98½. The Chicago Railway Equipment issues were fairly active, sales of the common ranging between 32½ and 33¼, and the preferred between 25⅝ and 26¼.

Sugar issues were neglected and price fluctuations extremely narrow. Closing bid and asked prices follow: Columbia, 6¾@7; Godchaux preferred, 90@93; Holland-St. Louis, 5¼@6; Michigan, 5¼@6; Utah-Idaho, 3¼@3½.

Prices in the public utility shares continued to display a steady tone. Initial trades in American Gas and Electric new common stock ranged between 37½ and 38¼. American Power and Light common was slightly lower at 178 bid, 180 asked, while the preferred sold at 84. American Light and Traction common continued its downward trend, being off an additional 2 points at the close at 126 bid, 127 asked. Appalachian Power common improved some 2 points at 37 bid, 38 asked. The preferred changed hands at 86¼ and 87½. Trading in the Cities Service issues was on a small scale and prices somewhat lower. The common was quoted at the close at 180 bid, 182 asked; preferred, 69 bid, 69½ asked. Bankers shares, 18 bid, 18½ asked. Commonwealth Power, Railway and Light common lost a point at 32½ bid, 34 asked, while the Commonwealth corporation preferred sold at 71. Northern Ohio Electric common sustained a loss of some 2 points at 7½ bid, 8½ asked, as did the preferred at 28½ bid, 31 asked. United Light and Railway issues were fractionally lower, the common closing at 18½, the 6 per cent preferred at 77½, and the 7 per cent participating preferred at 91½.

SAVINGS ACCOUNTS

FREE

We mean just what we say. This is a plan to introduce to you our new Savings Investment Department; to make a large number of new friends in a short time. We have set aside $150,000 of 6½% First Mortgage Bonds, each of $100 denomination. Every purchaser of one of these bonds will receive, absolutely free, a deposit of five dollars ($5) in a savings account in any bank in the United States. And we'll be glad to explain how simple it is to make this account grow into a substantial fortune by gradual saving and investing the accumulated funds in sound

6½% First Mortgage Bonds

This offer is not limited to purchasers of $100 bonds. The person who buys a $500 bond will receive a savings deposit of $25; the buyer of a $1000 bond will receive a deposit of $50.

Frankly, we're doing this as an out-and-out inducement for investors to come in and get acquainted with us. Our Savings Investment Department is comparatively new, though it is conducted by men of proven experience. It is handling only first mortgage bonds based on high grade income-producing property and protected by the safeguards that inspire confidence in investors.

MERCHANDISE BUILDING CORPORATION, MORTGAGOR

The bonds are secured by a first mortgage on land (owned in fee) and 22-story steel fireproof construction building on Wells Street between Madison and Washington Streets, in the "loop," Chicago, to be known as the Central Merchandise Building, representing an investment of approximately $2,500,000.

The structure will meet the great demand for space, under one roof, where manufacturers and wholesalers can display their goods for local and out-of-town buyers. The need for this building in Chicago, the great central west market, has long been felt; and the builders are already assured the co-operation of prospective tenants. The location is excellent.

Figured conservatively, the annual income is estimated at $356,580, or more than 3½ times the greatest interest charge.

Amortization plan provides for monthly payments of an amount equal to 1/12th of annual requirements for interest and principal combined; said payments to be kept in a sinking fund until required.

The Chicago Title and Trust Company have issued their title guarantee policy for $1,500,000, certifying that the land is owned in fee, and that the title is clear.

Savings and Investment the Way to Wealth

There is just one sure way to provide for a comfortable old age, to insure an education for the children, or to build a fortune, and that is through saving little by little and investing in sound securities. The best way to get anywhere is to start, and this applies to saving as much as to traveling. That's why we decided upon this savings plan; giving to each investor, large or small, a definite start toward financial independence and real, helpful advice on how to "get there."

Why Great Western Bonds Are Specially Strong

Great Western Bonds are not issued on all kinds of real estate. Before we accept a loan it must be shown that the property to be mortgaged is of the highest grade; virtually certain to produce an income exceeding by several times the maximum interest requirements on the bonds. Then the owner of the property is required to pay off a part of his loan every year, thus reducing his debt and increasing the security behind the bonds still out. The amount of money required for both interest and principal each year is divided into twelve equal parts, payable monthly; so that we are always sure to have the required amounts in hand ready to pay to the bondholders before the due dates. In short, we take every precaution to make Great Western Bonds the equal of any other real estate bonds in safety of principal and sureness of interest. They are a preferred investment yielding the attractive rate of 6½% interest. We are anxious to have you know all about them. We have no expensive sales organization to maintain, so we can take this unusual method for getting acquainted with investors.

These savings deposits may be made in the name of anyone, man, woman or child, and in any bank in the country. We want especially to start a great many accounts for children, as we believe there is no better way to teach them thrift and wise investment. Just let us know what name to put on the account and what bank to put it in, and we'll do the rest. Partial payments on bond purchases if desired. Any other details will be gladly given at your request.

Figuratively Speaking

We are just laying the foundation of what is destined to be the most attractive metropolitan city in the world. The carrying out of the Greater Chicago Plan in its farsightedness, embracing a wonderful scheme of Lake Front beautification, and the Forest Preserve system of Cook County, as an outer Natural Park system, are some of the major plans taking concrete form.

We believe absolutely in the stability of real estate values within this radius. Our First Mortgage Bonds secured by highly improved property offer a choice investment. Ask for our current list of Bonds.

Week end hog sales lowered largely 5@10c under the pressure of liberal offerings. Supply on hand at about 23,800, including 6,400 "directs" and 7,764 over from Friday, compared with only 15,791 previous Saturday and 15,694 two weeks ago. Butcher grades showed the least decline, regaining part of the loss at the close. Light were 10@15c lower, with top off 10c at $8.55. Average price lowered 10c at $8.30, but shows 15c gain over previous Saturday. Pigs were neglected at uneven declines.

Receipts of hogs last week at 174,300 were second smallest in five months, being 22,900 smaller than previous week, 52,400 larger than a year ago, and 57,400 above the ten year average. Estimated average weight of hogs at 228 lbs stands 1 lb lighter than previous week, 4 lbs lighter than a year ago, and 6 lbs above the ten year average. Small receipts forced the week's average price 20c above previous week to $8.40, standing highest since January, $1.90 below a year ago, and $2.95 under the ten year average.

Cattle receipts last week at 57,700 were second largest since January, yet the market showed an upward tendency, with week's top at $10.40 highest in over a month, and general average price of good beef steers highest since opening month of the year at $9.10, against $7.85 a year ago. Eastern orders showed improvement, and the local demand was better than for some time past.

Sheep Sell High.

Scarcity of aged sheep forced last week's average price to $8.20, the highest week's average since May, 1922, while the largest offerings of lambs since January dropped prices to the year's low point, with last week's lamb average, at $13.45, standing lowest since late in 1922. Closing wool lamb values ruled 40@50c under a week ago, with clipped stock off fully 25c. Yearlings shared the general decline. Aged sheep advanced unevenly, in some cases showing as much as 50@75c gain since a week previous. Top lambs this week, $14.90; aged sheep, $10.00, showing a "spread" of less than $5.00.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 21,000 cattle, 54,000 hogs, and 21,000 sheep, against 23,181 cattle, 52,660 hogs, and 22,025 sheep a week ago, and 17,270 cattle, 40,396 hogs, and 14,005 sheep a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 56,000 cattle, 160,000 hogs, and 77,000 sheep, against 44,375 cattle, 121,724 hogs, and 49,330 sheep a year ago.

Certain-Teed Products Co. Absorbs Three Companies

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—The Certain-Teed Products corporation of New York today purchased control of the Acme Cement Plaster company of St. Louis, Mo., the Cook Linoleum company of Trenton, N. J., and the Thomas Potter Sons & Co. of Philadelphia. The consideration paid by the Certain-Teed corporation was $8,000,000, according to an announcement made tonight by S. W. Straus & Co. of New York, who is handling the new financing for the deal. The purchase of the three companies by the Certain-Teed corporation marks the first step in a merger involving millions of dollars, which is expected to be completed early next week.

An issue of $8,000,000 first mortgage 6½ per cent serial bonds was purchased by S. W. Straus & Co. from the Certain-Teed Products corporation for the purpose of financing the merger of the four companies. The loan is for a period of twenty years.

BEG YOUR PARDON.

In the tabular compilation of reports of conditions by Chicago banks appearing in The Tribune yesterday, errors were made in the figures for two banks. Deposits of the First National Bank of Oak Park should have appeared as $638,255 instead of $393,352. Savings deposits of the Garfield Park State bank should have appeared as $2,941,268 instead of $2,541,268, while as of Dec. 29, 1922, they should have been shown at $2,538,947 instead of $3,538,947. Both banks show considerable gains in the respective items compared with the last previous statements.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Trade in produce was fair with no change in values of butter, eggs, poultry or potatoes. Arrivals of the latter were 51 cars and 270 cars were on track. Supplies of fruits and vegetables were fair and buying somewhat restricted by the heavy rains.

Munsing Company Buys Wayne Knitting Mills

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 7.—[Special.]—The Wayne Knitting mills, one of the largest hosiery mills in the country, was sold today to the Munsing Underwear corporation for approximately $2,000,000. The mills were founded by the Thieme brothers of this city many years ago and grew within a very short time to be a giant industry. The stock of the company represents 18,000 shares, the majority of which are in the hands of four local business men. The mill employs 2,000 persons. The sale does not affect the Thieme brothers' silk mills.

All of this Stock having been sold, this advertisement appears as a matter of record only.

The company has no funded debt

From his letter, Mr. James A. Woods, President of the Company, summarizes as follows:

HISTORY: The Bridgeport Machine Company, organized under the laws of the State of Delaware, has acquired all of the assets, business and good will of the old corporation. This business was originally started in 1907 with assets of approximately $10,000. Through successful operation, the old company, consistently increased its assets until the corporation now has a net worth of $2,390,000. In addition, the Company has paid out of earnings large amounts in Federal taxes, cash dividends and advertising.

NATURE OF BUSINESS. The Company is engaged in the manufacture, sale and rental of the well-known Bridgeport line of oil well drilling and fishing tools and Swan Underreamers which are distributed and rented through a complete sales organization, including 15 branches. It numbers among its customers most of the leading oil companies of the country and its products enjoy a good demand in the eastern and foreign markets.

PROPERTY: The Company owns and operates two complete modern manufacturing plants, located in Wichita, Kansas, and Marietta, Ohio. The latter plant, devoted exclusively to the manufacture of Swan Underreamers, is said to be the most complete of its kind in the world.

ASSETS: Net tangible Assets as of December 31, 1922, were $1,790,023. Net Current Assets equal $203 per share and the Fixed Assets $148 per share, or total Net Tangible Assets of $358 per share of Preferred Stock.

EARNINGS: The average net earnings for the four years ending December 31, 1922, after depreciation and Federal taxes computed at the 1922 rates, were $310,419, which is equal to nearly nine times the annual Preferred dividend requirements on the $500,000 Preferred Stock to be outstanding.

The net earnings for 1922 were equal to over twelve times the annual Preferred dividend and at the rate of $2.70 per share on the Common Stock after all charges. Earnings for the first two months of 1923 showed an increase of more than 20% over same period last year or at the rate of over $3.00 per share on the Common Stock, which we are advised will be placed on dividend basis of $1.00 per annum.

The Company has made substantial Profits in each year of its operation since its organization in 1907.

SINKING FUND: A Sinking Fund is provided into which there shall be paid after preferred dividends 5% of the net profits of each year with a minimum of $25,000, to retire Preferred Stock beginning with 1924.

MANAGEMENT: The management and control of the Company is to continue in the hands of the same men who have successfully conducted the company's business since its inception.

All legal details in connection with this issue are subject to the approval of Messrs. Greene and Hurd, of New York and Messrs. Stebbins, Garey, L'Amoreaux & Hurtubise, of Chicago for the Bankers, and Messrs. Holmes, Yankey, Holmes & Eaton of Wichita, Kansas, for the Company, and this offering is in all respects subject to such approval. Appraisals of fixed assets by Coats & Burchard Company, and all intangible assets by Messrs. Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc., audits by Messrs. Ernst & Ernst, Certified Public Accountants.

We have purchased that portion of the above issue not allotted to the stockholders of the former Bridgeport Machine Company and offer the same at the price indicated for delivery when, as and if issued and accepted by us, in the form of temporary Stock Certificates or Interim Receipts exchangeable for Definitive Stock Certificates when prepared.

Application will be made to list the peferred and common stock on the Chicago Stock Exchange and New York Curb Market.

Price $96.00 per share and accrued dividends to yield over 7.25%

Purchasers of Preferred Stock may subscribe simultaneously to twice the number of shares of Common Stock at $14 per share.

First Mortgage 7% Bonds

Secured by Modern Apartments

A Limited Opportunity Since you are offered good, sound bonds week in and week out by this House, it may be hard to realize that this is a chance to put your money into something exceptionally choice, desirable and limited to a few prompt buyers.

But certainly this small issue—only $120,000—ought to appeal to you as a particularly fine one, first because of the Washington Boulevard location (at Cuyler Avenue) in Oak Park, and then the up-to-date building, its earnings and the 7% yield.

Gilt Edge Security Substantial, intelligent, progressive people want to live in Oak Park, and that is why a mortgage on this property means real security. The twenty-one apartments will provide ample money to pay the bondholders' interest and to retire the serial bonds.

Splendid Earnings Our Purchasing Department, long experienced in real estate financing of this type, states that the rental income will be at least four times the highest yearly interest.

IT STANDS to reason that you cannot gain an appreciative idea of the superiority of these bonds without a better picture than this and a complete description of this property. No doubt you will be glad to invest in these 7% bonds when you see for yourself how fine they are.

The New York Times.

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—To all intents the stock market ended the week quite motionless. Numerically, declines exceeded advances today, but the changes were so small as to mean little or nothing. Comparison of the week's final prices with those of a week ago shows a large preponderance of net declines.

Professional Wall street is apt to explain that fact on the theory that the speculative market is balancing highly favorable trade developments against the chance of tightening money. In a measure this is true, because the stock exchange has for several months been "discounting" revival in trade, whereas it cannot be said to have discounted rising money rates at all.

Market Awaits New Developments.

The experience of recent years ought to have made Wall street familiar with a stock market which halts while expansion of trade goes on, and which takes its cue for later movements only when all the indications for the ensuing season are in sight.

While stocks have halted, bonds have been slowly rising. Even the "averages" show recovery of nearly a point since the year's low prices were reached ten days ago, and foreign bonds are fully 3½ points above the season's lowest. For the most part the foreign bonds were distinctly strong again today, among them the French republic 8 per cents touched the high price of the year. It is still too early to assume any sustained recovery in the general run of fixed revenues while active trade is diverting capital from the investment market.

Government Bonds Move Up.

The week's movement is interesting, especially when it included recovery of nearly ½ point in most of the United States 4¼ per cents. Probably the rising prices for European bonds has been a consequence of the market's discovery after several months of entire incredulity that there had been important improvement in Europe's economic condition and that the deadlock in the Ruhr, while in some trades stopping the recovery, has had no sweepingly adverse influence on the general position.

Foreign exchange was as lifeless at the week-end as the stock market; even for the week as a whole there has been little change except for the continuing weakness in sterling.

German Inflation Goes On.

The steadiness of the German mark showed again the extent to which the internal and external influence of the huge paper inflation differs in its apparent scope. The Reichsbank today reported on the pace of inflation in the closing week of March; it is difficult to discuss the matter seriously.

Suffice it to say that the 562,000,000,000 marks of paper currency, printed and issued in that week, makes an output of a trillion and a quarter in the fortnight, which is an achievement when one remembers that it was not until the third week of December that the entire paper currency reached the trillion mark. Considering all the circumstances, nothing like this has been seen before in the world's financial history.

New York Loans Drop.

No tendency toward inflation is seen in the weekly report of the New York clearing house banks. Last week's increase in loans was almost completely offset by a decrease this week of $79,-140,000. Net demand deposits fell off $56,-127,000, while time deposits increased $8,618,000. Surplus reserve decreased $2,622,930, leaving a balance of $2,276,570. Details of the statement, with comparisons, follow:

LIBBY, M'NEILL AGAIN SHOWING PROFIT BUSINESS

Libby, McNeill & Libby, which in its fiscal year ended March 5, 1922, sustained a loss of $22,428,763, is again running at a profit. In its annual report for the year ended March 3, 1923, a modest increase of $182,868 is shown in the surplus account.

Inasmuch as the funded debt carries an interest charge of $700,000 a year, the company's net earnings before interest, but after depreciation charges, although not shown in the report, must have amounted to $882,868. The surplus for the year is equal to 1.01 per cent on the company's $18,000,000 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock.

Business in the first half of 1922 was unprofitable, but according to the statement of President E. G. McDougall to stockholders, conditions are now more favorable and the outlook for 1923 is cheerful.

The balance sheet as of March 3 last, with comparisons, follows:

FINANCIAL NOTES

Bear traders, sensing a weak technical position in the Barnsdall Oil issues, started an attack on those shares yesterday and succeeded in touching off a number of stop loss orders, with the result that the A stock dropped more than 6 points and the B 2. Buying support was forthcoming, however, approximately half of the extreme losses being recovered before the close. American Agricultural Chemical preferred and Iron Products were similarly depressed, but each showed fair recuperative power.

Selling of United States government bonds in the last hour, bringing most of the active issues down from Friday's gains, was the feature of the trading yesterday. The losses ranged from 2-32 to 9-32 of a point. The tax exempt 3½s and treasury 4¼s held firm.

Directors of the National Department Stores, Inc., declared an initial quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the first preferred stock, payable May 1 to stock of record April 20. An initial dividend of 2 1-3 per cent was also declared on the second preferred stock covering the four months' period to June 1. This dividend is payable June 1 to stock of record May 20. In the future the company announced dividends on the second preferred stock would be payable quarterly.

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank reports the weekly movement of credits as follows: Debits to individual deposit account reported for the week ending April 4 by 266 banks in thirty-five leading clearing house cities in the Seventh federal reserve district aggregate $1,211,234,000, an increase of 13.4 per cent compared with a week ago. Aggregate debits to individual deposit account reported by 237 banks in thirty-one clearing houses amounted to $1,195,769,000, an increase of 9.7 per cent compared with the corresponding week of last year.

Stockholders of the Duquesne Light company will vote June 4 on increasing the authorized capital stock by $275,000,000, to consist of $150,000,000 first preferred and $125,000,000 participating second preferred. The authorized $25,000,000 common stock will remain unchanged.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Hayes Wheel company that its sales for February had amounted to $1,430,000. January sales amounted to $1,350,000, and March is expected to show close to $1,500,000.

RAILROAD NOTES

Traffic figures, according to officials of rail lines operating east of Chicago and St. Louis, show no change in the general business conditions. The continued cold weather has kept up the shipments of coal. There has been a larger number of cars loaded with general merchandise than a year ago, and the increase in all kinds of traffic appears to be quite evenly distributed. Officials of southern lines are well satisfied with the operation of the freight departments. The total number of cars loaded with revenue freight has shown a further increase.

The American Railway Express company under an order of the interstate commerce commission yesterday, is required to establish a joint service with the Southeastern Express company to provide reasonable through routing for shipments in conjunction with that company and to and from all points in the United States. Many southern cities and shipping associations joined in the proceedings before the commission in which the decision resulted.

Authority to issue $5,000,000 in receiver's certificates was given by the commission to the receiver of the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad. Of the proceeds, $1,500,-000 will be used as first payments on new equipment, while the balance will go to pay existing indebtedness and to meet deficits in operating expenses.

The first unit in an ambitious reconstruction program of the Chicago freight terminal facilities of the Burlington railroad is finished and will be open for business tomorrow. This unit will be used for less than carload outbound business, and is east of Canal street between Harrison and Polk streets.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1923: Fairchild News Service.]

NEW YORK—Suspender manufacturers report business still increasing. The vogue of cuffless trousers is one reason, they say, and national publicity campaign is given as another.

NEW YORK—Dress wholesalers report complete satisfaction with post-Easter business. The cold weather, which affected the retailers, has had little bearing on the wholesale trade. Many manufacturers look for a prolonged spring season as the result of early Easter.

NEW YORK—Women's Wear, of New York, finds, as the result of a survey of retail dress prices, that quotations this spring show little change as compared with last spring. This year, perhaps, Paris replicas are confined to a smaller range of prices, but featured dresses of the practical sort remain the same.

HOW TO SELECT SAFE BONDS

It Took 38 Years to Write This Important Investment Book!

NOW FREE TO EVERY INVESTOR

Thirty-eight years of intensive experience—thirty-eight years of sound, conservative business practice—thirty-eight years of examining and investigating thousands of investments—were necessary before we acquired the fundamental investment knowledge which we have embodied in this important book.

Eight Ways to Test the Safety of Every Investment

For thirty-eight years the firm of George M. Forman & Company has been buying and selling investments. From this intensive experience our experts have developed eight tests which, when properly applied furnish a complete and accurate index to the safety of any investment.

For your information we have carefully compiled these tests in a booklet, which will be sent you free upon request.

THIS book tells, in clear, definite, simple language the basic principles which influence all investments. It classifies all types of investments so that any one can quickly grasp the fundamental differences—the advantages and disadvantages of each one. It gives the few simple, easy, but very important rules by which insurance companies and other big corporations select their investments—assuring them strong security with a high yield.

It tells you how you may judge the merits of any investment—how you may select the investment best suited to your needs—how you may protect your principal against loss or mismanagement. With the aid of the very important, very vital information contained in this book an inexperienced investor may go about the selecting of his investments confident that he is getting the same safety as the most experienced investor.

This book is, we sincerely believe, one of the most concise, most informative manuals ever prepared on the subject of investments. It gives, in condensed form, the investment knowledge which we have acquired in our conservative investment experience of over 38 years—during which time no customer has ever lost a penny of either principal or interest on any Forman investment.

Look for a Home with a Weil-McLain Boiler

When you look for that new home, remember that the house with a Weil-McLain Boiler is worth more as an investment and worth more to live in. This heating plant adds definitely to the value of any home, old or new.

No matter how long and cold the winter, a Weil-McLain Boiler will keep every nook and corner of every room snugly warm and cozy. With a Weil-McLain in the basement, any home is "easy to heat," because this highly developed boiler supplies such a flood of steady, even warmth with so litte effort.

And it is remarkably economical in its use of fuel. In spite of the high price of coal last winter, thousands of home owners cut their fuel bills to a hitherto unattainable minimum by installation of this efficient heating plant.

Many years of study by Weil-McLain have resulted in perfecting the two major functions of a boiler. These are: First, complete burning of fuel; Second, full utilization of the heat units developed.

In Weil-McLain Boilers every pound of fuel is completely burned—made to yield a maximum number of heat units. Waste is practically eliminated.

Then the heat thus created is fully utilized to heat your home or building due to three remarkable Weil-McLain features.

The Weil-McLain fuel-saving corrugated "double-surface" crown sheet gives double the heating surface directly above the fire. The simple candle test shows that this is the most valuable surface in any boiler.

All other heating surfaces are also corrugated. This further promotes economy of fuel and heating efficiency.

A long "back-and-forth" fire travel holds the hot gases in continuous contact with all the fuel-saving surfaces so that heat cannot be wasted up the chimney.

Other features of Weil-McLain Boilers are: large fire door; handy front cleanout doors for each section; smooth non-clogging surface of lower one-third of fire pot; triangular grates which cut and shake all ordinary clinkers.

Weil-McLain Boilers also are more efficient when oil is used for fuel. The heat produced by the oil burning device is fully utilized by the double surface crown sheet directly above the fire, other corrugated heating surfaces and the long "back-and-forth" fire travel.

Prompt deliveries of Weil-McLain Boilers can be made now. Large stocks are carried in Chicago and Michigan City, Ind.

Write us for further information. We will send you, if desired, the name of a competent heating contractor who will serve you.

Fashions Beauty Contests

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

KNOWN FOR HER SILHOUETTE.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—Everybody was talking about a woman in Paris and I could not locate her.

"What's she like?" I asked.

"She's that one with the excellent taste and the smart silhouette," the artist answered.

And I found her. Shouldn't you think I would? For good taste and silhouettes are just about as rare in Paris as elsewhere, although incoming Americans visiting the city for the first time seem to expect them to be a drug on the market here. They protest to me that they do not like the French figure and that every woman they see has not chic.

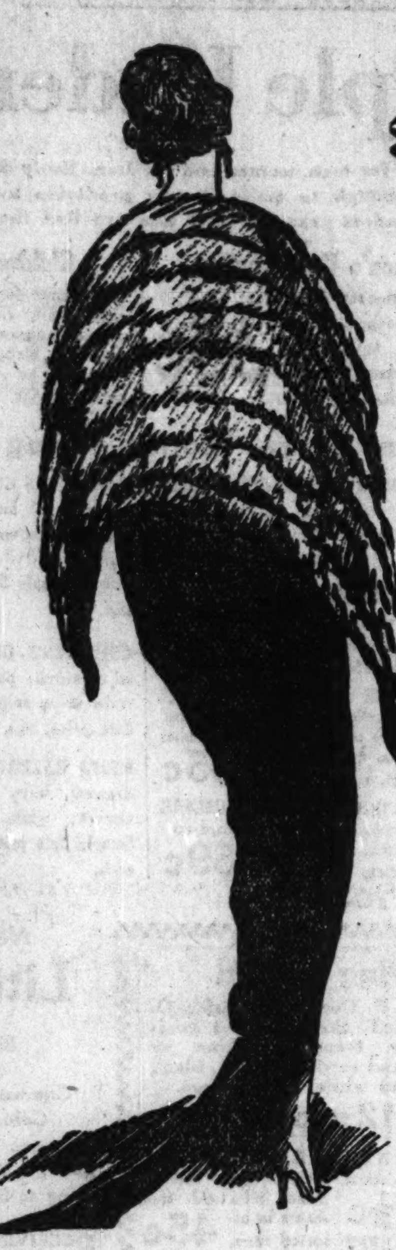
But in pursuance of the woman under discussion I asked further, "Is she the one who goes round with the blonde Spaniard?"

I might have added that she herself was Spanish and blonde—thereby proving conclusively that according to standards over the rest of the world we did sure enough get the cart before the horse. In some localities we Americans would have mentioned the last points as more saliently identifying than the first.

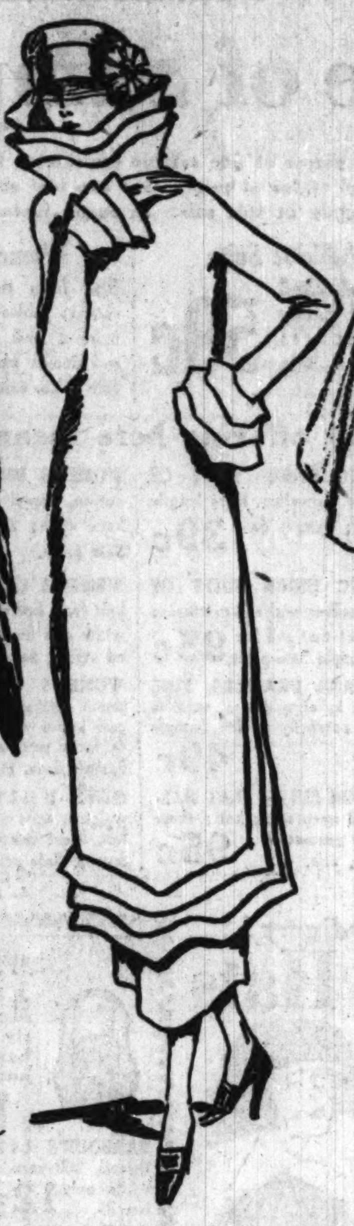
Still, the great thing is that we found her who is noted in Paris in a sketch displaying both of them to an extent. She is wearing one of the most elegant of evening manteaux that I have seen since the spring styles have unfolded themselves. And yet I am not sure it isn't one made in the late winter. But don't ever think that the late winter in Paris does not incorporate all of the movements of the whole year to come.

The wrap is of black velvet, and made ample—so that one may pull it round the tighter. A skimpy wrap can only be as slinky and perpendicular as it is made. And so as with everything in life, when it has reached its skimpiest it has to revert to the other extreme in order to obtain freedom of expression. It can seem the tighter in that it can be drawn more effectively to the front.

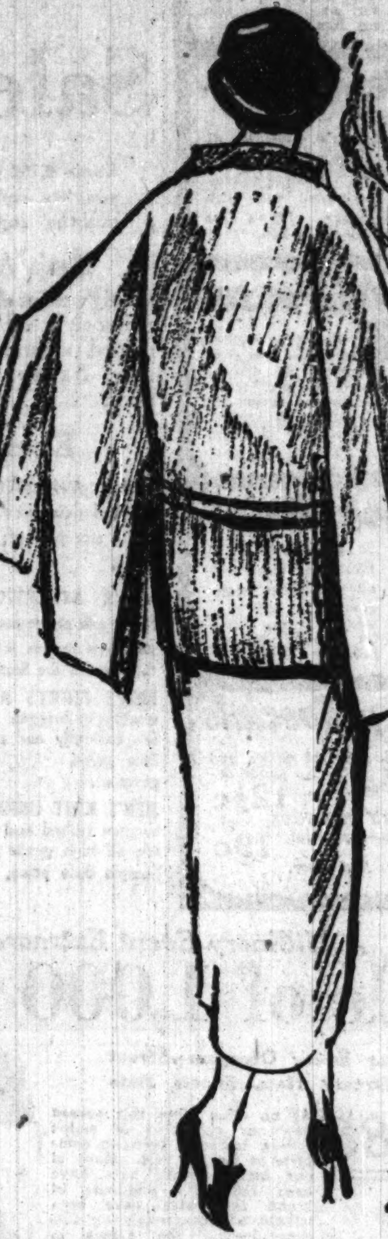
But anyway the most distinguishing thing about it—especially when taken in comparison and in contrast with that narrow outline—is the collar, of sable, and huge and square. You see how it falls—just as any square piece of material would if tossed around the shoulders and secured around the neckline. It is really more like a cape than a collar in the way it hangs. The black velvet dress has a square train, too, and this is one of the ways the Spanish beauty shows her unusual taste, which even has a dramatic turn to it—to have the train and the collar of another garment separate from it both square.



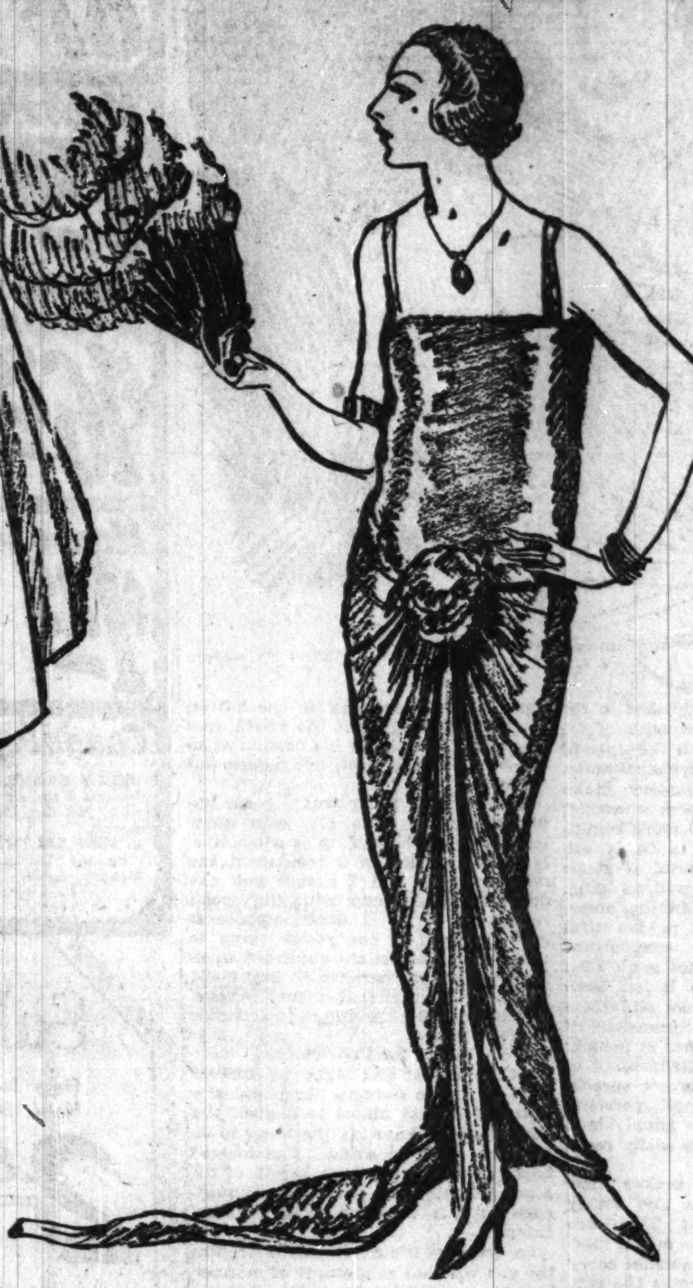
Wrap of black velvet with square collar of sable.



Dark gray tailleur trimmed in bias ruffs of material.



Suit of black rep with winglike capes.



Brocaded evening dress with crystal beads.

The second woman also is one of the smartest Paris has shown lately—or should one say who has shown herself in Paris of late? The latter phraseology would at least be the more usual to employ for other cities. But all Paris—and especially at this time of year—seems like a great display ground, showing all of the signs of spring, especially new and lovely frocks. This woman is slender like a greyhound, and extremely refined in face. I saw her first at Reboux having a hat built on her—the hat she is wearing here—and in this tailored frock. It is of dark gray, and has ruffs of the materials—or should one call them merely bias folds?—at the collar and the cuffs, and running almost in the effect of an overdress above the hem and up the left side. The hat is of black felt, and has a cocarde on the side to complete it and the more than smart ensemble.

There are ribbons and still more ribbons on everything. Reboux goes in for violet and green, both in beautiful shades. She has loops of them on white horsehair hats for out of town places. One of them is made in alternate stripes of gold and highly colored brocaded ribbon. One of her pretty, practical hats is of brown straw, trimmed solely in a cocarde of marron and black.

We present herewith the silhouette of which Renee is fond—and what Renee sponsors is always an important factor in any season's styles. Sometimes I think this suave little Italian girl more embodies in her own personality the spirit of French chic than the native women who have made the style of their city famous—or, to put it more broadly, have made their city and even their country famous for its styles. This dress embodies that fashion that crept up on us quietly, almost stealthily, as nearly every staple style of dignity and good standing does. Every periodical that tries to exploit a new style as something sudden and thrown up during the night or a dull period in other news violates the spirit of the fashions.

You have watched the progress of capes as trimmings. They have hung down the back like a curtain, they have wrapped one around, and they have been something detachable and apart. The only real rule for them since they left off their practical work as a wrap and became garniture was that they should have no economic value in one's wardrobe and should under no circumstances keep one warm.

In the present costume of Renee's there are two of them, and they may button over the sleeves, although in the drawing they are sewn down. The essential point about them is that they should be like wings, and appear to buoy one up the Champs Elysees as they float out in the breeze made by one's movement in walking. The tailleur is of black rep, and it has a perfectly simple skirt.

The fourth offering portrays the type of brocade "body fitting" dress that one sees in greater numbers as the seasons roll. This one is draped up the front, and has crystal beads scattered over the split skirt, which is drawn (we used to say "puckered" of that line out in Indiana) up at the waist line in front and looks to be securely nailed down there by a cocarde from which falls a streamer, also done in crystal beads.

BEAUTY PLUS

by Antoinette Donnelly

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—At a social gathering of a dozen or more women there came up the subject—after the omnipresent topic of reducing had been exhausted—of ugly men. For even women are privileged to assail the opposite sex on the subject of beauty.

"The ugliest man I know," said the charming Miss X., "is the most fascinating. His manner is perfect. He not only is ugly of feature, but wears a toupee and has a slight stutter. You'd think that combination would make him unspeakably unattractive, but he truly is the most fascinating man I know. His vocabulary is amazing and his charm of manner so captivating that—well, I think he is the nicest person I know."

"I know a girl who is the most gorgeous looking creature," said another a little later in the conversation, "but she has the most abominable manner. Everybody detests her."

More Effective than Beauty.

You and I know men, perhaps minus the toupee and the stutter, who by sheer force of charm of manner make of themselves the most delightful acquaintances. Too, we know women counterparts of the thoroughly disliked beauty. We know men of Adonis type who are particularly distasteful because of a crudity of bearing, and women whom their best friends could not call beauties, but who retain the distinction of being numbered among the most charming.

Which proves beyond question that charm of manner is a more compelling force than mere beauty of outline, doesn't it?

It proves, further, that a knowledge of the forms of etiquette and courtesy is not to be scoffed at, for upon such basis alone may one establish the manner that appeals.

The kinship between conduct and beauty is emphatic. The Chinese sage, Confucius, went further. He could not tolerate the suggestion that virtue in itself is enough without politeness. He viewed them as inseparable, and "saw courtesies as coming from the heart," maintaining that "when they are practiced with all the heart, a moral elevation ensues."

Conventions were established in the beginning to regulate the rights of the individual, and they mark the upward climb of man from the primeval state. The conventions of courtesy make the wheels of life run more smoothly, the life of the individual more beautifully. Upon the importance of etiquette, diplomatic etiquette, at peace conferences the lives of nations hang. In society, in business, in the home, and in the making of a beautiful woman, etiquette is no unimportant trifle. Good taste may not make men or women virtuous, but it has been known to save many from situations which might have been "occasions of sin." Grossness in manner is usually based upon selfishness. Refinement of manner is good taste, correct speech, unassuming behavior, and personal pride. Lack of polish is simply lack of education, and may be easily rectified in this age.

A girl with beauty makes that beauty more impressive and lovely with a courteous manner. There are many good etiquette books on the market. Newspapers and magazines carry helpful departments covering the subject, so that crudity nowadays is a matter of preference.

Things to Remember.

Take the simple matter of making introductions. It is done with ease and grace when a knowledge of the correct form is known. The correct formal introduction is: "Mrs. Jones, may I present Mr. Smith?" Remember, the younger person is always presented to the older or more distinguished, a man is always presented to a woman, even though he be old or distinguished, and the other but a slip of a girl.

Know when to shake hands, what to say when introduced, how to introduce one person to a group, how to take graceful leave, how to become a gracious hostess, how to send invitations and how to answer them, how to conduct oneself in public dining rooms and hotels and on the street. Particularly familiarize yourself with the niceties of table etiquette, where perhaps more beauty stock slumps than upon any other market place.

Just the other day a young man related the occasion of his first dinner with a girl—an 18 year old Chesterfield he was. The girl picked up a whole slice of bread, and buttered it in her hand, crudely slapping on the butter, to the utter disgust of the youth, and destroying completely his illusion when she began to talk with her mouth full of food.

That sort of thing would seem impossibly crude in a girl who knew enough to get herself up as attractively as one I saw in a restaurant the other evening, but I assure you she drank from her cup with the spoon remaining in it. I don't suppose it ever occurred to the young thing to use the excess dollars expended upon her outward appearance to buy book, magazine, or newspaper and become conversant with the etiquette demands of good society.

Makes for Popularity.

At the theater and dance the conduct of a girl is so akin to her popularity that she cannot afford to neglect the advantages of knowing the thing to do and the thing to avoid. The blasted hopes of social climbers bereft of all sense of etiquette prove that knowledge in this direction is a valuable thing.

In business life an employer prefers the girl who has refinement of manner because it regulates her mode of dress, her attitude toward fellow employés, her attitude toward customers and toward the smoother sailing of the entire organization.

Of course there are minor details and formal trivialities for the "sticklers for form" which are exaggerated. One may make small technical mistakes which bar her not from the paths of good society, but there are recognized rules of conduct which should be a part of the girl who would be esteemed attractive.

My Queerest Boss

There are good bosses and bad bosses, and then again there are bosses who are just queer. Will you ever be able to forget the queerest boss you ever had? The perplexities, and the frowns, and the laughs he caused you? Was it his attire that yielded the comedy? Some odd personal habit? Some eccentricity that reduced you to despair? Write out your story, using one side of the paper only and telling it is briefly as possible and send it to the Queerest Boss Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter published.

All the Precautions.

My boss keeps a thermometer, blood pressure gauge, and various medicines in a small cabinet which fastened to his desk. While working away, and all of a sudden he will grab the thermometer and thrust it into his mouth. After reading it he invariably takes a small pill or perhaps a spoonful of medicine. I am called upon to take his pulse or his blood pressure, and he continually kept the office boy on the run for various medicines and pills. The queerest part is he is never really ill. E. G.

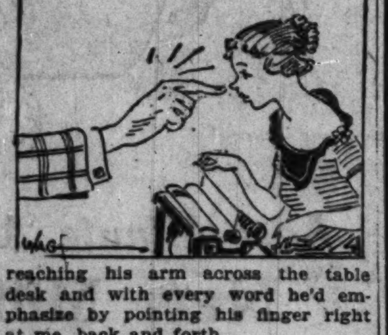
His Only Fault.

I had a position as telephone operator at a small switchboard. My boss was a model in all ways but one. Pay day came every two weeks and he invariably forgot to give us our checks, so we girls had a big black sign printed in large letters, "Today is pay day," and would hang that up every pay day. He would always pay us then. H. M.

Learn to Laugh.

I was a stenographer. At first my boss embarrassed me, then annoyed me, but after a time he made me laugh inwardly.

He would dictate in loud language, reaching his arm across the table desk and with every word he'd emphasize by pointing his finger right at me, back and forth.



Then he'd stop abruptly, run his finger over my notebook and say, "Read this line," when he didn't know shorthand from Chinese. C. L.

$84.75

IMAGINE offering 200 cabinets in a city where thousands of housewives are hungry for this very size and model! More than likely there will be 200 waiting at our doors at 8:30 A. M. tomorrow, so amazing is the price.

☛ The picture at the left tells the story—the model "J" Napanee Dutch Kitchenet, 4 ft. wide, big and roomy, equipped to the last detail of refinement. Of course the dinnerware, canned goods, breakfast food, etc., are not included. But it comes equipped with white porcelain table top, 8 pc. set crystal glassware, patented easy-fill flour bin, dustproof curtain, and other conveniences.

Easy Terms of Payment

In Snow White, French Gray Enamel, or Oak

Kitchen Cabinets used to be slapped together like a doll's house. The Napanee is built like lifetime furniture. See the partly finished model on our floor. You'll see cabinetmaking that an oldtime woodworker could be proud of.

Easy payments enable anyone to have any Napanee in their home at once.

Think of it! This week you can buy a genuine latest Model D Napanee Dutch Kitchenet, as featured at the right, handsomely finished in new white or French gray enamel, and equipped with white porcelain table top (latest non-buckling type), eight-piece set crystal glassware, patented "Easy Fill" flour bin, dustproof curtain, etc., at the amazing price of only $49.75

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

FRUIT INFUSIONS AND OTHER TEAS.

IF THERE is one thing more than another that the human race needs it is a sane beverage regimen. Think it over, and you can find a thousand reasons, backed by no end of evidence, why this is true. In complete nutrition the liquid part of the diet, furnishing, as it does, refreshment, nutriment and working power, has at least as important a part to play as the solid, yet what happens, and can you leave it to the cook?

Better than Fruit Cocktail.

Let the cook attack this problem then. There is plenty of help or suggestion for it in the old books of recipes. Hot fruit drinks for breakfast or luncheon can be made rather inexpensively and in great variety. They are better than a fruit cocktail as an appetizer, and more comforting if served hot. They may even be a delight!

Don't shudder at the idea of apple tea. You will be astonished to find how good it is when toned up. It is a hot fruit concoction, or what counts for a fruit juice, instead of a cold one, and for ailing stomachs that will be much better than one cold. In springtime you know a great many people have always taken something of the sort.

Splendid in Spring.

The Swedish people, and I think the Norwegians as well, call these hot fruit drinks by the name of soups and make great medical use of them, especially as spring comes on. Of course, people who know thoroughly well how to eat are not in particular need of them, but a good apple tea, even at the end of a good dinner, is a more justifiable drink than coffee, and acceptable, too.

The idea and the recipe for this was obtained from a medical book on health through diet by a famous doctor, but it is also found in cookery books. I tried the doctor's recipe substituting American for European measurements, and a small amount for a large. I fancy a Baldwin apple would make a better tea than the one I used as follows:

Apple Tea.

Wash and cut one good sized apple into quarters without paring it, and then slice each quarter into four pieces. Pour one cup of boiling water on the apple, and set for two hours in a place corresponding to the side of the stove, keeping it hot but not cooking. A hot radiator will do, or set it on a brick one end of which is over a gas burner. With a little sugar and orange juice—about a tablespoon—this makes a more delicious hot drink than you would guess.

Spiced Apple Tea.

People are always longing for the old mulled drinks. The plain apple tea seemed to suggest that one could spice it, so I prepared an apple in exactly the same way as for the plain tea, but made the addition of six cloves and a piece of candied stem ginger, sliced, which was about the size of half an egg and really more than was needed. The drink produced hot at the end of the two hours was better than I could have believed. I should not hesitate to give it as a guest beverage. Without a single addition, since the candied ginger had sweetened it, one could drink it with zest. In fact, I felt a genuine enthusiasm for it. But to perfect it I added a bit of orange juice and a little sugar.

This spiced tea is also palatable cold, without a single addition, and, I am quite sure, can be used as the foundation of an acceptable and unusual punch with orange juice, strawberries, and pineapple, but it would be one of those things that would have to be made to taste. I should be careful about adding lemon juice, but finally, if it seemed to need something, the emphasizing lemon would be brought into requisition.

In the book from which the recipe for the plain tea was taken it says that the tea is improved by two or three slices of lemon and five or six lumps of sugar per pint or less—half a liter. I think that far too much sweetening to use, but perhaps much sourer apples were intended than those we get at this season.

The comment following the recipe is: "This is an agreeable beverage for invalids, but healthy persons may also drink it instead of tea, as it tastes very good. It is to be served hot, and one obtains in this way, besides the juice, the full aroma of the apple, since the skin is left on." The plain tea is good, but the spiced is a treat.

Lemon Water.

Lemon water does not sound attractive, yet if made as directed in an old book, or as I interpret the directions there, which are not specific, and served quite cold, it is more palatable without a single addition than one would imagine before drinking it, and if the flavor of the peel was not wholly agreeable to the drinker, it might be made with less water.

The recipe said, to two slices of lemon thinly peeled with a little bit of the peel and a little bit of sugar add a pint of boiling water, or two full cups, cover closely, and let stand two hours. I took slices one-fourth of an inch thick, and at that rate out of one lemon there could be made a quart and a half of lemon water. I did not use any sugar, because I wanted to see if it would be drinkable without, and thought it was. More than that, the slices of lemon still contained considerable sour juice, and might be used with a mayonnaise dressing for a salad garnish, or to eat with sugar or dipped in a sirup and used to garnish a fruit compote.

Dried Fruit Waters.

All the dried fruits which are soaked in water and cooked are best if they are soaked until the water around them is drinkable, and agreeable without a single addition of sugar or a toning up fruit juice, like orange or lemon, although these latter may be used to perfect them, or make them more like some fine confection, and of a quality to stand the addition of a fizzy water—only a little required—for occasions of entertainment. Take prunes, which may be soaked twenty-four hours, then cooked gently so that they will not swell up and burst and muddy the water. The fruit may be eaten plain, and the juice used as a wholesome beverage, or the fruit may be stoned and dried somewhat, being more agreeable so than when wet, or it may be dipped in a hot sirup and eaten from it, or dried and stuffed and, because of the sirup, have a brilliant glaze. Prunes of two sizes may be cooked, and the small ones used to stuff the larger ones, to make a product superior to those you buy in boxes at about 20 cents a pound. Take the large white prunes. When these are cooked the hot clear water around them makes a delicious drink, and easier for many people to take than the prunes themselves. If these were to be cooked for a puree of marmalade they might be soaked in two cups of water per pound, but three could be used when a drink was desired, and the best fruit would flavor four cups, but might lose some of its own piquancy, as would any prune of any sort, but would yet be agreeable if dipped in hot sugar sirup.

Invalid's Own Drinks.

Of all the entertaining books full of recipes for unalcoholic drinks, I know of none more inherently entertaining than one published in 1888, and undoubtedly long out of print, which has the title: "The Invalid's Own Book, a Collection of Recipes from Various Books and Various Countries, by the Honorable Lady Cust."

The modern dietitian for the sick could really find less help from such a book, probably, than we who follow the idea that in all matters pertaining to diet an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. The thirst of an invalid may be insistent, and always to be gratified, but part of the gratification may come through solid foods. The caloric losses in fever are well understood nowadays and met by giving calories of food. If this is palatable enough—as it too often is not—a fever patient instead of emerging from his illness a mere shadow of his former physical self may at least come out without loss of flesh and perhaps with an increase.

Yes, the modern invalid is more than likely to get enough liquid. It is the people who would keep themselves from invalidism that need the agreeable teas and waters and nutritional drinks, the broths and soups, and perhaps occasionally the gruels and porridges such as are described in Lady Cust's book.

Sassafras Tea.

Lady Cust does not mention sassafras tea, the material for which has been awaiting our attention in our markets for some time. To make some tea from that, for sanitary reasons, wash the bark and quickly chip half a cup of it; pour over it three cups of boiling water, and let it infuse for fifteen minutes and strain.

Lady Cust makes licorice tea in much the same way, pouring boiling water over the bruised licorice branches, which I believe are sometimes called "sweet root," and she directs the same for cherry stalks, and we know that the bark of the black birch tree is also delicious in infusions.

A modern book could be prepared on this subject of agreeable and simple drinks, which people once fancied were remedial because of the slight stuff added to them by the name part, although what this really gave mostly was a flavor that made getting the requisite amount of liquid into the system—usually only in emergencies—pleasant. Reason will bear out this statement, and a slight bit of reason ought to show that abundant drinks are worth taking as a preventive, even as an agreeable daily part of the diet.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

TO OUR UNKNOWN FRIENDS.

AMONG the hundreds of good people who give a helping hand to those less fortunate through this department, there are some I want particularly to thank today—and I do so in print because that is the only way I have of reaching them. I refer to those who do not disclose their identity and whose help seems as veritable aid and sympathy from the clouds to the people who benefit from their generous kindness.

For example: For months and months this department has received, at least once a week, and often several times a week, a letter which is one of Chicago's heart warming mysteries of human kindness. The letter always is the same, written on a picture post-card. It says, "Kindly give the inclosed to, [naming some one whose appeal was printed during the week] with my best wishes, and oblige." Inclosed in an envelope with the card is a small brown envelope, containing a dollar bill. The card is signed "C. S."

We have no idea who C. S. is. Perhaps some of the charm in his or her steadfast kindness would be gone if we had. But we do know that people C. S. helps feel distressed over their inability to thank their benefactor, and we receive requests constantly to let C. S. know how much the thoughtfulness was appreciated. I am happy, therefore, to thank C. S. now, both on their behalf and for this department, for these unfailing messages of helpfulness and cheer.

Again, a few weeks ago we had word from neighbors of a distressed mother and son. The son was 30, but crippled and helpless, and the mother, over 70 years of age, supported them both. Among the many warm hearted responses to this appeal was a generous check from a man who wished to remain anonymous.

When the check was delivered the mother was not at home. But by a happy coincidence the delivery was made on the mother's birthday, and you can imagine the joy with which the son looked forward to presenting his mother, when she returned, worn and tired, from her day of toil, with this handsome birthday present from an unknown friend! And as the only way we have of letting this man and those who give as he did, know how deeply their gifts are appreciated, we say "thank you" here for the recipients and ourselves.

It would be hard sometimes to face the brute facts of the extent of misery to which humans are subjected in this great city, were it not that, in doing so, we see with it the tremendous and generous sympathy which stands ready, once the need is known, to lend a hand. It is people such as the two we have mentioned, and the far greater number whose identity is disclosed, that make even the misery worth while. They freshen faith in the goodness of life, and, although they never will hear directly the thanks of those they help, we assure them that they and their kind are remembered with undying gratitude by the growing little army of people to whom they have given new faith and courage for life's battles.

Cage for a Parrot.

"Will you please ask the kind readers of your column if these is a parrot cage which I could have. My cage is about gone and it would break my heart to part with Polly, a gift to me ten years ago. M. B."

Polly, Polly needs a new home. Who can provide it?

On Behalf of an Orphanage.

"A sixty-five note player was given to an orphanage. I am anxious to help them to get rolls for it and will pay any expense or call for them.

"MRS. E. K. J."

Who can respond to Mrs. E. K. J.'s request on behalf of the orphanage?

For the One They Fit.

"I have a pair of high shoes—brown leather, with light tan suede tops, size 4½ AA; also a pair of white canvas pumps, the same size, to give to some one. They are in almost perfect condition. K. C."

This shoe donation will find ready acceptance, I know.

"The Saturday Night Bath."

"Will you or one of your readers kindly furnish me with the words of an anonymous monologue entitled 'The Saturday Night Bath'? I have tried to secure it at the public library, but without success. S. S."

Perhaps some reader to whom this monologue is familiar will make a copy of it and send to me for the address of S. S.

Offers Magazines and Stove.

"I have six radio magazines and a dozen electrical engineering magazines published within a year, that some one may have. Also a hot blast stove which burns wood or charcoal, and a velveteen cloak and blue wool dress, size 38. L. B. M."

Thank you, L. B. M., for a generous offering.

Would Appreciate Ballet Slippers.

"If some reader has a pair of ballet slippers, size 5, that she no longer needs, I would certainly appreciate getting them. A. M."

I have your name on file, A. M., and shall remember you if ballet slippers are offered.

PROLOGUE.

We will leave Pa and Ma in the toils of the wicked city (movie slang for any large town), and turn a soft eye of solicitous inquiry on the progress, if any, of Mamie's affair with Gleason and Red Miller's affair with the advertising world . . . For Red, as you may or may not remember—it makes little difference which—has decided to go into the advertising "game," as it is playfully called, and knock a few big accounts for a row of ciphers . . . advertising is like Irish politics: anybody can get into it.

One cannot really make good in the advertising game unless one has a lot of friends—any advertising man will tell you that. And how do you make friends? Why, you go where the friends are the thickest. And where is that? Where the good fellows get together. Naturally Red Miller has taken his cue and we find him attending one of the weekly lunches of the local Kiwanis club.

SCENE I.

FRIEND (who has taken it upon himself to guide Red through the intricacies of fraternal good fellowship):
Now, remember, everybody calls everybody else by his first name.

RED:
Why?
(That's a fair question.)

FRIEND:
It makes everybody feel at home. It increases good fellowship. If they have a nickname, so much the better. Now, for instance, you have a dandy. It ought to take you a long way in the business world. "Red"—that's a peach of a name.

(Nods to himself pleasantly, proud of this extraordinary discovery. Picks out huge celluloid button on which his name, nickname, and line of business are prominently displayed . . . greets wearers of similar huge buttons with an abandon of enthusiasm . . . "Hello, Mike"; "hello, Pete"; "hello, you big bum"; "hello, you big stiff"; "hello, you big tramp" . . . A visitor from Mars would undoubtedly begin to feel nervous in such a gathering if he didn't know that the 100 per cent American, like the Lord, chastiseth only those whom he loves.)

FRIEND (introducing Red to milling groups):
'Lo, Bill; this is Red Miller; usta be great full back. Now he's gonna be an advertising man and throw a few accounts for a loss. Eh, Red?

RED (ethically):
O, I wouldn't say loss.
(Neither do the others.)

FRIEND (to Red, jocosely):
This is Bill Simpson. Old Bill Simpson. Getting old, ain't ya, Bill?

(Protests from Bill that he ain't so old that he can't take care of himself in a fight or a frolic . . . adds that, anyway, he has a bicycle, which remarks excites uproarious laughter . . . Red wonders what the bicycle story is . . . it's a peach, that's what it is . . .)

RED (enthusiastically):
Gosh, you got a mob here, ain't you?

FRIEND (proudly):
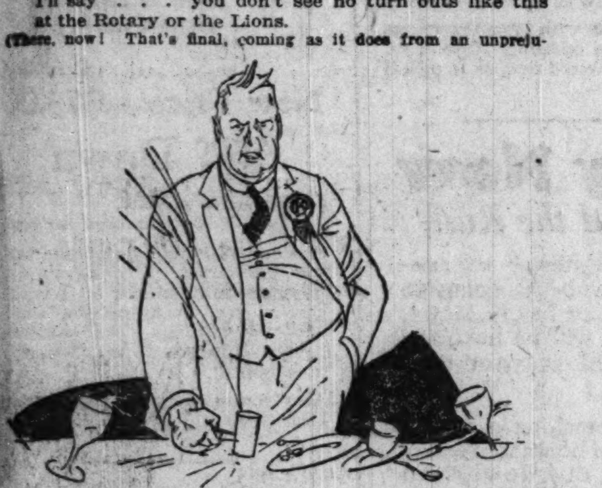
I'll say . . . you don't see no turn outs like this at the Rotary or the Lions.

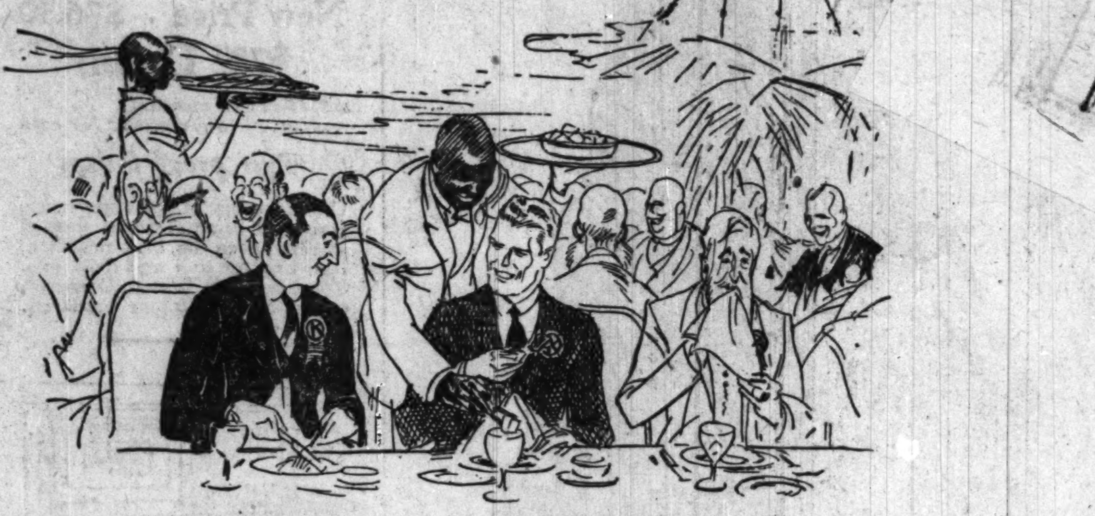
(There, now! That's final, coming as it does from an unprejudiced Kiwanian . . . members and guests pour in, leaving the usual baffled secretary at the door trying to account for ten or twelve who haven't paid . . . also the distraught master of ceremonies looking for the principal speaker, who hasn't showed up yet.)



Chairman crashes table with mallet.

SCENE II.

(The usual jovial leather-lungs leads the mob in a rousing song, after which a minister, presumably the chaplain, gives a practical illustration of the little boy's favorite line in "The Burial of Thomas Moore": "Few and short were the prayers they said" . . . commotion of getting seated . . . cries . . . greetings . . . 'Lo, Steve, you big stiff . . . shoot the salt up here, you big bum . . . Say, George, tell 'em the story about the darky and the eel; but where did yu get dem baby blue eyes? . . . ho, ho, ho . . . thass a peach . . .)



"Gosh, you got a mob here, ain't you?"

BILL (who always eats half and half for lunch . . . "gives his brain a chance to function afternoons," as he puts it):
See where Ford grabbed off the big Mississippi dam at Minneapolis. Government builds it and Ford gets it. He's crazy, that guy.

STEVE:
Yeh. He doesn't know a thing. Unconscious.

RED:
Silly like a serpent.

GEORGE:
What's he gonna build there?

BILL:
Why, don't you know? That's where he's gonna make all his squeaks. That's gonna be his squeak factory. In Detroit he's gonna make nothing but rattles. At Muscle Shoals, if he gets it, nothing but jolts and jars.

VOICES (assuming anguish):
Terrible . . . shut up . . . go home . . .

CHAIRMAN (pounding on table . . . nobody cares):
Gentlemen . . . Gentlemen! (Terrific din continues through room . . . cries, laughter . . . rattle of dishes . . . a jolly pandemonium . . . all present know the speaking will soon commence and are trying to enjoy themselves as long as possible.) Gentlemen. (Bang! Bang! Bang!) Ge men! (Nobody seems to hear.) Hey, you big tr (Gradual silence.) We're not going to listen regular reports today, because we want to g speaker his full time, except that how would to have the Kiwanis International hold t convention here?

UPROAR:
Wow! . . . 'Ray! . . . Attabebby!

CHAIRMAN (pounding for silence):
It means a lot of work if they come; but we don't mind that, do we?

(Loud cries of "We don't mind that" from all those who never do anything . . . thoughtful silence from the willing little babies who always get on the committees and do all the work.)

CHAIRMAN (with unextinguishable enthusiasm):
And now it is our great pleasure and privilege today to listen to a man who has made a large splash in the advertising world, whose advice is eagerly sought, and who has put over such campaigns as the National Sleep Better Mattress week, the Say It With Salted Peanuts week, and that successful Save the Surface and You Save All Cosmetic week. Gentlemen, I allude in these few fragmentary phrases to our distinguished fellow citizen, er—er—Mister—er—er (glances surreptitiously at his notes—can't find first name—coughs violently to pass it over and emerges triumphantly with the last name). Har-r-rumph Gleason, of the Gleason Advertising agency.

Audience leaps to its feet and bursts into gay song of greeting:

How do you do, Mr. Gleason; how do you do!
How do you do, Mr. Gleason; how do you do!
How do you do, Mr. Gleason;
How do you do—do—do.

(Unless ye become even as one of these ye shall not enter the Kingdom of Heaven.)

RED (as Gleason arises with a large smile and sheaf of notes):
Big stiff!

RED:
I want to lock the back
box.

GLEASON (who has now fi wanted to talk about):
And now, gentlemen, what is the s we going to get our people back to the some family life which is the foundation o zenship and the democratic ideals for which our fathers fought and bled . . .

RED (sotto voice):
What's the matter with life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness?

GLEASON (fervently):
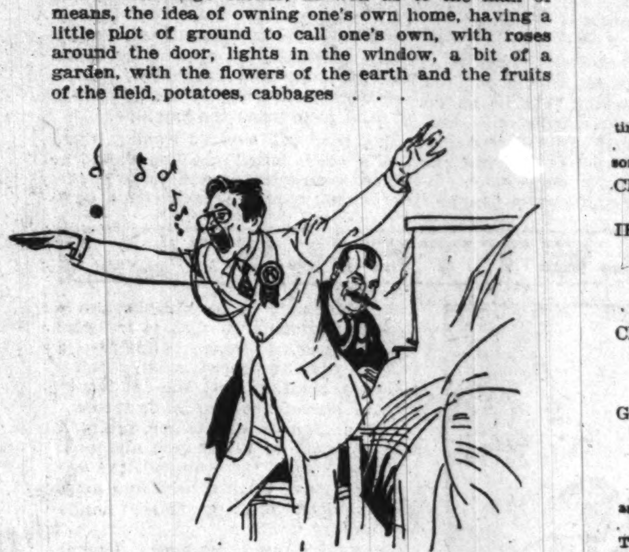
Yes, sir, advertising—that's the solution. We must sell to the wage earner, as well as to the man of means, the idea of owning one's own home, having a little plot of ground to call one's own, with roses around the door, lights in the window, a bit of a garden, with the flowers of the earth and the fruits of the field, potatoes, cabbages . . .



The usual jovial leather-lungs leads.

CHAIRMAN (pounding on table):

IRREPRESSIBLE HUMORIST (the twentieth amendment will make it obligatory on all good citizens to shoot these fellows on sight—the bounty will be large—there will be no closed season):
Gimme a gin fizz!

CHAIRMAN (looking at note):
We will now have a few words from Bill Sloop's guest, a former famous full back and now a newcomer in the advertising game: "Red" Miller.

GANG (uproariously):

How do you do, Red Miller; how do you do! (Etc.)

(Red, taken somewhat unawares, suddenly decides to give them an entirely different slant on advertising that may surprise them . . . Will the congregation kindly stand by for a week? . . . Thank you, children.)

And that's that until next Sunday.

THE POTTERS

PROLOGUE.

We will leave Pa and Ma in the toils of the wicked city (movie slang for any large town), and turn a soft eye of solicitous inquiry on the progress, if any, of Mamie's affair with Gleason and Red Miller's affair with the advertising world . . . For Red, as you may or may not remember—it makes little difference which—has decided to go into the advertising "game," as it is playfully called, and knock a few big accounts for a row of ciphers . . . advertising is like Irish politics: anybody can get into it.

One cannot really make good in the advertising game unless one has a lot of friends—any advertising man will tell you that. And how do you make friends? Why, you go where the friends are the thickest. And where is that? Where the good fellows get together. Naturally Red Miller has taken his cue and we find him attending one of the weekly lunches of the local Kiwanis club.

SCENE I.

FRIEND (who has taken it upon himself to guide Red through the intricacies of fraternal good fellowship):

Now, remember, everybody calls everybody else by his first name.

RED:

Why?

(That's a fair question.)

FRIEND:

It makes everybody feel at home. It increases good fellowship. If they have a nickname, so much the better. Now, for instance, you have a dandy. It ought to take you a long way in the business world. "Red"—that's a peach of a name.

(Nods to himself pleasantly, proud of this extraordinary discovery. Picks out huge celluloid button on which his name, nickname, and line of business are prominently displayed . . . greets wearers of similar huge buttons with an abandon of enthusiasm . . . "Hello, Mike"; "hello, Pete"; "hello, you big bum"; "hello, you big stiff"; "hello, you big tramp" . . . A visitor from Mars would undoubtedly begin to feel nervous in such a gathering if he didn't know that the 100 per cent American, like the Lord, chastiseth only those whom he loves.)

FRIEND (introducing Red to milling groups):

'Lo, Bill; this is Red Miller; usta be great full back. Now he's gonna be an advertising man and throw a few accounts for a loss. Eh, Red?

RED (ethically):

O, I wouldn't say loss.

(Neither do the others.)

FRIEND (to Red, jocosely):

This is Bill Simpson. Old Bill Simpson. Getting old, ain't ya, Bill?

(Protests from Bill that he ain't so old that he can't take care of himself in a fight or a frolic . . . adds that, anyway, he has a bicycle, which remarks excites uproarious laughter . . . Red wonders what the bicycle story is . . . it's a peach, that's what it is . . .)

RED (enthusiastically):

Gosh, you got a mob here, ain't you?

FRIEND (proudly):

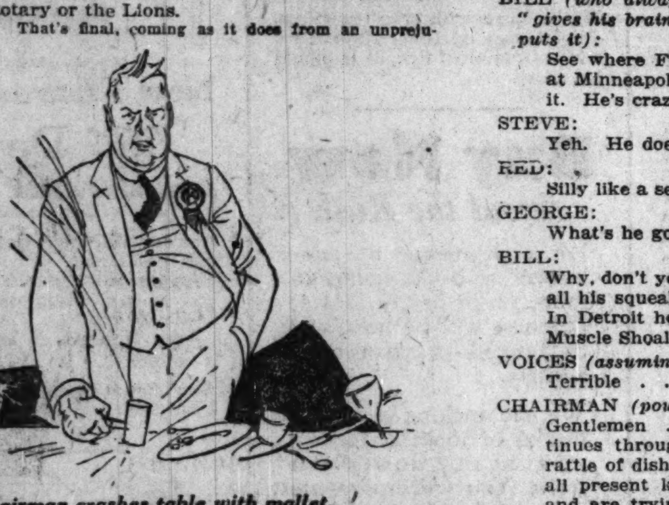
I'll say . . . you don't see no turn outs like this at the Rotary or the Lions.

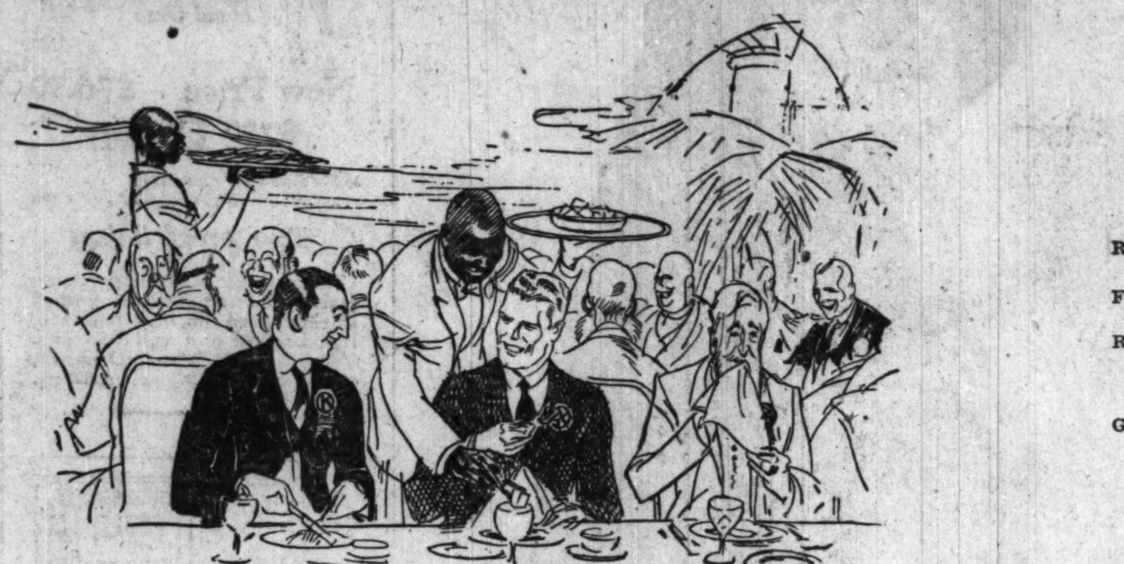
(There, now! That's final, coming as it does from an unprejudiced Kiwanian . . . members and guests pour in, leaving the usual baffled secretary at the door trying to account for ten or twelve who haven't paid . . . also the distraught master of ceremonies looking for the principal speaker, who hasn't showed up yet.)



Chairman crashes table with mallet.

SCENE II.

(The usual jovial leather-lungs leads the mob in a rousing song, after which a minister, presumably the chaplain, gives a practical illustration of the little boy's favorite line in "The Burial of Thomas Moore": "Few and short were the prayers they said" . . . commotion of getting seated . . . cries . . . greetings . . . Say, George, tell 'em the story about the darky and the eel: but where did yu get dem baby blue eyes? . . . ho, ho, ho . . . thass a peach . . .)



"Gosh, you got a mob here, ain't you?"

BILL (who always eats half and half for lunch . . . "gives his brain a chance to function afternoons," as he puts it):

See where Ford grabbed off the big Mississippi dam at Minneapolis. Government builds it and Ford gets it. He's crazy, that guy.

STEVE:

VOICES (assuming anguish):

CHAIRMAN (pounding on table . . . nobody cares):

Gentlemen . . . Gentlemen! (Terrific din continues through room . . . cries, laughter . . . rattle of dishes . . . a jolly pandemonium . . . all present know the speaking will soon commence and are trying to enjoy themselves as long as possible.) Gentlemen. (Bang! Bang! Bang!) Gentlemen! (Nobody seems to hear.) Hey, you big tramps! (Gradual silence.) We're not going to listen to the regular reports today, because we want to give our speaker his full time, except that how would you like to have the Kiwanis International hold their next convention here?

UPROAR:

Wow! . . . 'Ray! . . . Attabebby!

CHAIRMAN (pounding for silence):

It means a lot of work if they come; but we don't mind that, do we?

(Loud cries of "We don't mind that" from all those who never do anything . . . thoughtful silence from the willing little babies who always get on the committees and do all the work.)

CHAIRMAN (with unextinguishable enthusiasm):

And now it is our great pleasure and privilege today to listen to a man who has made a large splash in the advertising world, whose advice is eagerly sought, and who has put over such campaigns as the National Sleep Better Mattress week, the Say It With Salted Peanuts week, and that successful Save the Surface and You Save All Cosmetic week. Gentlemen, I allude in these few fragmentary phrases to our distinguished fellow citizen, er—er—Mister—er—er (glances surreptitiously at his notes—can't find first name—coughs violently to pass it over and emerges triumphantly with the last name). Har-r-rumph Gleason, of the Gleason Advertising agency.

Audience leaps to its feet and bursts into gay song of greeting:

How do you do, Mr. Gleason; how do you do!
How do you do, Mr. Gleason; how do you do!
How do you do, Mr. Gleason;
How do you do—do—do.

(Unless ye become even as one of these ye shall not enter the Kingdom of Heaven.)

RED (as Gleason arises with a large smile and sheaf of notes):

Big stiff!

GLEASON:

Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen, and Fellow Guests: I wish to talk to you today on a subject that touches the hearts of all of us, the subject of "Home"—the subject of "Owning One's Own Home." (Cheers from enthusiastic audience—all renters.) What is the matter with our nation today? (Well, what is the matter with it? You tell us.) We are not a nation of home owners, that's what's the matter with us. We are not factors; we are floaters. How can any man become a good citizen and stand high in the political councils of his community if he is a renter? (Applause—led by chairman, who is an alderman and has two years to go on his three year lease.)

Look around you, gentlemen. Consider these cliffs of steel and stone in which the men and women of our generation roost between leases. What are we coming to? (Cries of "That's right.") It isn't right. It's wrong. (Cries of "It's wrong.")

RED (in disgusted voice to friend):

Say, whathahell is this all about anyway?

FRIEND:

About thirty minutes.

RED:

I want to leave a call for one o'clock. Be sure and lock the back door and empty the pan under the ice box.

GLEASON (who has now finally got around to what he wanted to talk about):

And now, gentlemen, what is the solution? How are we going to get our people back to the simple, wholesome family life which is the foundation of good citizenship and the democratic ideals for which our forefathers fought and bled . . .

RED (sotto voice):

What's the matter with life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness?

GLEASON (fervently):

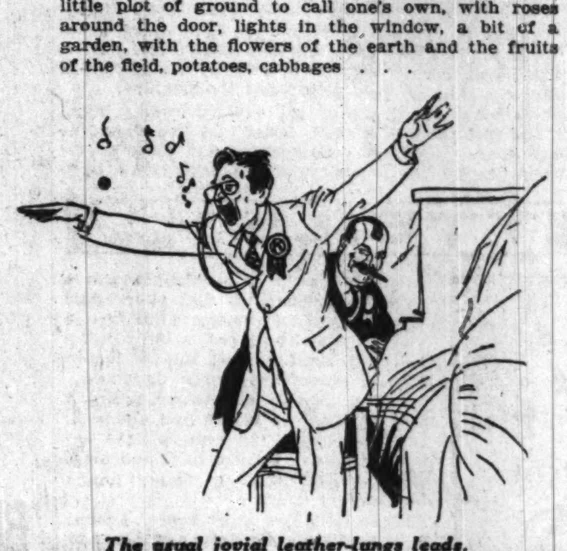
Yes, sir, advertising—that's the solution. We must sell to the wage earner, as well as to the man of means, the idea of owning one's own home, having a little plot of ground to call one's own, with roses around the door, lights in the window, a bit of a garden, with the flowers of the earth and the fruits of the field, potatoes, cabbages . . .



The usual jovial leather-lungs leads.

RED (just as fervently):

Razzberries!

GLEASON (as it begins to sound to the audience):

Half pages . . . circularizing lists . . . 250 lines on four . . . I . . . me . . . myself . . . color . . . us . . . me . . . appropriation . . . overhead . . . outgo . . . lineage . . . I . . . me . . . us . . . myself . . . honor . . . patriotism . . . democratic ideals . . . me . . . I . . . Gentlemen, I thank you.

(The gentlemen referred to take his word for it and indicate they wish to consider the incident closed . . . customers who have been surreptitiously trying to sneak out during the speech now do a Paul Revere for the door.)

CHAIRMAN (crashes table with mallet and stops them in midair):

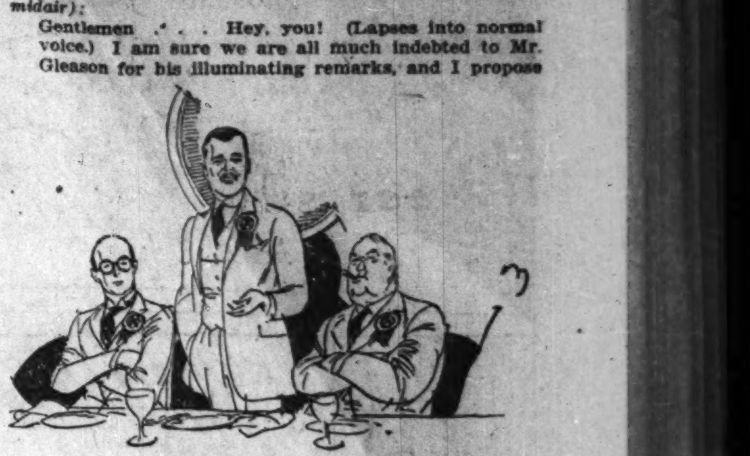
Gentlemen . . . Hey, you! (Lapses into normal voice.) I am sure we are all much indebted to Mr. Gleason for his illuminating remarks, and I propose that we organize a committee (when in doubt always organize a committee); yes, a committee to take up this proposition and report to our next meeting. (Another severe struggle to reach the door. Chairman casts inquiring eye over group, looking for willing workers . . . willing workers rapidly take on protective coloring and merge into their environment. . . . Chairman's practiced eye discovers three of them who are already on seven or eight committees—what's one more or less?) And now I am informed that we have with us today a youthful member of the advertising game who is here as a guest of one of our members, Old Bill Sloop.



"What are we coming to?"

(Cries of Hello, Bill . . . O, is that big bum here? . . . Getting so there ain't no privacy anywhere . . . Trot him out, Bill . . . Are you paying for the lunch, Bill? . . . Must have something on Bill. . . Hell, everybody has. [Laughter.])

CHAIRMAN (pounding on table):

Order! Order!

IRREPRESSIBLE HUMORIST (the twentieth amendment will make it obligatory on all good citizens to shoot these fellows on sight—the bounty will be large—there will be no closed season):

Gimme a gin fizz!

CHAIRMAN (looking at note):

We will now have a few words from Bill Sloop's guest, a former famous full back and now a newcomer in the advertising game: "Red" Miller.

GANG (uproariously):

How do you do, Red Miller;
How do you do!
How do you do, Red Miller; how do you do! (Etc.)

(Red, taken somewhat unawares, suddenly decides to give them an entirely different slant on advertising that may surprise them . . . Will the congregation kindly stand by for a week? . . . Thank you, children.)

And that's that until next Sunday.

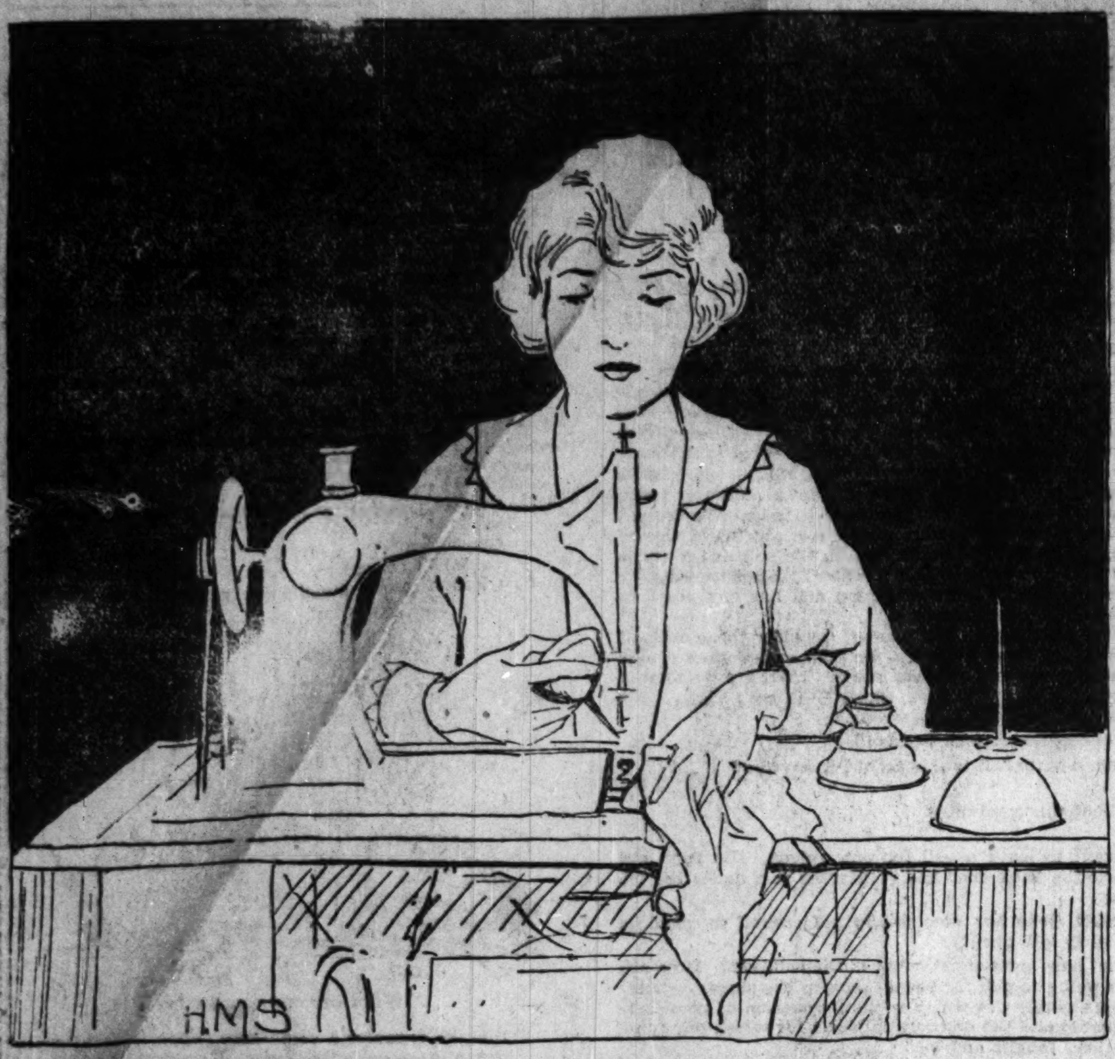
PRACTICAL AND FANCY NEEDLEWORK

BY CLOTILDE



CLEANING THE MACHINE.

HOW many women who do much of their own sewing remember to keep their machines in good order? Work of any kind is made easier, and for that reason liked better, if one understands the value and necessity of proper care for one's tools.

If a machine is used daily it will need a little attention at the end of every day's work; but if used as the average women uses it, a thorough overhauling once a week will keep it running well.

Never use any but the best sperm oil unless you buy that sold by the makers of your machine. Once in a while it is a good plan to use kerosene instead of oil—unthreading the machine. After using the kerosene run the machine well for a few minutes. Then let the kerosene remain on over night. It will cut the dirt and help dislodge old oil.

In the morning clean well every part of the machine seeing that no oil or dirt remains. It can then be oiled, and after running a little, wipe thoroughly so that no oil will get on the sewing. Oiling is often too lavishly done. It should be done at night when possible

Pay attention to directions that come with the machine as to the right sized needle to use with a certain number of thread or silk—the right length of stitch, etc. In some machines the tension is never touched, but where it has to be adjusted, try the stitch on scraps of the cloth you are to sew on, using the usual thicknesses. Then, if the tension is too tight or too loose, the adjusting and regulating can be tried out on a piece of cloth, instead of perhaps injuring the machine.

A clean, well covered ironing board and a sleeve board and iron should be placed conveniently, and there should be tracing wheel, French chalk, basting thread, sharp scissors, a sewing or armless chair to work in, a cutting board, and everything one is likely to need while working. A dining table is generally used for cutting if one has no sewing room, and a plain white oilcloth is nice to put over the table while sewing. The oilcloth will keep for years if rolled on a stick when not in use.

Don't be discouraged if you have to take out and put away the many things required for a successful day's sewing; it will repay you, and the chances are if you will try these suggestions, you will find the work fascinating because it will go so much easier, and will be better done.

Never cut or sew on material that is not smooth (you can see the necessity for the ironing board), and most work requires bastings removed and pressing done as it progresses—else it will not look well.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one or if you have one in your private or family possessions you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

EMPTY HANDS AND HUNGRY HEART.

DARLING BILLY: All day I have held the memory of you close to my heart, but now that night has fallen I want you, the reassurance of you.

The flowers, the moonlight, and the waves are still here; but what does all else matter when the one is not? Do you remember the slow wash of the waves against the pebbles? We said it sounded like kisses. "Many kisses," we called it then. Now it sounds like sighs to me, just little, hopeless, futile sighs from a heart worn out with longing, too weary even for tears.

And that long, gray twilight—gray unending sand, a low, gray sky, dunes, and the lake against the sky, flat colored like the sand. White at the edge with now and then a shuddering wave that rose gray as the monotonous days of life without you.

Then you were here—and the nearness of you, all the golden youth of you with your eager arms and your warm lips, your laughter so beautifully young and free.

Now beneath the moon the lake lies still, too tired to hope, even as I am tired, and the sand looks endless as the intolerable hours of the endless days. Just the level, dust gray sand of things—living is that, beloved.

You took the color from my days, Billy, and now they are like the sand, endless gray and hopeless! I am so tired, dear, so infinitely weary of the everlasting ache of emptiness, the eternal nothingness, and the yearning for you that beats against my heart ceaselessly like the waves at "Many kisses."

O, Billy, I love you so! It didn't mean much to you, only pleasure for a few passing hours. But to me it was everything—eternity, life itself!

Golden lover, your happiness is everything to me. You were never meant for care, responsibilities, sorrow, or trouble. Just for happiness and the gold of things—I would take the dross, dear, and give you the gold—anything you ask I would give—life itself; youth with its hope and promise.

I have prayed that time would teach me forgetfulness of you and your cruelty. No, not cruel, you were never that—just thoughtless, as one who walks over flowers crushing them into the dust carelessly. But it would hurt you to see a broken flower; it might dim the happiness of you a bit. So I only pray, "Keep him happy, keep his golden heart young, and withhold from him the sordidness of life."

Dear, didn't those hours mean anything to you? After all you said, can't you remember? I fought through a thousand glooms to find your heart grief stained and hungered for joy. I call to you, but there is only night. Kiss me, blind me with the hot mercy of your lips—there is only night now.

I want you to sing to me again. I want to curl up beside you and rest, rest and forget the hungry days between. I have worked hard and long, and am soul sick of empty hands and hungry heart.

Come for a few short hours. I want to be young and carefree, and dance to mock the gray days—to dance for you across the sands while you lie lazily upon the shore, your strong, lean hands clasped beneath your head or fair, wavy hair the color of the ruddy, honeycombed cliffs beyond the sand. To run and drop beside you on the sun warmed beach, to hear you laugh as you ruffle my short, thick gypsy-like locks, and call me "Just my little bunch of temperament."

O, my dear, I am calling to you, crying for your song, the sure, slow beauty of you, and the reckless glad abandon. You are all so deliciously you. Down at "Many Kisses," I am busy waiting for you and training all the pixies and fairies to have every flower freshly painted and each pebble polished white and clear as moonstones. The waves are singing, "Billy is coming, Billy is coming."

O, my darling, you won't turn our little paradise into "Many Sighs" for me, will you?

Come and "Many Kisses" shall be yours forever, just as I am forever

Yours,
FREDA.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR IN A MOMENT!

Girls! Try This! Hair Instantly Appears Abundant, Soft, Lustrous and Colorful—A Gleamy Mass!

35 Cent "Danderine" Also Ends Dandruff; Falling Hair!

Immediately!—your hair becomes beautiful. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and really appear twice as thick and abundant—a mass of luxuriant, glinty, colorful hair.

Besides beautifying the hair Danderine eradicates dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is the best, cheapest and most delightful hair corrective and tonic. It is to the hair what fresh showers of rain are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, vitalizes and strengthens them. Its stimulating properties help the hair to grow long, heavy, strong.

You can surely have beautiful hair, and lots of it, if you will spend 35 cents for a bottle of Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter. It is not greasy, oily or sticky.

Knowlton Danderine Co., Wheeling, W. Va.

Have you Occlusia?

Nine out of ten women have

The grease paints which we motion picture actresses are forced to use constantly in our work would cause Occlusia quickly if we were not careful always to cleanse our skin thoroughly. We all use clay, of course, but experience has taught us that the English Clay is by all odds the best. I cannot recommend Terra-derma-lax too highly.

—AGNES AYRES

Consult any dermatologist and he will tell you that harsh skin, faulty complexion, blackheads and pimples all come from the same source, Occlusia—the scientific term for clogged or occluded pores.

Rouge, powder and other cosmetics, all of which have their place in milady's toilette, are helpless in the face of this deplorable skin condition. They only gloss over the defects, deceiving no one but the hopeful user. Friends are too kind to tell you of the obviousness of your disguise, but they smile knowingly behind your back.

There is only one way to banish Occlusia, dire foe to Beauty, and that is to cleanse the skin perfectly. And there is only one perfect skin cleanser and vitalizer — Terra-derma-lax, the name science has given to the wonderful beauty clay imported from England.

When applied to the face this fine, silken clay draws out as if by magic, every bit of perspiration, dirt, blackhead and impurity that obstructs the pores. When the clay mask is wiped away with a damp towel, the skin beneath is rosy with health and natural color — clean as a new born babe's. Not a trace of Occlusia remains, not a blackhead or pimple or other unclean accumulation.

If you value a beautiful complexion, use Terra-derma-lax religiously once each week, supplementing the claying with a daily bath of Terra-derma Creme, its famous Beauty Twin, the English Cold Cream. That is the way to attain and retain beauty.

Sold separately, Terra-derma-lax and Terra-derma Creme in pots, $1 each, at all stores. The Beauty Twins are sold together, everywhere at $1.87, including, Free, the English Beauty Brush.

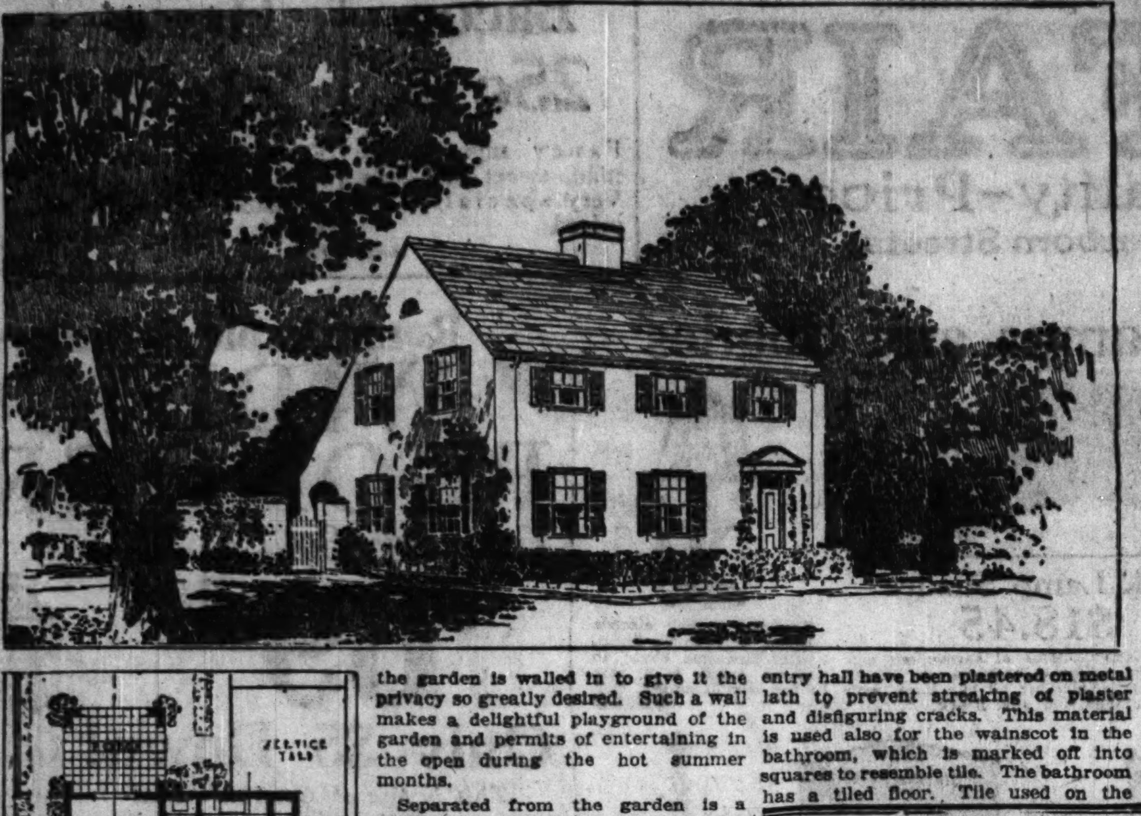
Air of Spaciousness in Design Helps to Make This Small House Attractive

By Anita de Campi.

Anita de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Anita de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped addressed envelope for personal reply.

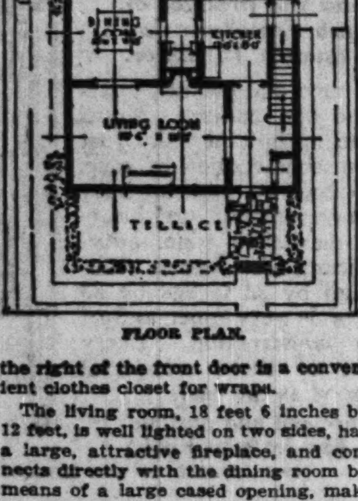


UNUSUAL in design is the handsome cement stucco residence planned by John Barnard of Boston, Mass. The long sloping lines of the rear roof which covers the tiled porch, together with the unbroken roof line at the front of the house and the entrance to one side, create the effect of a size which is hardly warranted by the actual dimensions of the building. It really is a small home and can be comfortably built on a 40 foot lot. Another thing which probably adds materially to its seemingly generous proportions is the white cement stucco used for the exterior finish. White always has a tendency to magnify the true size. Finishes of this type are particularly desirable for small homes, in that they create an atmosphere of largeness.

For the walls of this building hollow tile of cement or burnt clay and hollow concrete blocks or a back plastered stucco frame are equally adaptable. The architect has specified that the white cement used in the final coat shall be floated to a smooth surface. This, however, does not mean it should be given a trowel finish, but what is known as an eggshell finish. The pleasing texture of this finish does not show the cracking which the hard troweled surface is apt to exhibit. Stucco experts always prefer a rough finish as being distinctive and adding life to the character of the surface.

As a contrast to the stucco, the roof should be of sea green slate and the chimney cap painted black. Blinds should be dark blue green, and the other wood trim finished in ivory white.

The first floor of this home contains a living room, a dinining room, and a breakfast alcove, with a pantry between it and the kitchen. There is a neat and compact layout for the entry hall and the living room and kitchen which open into it. In the servantless household the kitchen should be always of convenient access to the front door, so that the housewife may answer a summons without necessarily going through all of the other rooms. This requisite has been well taken care of in today's design. The living room also opens into the entry, or stair hall, but there is a small vestibule which screens it from a direct view of the door. To the right of the front door is a convenient clothes closet for wraps.



FLOOR PLAN.

The living room, 18 feet 6 inches by 12 feet, is well lighted on two sides, has a large, attractive fireplace, and connects directly with the dining room by means of a large cased opening, making it possible to use the dining room and living room as one, should occasion require.

The dining room is cheerful, and opens on to the tiled porch previously mentioned. It overlooks the small formal garden with its pergola and flowered border. The effect is beautiful, as the garden is walled in to give it the privacy so greatly desired. Such a wall makes a delightful playground of the garden and permits of entertaining in the open during the hot summer months.

Separated from the garden is a small vegetable plot, a garage, and a service yard, to which access can also be had from the street front.

The rear entry, reached through the service yard, accommodates a conveniently iced refrigerator. The kitchen sink has been made to take up the entire width of the room. It is placed directly under the two windows.

The kitchen is conveniently small, and yet provides ample room for necessary equipment. It is readily ventilated by means of its two windows and the doors opening into it. This is an important point, as most kitchens are sadly lacking in facilities for ventilation.

Between the kitchen and the dining room is a small room, suitable for use either as a pantry or a breakfast alcove. It has a large window with a view of the garden. This space has possibilities of being made into a most attractive little breakfast room. Opposite is a china closet or a butler's pantry.

It is possible that an owner using these plans would want to modify the arrangement of the alcove and the kitchen somewhat, so as to provide some built-in pantry cases more accessible to the kitchen, and at the same time provide space enough for a comfortable alcove with a fold-in-the-wall table. Doubtless one of the doors opening into the kitchen might be eliminated, so that some of the space not now available could be used for cases.

Upstairs are two fair sized bedrooms and one smaller one. Each has its own clothes closet and each is a corner room, with two or more windows. The bathroom and linen closet are also on the second floor.

Oak floors are used throughout, except in the kitchen, where there is a maple floor. The interior trim is painted ivory white, except the kitchen portion. Walls are plastered throughout, including the basement. The ceilings of the living and dining rooms and the entry hall have been plastered on metal lath to prevent streaking of plaster and disfiguring cracks. This material is used also for the wainscot in the bathroom, which is marked off into squares to resemble tile. The bathroom has a tiled floor. Tile used on the porch may be either six inch square quarry tile or heavy slate. At small expense the porch could be glassed in and used as a most attractive conservatory for winter days.

As will be observed in the picture, the landscape work for a house of this type makes a world of difference in its final appearance. This item should not be neglected by the home owner if he hopes to derive the most satisfaction from his dwelling.

E. M.: Bright rose colored silk shades on the wall lights, gold colored silk gauze glass curtains, and accessory of cushions of taffeta, in rose and gold color would brighten your room, and you could either use the overdrapes that you have or change them for new ones of rose color matching the lamp shades. For the green lamp base, which could be placed on a brown mahogany end table, have a black and gold shade.

* *

L. S.: A spinet in the recessed window would be attractive. If possible have your mahogany pieces refinished in brown. Have the walls calcimined sand color. The mirror would be more appropriate in the bedroom than in the living room. Your living room furniture is sufficient to furnish the living room, without any additions, isn't it? An upholstered tub chair would be nice in the bedroom. Have the woodwork painted French gray. Have flowered chintz drapes over voile glass curtains.

Smiling Through Tears.

When I was a girl I lived in a town where home talent shows always drew capacity houses.

Six of us girls from the chorus were on the program for a special song and dance, between the first and second acts. We were obliged to make a quick change from our peasant costumes to modern clothes, white, frilly dresses, with large picture hats and parasols.

Imagine my consternation when I found myself on the stage, going through the different evolutions of the dance, clad in my white petticoat. In the rush and the crush of the small dressing room I had forgotten to slip on my dress skirt.

There was no help for me. I had to go on with my part, and smile through it all, although, like Pagliacci, there were tears in my heart. H. S. H.

Should Have Rapped Wood.

A short time ago I invited some friends, whose good opinion I especially valued, to dinner. I went to a great deal of trouble to have everything just right, and was beginning to congratulate myself that the affair was going to be a success. I must have forgotten to rap on wood, I guess, for just then something knocked the soup spoon from the hand of a guest. The spoon fell into his plate, splashing the tomato bisque over the table cloth and into the face of the surprised guest.

The second floor of our new home was unfinished, and some one had stepped upon the lath. A piece of plaster was loosened and chose this unfortunate time to fall.

I helped my indignant guest to wipe the soup from his face and clothes, and resolved to wait until the house was finished before entertaining again.

E. E.

Cynosure of All Eyes.

It happened in a crowded surface car. Without looking I put my hand into my purse, drew out a transfer, and handed it to the conductor.

By the time I had pushed half way through the car I heard the conductor yell, "Lady, lady, come back here."

I kept on my way, and when I was almost at the front end of the car the conductor took my arm and told me to follow him. I followed him to the rear platform, aware that all eyes were on me. He showed me a day old transfer I had given him.

When I got off, I discovered the right transfer in my coat pocket.

R. N.

First Thing He Knew.

It was my first day of employment in a rather large office. The stenographer who was to take my letters had a desk in back of mine and to the right. I leaned back to hand her a paper. I misjudged the distance I could lean back in the spring chair. The first thing I knew I was on my back on the floor and the whole office force was convulsed with laughter. W. E.

Taking It In.

My most embarrassing moment occurred when I was in pursuit of entertainment for my 2 year old youngster. I am a long, lean, lanky individual, and when perched upon my baby's little car, as she asked, I looked like a grasshopper on a bicycle. I was going around the house, looking backward at her, watching her mirth, when I rode into the hallway. There stood a man looking in through the long glass in the door and enjoying the scene quite as much as that daughter of mine.

Prove splendid laxative properties of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin by test

A SCIENTIFIC test has now proven what Dr. Caldwell of Monticello asserted many years ago, that constipation will slow you up fully 25 per cent. The test was made by Dr. Donaldson of Loma Linda upon four men in the prime of life who deliberately went without a bowel movement for four days. Within 48 hours the men had coated tongue and foul breath, cankers in the mouth, no appetite, restless sleep, indigestion, headache, depression, nervousness, cramps. The blood pressure was up 28 per cent. It is just this that Dr. Caldwell has preached to his patients in private and to the public through the printed word ever since he began the practice of his specialty, diseases of the stomach and bowels, back in 1875.

After observing for years the satisfactory effect of his prescription for constipation, he placed it in drug stores in 1892, a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. That was 30 years ago, and today over 10 million bottles are bought annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world. You will find it in any drug store you enter, a generous-size bottle costing you less than a cent a dose.

Every member of the family from the infants to the grandparents can use it with safety. It is gentle and mild. The formula is on the package. Mrs. Roy Cook of Bellefontaine, O., has been giving it to her 5-months old baby, who now weighs 19 pounds; and Mr. J. B. Dawson of Brinson, Ga., declares it the best laxative his family has ever found. Try a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for constipation or any of its symptoms. The results will delight you. And the cost is only one cent a dose.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

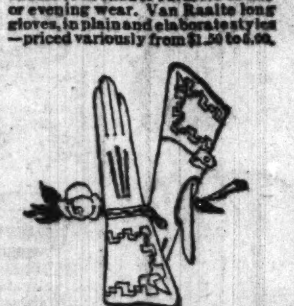
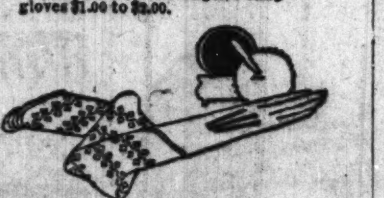
A Glove of Many Tucks

These parallel tucks make graceful and becoming the long glove which short sleeves demand. You may choose it in shades suitable to day or evening wear. Van Raalte long gloves, in plain and elaborate styles—priced variously from $1.50 to $6.00.



The New Flare Cuff

The conventional embroidery motif seems especially well adapted to the flaring style of cuff which Van Raalte introduces in this gauntlet. Van Raalte designs both short and long gauntlets—priced from $1.50 to $4.00. Plain, wrist-length 2-clasp gloves $1.00 to $2.00.



For Formal Wear

Your handsome gown will find in this long glove from Van Raalte a suitable complement to its own smartness. There are many beautiful designs in Van Raalte gloves for formal wear—embroidered, tucked, or ruffled—priced all the way from $2.50 to $5.00.

The Fleisher Yarns Knitting Contest

$11,000 in Cash Prizes

FIRST PRIZE
149 OTHER PRIZES OF $500 TO $25

SOMEWHERE there is a woman who can knit garments of unmatched beauty. Perhaps that woman is you. If it is, $2000 in cash is yours.

But this first prize is not all. 150 women will win cash prizes in this great Contest. The makers of THE FLEISHER YARNS are offering more than $11,000 to find America's most beautiful knitted garments.

150 Cash Prizes— Total $11,275

1st National Prize	- -	$2000
2nd " "	- -	500
3rd " "	- -	200

49 " 3rd "	$ 25 "	1225

Grand total, $11,275

Don't stay out of this Contest for fear you are not an "expert". A novice, with an eye for beauty, may capture the first prize.

If you have never learned to knit, now is the time to begin. Even if you don't win a prize, you will add a handsome piece to your wardrobe; for all entries not winning prizes will be promptly returned to their owners after the Contest closes.

Follow any idea or style you wish, provided you knit a useful article. Articles made of any make or brand of yarn will be eligible. The prizes will be awarded for beauty alone. In case of a tie, each tieing contestant will receive the full amount of the prize.

A Few Suggestions

Here are a few suggestions of pieces that may be submitted: sweater, blouse, dress, jacket, skirt, sacque, scarf, afghan, vest, shawl, kimono, hose, baby carriage cover, children's wearing apparel, etc.

Why not make the Contest still more exciting by forming a Knitting Club among your friends? Then all go after these splendid cash prizes!

Dealers Everywhere

Fleisher Yarn dealers will feature special contest displays during the Contest. Go at once to the Yarn Department of any store that sells THE FLEISHER YARNS. Ask for the Free Contest Blank. This Official Blank, which must be used for each entry, tells everything a Contestant wants to know.

If your Fleisher Yarn dealer does not have a supply of Blanks, write direct to S. B. & B. W. Fleisher, at the address below, giving your dealer's name.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Much Ado About Nothing.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young girl sweet 16, and have been going with a young fellow 17 for about eight months. Recently I introduced him to an aunt of mine, who is 23. Since then he has paid great attention to her and not as much to me as he did. Still he claims he loves me. My friends have told me not to bother with him—that if he wants my aunt to let him go with her, and forget him. It would break my heart to give him up, and I don't think I can forget him. Please advise. ANXIOUS."

Now, Anxious, I think you are making much ado about nothing, and are just a little jealous of your aunt. There could be no attachment between them to make you jealous. So don't go spoiling your perfectly good friendship with him by hinting even in your manner that you are being supplanted.

Making the Decision.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl 20 years of age, and for the last nine months have been going with a chap three years my senior. Lately I have turned against him, as he does not take me anywhere. All he does is sit around the house or take me to a picture show, which is seldom. Recently at a party held at my sister's house, I was introduced to a fellow who so far is nice, and liked by every one. I went out with him several times to theaters, dances, etc., and learned to like him. He knows all about this first fellow, and has asked me to give him up, and go with him, which is hard to do, as I like A just as well as B, only for that one reason. I am a little puzzled over this. Please advise. "DIMPLES."

Your heart is going to be won by entertainment, isn't it, Dimples? Well, I suppose a girl does like a man to spend something more than his evenings on her, after all. But it is no sign the one who spends the money is going to make the better husband. It is wise to try to learn if A is doing all he can honestly afford and B more than he can afford before you make the ultimate decision.

Let Him Explain.

"Dear Miss Blake: Some time ago I met a fellow I like at a party, and he took me home, and after that he also took me home from several other parties, and was up to my home a couple of times. A few weeks ago I had a party and of course I invited him. He came to the party but did not act gentlemanly, and did something which displeased me. I think he should apologize. A couple of days after the party I met him at my girl friend's house and refused to speak to him. I also met him on the following night at a social gathering and did not speak to him. I did not tell him I thought he ought to apologize, but I told one of his boy friends. Do you think I ought to tell him personally? Will you kindly advise me as to whether I was wrong in refusing to speak to him, and whether I should tell him myself why I refused to do so, or should I wait for him to speak first? WORRIED."

If the occasion were one of ungentlemanliness which called for apology and he did not give it, then I should just consign the young man to the limbo of undesirables, and proceed to forget him. But you see, dear, you do not tell me the thing he did, and sometimes we read into a perfectly innocent action an offense. Maybe he is blissfully unconscious of what is the matter with you. I think every one is entitled to a chance to explain—providing the thing you complain of was not too obviously unforgivable and deliberate.

There's Just One Way.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young girl of 18 years, working in an office, the windows of which face another office building. A young man works in the office opposite me, and for the last few weeks he seems to look at me every day, but as soon as my eye meets his, he turns away—sort of bashful. Now, dear Miss Blake, I like him, but don't know how to become acquainted with him. Could you advise me how to seek an introduction? "EVA."

You cannot introduce yourself to him in any proper way. You will have to get a friend or acquaintance to do it for you.

What's Wrong Here?

"Dear Miss Blake: I would like to have your advice at once. At one of my girl friends' parties I was introduced to a fellow whom I liked very much. He is 23 and I am 19. He has asked to take me to dances, which I didn't refuse. I love him dearly, but he shows no signs of love towards me. Does he take me to dances because he likes my dancing? He is sociable. How can I win his love? I must have your advice at once. BOBBY."

You perfectly ridiculous youngster, Bobby. What under heaven do you expect of the boy, anyway? Just what are the signs of love but choosing a girl's company for dances and evenings to spend with her? I hope you are not one of these abominable young gold diggers demanding gifts as love tokens. It's what's wrong with your picture—not the boy's, Bobby.

Likes Him a Little.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young man, 19, and love a girl friend dearly. She is 17½ and she told me that she doesn't and has no right to love me, being a school girl, but that she likes me a little more than her other boy friends. Of course, I have no intention of marrying anyone for at least three or four years, when I will have graduated from college. Still, I like her, and would like to retain her friendship. How can I do so? H. P."

Well, why not put it up to the girl on just that basis; that you have no intention of marrying for years and that you would like tremendously to retain her friendship, but of course you must not put any strings on it, such as trying to extract a promise that you be her one and only boy friend.

How to Win a Man

If a Woman Has Brains and Personality, She Can Win a Man with No Trouble Whatever, Says Nazimova.

By Doris Blake

ALLA NAZIMOVA.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Alla Nazimova, she of the subtle, fanciful, colorful personality, described by an equally colorful press agent as akin to a rich cream-white lotus blossom breathing its intoxicating perfume into the air, delicate but lasting, stimulating, realistic and exotic, shook her bobbed head, flicked the ashes from a monogrammed cigaret, and said in answer to my query on how to win a man:

"I do not try. If they have not enough brains to like me then I am not interested in them."

She entertained me in her dressing room back stage just after she had been knifed to death by one who must have fallen for her brains or something in "Dagmar," a series of theatrical posters of six scenes or thereabout portraying how a "rag, a bone, and a hank of hair," according to Kipling, may set out to capture 'em, get 'em and hold 'em until she gets hers'n in the last act.

She was wearing the gorgeous gold embroidered kimono in which she had been sent to Limbo or wherever lady wamps land when the ghosts of rejected gemmen rise up and demand the heart of their De Medici with a dagger in it.

Does as She Likes.

"They didn't get you that time," says I, upon seeing her whole again after leaving her for dead out front.

"They never do," answered the rich cream white lotus blossom, breathing cigaret perfume into the air.

"You had a narrer escape," opined I, "with no stockings on to perfect you."

To the prevailing style of dress, I am told, Nazimova pays no heed. If she chooses to appear in a Chinese mandarin suit resembling a pair of pajamas she does it. If she chooses to wear the original of the nude stocking, she does it, even though she is dressing for the undertaker in the last act.

"No, why should I try to win them? If they haven't brains enough to appreciate me why should I be bored with them?" she continued, wrinkling her expressive nose.

That being reasonably final, I attempted to extract the formula of Russian women in the art of winning men, since that was the land of Nazimova's birth.

"With Russian women romance is a thing absolutely apart from their position in life. It has nothing to do with home and husband and the things that tie you to convention. Russian women are not coquettes; their love is too absorbing for that. French women enjoy the art of coquetry more than any other European type. But, as Mme. Sorel said, 'The art of coquetry is almost a lost art now.'

"It is the same law of attraction with Russian women as with others, however. If she have brains and personality she can win men with no trouble whatever.

Doesn't Want Flattery.

"Naturally, you must find out what a man likes, and keep your brain clear. If a woman is madly in love, her brain is not clear, and that is where many romances are broken."

"Do you fall for flattery?" I asked.

"No, no, no—I do not! I know I am clever, so why should I like to hear some one tell me I am. I like a man who is my partner, who is my strength, my mate. I am awfully attracted by rough boys and girls. I love to dance with them—to swim with them, to play on the beach with them, when I am out in California. To them I am not the great actress their parents may have talked about. I am just one of them. And the great tragedy of an actress' life is that when she becomes a star many doors close to her which formerly were wide open. And I like youth because I can regain some of that early camaraderie I knew before I was starred.

"I like to run around out there in my pajamas. I feel most at ease in them. I wear little Chinese suits—black and comfortable. I never wear evening dress because I do not like it. I like just simple high necked dresses—the simpler the better—loose and flowing things.

Getting on Man's Level.

"Men like to be flattered, though. They like to be told they are strong and clever. But I don't flatter them. Why should I? I never meet those who deserve to be flattered. If you can earn your own money, it puts you on a level with them. I am going to earn a million myself, so I couldn't flatter a man just because he was successful enough to become a millionaire, could I?

"My husband [Charles Bryant, her leading man, and to whom she has been married for ten years] told me the other night I was the worst crank in the world. I like to be told that because it is the truth. I like to tell the truth and to hear it. I was mad that night, and burst out with: 'I'd like to sweep all these dishes right over on to the floor.' Then he called me a crank. I said to him: 'Well, you've stood me for ten years, and that is because you are an angel.' He is an angel, and that's why I told him he was, and I am a crank.

Complicated but Interesting.

"In this matter of attraction between the sexes there are many sides. One woman may be striving for an ambition; another for a home; another may like the fight of the sexes, or the fight of minds. You have to know your man. To some men only the clinging vine, the one who gives him the idolizing look and word, appeals. Perhaps these men are conceited.

"It is pretty much like soil and the farmer's planting it. One seed takes root where another would perish and die. One survives on little or no nurturing; another fails of growth under the best agricultural system, and there you are.

"It is all complicated and interesting—but I don't try to win them."

Women's Work the World Over

A woman living at Woodstock, Va., requested on her deathbed that her pet hen should be buried with her when she died. When the time for burial came the hen was chloroformed and put in the coffin.

More than 10,000 tons of talcum powder were used by American women last year.

A skilled Serbian housewife will not offer the same dish twice within a month.

During the last ten years women employés of automobile factories increased 1,408 per cent.

Miss Elsie Hardin still works at her typewriter in the courthouse in Breckenridge, Tex., although she has recently become one of the wealthiest women in the state. She owns land upon which a gusher of oil was recently discovered.

The Kamelia, a national organization of women founded on lines of the Ku Klux Klan, will be launched soon in the south.

MRS. X.: HERE IS A DIET UPON which a friend reduced eight pounds in a month's time. It will, I think, suit your desire for something not too strenuous. Breakfast—A peach, pear or apple; coffee without sugar and cream; a gluten wafer or thin slice of rye bread. Luncheon—Soup, any kind but cream soups, with wafers or crackers; thin slice of rye bread; tea or coffee without cream or sugar. Instead of the soup some days, egg salad with French dressing [not mayonnaise] or a medium portion of one or two vegetables such as spinach, cabbage, tomatoes or string beans. Dinner—Meat or fish of any kind, one or two green vegetables, salad with French dressing, fresh fruit for dessert, such as sliced peaches, melon and sliced oranges, without sugar or cream; tea or coffee without cream and sugar. Potatoes once a week and on Sunday a regular dinner are permitted, but eliminate rich pastries.

MRS. T. L.: ORANGE JUICE IS golden in the morning by way of preparing the stomach for food. But a whole orange every morning if taken along with a hearty meal, and followed by two more hearty meals in the day, would never reduce you in the world. Orange is not fattening and is often included in the breakfast diet in reducing menus, but other foods must be cut down or else the trick is not done. And surface applications, such as you describe, after the bath are totally without value as reducers. Certainly the only virtue in blood circulation they could have would be the massage you would give the skin when applying them. No, T. L., the road to a fashion magazine figure is paved with flesh shifted off by snappy exercise and a dainty appetite.

UNHAPPY: WOMEN DO HAVE their eyebrows darkened out of the same dyepot as their hair has been immersed in. But it requires skill to get away with this treatment without detection. Just a light touching up with an eyebrow pencil is all right. But you must err on this side rather than on that if you do not want to get a hard look.

J. A. P.: POWDERED SULPHUR applied to a jumping soft corn for three days or a week will take the jump out and the corn along with it. Dusted between the toes, it prevents soft corns. You had better get a pair of roomier shoes while you are in the corn remedying business.

OILY HAIR—SOME CASES OF oily hair are due to an exaggerated secretion of fat by the sebaceous glands of the scalp. This may be excited by disturbances of the general health of the same sort that causes acne, and to cure these cases constitutional treatment may be required. Send me a stamped, addressed envelope and I will send you detailed instruction which I have in printed form on the care of the hair, with remedy for oily hair.

M. L. F.: FOUR WEEKS IS NOT long for a superfluous hair remedy treatment. Keep it up four more, at least. Then if the peroxide and ammonia do not show encouraging results you would better consider having the hair removed by the electric needle.

ALICE: THE WHITEHEADS MAY be easily removed by pricking the cover with a sterile needle and pressing out the contents. They do not recur as persistently as blackheads, and the local care of the skin will prevent further trouble.

HARRY: FOR PERSPIRING FEET the basic remedy is frequent bathing, morning and night at least. Wear fresh stockings every day. Common baking soda added to the foot bath will aid. Powdered alum dusted on the feet and in the shoes daily is another good old home remedy. For serious cases apply freely a solution of alcohol and salicylic acid in the proportion of one quart of alcohol to one tablespoonful of salicylic acid.

OFFICE GIRL: HAIR, HEELS, and nails! Yes, with the addition of clean, clear skin and appropriate dress, you have the requisites of a smart looking business girl. Cleanliness is the greatest of these virtues for, that being a dominating virtue, the well kept head, straight heels, and neat nails follow as surely as night follows day. Appropriate dress will exclude temptation to lace stockings, to boudoir blouses, and to ballroom slippers.

MARIE: VASELINE IS THE best eyebrow grower. It is a tedious job, however, and requires constant daily attention. Apply the vaseline with a little eyebrow brush, with which you may at the same time train them into a nicer shapliness.

MARIE: THERE MUST BE SOME trouble around the roots of the hair or it would show signs of some growth after the bobbing of a year ago. Do you brush it nightly and vigorously? That's the first principle of hair care to observe. After you get through brushing it, if you will massage the scalp with your finger tips so as to loosen it from the skull and provide for a better blood circulation to the roots of the hair, you will go a great deal toward a new growth. You might send a s. a. e. for my hair tonic formula which you massage into the scalp at night, and reasonably expect to see results ere long.

LOUISE: YES, NOW IS THE TIME for all good women to get their hands in nice condition for observing eyes and general satisfaction. To make them white and soft, use equal parts of glycerine and camphor, and be persistent in application nightly. Once now and then will not help, but if you keep it up every night for a month or six weeks, I'll wager a great improvement. Yes, I will mail you manicuring instructions.

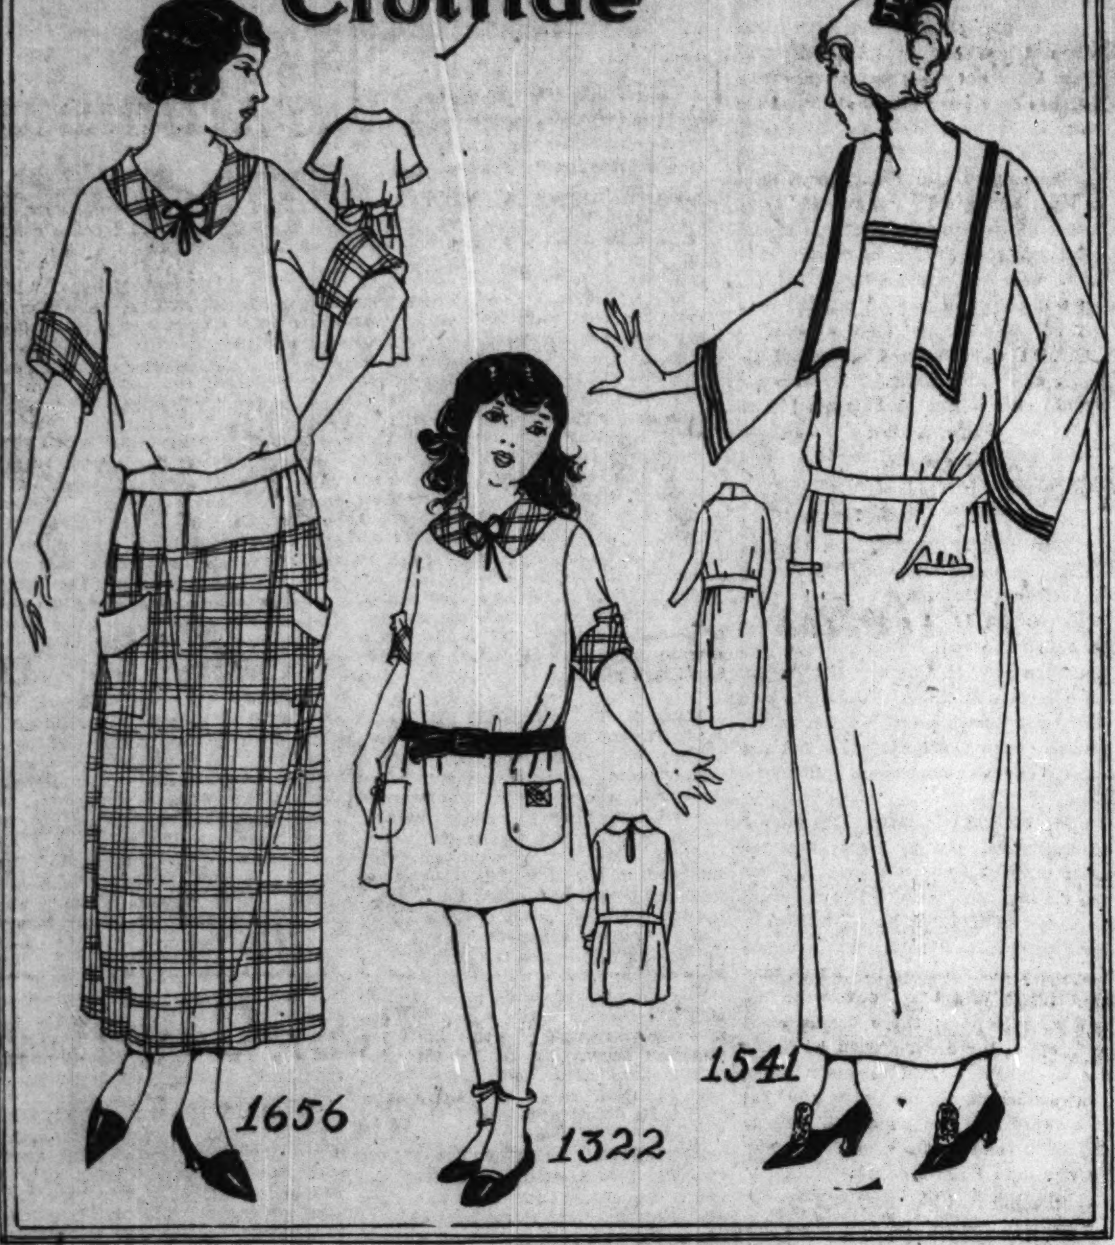
Patterns by Clotilde



1656—Woman's house dress. Sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure.

1322—Girl's dress. Sizes 6 to 14 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 36 or 40 inch material, with ¾ yard of 36 inch contrasting.

1541—Woman's dress. Sizes 34 to 46 inch bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 36 inch or 2⅛ yards of 54 inch material, with 8½ yards of braid.

How to Use the Patterns

A HOUSE dress made by pattern No. 1656 will be attractive looking, and the design is a practical one for the purpose. Two materials will combine well—the waist being made, for instance, of plain gingham and the skirt of pink checked gingham. In that case, the bands on the sleeves, collar, and sash, and trimming on the pockets would naturally be of the check. The kimono sleeves are seamed on the shoulders, which gives one a chance for trimming, either by small buttons set close together, or by using a piping or bias trimming band.

The one piece skirt is set on to the edge of the long waisted upper part, and is slightly gathered on the sides and across the back. The waist is slashed in the front at the neck and this opening bound; and the neck is finished with one of those becoming round collars. The width at the bottom, for size 36, is about 1⅞ yards.

A school dress for late spring days made of wool jersey, fine serge, or challis, by pattern No. 1322, would be smart looking and sensible.

The dress is cut in two pieces—front and back—and there is a short opening in the back at the neck so that the dress may be put on and taken off easily. One often sees blouses and dresses for young people and grown women made with this short opening spreading apart in an untidy and unsightly fashion. Of course, it is impossible for a place of this kind to lap, but a narrow extension hem can be set on when the binding is being attached, and a snap—the smallest size—may be sewed in the middle of the length which, when fastened, will keep the back together perfectly and will be invisible.

If the dress is in a solid color, the collar, pockets, and cuff edges could be finished with a binding and a contrasting color in satin or taffeta. The pockets have smart looking little tabs that fold over, and the cuffs are finished with the same shaped tabs; but on the cuffs they do not turn over; instead they are set up on the sleeves and held in place there by buttons. The sleeves are set in and show little or no fullness over the shoulders. If long sleeves are preferred they are gathered at the wrist into narrow bands.

A narrow ribbon bow would be pretty worn at the neck, and the belt may be a narrow one of patent leather.

In cutting be sure to allow for at least a four inch hem. It should be hemmed by hand, slipping the needle under the fold of the hem for the length of an ordinary stitch, then bringing it out and catching the under side of the dress material, taking care not to let the needle go through to the right side of the dress. And do not pull the thread or silk too tight in hemming.

If wash materials are preferred, chambray will combine attractively with checked gingham, and a half inch wide footing would look well whipped to the edge of the collar and cuffs.

Pattern No. 1541 is for one of those one piece dresses that are both comfortable and smart looking and not especially hard to make. This one has an unusually deep vest set in underneath the front and closing on the left side. The pattern is really in two pieces—front and back. The back extends over on the front at the shoulders, and the fronts are gathered at the sholuder seams, a feature that is probably becoming to all women.

There are inserted pockets in the skirt finished with welts, and these help to give a tailored look to the dress.

Sleeves are still one of the most interesting points of a dress, and this pattern provides for two kinds—a dart fitted sleeve made full length and close fitting and one made with a wide flare. If one likes, this flowing sleeve may be set into a narrow wristband, which will help to hold it in place.

There is a narrow, straight belt that fastens on the side, and a long collar with rather deep pointed ends finishes the costume.

CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
CCC
FOR THE BOWELS

CASCARETS

For Constipated Bowels, Sick Headache, Upset Stomach Colds, Biliousness, Bad Breath

Your bowels may seem regular—move every day—yet your thrity feet of bowels may be lined with poisonous waste which is being sucked into your blood, keeping you half sick, nervous, despondent and upset. Whether you have headache, colds, sour stomach, indigestion, or heart palpitation, it is usually from bowel poison.

Hurry! One or two Cascarets tonight will clean your bowels right. By morning al lthe constipation poison and sour bile will move out—thoroughly! Cascarets will not sicken you—they physic fully but never gripe or inconveniece.

Children love Cascarets, too. 10c boxes, also 25c and 50c sizes. Any drug store.

SPRING SUITS VARY LITTLE FROM THOSE OF LAST SEASON.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

By A. T. Gallico.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—In the spring almost every man's fancy turns to a new suit or so. Because spring is the time of change, and one tires of the heavy winter suits that one has worn for months. As far as actual change goes, there is scarcely any in the cut and style of conservative suits. The change comes in the lighter material used and the mere fact that it is a new suit. Even a new suit is not necessary to achieve the something different that the balmy season calls for. Perhaps you will take out of a back section of your closet a suit that you put away last August or September, and because you have not worn it for some months it will seem a change to you.

And if this suit was a conservative model last year it will be perfectly good style this season. For change in men's conservative clothes is development of ideas that have been under way for several years. Novelties in suits spring up only in the less conservative garments. Many men order five or six suits at a time, wear them in rotation for several years, and find them still in as good fashion the year they wear out as the year they were bought. This fact cannot be too much emphasized. Do not fear that a three button suit you bought last year will disgrace you if it is put on any day this spring. If it was not distinguished by some ultra novel feature, no one will be able to tell that it was not purchased last week or the day before yesterday, provided it is in good condition.

Taking a glance at the prevailing styles, we find among the conservative garments two schools, so to speak—the English and the American. The English suit in this country is a modification of the rather extreme clothes that are appearing on the other side. Of course, as has been pointed out before, all our styles have come originally from England. But they go through sort of an Americanization process before they are absorbed by men in general over here. The extremely full trousers, the short, rounded front jacket, and the short straight across waistcoat of the Londoner will be seen here to some extent.

Suits on this order are being manufactured by some of the American manufacturers. But they are not likely to make a great deal of inroad upon the dressing habits of the American man. He is too unwilling to adopt anything new. Besides which, the English lines are not becoming to all figures. A short stout man would look ridiculous in the full baggy trousers favored by the Londoner.

The conservative suit that the man on this side will stick to until the trend of fashion is too much for him and the suit he wears today becomes obsolete, is one that fits the natural curves of the body and is not extreme one way or another. The tendency this year more than last year is towards broader shoulders. But there is no attempt made to pad them unnaturally. Merely they are not pinched in to the slightest degree. The waist outlines the figure, and the coat fits over the hips so snugly without any flare. A coat such as this fits neatly and looks well tailored, yet is loose and free enough to give perfect comfort.

The coats will tend towards shorter effects, for the figure that all men seek is the tall and slender, which is best achieved by having as much of the legs show as possible. Long sack coats tend to shorten a man. Coats without vents will probably be in the majority this year. But the vented coat is not unfashionable. It is a matter of personal preference. When there is a vent it will be about nine inches in length.

There are no fancy backs on the business suits of conservative dressers. These are reserved for the sport suits. The three button coat will be the average. The two button closing is one of the characteristics of the loose lounge suit built on English lines. While the four button model, the recent favorite of the college man, will be seen little.

You will see many coats markedly rounded at the bottom, but the majority of the bottoms will be almost straight. Lapels are generous in width this spring, and are plain notched, the peaked lapel being for business suits much in the minority. Pockets should have flaps. Slanting pockets are not the most conservative and are not much seen. The usual sleeve finish is a short vent with three or four buttons. It is allowable, however, to have a small band cuff. On trousers the cuff may be or not, but will probably be seen more without than with on the business suit. There will be no bell bottoms.

The double breasted suit is seen this year mostly with two rows of buttons. It almost invariably has a peaked lapel. As for color in spring suits, there is no set fashion. A man wears the color that is becoming to him, or should, regardless of any attempt made to popularize any one color or colors. Heather mixtures will be decidedly in evidence. Dark blue is a staple. Light gray is a good spring color. Materials will be unfinished flannels, worsteds, cheviots, and tweeds the last mentioned being more for an informal sport suit.

My Nicest Compliment

What was the nicest compliment you ever received? Was it a tribute to achievements, social gifts, learning, beauty? Was it forthright and blunt, wittily done, or something subtle? Write it out and send it to the Compliment Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

"An Excellent Thing in Woman."

It is unusual for a switchboard operator to get a compliment worth while, but the other day I got one.

An elderly man at work gets excited easily. I heard him tell a friend of his that when he gets nervous about anything he always goes to his telephone and talks to his operator a minute or two, because she has such a sweet, pleasant voice he forgets all about his troubles.

He always tells me that "the voice with a smile wins." H. P.

It Came with Roses.

I was a senior in college when I received my nicest compliment. On the afternoon of the day of the senior prom a large box of roses was sent to me by the man who was to be my escort.

The card he inclosed read as follows: "For the prettiest and most popular girl in college. She doesn't try to vamp, but she's the best sport in the world." N. M. R.

Got Her First.

A bachelor friend of my husband made the remark that he would not marry the best girl on earth.

My husband replied, "No, you couldn't, for I already have her." M. H. H.

Better than the Best.

We have been married fourteen years. Recently my husband returned from a month's business trip.

As he greeted me he said: "My dear, while I am gone I always think the nicest things about you. But when I get back I always find you better than the best of them." D. E. S.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Mildred, one of those little girls who never obey, oftentimes accompanied her mother to club and caused some trouble among the other children present.

One day as they were dressing, Helen's mamma said: "Now, Helen, no matter what Mildred does today, you be a good girl."

After several moments Helen said, "I hope Mildred's mother remembers to tell her the same thing." A. R. R.

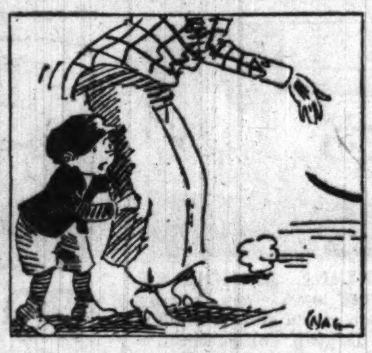
Arthur was much afraid of dogs, though sometimes he did not want his elders to notice it.

He was walking with grandmother one day when, as they rounded a corner, a large dog ran into him, nearly upsetting him.



After one little squeal Arthur looked up and said, "My, grandma, didn't I jes' 'sprise dat dog?" A. S.

Tommy was an only child, and most obliging.

One morning he was interested in fixing a boat when, as usual, came aunty's request, "Run upstairs, dear, and bring down my book."

That being disposed of, mother asked him to go back and bring down her shears. Upon their happy delivery, grandma thought he'd better fetch a glass of water for her. After which Tommy, silently thoughtful, eyed the trio.

"What are you so serious about, Tommy?" asked grandma.

"O," replied Tommy, "I was just wondering who ran all this family's errands before I was born." F. J.

Jack is large for his age, and the other day when he was knocked off his tricycle and began to cry, a passerby said, "O, you're too big a boy to cry like that."

Jack's tears changed to anger and he retorted, "Well, maybe you don't know that my bigness isn't old." E. J. R.

When Estelle came home after visiting the aunt, two grandmothers and parents of her little friend, she remarked: "I feel sorry for Nadine. She's got so many look after hers." J. A. O.

Sister was watching the tiny new baby.

Suddenly the bottle slipped, and baby lost his hold.

Sister called to mother to come quickly. "Baby has lost his cork." E. B.

Bob is a radio fan. He will sit for hours listening. It makes no difference whether he gets a station or not, just so he hears something.

"What have you got, Bob?" he was asked.

"The air," was his answer. A. A.

Bobbie had a bad habit of running away to visit a neighbor who always gave him a lunch of some kind. His mother, fearing he would become a nuisance, told him if he asked for anything to eat he couldn't go any more, and asked the neighbor not to offer him anything.

On his next visit he told about all his toys, and made a special effort to be friendly.

Finally deciding there would be not even a cookie without a stronger hint, he slid from his chair and said, "Guess me better be goin'. Us didn't had no dinner over us house today." F. H.

SANITAS MODERN WALL COVERING

Wipe off the Dirt

Even the walls of the entrance hall can welcome your guests

OF all the rooms in the house, the hall is the most apt to be neglected. Yet, the first impression of a home is gained in the entrance hall. It is an index to the kind of people who live there. Unusual care should be given to the selection of the decorations—especially those of the walls—that they impart an atmosphere of cordial welcome and hospitality.

Sanitas makes this quite easy. Individuality has a wide range for adequate expression from among the many beautiful decorative and floral designs, or the soft, flat-finish plain tints.

Sanitas is a finished product, made on cloth, machine-painted with durable oil colors. It can be applied over new walls or old. It does not crack, peel, or fade, is impervious to grease and moisture, and can be kept in clean and fresh sanitary condition by wiping with a damp cloth.

SANITAS is supplied by decorators. See the new Sanitas patterns at your decorator's. If he cannot supply you write us for samples, booklet and information as to where you can secure Sanitas.

Make Your Bathroom a Health Resort

If you take a trip to one of the famous hot or sulphur springs for your rheumatism, it will cost you at least $50 by the time you get your first bath. "Vita-Sulphur"—a small quantity in your bath—will enable you to take a genuine sulphur bath right at home—at a cost of a few cents—a bath as beneficial as any sulphur bath in the world.

The curative value of sulphur is well known. Heretofore it has been necessary to go where the waters contained sulphur properties. Now, for the first time, it is offered you by "Vita-Sulphur" in liquid form. Just add a little to your bath, and you obtain more actual beneficial effect than could be obtained from three baths at any sulphur springs.

"Vita-Sulphur" gives quick and almost wonderful

Relief from Rheumatism, Neuritis, Sciatica, Lumbago, Gout

It cleanses the system of all impurities and imparts a wonderful feeling of new life and vigor. One trial and you will forget your annual trip to the "springs."

"Vita-Sulphur" also relieves all skin troubles and eruptions. It takes the stiffness and soreness out of tired, overworked muscles.

A "Vita-Sulphur" foot-bath at night will dispel the soreness from tired, aching feet.

A dollar bottle—at your druggist's—will prove all our claims for "Vita-Sulphur." If you cannot procure it, send your druggist's name with one dollar, and we will mail you, postpaid, a full size bottle.

Hairy Growths Removed Entire, Roots and All

The vexed question of how to completely banish superfluous hair has been solved at last! By means of the new phelactine process, the hairs entire, roots and all, come out before your very eyes—easily, harmlessly, "quick as a wink." Quite different from the depilatory, electrical and shaving methods. Phelactine is perfectly odorless, non-irritating, non-poisonous—a child could eat it without the least injury. It leaves the skin so soft, smooth, hairless, no one could tell you ever had a moustache or other hairy growth. Procure a stick of Phelactine from your druggist, follow the simple instructions, and you will certainly be astonished and delighted. Dearborn Supply Co., Chicago.

MOVE SICK CHILD'S BOWELS WITH "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

MOTHER! Even Bilious, Upset, Tongue-Coated Children Love this Pleasant, Harmless Laxative

A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" now will thoroughly clean the little bowels and in a few hours you have a well, playful child again. Even if cross, feverish, constipated, or full of cold, children love its "fruity" taste, and mothers can rest easy because it never fails to work all the souring food and nasty bile right out of the stomach and bowels without griping or upsetting the child.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother, you must say "California." Refuse any imitation.

Permanent Wave Effect Now Quick, Cheap and Easy

New Liquid Discovery Makes Straight Hair Wavy, Soft and Wonderfully Curly

YOU have always longed for soft, fluffy, curly hair. And now—at last—you can have it! For science has perfected a wonderful new liquid, which when applied to the most stubborn hair gives it a beautiful permanent wave effect, making it wonderfully curly, delightfully soft, gloriously wavy.

It is called Domino Curlette. Nothing just like it has ever been known before. No occasion to do away with your tried and tested method of kids or silk curlers. But Domino Curlette is something more, something different, something entirely unique. Use the same old kids or silk curlers, but before doing so moisten your hair with just a few drops of Domino Curlette—and, behold! A miracle of beauty will have been performed. Not only you but your friends will be astonished at the sudden, beautiful transformation in your hair.

A Marvelous Beauty Discovery

A so-called "permanent wave" costs about $25 and sometimes lasts four months, often less. But now you can have what we consider a far more beautiful wave—full of life and fluff—and you can have it now for only $1.00!

Just think what this means! No more costly fees to hairdressers. No more sitting for hours and hours undergoing the tortures of permanent wave methods. For in just a short time, in your own home, you can now acquire charming wavy hair that your friends will always envy. Domino Curlette is just what you have been waiting for. On all sides beauty experts proclaim it one of the greatest beauty discoveries in years.

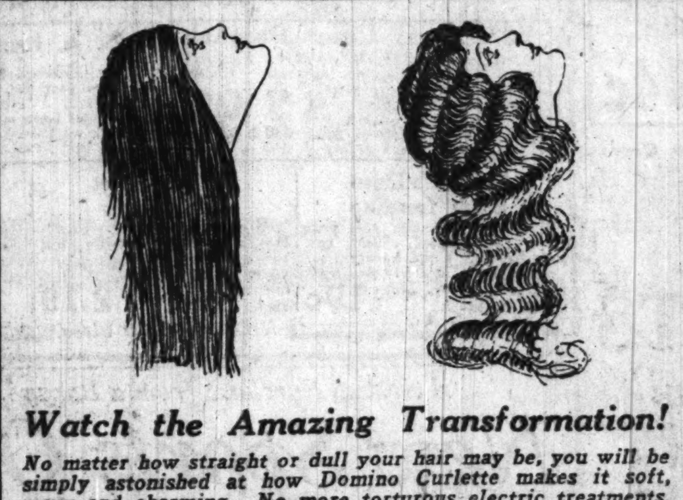
Natural—Not Artificial—Waves

No matter how straight, dull or unmanageable your hair may have been, just one application of this wonderful discovery will make it fall in soft, glistening waves and natural silky curls. It will give even the most lifeless hair a new, entrancing lustre. Only one application will keep your hair wavy and in curl usually for a week or more!

If you have experimented with new fangled "permanent wave" methods, you undoubtedly know how injurious they are to the hair. Not only do they often kill the natural lustre and life of the hair but they produce curls and waves too artificial looking to be beautiful.

But how different is Domino Curlette! This remarkable preparation contains the very elements needed to make your hair naturally wavy and naturally curly. That is why it always adds a new charm, youthfulness and beauty to one's appearance.

Don't let your beauty be spoiled by straight, dull hair. No matter how you wear your hair, Domino Curlette will beautify it immeasurably. No more straight, wispy strands—no more straggly ends. For with Domino Curlette your hair will always be neat, well-dressed, dainty and charming. Try it once—and you will be amazed and delighted with the results.



Watch the Amazing Transformation!

No matter how straight or dull your hair may be, you will be simply astonished at how Domino Curlette makes it soft, wavy and charming. No more torturous electric treatments. For just one application of Domino Curlette, used with your favorite curlers, will make your hair delightfully fluffy and curly—and keep it so for a week or more. Use coupon and get first application at our expense.

Money Back Guarantee

Domino Curlette is sold at good drug stores and department stores everywhere—at the amazingly low price of only $1.00 for a bottle lasting many weeks.

So that everyone may try this new discovery, we are making this special introductory offer. Get Domino Curlette today. Try it in your own home. Then if you are not more than delighted with the beautiful wavy hair it gives you, your money will be refunded.

This money-back guarantee is backed by a special deposit of $10,000 in the Producers and Consumers Bank of Philadelphia, so you do not risk a penny.

Trial Bottle Free

If you prefer, you may secure a Trial Size Bottle of Domino Curlette entirely free by simply filling out the coupon below and presenting it at any one of the drug stores named at bottom of this advertisement. GOOD MORNING!

I give you my word, I like this Johnnie Walker. He seems such a clean cut, regular sort of person. He isn't afraid to fight. He knows how to make love. He is good to his picture mothers, and dogs seem to love him. I reckon he could fix the radiator or tack up a hook for the parrot cage, too. Anyhow, he LOOKS as if he could.

JOHNNIE WALKER.
[Evans Photo.]

In "The Fourth Musketeer" he has a snappy little story by H. C. Witwer, who wrote "The Leather Pushers." He is cast as the able and energetic prize fighting husband of a pretty, snippy blonde wife who wants to climb the ladder of success and feels that the prize fighting round is not even its lowest rung. Now, if Brian would only go into the garage business—"own his own garage——"

Well, events so shape themselves that he gets the garage. That's a little bit too much for the frail brain that had been behind the idea. Mrs. O'Brien goes lounge-lizarding and is secretly—and sometimes quiet openly—ashamed of the hardy youth whose name she bears and who is so busy with his new enterprise that he hasn't time to doll up evenings and go on dress parade with her fashionable friends. (Even if he had leanings that way—which he hasn't.)

You can see, can't you, that everything starts out nicely for a matrimonial slide and collision? The slide comes, but the collision is averted by an amazing circumstance which gives our hero back the really sweet girl he had married, and makes his house a happy home again.

Mr. Witwer, whose middle name ISN'T pep, but which OUGHT to be, rarely turns out anything that could by any possible chance bore one. In "The Fourth Musketeer" he has hit on a happy medium between pathos and humor and tragedy, and given the laurels to the humor—which is his way.

You will thoroughly enjoy the work of Mr. Walker. You will like Eileen Percy part of the time and yearn to shake her the other part. But you will derive great enjoyment from the work of all of the men in the cast. The picture is well put on—a little more attention could have been paid to the makeup of the actors—they all look so white—but, on the whole, it is a thoroughly pleasing program production, and should go well with the public.

CLOSEUPS

Maurice Tourneur has announced he will go to Europe next fall if nothing prevents. He wishes to spend Christmas in his beloved Paris. He may make a picture while abroad, but his principal reason for taking the trip is to get away from his work and absorb new ideas. Mr. Tourneur is now making "The Brass Bottle," which has a whimsical twist concerning a genie, so grateful for being liberated from the bottle, that he heaps all sorts of unwanted and embarrassing treasures on the hero, including a harem of dancing girls. Otis Harlan has been added to the cast, which includes Charlotte Merriam, Harry Myers, and others.

It is announced that Virginia Faire has signed a five year contract with Richard Walton Tully to appear in Tully's pictures.

Mary Anderson will soon appear in an all-star production of a story called "Youth's Triumph," having just signed with the Fischer production, a San Francisco firm working at the Hollywood studios. Miss Anderson has been away from Hollywood for a year and a half, during which time she has been making personal appearances. She has bought a bungalow and is living with her mother and her two sisters.

Colleen Moore has completed "April Showers," which she says will be her last film engagement before her marriage to John McCormick, which is scheduled to take place early in the summer.

MADGE BELLAMY.

Madge Bellamy, who has just signed a three year contract with Thomas H. Ince, will make her first appearance as a star for this producer under his personal direction.

The entire police force of Culver City was recently summoned by residents, alarmed by wild shrieks of maniacal laughter coming from the Ince studios at midnight. The scent led them to a cage where a live hyena, used in Mrs. Wallace Reid's film, which deals with the drug evil, was housed. Mrs. Reid has ordered a special muzzle to discourage the animal's midnight laughter, and has promised there will be no further cause for complaint.

"Souls for Sale" Holds Mirror Up to Hollywood

By Mildred Spain.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—The film firmament moved as one body on Monday night to the California theater to view Rupert Hughes' apologium of themselves, "Souls for Sale." This was their chance to see themselves as others see them, and they took it with sportsmanlike avidity. A motion picture camera, Klieg lights, and some thousand tourists were assembled in the foyer long before the arrival of the stars. Rupert Hughes and his brother, Howard, came early and sat in an obscure corner. All the better to hear the comment, my dears.

Eleanor Boardman wore a long, shimmering wrap of batik and a narrow velvet ribbon around her hair. This was Miss Boardman's first appearance as a star of the first water, and her radiance was marked.

Mae Busch came in a frilly sports blouse, plain long skirt, short vamped gray shoes, and a small hat with a large bow of black taffeta. Marjorie Daw was gowned in trailing scarlet tulle and a white fur wrap trimmed in rows of black monkey fur. Miss Barbara La Marr was seen in a black low cut gown unadorned, her hair forming a black fan. Clara Kimball Young, Claude Gillingwater, Aileen Pringle, Florence and King Vidor, Frank Mayo and Dagmar Godowsky, Jean Haskell and Roy Atwell were others glimpsed in the audience.

As for the play, well, one harassed little extra girl looked knowingly at another and said, "They'd oughta name this 'Only a Movin' Picture Actress.'"

There is another engagement to deny. This time it is Constance Talmadge and Irving Thalberg who do all the denying. Mr. Thalberg met Constance at the train when she came home from Barstow. There was a kiss, not on the cheek. Also there was a reporter somewhere on the fringe of the crowd that came to meet Connie and he thought—well, the engagement is a great piece of exaggeration, says Constance.

There has been much excitement over the arrival of Billy Roelof in Hollywood to do film acting. Mr. Roelof is the son of the late John Roelof of Philadelphia. There are now one lord, two ladies, counting Elinor Glyn, and at least five millionaire's sons in Hollywood. The "I knew him when" club has become an archaic institution.

Sisters Look Like Twins.

[Apeda Photo.]

Viola Dana has completely recovered from her operation for appendicitis. She was seen at Cocoanut Grove Tuesday night with her sisters, Miss Shirley Mason and Edna Flugrath. Miss Dana wore a dinner dress of pastel blue and silver chiffon. Shirley Mason looked like Miss Dana's twin, save that her gown was of pink georgette trimmed in white marabou. Miss Dana was also seen at the Friday bouts at the Hollywood arena, where she looked particularly attractive in a white sports suit and a wide brimmed white felt hat.

The smart style of architecture this month seems to be the English cottage with age old vines. The only catch is the age old vines. Nevertheless, Reginald Denny and Leatrice Joy have joined the landed gentry in West Hollywood with the purchase of such cottages. Mr. Denny's home is on the top of a foothill where he can see all of Hollywood. Miss Joy's home is in the colony where live Tom Mix, William Desmond, and William S. Hart.

ORA CAREW.
[Evans Photo.]

Now a Star's Husband.

From salad dressing king to movie producer. No, it's not the title of an Horatio Alger novel. It is the career of one J. C. Howard, who was recently married to Miss Ora Carew. Mr. Howard will star Miss Carew. And in the meantime they have moved into a home in Hollywood next to the residence of the late Wallace Reid.

It was Saturday night. There was a dinner party at the home of Charles Spencer Chaplin. Miss Negri, Dr. Cecil Reynolds, Hollywood psychiatrist, and Mrs. Reynolds were guests. Kono, Mr. Chaplin's Japanese secretary, came into the dining room and announced there was a strange girl in Mr. Chaplin's bed and pajamas. Dinner was adjourned while the guests tried to dissuade the young woman from making any lengthy visit. Miss Marina Vega, Mexico City debutante, finally left, but the dinner was forever ruined.

Buster Keaton was seated next to Pauline Garon at a dinner party in Cocoanut Grove Saturday night. Buster tried his sad, sad face on Miss Garon from the oysters to the almonds. Then Miss Garon raised beautiful eyes and said: "Say, Mr. Keaton, what do you do for excitment?"

Gloria Swanson and Betty Compson have gone in for evening gardening. In the brief twilight of California Miss Compson and Miss Swanson may be seen nurturing petunias, coaxing the wistaria blooms to fall gracefully and planting rows of old fashioned flowers. Miss Swanson usually wears a cool house dress fashioned of gingham. Miss Compson is seen in bloomers and loose garden gloves. Miss Swanson's home across from the Beverly Hills hotel is already one of

Seldom Heard Mozart Opera Here This Week

By Edward Moore.

THE most interesting novelty of the week looks from this distance to be Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte," which will be presented by William Wade Hinshaw's peripatetic company for four afternoons at the Studebaker theater. Mozart operas are more talked about than heard in this age. The Chicago Opera in years past made attempts at "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Don Giovanni," the latter with Titta Ruffo and Mario Ancona as two incumbents of the name part; another Hinshaw company presented "The Impresario" here earlier in the season; once, a few years ago, there was an amateur presentation of "Bastien and Bastienne" at Orchestra hall; there was an earlier "Figaro" performance by a company directed by Herman Devries.

They say it is hard to find good Mozart singers, which is more or less true. The melodic line of Mozart demands first class singing; no error in the singer's art is going to be covered up by personality or acting ability. It is more to the point that Mozart wrote his pieces for a theater smaller than the vast spaces of the Auditorium, and gave them a character needing an audience at close range; in other words, intimacy.

Up to the last couple of years "Cosi Fan Tutte" has not been a frequent item even in the operatic répertoire of European houses, although it is credited with being one of Mozart's most entertaining and captivating scores. Incidentally, the aria sung by Florence Easton in her recital the other night was a bit of evidence backing up the claim. The libretto seemed to be difficult to put across the footlights, and at one time and another no less than eleven versions of the story were made.

The Metropolitan company gave it a revival two seasons ago, at which time Mr. Hinshaw conceived the idea that it would be a good piece for touring purposes. He thereupon secured the services of the late H. E. Krehbiel to make an English translation, and, going back to originals, to follow Da Ponte's first libretto closely. The story concerns a plot of two officers who make a wager as to the faithfulness of their intended brides, disguise themselves as rich Albanian merchants, and succeed in winning the girls with the aid of their unscrupulous maid.

A slender theme, but it moves brightly and smoothly—and it has Mozart's lovely music. It will be sung by Irene Williams, Kathleen Bibb, Lillian Palmer, Judson House, Leo de Hierapolis, and Pierre Remington, all American singers.

"Cosi Fan Tutte," most nearly translated "Everybody's Doing It," will be given on Monday and Thursday at 2:30 and Tuesday and Friday at 4. The Tuesday and Friday hours are selected for the benefit of school children and teachers.

Music Festival Announces Program.

in recital tonight.

Taking time by a forelock seven weeks long, the Chicago North Shore Festival association sends word of the annual observance to be held in Evanston May 24, 25, 26, 28, 29, and 30. It will be a week of orchestra concerts, choral performances, soloists of the great and near great, guest conductors, and new compositions. The orchestra will be the Chicago Symphony. The soloists, in their alphabetical order rather than that of achievements or reputation, will be Else Harthan Arendt, John Barclay, Giuseppe Danise, Rose Lutiger Gannon, Mabel Garrison, Lucy Gates, Beniamino Gigli, Louise Homer, Theo Karle, Margaret Matzenauer, and Tito Schipa. The conductors will be Peter Christian Lutkin, general musical director; Frederick Stock for orchestral numbers, Osbourne McConathy as assosciate in choral works, and George W. Chadwick, Henry Hadley, and Arne Oldberg as guests.

The only new choral piece will take place in the children's concert, Mr. Lutkin's setting of "The Night Before Christmas," which will be sung by the children's chorus of 1,500. The youthful choristers will also be heard in Bach's "My Heart Ever Faithful," songs by Haydn, Brahms, and Grieg, and Strauss' "Blue Danube." Of choral works to be done by the adults there is reference to Wolf-Ferrari's "The New Life," Mr. Stock's "A Psalmodic Rhapsody," and Horatio Parker's "Hora Novissima." The last named is featured on a program of American composers, during which Mr. Chadwick will conduct his "Anniversary" Overture, and Miss Garrison will sing a cycle of songs by John Alden Carpenter.

There will be a new orchestral piece, selected, like that of last year, from the number submitted in competition. Forty-seven were received and five of the most important of these have been taken to be heard in final judgment. The orchestra will play these before Mr. Chadwick, Mr. Hadley, and Gustav Strube, who will thereupon vote for first choice. The five will be played on the Saturday night of the week, and the first choice on the last night of the festival. As it is a secret competition, the names of the composers will not be officially known until after the judgment.

Coming Choral Joys.

ELSA KRESSMAN,
soloist with Apollo Musical club.

Spring is here, at least according to the calendar, and by the same token there will be considerable choral music during the next few weeks. The Apollo Musical club will be at Orchestra hall tomorrow night with a program consisting of Goring-Thomas' "The Swan and the Skylark" and Verdi's "Te Deum" and "Stabat Mater." The last two, if advance information is correct, will have their first American performance on this occasion. Elsa Kressman, Jennie Johnson, Eugene Dressler, and Arthur Ranous will sing the solo parts, and Harrison M. Wild will conduct.

The Swift & Co. male chorus, which makes a point of having a famous soloist in its spring concerts, has engaged Edward Johnson to appear on the same stage on Wednesday evening. He is announced for groups of songs in Italian, French, and English. The chorus will feature Samuel Richard Gaines' "Waken, Lords and Ladies Gay," which won the 1922 prize in the annual competition offered by the organization.

For later occasions there is word of the Marshall Field & Co. chorus in "The Dream of Gerontius," by Edward Elgar, and the Swedish Choral society in Haydn's "The Creation." Thomas A. Pape will conduct the first and Edgar A. Nelson the second.

Those who care to compare the playing of two stars of the violin will have a chance today when Mischa Elman plays at the Auditorium in the afternoon and Jascha Heifetz takes the same stage in the evening. Bernard Shaw, who seldom allows himself the luxury of getting enthusiastic, is said to have delivered himself of this to Heifetz: "You know that nothing may be perfect in this world or God gets jealous and destroys it, so would you mind just playing something badly in your room before you go to bed at night?"

On this, his only Chicago appearance of the season, he will play a Nardini Concerto, the Mozart A Major Concerto, and two groups of short pieces. Elman announces another work by Nardini, the D Major Sonata, also the Mendelssohn Concerto, which has been played by at least twenty-four out of Cyril Maude Brings Drama Version of "If Winter Comes"

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—They rather rush Mark Sabre in the dramatized version of "If Winter Comes," which Cyril Maude has brought over from London. The poor old blundering sentimentalist is put through a lifetime of dramatic odds and ends between the rising of the curtain and the falling thereof. Which leads naturally to the familiar statement that the play is the usual disappointing stage arrangement of a popular novel. A superfluous statement, incidentally. I've yet to see one that was not disappointing. And yet no great violence is done either the characters or the story in this arrangement. It was made by A. S. M. Hutchinson himself, assisted by B. Macdonald Hastings, and it is good old fashioned domestic drama, precipitately and sketchily arranged. The dramatists pick up Sabre the day the recruiting sergeant has put the jolly old stethoscope to his blind eye, so to speak, and passed Mark for army duty. He is buoyantly exultant, but Mabel Sabre, his wife, does not think much of the "honor." Nor anything that goes with it. And this incident is depended upon largely to embrace the multitudinous irritations and clashes of temperament that have set the Sabres on each other's nerves.

Starting then upon its plunge ahead, Sabre's secret love of Lady Tybar and her sympathetic response are also indicated in a single scene of her joy at his courageous soldiering, into which the book's titular quotation from Shelley is literally dragged by the heels. With Sabre away to war and Effie Bright installed as companion to his wife, the scene is set for Effie's curt dismissal by Mrs. Sabre and the girl's return next scene carrying her fatherless child.

Jump Seems a Little Abrupt.

Theoretically it is as easy to jump fifteen months with a moment's lowering of the curtain as it is with a ten minute intermission, but it does seem a little abrupt in this instance. Just as it does in the previous scene, when we leave Sabre, a provisional recruit as the curtain falls, and greet him as a year old veteran home from the wars a moment later.

With the appearance of the friendless Effie, and Mark's determination to give her lodging. Mrs. Sabre walks haughtily from the house and gives notice of her divorce intentions, which pains Mark strangely, seeing he had little love for her, but is typical of the rutted Englishman who resents change. This brings Effie to her decision to commit suicide that she may cause Sabre no more sorrow. The inquest follows, and though it has none of the vitality and sweep of the book's description, it does provide sound melodrama, as most trial scenes do. Maude is at his dramatic best as the inarticulate and sentimentally outraged Sabre in court. The final scene discovers Mark roaming the offices of his old firm to show the crafty Twyning the proof that his sainted son was the real father of Effie's child, and Mark's sacrificial burning of the proof when he hears of young Twyning's death at the front. It also brings Lady Tybar to comfort him.

CYRIL MAUDE.
[Moffett Photo.]

There was a first audience of those familiar with the book and those who love Mr. Maude, and they seemed satisfied and happy. Maude, of course, stresses such comedy as there is, making of Mark a sort of young Grumpy on occasion and doing it rather well. The company is competent, though undistinguished, save in the person of Mabel Terry-Lewis, who gives an excellent performance as Mrs. Sabre.

Mr. Maude said a few words of thanks, speaking, he said, both as an Englishman who loves America, and as the grandfather of a future President of the United States. His daughter, Margery, remained behind when father sailed home from a previous tour and took unto herself an American husband. And had a handsome grandson to show her sire when he returned this time.

Through the Eyes of Love.

Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's newest play, "The Enchanted Cottage," which was not doing well in London and so was transported to New York, is a pretty fable ("Pretty feeble is right," the cynic at my left insisted)—a pretty fable about a shell shocked, wry necked war relic and a homely girl who got married to satisfy their extreme need for comfort and company, and found that, seeing each other through the eyes of love, he became straight and handsome and she really beautiful. They think the change may have been wrought as a modern miracle. But they tremble a little at the thought that it also may be due to sorcery. There used to be witches in those parts. So far days they go about the country near the enchanted honeymoon cottage hiding their faces with long peaked caps and veils.

Only one man do they take into their confidence, and he another war relic who was blinded at Vimy. The blind man, who "hears" the happiness in their voices, assures them that such miracles are quite possible. They probably are all right. Even he is waiting, patiently, thinking he yet may see.

Old Ideas, New Zeal Brought by Russians

By Sheppard Butler.

IF the players from Moscow seem exotic, it is not because they bring anything new or strange to the American stage. Names of an unaccustomed flavor and the syllables of an unfamiliar language, but that is all. Beneath these superficialities there was revealed to us at the Great Northern last week nothing more or less than the oldest kind of stagecraft.

STANISLAVSKY
as Gaieff in "The Cherry Orchard," tomorrow at the Great Northern.

It is we who have gone far afield. Impressionism and expressionism have had their way in our theater. Futuristic cults and abstruse imaginative vagaries, ideas cubistic, stylistic, symbolic, have bemused those whom we have been pleased to term prophets in matters of the drama. A curtain, a shaft of light, and a thought—behold, a production. If we didn't know what it was all about, so much the better. As for Mr. Belasco, he was a fussy old reactionary, clinging to the tenets of a forgotten past.

Much of this came from Europe, and not a little from Russia. So, when the most renowned of their acting organizations approached, it was to be expected that we might encounter something radical, alien, and difficult to comprehend. And we encountered nothing of the kind.

Rather astonishingly, we found ourselves among actors devoted to the simple and old-fashioned business of reproducing life as faithfully as possible. From the capital of the soviets our good and honest friend, realism, came, covered with honor, to abide with us again. Everything was plain; any one could understand it. It was like going to meet an esoteric poet and finding your grandfather instead.

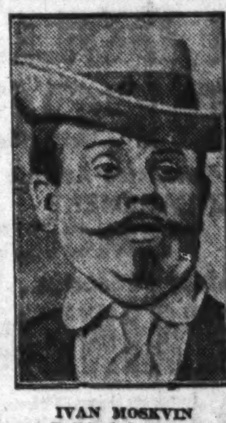
Performances Shot Through with Fire.



IVAN MOSKVIN
as Epikhodoff in Anton Tchekhoff's comedy, "The Cherry Orchard."

But a strangely vigorous grandsire, if you care for the simile. An old kind of stagecraft, but with a new sweep, a new authority, a new, exultant plunge. This is not realism tentatively essayed, but realism confidently achieved, through the painstaking devotion of twenty-five years' hard work. Method, approach, all matters of experiment were determined long ago. The Moscow players reflect life, but theirs is no pale reflection. It is highly colored with precisely the right hues, energized with keen understanding. They have perceived, shrewdly, that holding the mirror up to nature is not, in itself, quite enough; there must be a bit of emphasis, and the Muscovites know where to put it.

So their performances are vivid and shot through with fire to a degree we have not known before. That, I should say, is why they carry their American audiences off their feet.

My liveliest recollection of Tuesday night's "Tsar Fyodor" is of a man I could not possibly identify. His name was not on the playbill; he was merely one of the throng which crowded the reception room in the Tsar's palace. He moved about, muttering, grimacing, nudging, whispering. As the principal characters spoke the lines of the play, he registered sardonic disapproval of what was going on. He sneered and chuckled—in short, he was acting every minute to the top of his bent. His face in repose would have been unforgettable, so amazingly were the lines of character brought out by the magic of makeup. Lightened by action, it was poignantly eloquent.

And there were, perhaps, forty more like him, each achieving a characterization that would have been hailed as a triumph in any American company. Observing these players is like nothing so much as trying to take in everything at a three-ring circus. One is continually discovering something new to look at.

And That Doddering Centenarian!

Next to this man I remember the garrulous centenarian, an incidental bit played by Mikhail Tarkhanoff. He came in, doddering and bleary-eyed, apoplectic and a little dirty, and engaged the Tsar's wandering wits with rambling, incoherent reminiscences. I have seen such old men, at once repellent and pathetic, but never one who so completely epitomized the characteristics of senility.

DOBRONRAVOFF
as the prize fighter, young Golub, in "Tsar Fyodor."

Here, too, was no highly important part. But the actor's spirit and skill made of it a thing unbelievably compelling.

The Moscow Art theater has not adhered to this business of realism altogether single-mindedly. Stanislavsky started with it and has always returned to it, but there have been experiments. Gordon Craig went to Moscow in 1912 to put on a stylistic "Hamlet" with Stanislavsky's players, and was given carte blanche in developing his ideas. He worked a year, and scrapped everything. He tried again, and produced something against black velvet and tall screens, with the actors all in cloth of gold. It was impressively beautiful, but the Muscovites, though respectful and polite, were bored with its splendors. The players returned to their realism and Craig never went back.

No tall screens or lofty portals appear now in their productions. If the rooms in the "Tsar Fyodor" are mean in their proportions, it is because sixteenth century rooms in Russia were like that. Even the actor's well-beloved boon of a stately entrance is sacrificed to verisimilitude. In the palace scenes of the Tolstoy play each character comes upon the stage bent double, in the most awkward posture imaginable, creeping through a narrow doorway not much higher than one's waist.

I asked the reason for an arrangement apparently so inept.

"Well," I was told, "the doors in the Kremlin were built that way."

It seemed to me a characteristic touch.

Gossip of Plays and Players.

Henry Miller, quickly through with "Pasteur," is reported to be approaching a Chicago theater with a new comedy, "The Changelings," by Lee Wilson Dodd, and a cast that sounds like the best of the season. His support, if it may be called that, will include Miss Blanche Bates, Miss Ruth Chatterton, Miss Laura Hope Crews, John Miltern, Felix Krembs, and Geoffrey Kerr. The piece probably will be shown either at Powers' or the Illinois.

The reason for this incredible aggregation of dignitaries is that they are going with Mr. Miller to the Pacific coast to participate in his annual summer tryout of new plays. Instead of making an unbroken journey, they will start early and offer "The Changelings" at various points along the way, beginning in Philadelphia.

Augustus Thomas' project for an American National theater will come into being in Washington next week with the initial presentation of "As You Like It," directed by Mr. Thomas and with Miss Marjorie Rambeau in the part of "THE THREE SISTERS," a drama in four acts by Anton Tchekoff—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, April 16, 17 and 18; and Thursday matinee and evening, April 19.

"THE LOWER DEPTHS"—Friday evening, April 20, and Saturday matinee and evening, April 21.

The curtain will rise promptly at 8 at the evening performances and at 2 at the matinees and, according to a custom honored in Moscow for the last twenty-five years, positively no one will be admitted thereafter until the first intermission.

Another Moscow custom which Chicago will be asked to respect is that no applause is permitted until the close of the performance.

Special English translations of each of the plays are now available at the Great Northern Theatre and at all the ticket agencies at twenty-five cents each, or they may be obtained by mail addressed to the theatre at thirty cents each.

PRICES:

For all night performances: Orch., $5; orch. circle, $3.50; 1st bal., $2.50 and $3; 2nd bal., $1.50 and $2. (Plus 10% war tax.) For all matinees: Orch., $3.50; orch. circle, $3; 1st bal., $2.50 and $3; 2nd bal., $1.50 and $2. (Plus 10% war tax.)

But in the end the doubting, materialistic[cynical world breaks in upon them in the persons of the boy's impossible family, and these can see no change in the lovers. He is still a wreck of a man, with a twisted [illegible] and a shortened leg. And his bride is a sallow, angular wisp of a [illegible] who may have a kind heart, but certainly is shy on beauty. The boy and girl, however, retain something of their dream. He is still tall and handsome to her, and she is beautiful, as well as gentle, to him. And the play leaves them thus—with the girl dreaming of a household of beautiful children, the first of whom comes climbing out of a window seat and crawls into the waiting arms of her mother-to-be as the final curtain falls.

A curious play for Sir Arthur to write. It is almost as though he deliberately had tried, perhaps on a wager, to do a typical "Barrie play" with which to confound Sentimental Jimmie of "Dear Brutus," "A Kiss for Cinderella" and "Mary Rose" fame. Of course, there is only one Barrie, and never will be two. And "The Enchanted Cottage" is a long way from being as charming as any of the Barrie fantasies. But it has its moments. There is, for example, a dream scene in which the homely little bride sees herself being married in a great cathedral, with troops of bridesmaids and attendants, while every one who congratulates her assures her that she is, indeed, beautiful. This scene is splendidly written. And the mother's vision at the tag is good.

KATHERINE CORNELL.
[White Photo.]

The Katherine Cornell who has come rapidly forward following her last season's success in "A Bill of Divorcement" and her more recent appearance in "Will Shakespeare" plays the homely bride prettily, and Noel Tearle, who is not so well known in America as his cousin Conway, has come over to play the boy, which he does well. Gilbert Emery, Clara Blandick, and Winifred Fraser are also in the cast.

Boy Producers Win Court Case.

The office boy producers, Michaels, Mindlin and Goldreyer, who found themselves the owners of a popular success the morning after "The Last Warning" was played on Broadway, are learning more and more about the show business every day. They were playing the Klaw theater under a contract by the terms of which they split the receipts 50-50 with the owners of the house, agreeing to accept two weeks' notice to move if their weekly takings should fall below $7,000. This happened two weeks before Easter, and the boys promptly bought enough seats on their own account to make up the difference.

The theater owners took the matter to court, claiming when the young managers bought seats for their own attraction to boost their own box office receipts they technically violated their contract. The court decided otherwise, however, and "The Last Warning" continues to play at the Klaw. It doesn't matter who brings the money into the box office, said the judge, so long as the weekly receipts from the sale of seats amounts to the stipulated $7,000.

Most Broadway contracts carry a similar "stop run" clause, and there was considerable interest in the case. The owners of the Klaw had contracted to let "The Exile," with Eleanor Painter and Jose Ruben, into their theater this week, but the court decision has left these players all dressed up with no place to play.

THE NEW PLAYS

First Aid for First Nighters on Attractions Scheduled for the Coming Weeks in the Theaters.

OPENING TOMORROW NIGHT.

"Bristol Glass" (Blackstone)—First important showing of a new comedy of American life by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson. The leading rôles are taken by Frank McGlynn, long the actor of the name part in John Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln," and Gregory Kelly and Miss Ruth Gordon, happily employed heretofore in Tarkington's "Seventeen" and other plays of youth. The cast also includes Frederick Perry, John W. Ransone, Miss Catherine Proctor, Miss Cornelia Otis Skinner, and Frank McGlynn Jr.

"The Cherry Orchard" (Great Northern)—Anton Tchekhoff's comedy of the landed proprietors in Russia, to be given as the third item of the Moscow Art theater's repertoire in Chicago. Stanislavsky, Gribunin, Moskvin, and Mme. Knipper-Tchekhova will appear in important parts. On Friday "Tsar Fyodor Ivanovitch," the first play of the series, will be restored for the remainder of the week.

IMPENDING JOYS.

"R. U. R." (Cort, April 15)—Karel Capek's fantastic and satirical melodrama, concerned with a race of automatons and the calamitous experiences into which they plunge certain mortals. In the cast are Miss Kathlene MacDonell, Percy Waram, Whitford Kane, Henry Travers, and other good players.

"Steve" (Princess, April 15)—Eugene O'Brien, of the movies, in a comedy about film folk which enlists the services of Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, Miss Vivia Ogden, and various others.

"The Passing Show" (Apollo, April 22)—Another entertainment from the New York Winter Garden, with Willie and Eugene Howard heading the list of performers.

Gossip of Plays and Players

Rosalind. The Augustin Daly acting version of the play will be used. It is Mr. Thomas' announced intention to make no attempt at long runs but to show the production in as many cities as possible.

Mme. Petrova, seeking to learn the effect, if any, of newspaper criticism on a play's prosperity, is distributing questionnaires at the Selwyn containing the following inquiries:

What made you come to this theater tonight?

a. Did you read a critic's review of "Hurricane"?

b. If so, what critic?

c. Did you see an advertisement of the play?

d. Or did some one recommend the play to you?

e. Is there any other reason that brought you here?

When, and if, there are 10,000 replies the accumulated information will be summarized and perhaps the critics will be told where they stand.

"Bristol Glass," coming to the Blackstone tomorrow, was first revealed last week in Cleveland. William F. McDermott comments on it thus in the Plain Dealer:

"Booth Tarkington must get pretty tired of hearing his plays called graceful, adroit, and polished, but a little 'light.' However, 'Bristol Glass,' his new play, written in collaboration with Harry Leon Wilson, might as well make up its mind to meet precisely the same battery of adjectives.

"It is expert and charming playwriting, as smooth a work as 'Clarence,' and with something of the same quiet, observant drollery. It has, too, a great deal more dramatic body and drive than most of Mr. Tarkington's plays, but much of it is placid and easygoing and none of it strains very hard to make a point so that it doubtless will not escape the label 'thin.' It is, I believe, Mr. Tarkington's best play since 'Clarence' and 'Seventeen.'"

Miss Gertrude Hoffmann and Miss Evan Burrowes Fontaine, dancers not wholly unknown to renown for varying reasons, will emerge tomorrow as purveyors of entertainment to the north side. Miss Hoffmann will preside over a new revue at the Marigold and Miss Fontaine will be similarly employed at the Rainbo.

Various players now in town will be seen at the Colonial this afternoon in a special program devised as a benefit performance for the American Theatrical hospital. Leon Errol will be master of ceremonies.

COSTLY SHOPPING HABITS

The business year is not a very long affair when reduced to actual hours or minutes. The larger retail store, with its fixed time for opening and closing, has less than 2,600 hours in which to crowd the energy, thought, and imagination necessary for successful merchandising.

Despite the need for concentration, operation during thirty-five per cent of this valuable time is at an expensively low ratio of efficiency. The overhead expense between eight-thirty and eleven o'clock each day is the same as in the afternoon, although comparatively few sales are recorded.

If business could find a way to obtain a greater return from these earlier one hundred and fifty minutes daily, it would be possible to effect an appreciable price reduction for all.

The consumer as well as the merchant would do well to consider this.

ORIENTAL Rug Importers

Oriental Rugs
Domestic Rugs
Carpets, Linoleums

It has become a fact recognized by all judges of Oriental rugs that our store contains the greatest variety of Oriental productions in the city.

A Great Saving Opportunity

Oriental Mats, 6.75, 7.75, 8.75, 9.75

Persian Sarouk Mats, 24.75, 27.50, 32.50, 34.50
Beautiful soft tones. Sizes 2.6x1.8.

Rare Antique Bokhara Saddle Rugs, 35.00, 37.50, 42.50, 47.50
The beautiful dark wine color combinations in the Royal Bokhara and Hatchliss Rugs are very rich, and these rugs will stand any wear. They are silky and closely woven in the old designs; but few of this size ever reach America, as the European cities snap them up as soon as they are offered on sale in the markets of the Orient.

Long Hall Persian Rugs, 37.50, 47.50, 52.50, 57.50
9, 10 and 14 feet long, 3.3 to 4 feet wide. Antique and modern rugs in soft tones. Also some bright effects. Four choice lots.

Chinese Carpets and Small Size Rugs

"BELLA DONNA"
DIRECTED by GEO. FITZMAURICE with
CONWAY TEARLE—CONRAD NAGEL
LOIS WILSON and DISTINGUISHED CAST

A United Chorus of Critics

"Pola is great in this great film. Her art makes other stars seem crude. There is nobody else just like her."
—Mae Tinee, Tribune.

"A production which will long be known as the best of 1923. Perhaps you think I am terribly enthusiastic. You guessed it. That is just the way I felt while I was seeing the picture."
—Observer, Herald-Examiner.

"A gorgeous, romantic, perfect movie. Do you remember when you turned the lights low and thought you were LIVING when you read 'Omar'—that is the mood in which to receive 'Bella Donna'."
—Virginia Dale, Journal.

"Pola Negri in 'Bella Donna' takes her place as the foremost emotional actress on the screen. All the adjectives which go to describe a magnetic and very beautiful woman may be applied to her. The story has been staged with all the grandeur, the lavish display, the pageantry, of which Paramount is capable."
—Genevieve Harris, Post.

"You'll remember Pola Negri. She sets her seal upon your mind so that you could not forget her if you would."
—Rob Reel, American.

Music Festival Sends Word of Spring Program

twenty-five violinists this season, and two group of lesser lights.

Mostly About Music.

There will be another revival of old fashioned Italian opera this afternoon, when Vittorio Trevisan appears in Paer's comic piece, "Il Maestro di Cappella." This work, to be sung in Italian, has not been heard in Chicago in something like thirteen years. Antonio Pini-Corsi and Alma Gluck sang it during the last visit of the Metropolitan Opera to this city. Trevisan, Mabel Sherwood, and Lodovico Oliviero will have the principal rôles this afternoon, with Trevisan, as the orchestra conductor, acting all the parts in an opera of his own composition, including the asp that stings Cleopatra. He is a master of comic rôles.

Guy Maier and Lee Pattison have finally taken the dare of various critics and conductors of this land. When they appear at Orchestra hall this afternooon they will not only perform their accustomed function of raising two-piano music to the highest point known but each will play solos. Mr. Maier will play Schubert and Weber pieces; Mr. Pattison, a group of Chopin.

GUY MAIER AND LEE PATTISON.
[White photo.]

Having been dared for several seasons to play solos as well as two-piano duets, they will appear in their disjunct functions today. However, they will also make music for two pianos.

Looking as far ahead as the end of September, there is word of the annual Berkshire festival of chamber music as planned and directed by Mrs. F. S. Coolidge. Five concerts will be given in three days, the list including the London string quartet, a sonata recital by Myra Hess, piano, and Lionel Tertis, viola, a program of vocal chamber music, another of new English music, and a final event by the Berkshire Festive quartet—William Kroll, Karl Kreuter, Edward Kreiner, and Willem Willeke—assisted by Katharine Goodson, piano.

When one reads that the Chicago Symphony orchestra is announcing its last popular concert and the next to the last subscription program, one realizes that the musical season is drawing near to an end. Nesta Smith, violinist, will be the soloist in the final "pop" on Thursday night. She was the prize winner in her section of the young artists' competition a month ago, and will play the Bruch G Minor Concerto.

ERNEST SCHELLING,
composer-pianist with Chicago Symphony orchestra.
[Clarke photo.]

Ernest Schelling, who writes interesting music for piano and orchestra, and plays as well as he writes, will be the soloist in this week's subscription concerts. He will appear in his own "Fantastic Suite," with a new piece from his pen for orchestra alone, "A Victory Ball," also on the program. The symphony will be Rachmaninoff's second.

Harold Bauer will end his piano recital at the Studebaker this afternoon with the Brahms G Minor Quartet, at which time he will have the assistance of Leon Sametini, Alexander Sebald, and Robert Ambrosius. Earlier he will play transcriptions made by himself of Bach and Cesar Franck, the Schumann G Minor Sonata, a short Chopin group, and Liszt's "Mephisto" waltz.

A concert for an excellent cause—for the joint benefit of the American Field Service in France and the Franco-American Musical society—is announced for Tuesday night at Orchestra hall. Eva Gauthier, singer of modern music, and Robert Schmitz, pianist, will be the artists. The American Field Service in France will donate its share of the proceeds to the establishment of scholarships in French universities. The work of the Franco-American society is toward the establishment of libraries of contemporary French music in this country and of contemporary American music in France.

Miss Gauthier and Mr. Schmitz have undertaken an extensive series of concerts in the larger American cities for this cause, and from their interest in it have cut their fees to less than a quarter of their customary charge.

Cleveland is to have a two weeks' season of opera, beginning April 16. The company bears the name of the city, but in at least three instances the names of the artists can be traced to the Chicago Civic company. Irene Pavloska is up for the name part of "Carmen," with Melvena Passmore as Micäela and Riccardo Martin as José. Three performances will be given. The other works of the season will be "Il Trovatore," "The Bohemian Girl," and "Robin Hood." All will be in English.

Nathaniel Finston, Adolf Weidig, and Richard Hageman have completed their findings in the $1,000 prize orchestral composition contest conducted by Balaban & Katz, and public hearing now awaits completion of the copying of parts from the composers whose works were deemed worthy of appearing in the final contest. Over ninety composition were submitted from all parts of the United States, and the first prize and honorable mentions will be determined when those works selected by the examiners are played. On this occasion the music critics of Chicago will be the judges.

John McCormack would seem to be completing his recuperative process in Europe by doing more opera singing than has been his habit for several years. He recently appeared in the principal tenor rôle of Moussorgsky's "The Fair at Sorochinsk," and is credited with a great success. The opera, like several others of Moussorgsky's, was found in an unfinished condition after the death of the composer, and in this case was completed by Cherepnin, who also conducted this, its first performance.

EDWARD JOHNSON.
[Mishkin photo.]

This American singer of high distinction will appear as guest artist with Swift & Co.'s male chorus at Orchestra hall Wednesday night.

The Society of American Musicians, having carried through one contest for junior American artists with an appearance at one of the Chicago Symphony orchestra's "pops" as the prize, now announces another for next season, with the same goal in view, and with the cellists added to pianists, singers, and violinists. Conditions of the contest will be made public in August and the contest will take place in January.

A children's carnival of song will be given on Saturday night at the Skokie school, Winnetka, by Cyrena Van Gordon of the Chicago opera, Harold Ayres, violinist, and Ilse Forster. The last named artist will appear in colonial, Chinese, Raggedy Ann, and Daffy-Down-Dilly costumes.

CARELESS SHAMPOOING SPOILS THE HAIR

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless) and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

R. L. WATKINS CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss Dutton Invites You

From the great crowds there on Sundays—throughout the entire day and evening—it would seem that almost everyone in Uptown Chicago appreciates the convenience of the Wilson Avenue Ontra.

Uptown families have learned also that to come to The Ontra regularly on week-days, for breakfast, luncheon or dinner, is a sensible, convenient and economical practice.

In many a home in that neighborhood, when the head of the house returns from business each evening he is greeted with a pleasant surprise, in the form of some new delicious product from the Ontra bakery department.

Seven days a week uptown; six days downtown.

EASTMAN I

Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

TO A SMALL BUT BAFFLING SON.

No matter how I counsel you,
  You simply will not learn;
My sage advices go askew,
  Experience you spurn.
I struggle with you night and morn,
  My efforts you despise,
And gaze with unaffected scorn
  Into these troubled eyes.

How many times I've told you, lad,
  It isn't cute to cuss,
Nor calmly call your poor old dad
  A hip-po-pot-amus,
Nor tell a stranger he's a nut—
  It ill behooves you, son;
You may be quite veracious, but
  It simply isn't done.

Your little sister's good as gold,
  And what's your latest trick?
You tell her flat in accents cold:
  "You wimmen make me sick."
A little squib of four—O, dear,
  I don't know what to do.
I tremble with exceeding fear,
  What'll become of you?

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published $1 will be paid. Address Best Joke Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Height of Desperation.

He hated to have his picture taken, but his wife indirectly forced him to do so.

When she saw the photograph she cried out in horror: "O, Harold; you have only one button on your coat."

"Thank heaven, you've noticed it at last," he replied. "That's why I had the photograph taken." A. B.

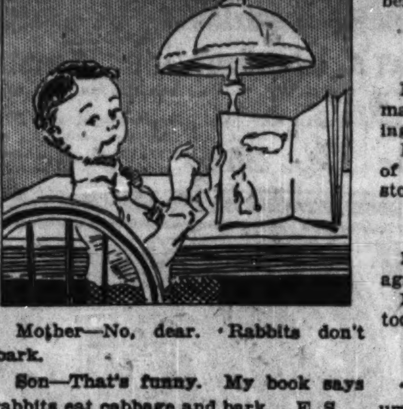
Matter of Fact.

"Johnny, do you know your mother has been looking for you?" asked the neighbor next door.

"Sure, I do," replied Johnny. "That's the reason she can't find me!" A. C. E.

It Did, Too.

Son—Mother, did you ever hear a rabbit bark?"



Mother—No, dear. Rabbits don't bark.

Son—That's funny. My book says rabbits eat cabbage and bark. E. S.

Proof Enough.

A.: "That young bride worships her husband, doesn't she?"

B.: "Well, she places burnt offerings before him three times a day." E. H.

Out Comes the Hammer.

Mary: "Two weeks ago I refused to marry Freddie, and he has been drinking heavily ever since."

Elsie: "Yes, that's a foolish habit of Freddie's. He never knows when to stop a celebration." G. H.

No Option.

Mary—I hear Johnny's on his feet again.

Mother—Yes, poor boy; his creditors took his car. C. K.

Granted.

"Can you imagine," asked the natural history teacher, "anything worse than a giraffe with a sore throat?"

"Yes, sir," came the answer from one boy, "a centipede with corns." M. Q.

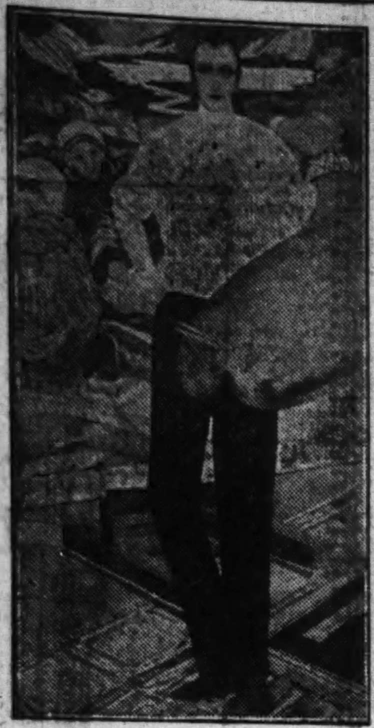
ART AND ARTISTS

Institute Opens New Division of Museum for Prints

By Eleanor Jewett.



"Self-Portrait," by Frank Morse-Rummel. This curious likeness of the artist, painted by himself, is one of the interesting pieces of work from Mr. Morse-Rummel's brush that will be seen at the Arts club during the next week. The exhibit opens April 13 and closes April 22.

OF particular importance this week at the Art institute is the opening of the new division of the museum, that which formerly was the habitat of the Antiquarian society's treasures, devoted to prints. The large rooms have been set up into more or less cozy alcoves, and the walls have been newly decorated in a gray material, not paper but of a clothlike texture, which gives a splendid, unoffending background to sepia, black and white, or color—whatever, in fact, may chance to be hung against it.

At present a variety of etchings, prints, and lithographs is being shown. As to which of the three groups is the most beautiful, that distinction must, I think, be given either to the collection of lithographs by Fantin-Latour or to the Albert Roullier Memorial collection of modern French prints. This last is a truly valuable addition to the permanent treasures of the museum.

The lithographs by Fantin-Latour consist mostly of musical themes woven into pictures. They possess poetry and beauty and imagination. They are illustrations of romance. This is the first time they have been shown here, and they are lent to us by the C. W. Kraushaar gallery of New York. In all about forty prints make up the group.

It has been said of Fantin-Latour that no French artist entered into the actual work of printing his own lithographs with such enthusiasm. He had methods of his own in his practice of this branch of art. He would first scrape the stone with an old razor blade, and by using rough grained transfer paper he would secure the stringy, vapory effect found only in his prints. The beautiful shimmering light thus produced is a salient characteristic of his work, and reflects exquisitely the inner light of fantasy which directed these conceptions of his.

When one has once seen the Odilon Redon lithographs, this is the third selection shown in this exhibit, it is hard to forget them. The wierd, fantastic, grotesque horrors that people his prints make them linger long in one's momery. Particularly Redon's use of the eye, a single, vast, shining orb, relentless, unwinking, without lid or lash, haunts one for days. As a spider, as a god, as a devil, that eye plays its relentless part in illustration after illustration.

Yet, having in Paris, two years ago, seen an exhibition of work of a different type by Redon, an exhibition that was filled with radiant color, splendid, champing horses, and beautifully imagined heroic scenes of fair youths and fairer maidens, this collection of penetrating horrors does not mean all of Redon. He has another side. Together, the horrible and the beautiful, proclaim Odilon Redon as one of the finest imaginative artists France has ever produced.

These various collections of prints will remain on view until the first of May.

About twelve paintings have been sold from the present International Water Color exhibition hung in the east galleries of the Art institute, and an equal number reserved. The exhibit closes April 22.

Miss Elizabeth McCormick has given to the Art institute an interesting piece of linen embroidered in red and blue in Sardinian peasant work.

A group of distinguished canvases by American painters, lent by Paul Schulze, is now on view at the Quadrangle club. These paintings hung formerly in the Art institute, in the gallery where at present are being shown pictures belonging to the Friends of American Art.

The Art Institute Alumni association elected the following officers at its recent annual meeting: Thomas Eddy Tallmadge, president; Robert Harshe, honorary president; Rudolph Ingerle, Jessie Lacey, and Frederick Fursman, vice president; Jessie Day Cooke, corresponding secretary; Genevieve Sissing, recording secretary; Gertrude T. Williams, treasurer; John Norton, Mrs. Louise Van Voorhis Armstrong, and Edith Hammond, directors.

A sketch class is conducted every Saturday afternoon at the Art institute under the auspices of this organization.

The annual ball held by the students of the art school of the Art institute will take place on the night of April 21. Its name has been changed, and with reason. Formerly, no matter the date of the dance, it was called the "Mardi Gras". Now it will be known as the "Ridotto" ball. Instead of the customary pageant, this festival will be a fancy dress affair, the costumes confined to the period of 1840 to 1863. Characters from Dickens will be represented, and there will be cabarets and a facsimile of the old "Cheshire Cheese" inn and "A Night in Leicester Square."

The Kimball gallery at the Art institute, which has been newly decorated, is open again to the public.

Martha Walter, whose most interesting views of the Ellis island situation, with its hordes of incoming peasant types, were seen last winter in the Arts club room at the Art institute, is to conduct a course in painting in Paris and Brittany this summer, under the auspices of the New York School of Fine and Applied Art in Paris. The course covers six months. It will begin May 1, in the studios at 9 Place des Voges. From July 9 to Sept. 10 the class will study in Brittany; then, returning, will remain in Paris until November.

There opened on Friday at the Arts club a rather unique exhibition, which included luncheon and table decorations by Adeline de Voo Cummings of New York.

On Friday of this week, April 13, an exhibit of paintings by Frank Morse-Rummel will open at the Arts club and remain on view until April 22.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock Miss Inez Willson will lecture on "Interior Decorating as Applied to Kitchens." The lecture will be given in the clubroom of the Art institute under the direction of the department of museum instruction.

A complete group of paintings by Hans Larwin, many of them shown in his one man exhibit at the Art institute last fall, is to be seen at the Palette and Chisel club. The exhibition will remain on view until April 14.

Edmund S. Campbell, professor of architectural design in the Chicago School of Architecture at the Armour Institute of Technology, is showing thirty-five water colors of European architecture, gardens, and American landscape at the Milwaukee Art institute this month.

The unveiling of the restored wing of the old Fine Arts building in Jackson park will take place on May 5. Miss Harriet Monroe's ode, written for the World's Fair dedication in 1893, will be read, and a new ode, for which the restoration committee of the Illinois Federation of Woman's Clubs has offered a prize, will conclude the program.

Figures that have been announced from the recently held exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity at the Art institute are interesting. Twenty-seven paintings were sold and two bronzes. For these $9,700 was paid. In the gallery where the Chicago Society of Etchers held their exhibit 265 prints were sold for $3,600. The sale of etchings this year was greater than that of last year.

The Alliance Française announces the opening of an exhibit of paintings, etchings in color, and portraits by George Plasse, a French artist of distinction. The exhibition will be on view until April 6.

Kick Korner for Movie Fans

Its Object—Objection.

I confess to a fondness for an occasional bit of the slapstick sort of fun, and sometimes endure five or six offerings of vaudeville stupidity to enjoy one or two features ranging from mere silliness to genuine comedy. A little of the old-time Chaplin was good "medicine" for me; though too much had the same effect as an overdose. I would agree with Jay Dee Cee, therefore, that Mr. Chaplin should not take himself too seriously. But when he asserts that "highbrows have no sense of humor" he is quite mistaken. The man with the readiest and most effective humor that I have enjoyed is president of a theological seminary. The greatest wits of all ages have been men of education and intelligence. A good many men speak of "a sense of humor" as though its possession were indicated by an ability to clip jokes and repeat them, and to indulge in cheap "kidding." The man of real humor is a creator, not a parrot.

MEDIUM BROW.

One instance of a mutuality of thought sends warmth to the heart, and a feeling of "kinship" results. About the matter and manner of criticism you are quite right. If you wrote only flattering notices your critiques would be lacking in both sincerity and appeal. Again, you say that "good acting frequently puts over a poor play," and this has many times been remarked and comment made thereon. They "could not pass" but for the fine work of the artists.

Please shake hands!

Some criticisms from the fans are valueless because flaws are picked where only praise should be given. I recently viewed at an outlying theater a picture called "Shadows." The acting was good, it seemed to me, but the silly words put into the mouth of the "dear" "Little Minister" (Harrison Ford) made me rather sick. The Chinaman (Lon Chaney) is, I presume, considered a good piece of acting, but it is certainly, in part, distressing, even painful. It took hours to rid the thoughts of the last episode—so harrowing! And the hypocrite! What shall one say of him? The character was excellently portrayed. It was not wonderful the "poor heathen" could "believe" after such forgiveness from the minister. Perhaps that lesson is a raison d'être for the play.

"ELEANORE."

I just want to raise my voice against the kickers—after seeing your picture, I had to write.

We (column readers) all know that you are paid for giving and writing your reviews and for giving information to the inquirers. Perhaps we don't always agree with your opinion (most times I do, though), but that is what you are paid to give. Why, then, do some Cornerites write you in such a ferocious manner, expressing their disagreement and giving you many a scolding you don't deserve, saying that your review of such and such a picture was all wrong, etc., etc.?

Perhaps it was, in their estimation, but you gave your opinion; so, if we disagree, why not do so politely? What say?

This is my first attempt, and I hope I have obeyed all rules and regulations. I sincerely hope that you are retained on the "staff" for years to come and keep up the column. "THIRTEEN."

Jackie Coogan's folks entertained at a dinner party at the Ambassador hotel on Tuesday night for Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Cox. Mrs. Cox is known as Loretta McDermott, the dancing partner of Frisco. This is the first time the Coogans and Coxes have dined together since they were members of "Coogan and Cox," a vaudeville team. That was long before the appearance of Jackie Coogan and his fat contracts and fatter oil wells.

Tom Mix is organizing the Ambassador hotel polo team. It is expected that a low goal team will be in full swnig by June and a high goal team in prospect for 1924. Mr. Mix and Mr. Dustin Farnum have many ponies ready.

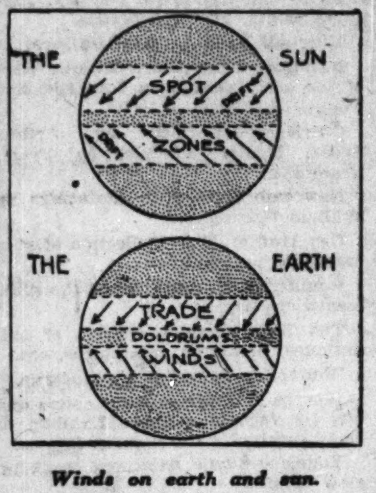
ASTRONOMY

STRUCTURE OF THE SUN.

THERE is something weird and fantastic about a sun spot. The sun appears so blazingly bright that it seems strange that its surface should be bored by deep, dark holes.

No unprotected eye can even bear to glance at the noonday sun. A telescope is even worse; no glass can even be pointed at the sun for long without risking breaking a lens. Yet there are various filters and optical devices to take out most of the solar glare, so that a fairly good view may be had of sun spots.



Winds on earth and sun.

Sun spots are places where the air on the sun is settling down, like the air on clear, cold, blue-skyed days is settling on earth. Bcause gases from above are entering regions of greater pressure below, their capacity for carrying vapors is increased, and they look clear and dark. Sun spots are powerful absorbers of light. This is why they look black.

Under high magnification the spot looks like a gray gauze around which long, ostrich-featherlike plumes of flame flicker.

Sometimes they pour straight in; at other times they come in with a marked cyclonic whirl. The sun does not rotate so fast, in proportion to its size, as the earth does, and in consequence its storms do not gyrate so violently as terrestrial storms do.

The sun is a sphere of white hot gas 886,000 miles in diameter. There is no burning there, for there is nothing to burn. Yet its temperature in the outside layers is well above the heat of an arc lamp.

There is nothing solid on the sun, and nothing truly liquid. The fantastic shapes which play about the spots, or leap above them in huge, curling, scarlet prominences, or roll along the sun's horizon like the billows of a prairie fire, all of these are gaseous.

Astronomers believe that the center of the sun is also gaseous, but gases pressed by their own gravity to the consistency of tar.

The sun has no surface, in the sense that land or water has a surface. There is no place, even outward beyond the earth, where parts of the sun's air do not penetrate. Astronomers think that all the planets are bathed in gases from the sun and get their atmospheres from this source.

Yet, in spite of its gaseous nature, the sun has an essentially solid structure. Sun spots run in cycles of 11.6 years. They start as a belt in latitudes north and south 36 degrees on the sun, and, as their cycle progresses, draw nearer and nearer the equator, finally vanishing about latitudes 5 degrees.

Just as they cease activity a new zone starts in latitudes 36 degrees once more, to make another cycle. The sun acts as though it had a well defined internal structure, and the spots appear to be merely small surface manifestations.

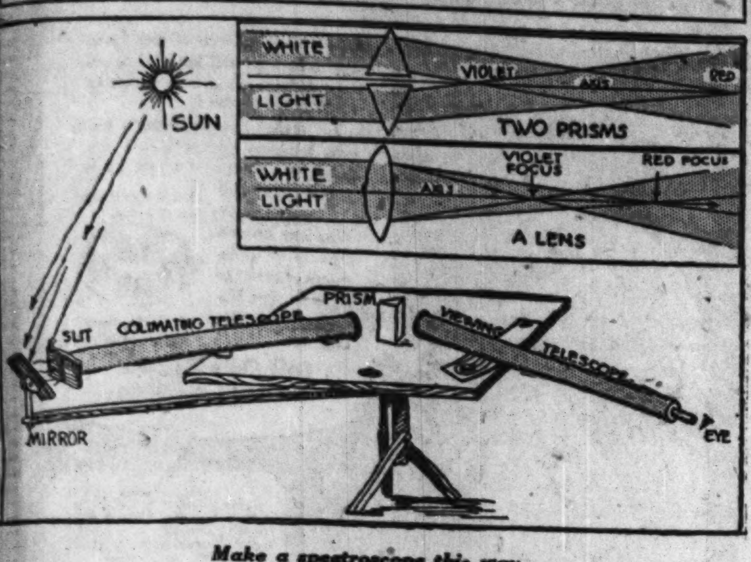
PHYSICS



Make a spectroscope this way.

LENSES AND SPECTROSCOPES.

WHEN light passes through a prism it is bent, or refracted, and in being bent it is broken.

A lens is a sort of prism with a multitude of faces too great in number to be counted. All the prisms are set with their thick edges toward the center of the lens, and their angles toward its edge. The bent rays, therefore, are turned toward the center line or focus of the lens.

Violet light is bent more than red light. Violet comes to a focus first. If you have made a spectacle telescope of the dimensions given before, 1 inch diameter for the front lens, by 60 inches focus, you will have no trouble in noticing this fact. When a star is focused in violet light, it looks deep blue, surrounded by a glare of red light.

Red light focuses last. When the star appears sharply in red light, there is a green and blue halo about it.

Prismatic colors were a great nuisance to telescopers for many years. Finally, scientists sought to put them to some use. The result was the spectroscope.

With the possible exception of the microscope, the spectroscope is the most powerful single instrument for the advancement of knowledge ever invented by man. It enables one to see at a glance the nature of light.

There might seem to you, for instance, slight difference between two street lamps, or the lights they shed, yet in the spectroscope one would show thousands of times the carrying power of the other.

Instead of one telescope, you will need two. Make each of them with a concave-convex lens in front, and 60 inches in focus. Set them facing each other. In the open end of one, place a single ordinary hand magnifying lens, for an eye piece. In the end of the other, set two safety razor blades, edge to edge, to make a slit.

Set a prism from a chandelier in an upright position between the telescopes. Swing the tubes until light turned through the slit appears in a rainbow band in the eye pieces.

Reflect some sunlight into this spectroscope. You will behold the solar colors seamed with millions of fine hairlike black lines. These are dark rays in sunlight. Each tells a story about what is going on in the sun. They are the record of the chemical composition of the sun itself.

ELECTRICITY

ONE WIRE A GOOD AERIAL.

ONE wire makes almost as good a radio aerial as a whole network of strands. If more than one wire is used they should be six feet apart at least.

The wire in an aerial is the seat of a field of force. If the aerial were sending, the wire would be surrounded by barrel-like or shuttlelike waves of radiant energy, called Hertzen waves. It is these waves which carry the radio messages.

When an aerial receives a message it goes through the exact reverse of sending them. The metal creates an alternate void and condensation in the ether which, as it comes through the detector, sounds as tones.

The determining space in an aerial is its distance from the ground. Radio waves travel half in the earth and half in the ether. The greater the space intercepted between the aerial and the ground, the stronger the signals.

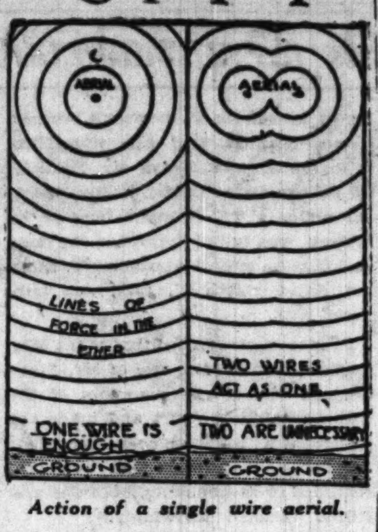
In most cases the lines of force about two wires so merge before they reach the ground that they act as one wire.

There are other reasons why one long wire is better than two short ones. The long wire intercepts about twice as much space as the shorter ones. On a high aerial the drag of wind, rain and snow is a serious factor. It is well to keep the weight as low as possible. This can best be done by using a single strand of wire.



Action of a single wire aerial.

Yankees Feel U. S. Should Cut Gifts to China's Schools

BY J. B. POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

SHANGHAI.—[Special correspondence.]—After expending annually for many years more than $12,000,000 of good American money in China for missionary and educational work, many influential Americans familiar with conditions in China are rapidly coming to the conclusion that the job has been overdone and that henceforth China should be compelled to carry a good portion of her own burden of education.

An American missionary for many years connected with Nanking university, a leading educational institution under American direction in China, recently expressed to the writer the opinion that China should be compelled to finance her own famine campaigns in the future. He recounted many cases of the misuse of American money intended for famine by Chinese officialdom.

He pointed to one Chinese military official whose territory embraced a famine district who had amassed a fortune of more than $30,000,000 in the short space of a dozen years by the worst forms of "squeeze," a popular term used out here for embezzlement of public funds.

The American people contributed approximately $8,000,000 for famine relief to millions of needy people living largely in the district presided over by this millionaire tuchun or military governor.

The $12,000,000 which is contributed to China annually by the American people, largely in the form of contributions taken up in thousands of churches every Sunday, is used in the maintenance of about a dozen colleges and universities and hundreds of primary and high schools in every province of China.

The total number of American missionaries in China is in excess of 3,000, and the number of Chinese children reached by the American schools is in excess of a million. In addition to the missionary educational work conducted in China by Americans should be included the 2,000 Chinese young men and women who are supported in the colleges and universities of the United States through the return of the American portion of the Chinese Boxer indemnity assessed against China by the powers after the suppression of the Boxer uprising in 1900.

In spite of the good effects of American education in China, there is a general belief among Americans in China, and especially among the leading missionaries themselves, that the lavish use of American money here has had the unfortunate effect of pauperizing the Chinese educational system.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

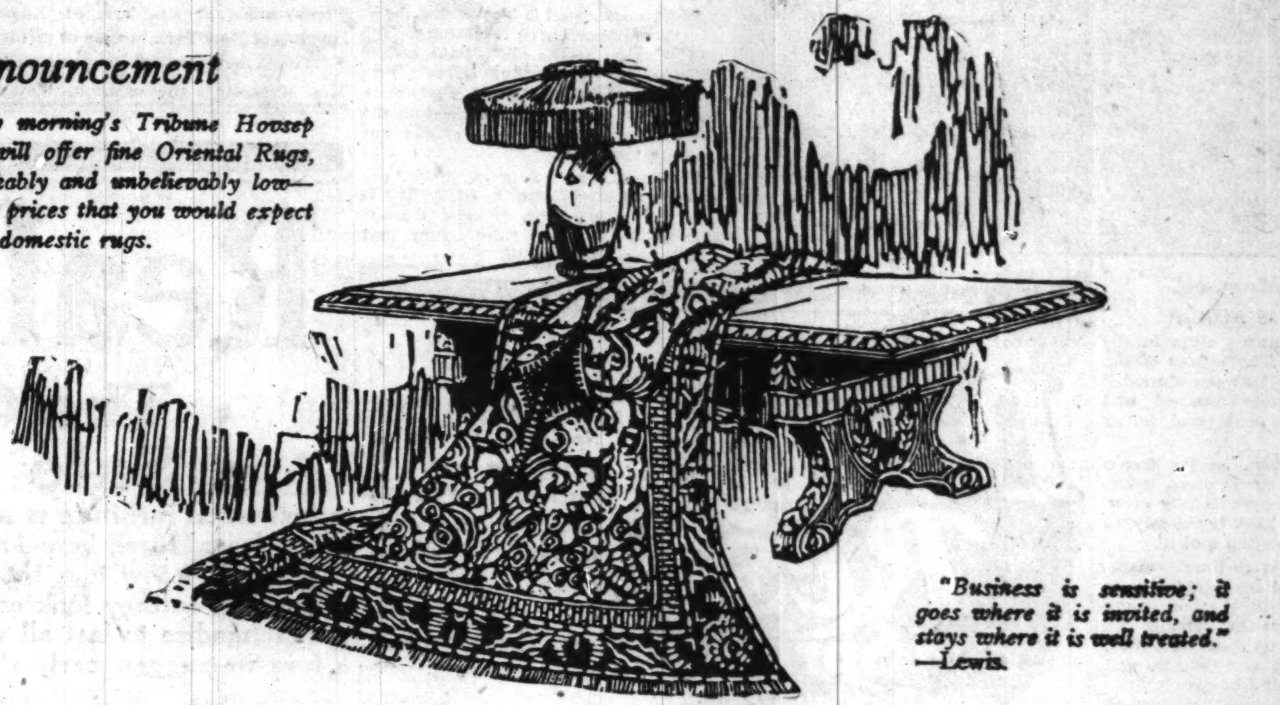
The Highest Class Talking Machine in the World

Announcement

IN tomorrow morning's Tribune Hovsep Nahigian will offer fine Oriental Rugs, at prices remarkably and unbelievably low—many of them at prices that you would expect to pay for good domestic rugs.



"Business is sensitive; it goes where it is invited, and stays where it is well treated."
—Lewis.

To Lovers of Oriental Rugs

IT is well known that Oriental Rugs, so prized for their exotic beauty, their lifetime of service, their inimitable blending of contrasting colors, have always been sold at prices which allow a very wide margin of profit.

Even the leading dealers have believed it necessary to take a heavy profit on each transaction, for Oriental Rugs have been sold in the same manner as ultra expensive jewelry and antique furniture, on the basis of high price and slow turnover. Indeed, it is most improbable that any Oriental Rug House disposes of its entire stock once in any year.

The high price and small volume policy until now has been accepted as unavoidable by all responsible houses. None of them have believed that sufficient numbers of Chicagoans would have the good taste and sound judgment to reward with success that house which would dare to offer Kashans, Saruks, Ispahans and other Orientals at prices so low that only an enormous volume of sales could make success possible.

But now comes Hovsep Nahigian—a man whose lifetime has been devoted to the collection and sale of fine Orientals, a man already known to thousands of Chicagoans as a connoisseur. By reducing overhead to a minimum and accepting a small margin of profit he has priced the very finest Orientals at figures which will astound all who have knowledge of Oriental Rug values. Hovsep Nahigian believes that all lovers of Oriental rugs will appreciate and take advantage of this opportunity to secure the genuine Orientals of their choice at prices which represent true economy.

He believes there are sufficient numbers of Chicagoans with appreciation of the superiority of the Oriental Rug to make his unusual venture a distinct success.

In this belief he announces the opening of the shop of Hovsep Nahigian, with spacious show rooms in the Mallers Building at Wabash Ave. and Madison Street—on the Second Floor—tomorrow.

Here he invites all who are interested to view one of the most noteworthy exhibitions of fine Oriental rugs ever shown in this city. He especially invites collectors and connoisseurs and all who really know Oriental Rug values to see and compare—for quality and price, the rugs offered here with the best values obtainable elsewhere.

Exclusive offerings, with attractive prices, will be published in tomorrow's Tribune—look for them—but in justice to yourself, if you are interested in rugs at all—see this exhibit. If you are interested in domestics—when you see these values you will buy Orientals—you will be given opportunity to secure better values for less money—you will judge, and upon your good judgment will depend the success of the first large dealer in Oriental Rugs who has ventured to remove them from the luxury class—to sell them at prices which allow a fair profit only if they are sold in great quantities.

Why not come in tomorrow and see what really fine pieces are to be procured advantageously at the new low price levels?

Consider These Prices:

There are small rugs and Chinese Mats at $6.75 to $18.50—Silky Beluchistans, $15.75 to $21.50. Fine Royal Saruks, room size, from $475.00 to $690.00—Persian Gorovans as low as $180.00, and many other most unusual values.

WHAT MAKES A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN?

By Selby Maxwell.

VERUTANA IS NORDIC.

It was a wild winter's night in the year 431 A. D. The waters of the Rhine ran black between shrouded banks, a blackness dimmed and blurred by hissing snow and biting wind.

The Roman garrison on the Gallic side shivered in their shelters, while the pickets huddled over fitfully glowing fires that struggled hopelessly to keep alive in the howling storm.

On the other side were the Germans. A mother smothered her baby's cry in the folds of her cloak that no sound might carry across to the Romans. Silently the men drew up their rafts from out of creek mouths and thickets and began to load them with human freight. Like sheeted phantoms, they pushed off from the German shore, poled and rowed toward Gaul.

This was no peaceful move. The men, half naked in the biting air, stood with their fresh ground swords. They reached the Roman side, they stepped out, the rowers pushed back for more. The Roman fires flickered on as the drifts piled high. Ox carts were loaded on, the fair haired families followed, as load after load crossed over.

The men stole forward. Some one kicked snow on the fire, the picket sank with a bloody gasp. The dawn came, but the sun rose on France, the land of the Franks, not Gaul. It was Gaul no longer.

The legions of Rome reeled back from the Teutons. They never rallied.

Who were these wild Nordics, whose blood and whose genius is the keystone of civilization. Here is Verutana. Look at her. In her is the spirit of the Nordic, the spirit that is not content to subdue what must be overcome, but goes seeking ways to increase its dominance.

She stands before you. See her steady gazing, blue green eyes, her flaming cheeks, her soft clear skin. Listen to her measured words and her ringing voice. Observe her mind.

Did you ever stand beside two cliffs that were ground together by forces that make mountains? You heard no turmoil, no roar, no crashing blare of nature, as the rocks heaved. A flake drops from the cliff. Another, then another. They snap off, each with a sharp "ping." The grinding force goes on, all invisible save for the flake-flake-flake of the rocks.

The Nordic mind is like such a force. To the unobservant it is nothing. The pile of talus at the cliff's base means nothin to the unobserving, either. Verutana has a will to do and a power to accomplish that are not obvious on the surface, unless you read aright her flashing thoughts.

Verutana's ancestors were at the crossing of the Rhine in 431 A. D. It was her people who deluged Europe with such a blast of Nordic fury that it still bears the fruits

Widow, 78, Fights for $52,000,000 Stewart Estate

NICE.—[Special Correspondence.]—Mrs. Augusta Stewart Macesco, aged 78, has renewed her thirty-five year legal fight for a share of the millions of her uncle, Alexander F. Stewart, New York money king, who left an estate valued at over $52,000,000 at his death in 1876.

She has placed her claim in the hands of L. B. Delaney, American attorney of Nice, who will attempt to wrest from the heirs of Judge Henry Hilton of New York a large portion of the vast Stewart fortune for Mrs. Macesco, now living in modest circumstances in Nice.

The silver haired little widow still has a youthful battle light in her eyes in spite of over three decades on the losing side of one of the most gruelling will contests in court history. She hopes to smash the will this time and has just drawn up a new will of her own providing large bequests to the Presbyterian hospital and St. Luke's hospital of New York in case of victory.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Mrs. Macesco is the legitimate daughter of Alexander T. Stewart's brother, James Stewart, and his wife, Elisa Wharton Stewart," says Mr. Delaney. "I believe Judge Henry Hilton, executor under a will brought forward by himself, was fully informed of the facts and that he will of Alexander T. Stewart, dated March 27, 1873, was tampered with.

"I also am convinced that when Mrs. Cornelia M. Stewart, wife of Mr. Stewart and one of the executors of the will, appeared in court and made the statement with Hilton, coexecutor, that Alexander T. Stewart left no blood relations or descendants, both she and Hilton falsified knowingly."

During her long battle to prove she is a Stewart heir, Mrs. Macesco has had several attorneys, but always at critical moment, when victory seemed near, she has been called upon to supply a big sum of money to continue the case. When she could not do so, the attorneys mysteriously and suddenly dropped the case.

The long list of Stewart properties at 1876 valuation included the Stewart building, $3,750,000; the Metropolitan hotel, $2,000,000; Park Avenue hotel, $2,500,000; Fort Washington, $1,200,000; Garden City, $25,000,000; Saratoga baths, $6,000,000; Saratoga Union hotel, $5,000,000, besides many choice business and residential sites in New York of enormous value today.

Mrs. Macesco was born in Paris July 17, 1844. The infant Augusta was left in the hands of a nurse. Her mother, Elisa Wharton Stewart, died in 1845, and her father, James Stewart, a short time after.

The child received money from an unknown source, supposed to have been Alexander T. Stewart, for a period of twelve years. When Benjamin Stillwell, lawyer of Stewart, was replaced by Judge Hilton, the sending of funds ceased.

Later Augusta Stewart was adopted by a French family named Lavoix. When she was seventeen years of age she married Mr. Macesco, young Roumanian lawyer, who later became president of the Supreme court of Bucharest. He died many years ago.

In 1863 Mrs. Macesco was informed that the property at 39 rue Des Fosses St. Victor, Paris, had been purchased for her, but no one has been able to learn the identity of the person who placed the title in her name.

North American food portions are ample for two—no extra charge—in fact we encourage sharing them

No matter how much more you pay elsewhere you can't beat North American Quality

Fried Oysters, 7 big New York Counts, fried to your order, with Tartar or Chili sauce or ketchup	40c
Broiled Pork Chops	50c
Breast of Chicken, (All white meat) with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce	65c
Lamb Chops, with peas and bacon—cooked to your order	75c
Sirloin Steak Combination, a thick juicy sirloin, with French fried potatoes and lima beans	85c
And for Breakfast
Honey Waffles, with 3 strips of bacon, (or Mickelberry's Old Farm Sausage), butter and pure maple sap or honey	25c
Bacon and Eggs, 2 fresh eggs fried in butter and 4 strips of bacon	30c

A comparison of North American Restaurant prices, with those charged by other restaurants and hotels, proves the truth of our oft repeated statement that if you want food equally as good, served to your table, you must pay just about double our prices.

Furthermore: Every food portion at the North American is a big and generous one. Extra big. And contrary to the usual restaurant custom we make no extra charge for portions shared by two people. Instead, we urge our patrons to share portions, without any extra charge. This means that the cost of dining here is even less than our prices indicate.

Take as an example our portion of combination salad. Our price is only 30 cents. Yet the portion can be shared by two people. Doing so makes your salad cost only 15 cents—yet you'll pay about four or five times that figure for salad equally good, in any dining place where the food is brought to your table.

Another striking example of North American food portions is the thick, juicy sirloin steak with French fried potatoes and lima beans which we give you for only 85 cents. Imagine a real steak, with potatoes and a vegetable for that small price. And even so it is not unusual for two people to share it, thus getting steak for less than 50 cents.

And this is one restaurant where a cut of pie is big enough for two people. Yet a cut of apple pie here costs only 15 cents.

And always remember that in spite of our low prices you can't buy better food than ours.

Children like the North American. We like them

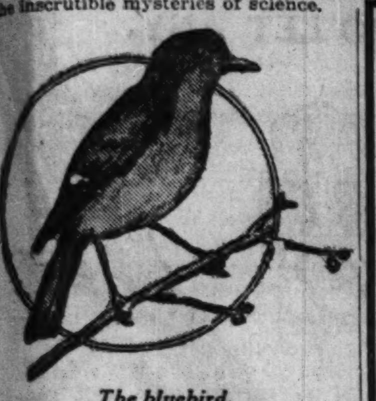
TONES THAT BRING TEARS.

THERE flashes a fleeting glimpse of ultramarine wings, a flutter of something ethereal and alive in the tree tops, a drooping twig as its light shape alights, then a burst of music, beautiful and pathetic all at once, "Tweet wirdl wirdle weerd-weedl." It is a bluebird.

He comes long before the tang of frost is out of the air. How such a feathered mite can fly so far and be so frail and hardy all at once is one of the inscrutible mysteries of science.



The bluebird.

Bluebirds fly mostly at night. You can hear them on almost any calm evening in spring, chirping and twittering as they wing along through the cold darkness. Here is another of the great mysteries of bird life. Bluebirds are night blind, like most other avians. They do not migrate by sight, apparently, but by some sense of direction that human beings possess hardly at all.

Of all our American birds the bluebird pulls at the heartstrings the most. He is a thrush, like the robin, and like the latter is one of the first comers of spring.

But the bluebird is more delicate than the robin. He is a poet instead of an adventurer. When a robin is disturbed, his angry "Qurk, qurks" ring through the trees, but the injured bluebird grieves with tones that bring tears.

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

Touch of Art Triumphs Over Alien Tongue

By Mme. X.

To the modern American, ignorant of Russian history and traditions, Count Alexei Tolstoy's play, "Tsar Fyodor Ivanovitch," reads as a rather dull, heavy drama. Fyodor, with his weak vacillations, was no tsar of ours, nor part of our past. To one who does not know the first syllable of the Russian language it sounds, when spoken, like a combination of the wind blowing through stunted pines and slow cattle walking in slushy marshes. The name, Shouisky, the family so prominent in this play, illustrates this elemental lingual quality.

So it was with a great deal of skepticism and many gloomy anticipations that the writer went on last Tuesday to the opening night of the Moscow players at the Great Northern. How could any company put over a talky, lengthy alien drama in an unknown and utterly incomprehensible language? How foolish to let one's self be stampeded by highbrows! This was an occasion to show one's self superior to the herd, a mortal capable of forming an opinion at variance with that of the rest of the mob.

Then the curtain at the Great Northern went up, and those wonderful creatures, in their splendid attire and barbaric setting, beat upon our childish, unformed, inexperienced consciousness with the sure touch of an art that is a religion to this band of ecstatic devotees. Instantly came the recognition that here was something that was a revelation, something that we Americans had not yet dreamed of in our moments of greatest inspiration.

Masters of Makeup.

What joy would have been Edwin Booth's could he have been a spectator at a performance of these Moscow players! What satisfaction he would have taken in the spectacle of a troupe where every rôle was filled by a star performer! Even the makeup man is a first class artist, and could easily be a painter of great pictures like El Greco or Tintoretto. Most modern stagecraft is deficient in this makeup business. Compared with the achievements of this Russian company, our American actors are tyros in their use of paint, paste, and crayon.

But their makeup is only the first step in the vivid portraiture accomplished by the Moscovites. To cite only one success, the presentation of the character of Tsar Fyodor by Ivan Moskvin was a brilliant piece of work, and held the attention of every one from beginning to end.

Whether Russian drama can ever move us emotionally, make us weep, shiver, laugh, as does English and, to a lesser degree, French, is a question. The interpretation of the tragedies and emotions of an alien people interest, but do not touch us, as a rule. We look on with curiosity at Chinese or Hindu drama, but never thrill at its call.

So I suspect that our enjoyment of the Moscow players is largely an intense esthetic appreciation of their matchless art and its brilliant method of attack on our attention. But no one should pass judgment on them without having seen all their performances, and no one should miss making the acquaintance of this remarkable assemblage of real artists.

Hosts to Leon Bakst.

It has been a Russian week all along the line. Leon Bakst, the celebrated artist, who has in recent years given such a Slavic tone to decorative and scenic art, spent the last six days here studying Chicago and her inhabitants. He was the house guest of the David Adlers, and was entertained morning, noon, and night during his visit.

The Arts club gave him a luncheon on Friday, when about 150 people gathered to do him honor. Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, president of the club, presided at the end of a long and delightfully spread table in the big gallery where hangs a fine exhibit of Mr. Bakst's pictures. They are of a daring originality, and pique the attention and interest.

In the short address he made at the end of luncheon he said, as other foreigners have said, that we Americans are evolving an entirely new and extremely beautiful art in the designing of our skyscrapers. All real art, he told his auditors, is founded on and comes out of utility. So our soaring skyscrapers are working their way out of necessity to beauty.

Having heard and thought much of Mr. Bakst and seen many of his pictures, the writer had her mind made up as to what sort of man he would be—namely: a tall, dark, Slavic mortal, with flashing eyes, a tightly curling beard, abrupt hair standing straight up, and so forth and so on. Instead he turned out to be a rather short, slightly plump, extremely suave man of the world, with hair that must once have been of a red gold hue, but was now thin, carefully brushed over the otherwise denuded cranium, and with encroaching gray hairs sprinkled through it. In dress he was most conventional and in manner most agreeable, with an alert consciousness as to what was going on around him and what he was seeing—but not at all Russian, either outwardly or inwardly, as we had previously conceived a Russian genius would be. He left Russia before the revolution, and has never been back since, although the present government has several times invited him to do so, promising him security and immunity. Said the fly to the spider, "No, thanks!"

Painted by American Artists.

Speaking of pictures, which is not my province, but which I occasionally venture to do, those interested in American paintings will find it well worth their while to visit a small collection of American art which Messrs. Russell and Yorke are showing at the Moffett galleries on Congress street. There are some recent Arthur Davies canvases there which are indeed choice. He is by many considered our greatest living painter. There are also some delightful Karl Andersons and Eric Hudsons and a glowing painting by Blakelock, that tragic figure in American art.

The two picture dealers are themselves interesting to those whose experience with American stage history goes back some years. Mr. Russell is a brother of Annie Russell, once such a stage favorite in this country, and he—his name was "Tommy"—used to alternate with her in playing Little Lord Fauntleroy. The other man is her husband, Oswald Yorke, who used to act with her in society comedy, a delightful form of drama all too lacking today. Now Mr. and Mrs. Yorke have retired from the stage and devote themselves to their place in New Jersey, where they have a garden famous among amateur gardeners, while the two whilom actors are now interested in pictures, especially those painted by American artists.

Family of Genius.

On next Friday there open at the Arts club several exhibits of pictures. Under the energetic and capable direction of Mrs. John A. Carpenter and Miss Alice Rouiller the Arts club has given the public the opportunity of seeing many a collection of extremely modern pictures which would otherwise never have come our way.

A man new to the writer is one of the three exhibitors who attracts especial attention because of his distinguished ancestry. He is Frank Morse-Rummel, the grandson (or is it great-grandson) of S. F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph.

Probably nothing has done so much to revolutionize and civilize the world as the invention of the telegraph. All the more recent inventions, the telephone, the wireless, and radio are merely continuations and amplifications of this original great achievement. The completeness of this first invention is proved by the fact that today 95 per cent of the telegraph service the world over uses the Morse instrument and the Morse alphabet. Not only was he an inventor; he was one of the best known portrait painters and artists of his time.

The strain of genius in the family was not exhausted by the first exponent of it.

All music lovers know Walter Rummel, the gifted English pianist, descendant of the inventor of the telegraph and a brother of the artist, Frank Morse-Rummel. The latter, the painter, has spent at least half of each year for a long time up in the Arctic circle, and most of the scenes he delights to present are in those glittering, chill regions. His subjects are often studied among the dwellers in those frigid lands, Laps, Finns, and Norwegians. And his pictures give the effect of that remote latitude with its ice floes, bleak landscapes, and beating seas.

Interpretation Rather than Likeness.

In his portraiture he seeks rather interpretation than likeness. The portrait of Mme. Ricardo Soriano will interest Chicagoans most in the exhibit, as she was a daughter of Chicago, a beautiful girl, Miss Italia Blair, the daughter of the late Chauncey Blair. We may not all agree with the artist's interpretation of her. He sees in her a scheming mind and a strong strain of something that makes for tragedy which her friends—and she has many here—will find difficulty in recognizing as among her traits. But she is said to like the portrait and not to resent his interpretation.

His canvases are sure to excite comment and criticism, but then new things always do. Mankind is naturally a conservative animal and ready to rend and claw what he does not know or understand or has not met before. And yet what progress we have made—and it's mighty little in the long aeons of our life on this small globe—has been owing to the few and scattered individuals who had the courage to be different from their kind and to strike out on an explored road. Read James Harvey Robinson's "The Mind in the Making," and see with what difficulty we rise from the ooze and how recent is what we call civilization.

Death Strikes Twice.

The great, grim fact of life, of course, is death. Fortunately for human progress it is, also, the one thing which we consistently and completely refuse to think about. But every one of us is at some time or other in our careers between the two eternities brutally confronted by it in such a way that we have to recognize and bow to it with an overwhelming sense of our powerlessness and a resentment at this impotence.

Such a feeling sweeps over the hearts of most of those who knew lovely Joan Williams, as her many friends usually called Mrs. Norman Williams Jr., the only daughter of the much afflicted Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers. On Monday, March 26, the Chalmers' only son, Thomas, died. A few hours over a week later, early on Tuesday, April 3, Mrs. Norman Williams followed him after a long, distressing illness, leaving her husband and two children, as well as her parents.

She was one of the most charming and exquisite young women I have ever known. Chicago has produced some famous beauties; the late Lady Curson of Keddleston (Mary Leiter), Mrs. Frank Griswold (Josephine Houghteling) the Marchioness of Ormonde (Nellie Steger), Lady Lavery (Hazel Martyn), Mrs. Gerard Lee, (Helen Goudy), and many others I could enumerate, but none of them was of a more distinguished type of beauty, nor had a more vivid personality than Mrs. Williams, for she was as delightful mentally as she was good to look upon. She was a keen judge of people and had a charming way of presenting her opinions on life and those engaged in living it. This gift showed especially in her letters when with just a few words she sketched a lifelike portrait or described a scene.

She need fear no more the heat o' the sun, nor the fierce winter's rages but, since she went, the world is a bleaker place for all who knew her.

Making for Riper Culture.

On Tuesday evening there will be given at Orchestra hall a concert which will be well worth your while if you are musical and if you are a believer in that larger culture which shall bring about a closer understanding between the two chief republics of the world today, the United States of America and France.

One of the byproducts of the late war was the formation of a society to promote a fund known as the American field service fellowships for French universities. The French ambassador to Washington, Jules J. Jusserand, is honorary president; our ambassador to France, Myron T. Herrick, is honorary chairman; Paul D. Cravath of New York is president, while the Chicago trustees are John V. Farwell, Charles L. Hutchinson, Henry J. Patten, Charles B. Pike, and Prof. John H. Wigmore.

Many of the thinkers and students of today are of the conviction that there is that in our present system of education that does not make for the ripe culture which is, or should be, the ultimate end of education. We pour information into our students, but this is not sufficient to produce thinkers, philosophers, men such as a nation needs to direct it along the path of real greatness. Ours is a too practical, materialistic tendency, and unless we change its direction we are in danger of the destruction that came to the Persians, Babylonians, Assyrians, Carthanginians, Egyptians, and the other peoples who have disappeared leaving only a few stone ruins behind them. The Greeks, Romans, Jews, and Chinese still live in the ideas they gave to the world.

The French give to modern culture a quality which would be of great advantage to the youth of America. These fellowships aim to afford an opportunity to a certain number of the picked youth of the land to acquire this ripe, clear minded attitude towards the accumulated learning of the world.

A second beneficiary of the concert will be the Franco-American musical society which is working to establish libraries of contemporary French music in this country and similar libraries of contemporary American music in France. Mrs. Walter Brewster and John Alden Carpenter are especially interested in promoting this affair. The program will be given by Mlle. Eva Gauthier, one of the foremost interpreters of modern song, and Robert Schmitz, the well known pianist. Mrs. Brewster is in charge of the sale of boxes.

The Chicago boys of the American field service who lost their lives in France and who are cited by the committee as reasons for supporting this memorial fund are James Rogers McConnell, son of ex-Judge Samuel P. McConnell and brother of Mrs. Mitchell Follansbee; Paul Cody Bentley, son of Frederick W. Bentley; Harry Worthington Craig, son of Norman Craig; Greayer Clover, son of Samuel T. Clover; and Charles Patrick Anderson, son of Bishop Charles Anderson.

Junior League Revue Nears.

The Junior league show is making great speed these days in getting ready for next Saturday night at the Auditorium when it will present that result of weeks of rehearsing and drill, the Junior League revue.

The Chicago-Lake Forest Ravinia fund committee is meeting on Thursday at the call of its president, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, in the committee room in Louis Eckstein's office, where, over luncheon, they will compare notes on the progress already made in securing the $40,000 guarantee fund for Ravinia opera, and make plans for further work on this undertaking.

As the sun rises higher and higher on the horizon and the thermometer tries to do the same in its little tube, we all must realize that summer is coming and with the summer returns that most delightful feature of the season in this part of the land, the open air operas and concerts at Ravinia which it is the great privilege of those who live along our north shore and in Chicago to attend.

Can you match anywhere else that combination of first class performances and that wide roofed, open pavilion set in a fragrant garden with gorgeous sunsets painting the sky on one side, and starry heavens or an eager rising moon making the background on the other? Riccardo Martin, the baritone who has been for some time in our Civic opera, said that the first time he sang at Ravinia he was so enchanted by the spectacle of a glowing red sunset with a band of purple cloud across it that he forgot where he was and went on singing until the conductor tapped his baton to recall him to the time and place.

All the artists love to sing there and give of their best which contributes a quality to the performances not to be found in any indoor presentations. Therefore, it behooves us all to put Ravinia on a good and permanent foundation so that it does not have to feel its way from year to year, wondering where it stands in public esteem.

Flower Show at Armory.

In changing the Broadway armory from a skating rink to an armory the workers had to take up twenty miles of piping under the floors, piping used for refrigerating purposes. The change makes a fine armory, and the armory in turn makes an ideal place in which to hold a flower show such as opens there on Monday, April 16. The opening day's ticket office receipts will go to the Woman's National Farm and Garden association, of which Mrs. Russel Tyson is president.

Mrs. Tyson is arranging a course of daily lectures on matters connected with gardening and farming, free lectures which will be given on the second floor of the armory.

It is expected that the many garden clubs in this part of the country will be interested in the show. There will also be exhibits of table floral decorations in which will be used exquisitet linen, china, silver, and glassware as well as flowers. The flower show is under the auspices of the wholesalers and retailers in the flower trade and will last until April 22.

Mr. and Mrs. Tyson are giving on Thursday a dinner for fifty or more at the Casino, the particular occasion of which will be the program given after dinner by the charming little Parisian "diseuse," Mona Gondré, whose costume song recitals are famous in France. She became especially widely known during the war, when she devoted herself to entertaining the soldiers along the battle line. There is many an American doughboy who remembers her and her chic and gay songs. She was herself wounded while helping to cheer those on the battle line.

Greeting Our New Mayor.

A hearty welcome to you, Mayor Dever! What are you going to do about abating the smoke nuisance? A vigorous campaign to check it, a campaign that will make it too expensive to have smoky chimneys may hasten the day when a smoke consuming device suitable to all furnaces will be universally employed. Unless this evil is eradicatetd our parks, picture galleries, wide boulevards, museums, subways, and other public improvements will be shrouded in an ever thickening covering of thick, greasy, black, destructive alike to looks and health.

FUTURE EVENTS

In the midst of the musical program which is promised those who attend the benefit concert to be given on Tuesday night at Orchestra hall, the heroism of four Chicago boys who gave their lives in the war will come to mind. They are Paul Cody Bentley, Edward Newell Ware Jr., William Jewell Whyte, and Charles Patrick Anderson. These boys were members of the American field service, and the proceeds of the concert are going towards an endowment fund established by the American Field Service association, whose members enlisted early in the war to drive ambulances for the French army. This fund, commemorating their fallen comrades, will be used for fellowships for study in French centers of learning, and are open to young Americans who qualify. Headquarters for the fund are at 1642 Otis building, under the chairmanship of Lenning McFarland. The concert program will be given by Eva Gauthier, mezzo-soprano, and E. Robert Schmidt, pianist. Mrs. Walter S. Brewster is in charge of the sale of boxes.

Mrs. John L. Shortall, Mrs. Thomas R. Lyon, Mrs. Marx Oberndorfer, Mrs. Oliver N. Caldwell, and Mrs. Charles S. Peterson are among the patronesses for the presentation tomorrow, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday afternoons at the Studebaker theater of Mozart's opera, "Cosi Fan Tutte." The matinées tomorrow and Thursday will start at 2:30 o'clock, but those on Tuesday and Friday will not begin until 4, thus affording school children an opportunity to hear this delightful opera.

Mme. Volkoff will give the third of three lectures on the plays being presented by the Moscow Art theater tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the Hickox studios in the Fine Arts building. Anton Tchekhoff's "The Cherry Orchard" will be discussed. Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock Mme. Volkoff will discuss Tchekhoff's "The Three Sisters."

Miss Emma Mills of New York will give on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock at the Woman's Athletic club a lecture on the Moscow Art theater and the plays to be given by that company in Chicago.

Horace J. Bridges will give the fourth of five lectures on "The Moral Systems of the Great Religions" on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum, 1508 State parkway.

The Kenwood Juniors of the Infant Welfare society have arranged a Mah-Jongg party for the benefit of the Michael Reese station, to take place on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Chicago Beach hotel. Miss Josephine Becker is president of the Kenwood Juniors.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Tyson will give a dinner at the Casino on Thursday, after which Mlle. Mona Gondré, the Parisian diseuse, will sing.

Mrs. Parmalee McFadden, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Earle H. Reynolds, Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift Jr., Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy, Mrs. Robert G. McGann, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, Mrs. Timothy B. Blackstone, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, Mrs. Leander McCormick, Mrs. Howard H. Spaulding, Mrs. William E. Clow Jr., Mrs. Charles B. Pike, Mrs. Lester Armour, Mrs. John H. McIlvaine, Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy Jr., Mrs. James Minotto, Mrs. Edward F. Swift Jr., Mrs. Edward Russell, Mrs. William H. Mitchell II., Mrs. Arthur Dean Bevan, Mrs. George R. Nichols, Mrs. Bruce Borland, Mrs. Thornhill Broome, Mrs. John Borden, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Brewster Atwater, Mason Phelps, and George F. Porter will entertain box parties at the Junior League Follies on Saturday night at the Auditorium. Tickets may be obtained at the league headquarters, 5 North Wabash avenue.

There will be a dinner at the Arts club on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, followed by a musical program given by the Jacques Gordon String quartet, assisted by Edward Collins, pianist.

Hotel Somerset

SHERIDAN ROAD, AT ARGYLE

Spring is well advanced and summer is knocking at the door—kitchenette apartments in Chicago's pleasantest residential hotel, with its solarium, roof garden and nearby bathing beach, will soon be unobtainable—take advantage of this day.

Why submit to the present high costs and many vexations of old-style housekeeping when you may have a delightful apartment in this preferred neighborhood, with practically every major cost of living, except food and clothing, included in the moderate rental?

A very few of the redecorated and refurnished apartments—immaculate as when new, three years ago—are still available as this announcement goes to press. The Somerset's complete hotel service, included in all rentals, is famous throughout America, and no doubt there will soon be a long waiting list—as in seasons past. It is advisable to call or telephone today.

Rooms without kitchenette, $100 a month and up. Kitchenette apartments of 2, 3 or 4 rooms at prices ranging from $140 to $328 a month. Larger suites at prices to correspond.

Transportation by motor bus, by Broadway surface cars, and by elevated express, stopping at Argyle station two blocks west.

Concert Proceeds Will Furnish New De Paul Nursery

By Kate Webber.

MUCH interest is being shown in a benefit concert to be given in Orchestra hall on Tuesday evening, April 24, the proceeds of which will go to furnishing the new building on North Halsted street, near Webster avenue, which will be opened on May 6 as the De Paul settlement and day nursery. At present this institution has temporary quarters in the abandoned North Halsted street police station at 2128 North Halsted street, where it sought shelter when the old building in which it was housed was condemned by the city.

The concert will be the occasion of the Chicago debut of Annice Taylor Marshall, wife of Charles Marshall of the Chicago Civic Opera company. Also contributing to the program will be Minna Krokowsky, Russian violinist and the Little Symphony orchestra, conducted by George Dasch.

The benefit is sponsored by the De Paul auxiliary, which organization is in effect a ways and means committee for the nursery and settlement. Mrs. Paul O. Young is president, Mrs. Francis J. Noonan and Miss Stella Metzger, vice presidents; Mrs. Vincent A. Bremner, treasurer, and Miss Josephine Powers, secretary.

Mrs. Vincent A. Bremner is in charge of the ticket sale for the concert. Mrs. Lester Armour is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. Headquarters will be opened during the coming week in the Brownleigh club, 153 North Michigan avenue.

De Paul settlement and day nursery was established seven years ago. It is under the direction of the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent, the religious community which conducts St. Joseph's hospital and the St. Vincent's orphanage.

Between eighty and a hundred children whose mothers are compelled to work are cared for daily. Those of school age are sent to school by the sisters; they return to the settlement at noon and are given a warm luncheon, and after school is out in the afternoon they are kept until their mothers return from work.

The institution is nonsectarian. At the present time it is sending children to two public schools and two parochial schools. Last year children of twenty-two nationalities and of as many creeds were cared for. The only qualification required of an applicant is the need of the child for the care the sisters are giving.

During the first year of its existence the nursery cared for 8,850 children, and last year an average of 80 children per day, or 24,000 for the year, were cared for with practically no increase in quarters, equipment, or help. The greatest regret of those interested has been that they were able to provide for only about one-half of the children who were brought to them. The new building will provide the facilities for greater service.

Last year the total expenditures of the institution amounted to $5,015, or about 20 cents per day per child. A mothers' club is another feature of service of the nursery. This provides evening recreation for the working mothers. The club holds occasional card parties and entertainments of various kinds in the settlement.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

At the monthly business meeting of the Chicago Woman's club on Wednesday at 2 o'clock the following reports will be given: Finance, Mrs. Harold L. Ickes; membership, Mrs. James B. STATE MADISON AND DEARBORN STS.

Another Glorious Array of Spring Millinery Is Marked Below Worth

Sixth Floor—State Street

Canton crepe hats—taffeta hats, Milan hats, fancy straw hats, tagel hats, timbo hemp hats, hats of every conceivable kind of material and combination which critical Dame Fashion says is correct and smart! Such a veritable wealth of them—cleverly copied from extremely expensive Parisian models—capably designed by American millinery artists—all in all, quite as remarkable a gathering of hats as ever have intrigued feminine fancy.

Begin where you will—at the one extreme of prim, perhaps austere, tailored hats and look on through the trim and fashionable Sports models—stop a moment at the graceful afternoon styles—and finish with the perfectly adorable evening modes—somewhere in this exquisite display is a hat for you—a very personal hat—a hat that typifies you alone.

Gorgeous as a garden in full bloom are the flower trimmings; and there is keen rivalry for favor as between fruits, nacre ostrich, burnt goose, ribbon bows, lace, embroidery and novelties. Wood, purple, orchid, navy and Copen are amongst the noticeable colors. The values range up to $12. But tomorrow they're all grouped in three lots at.................

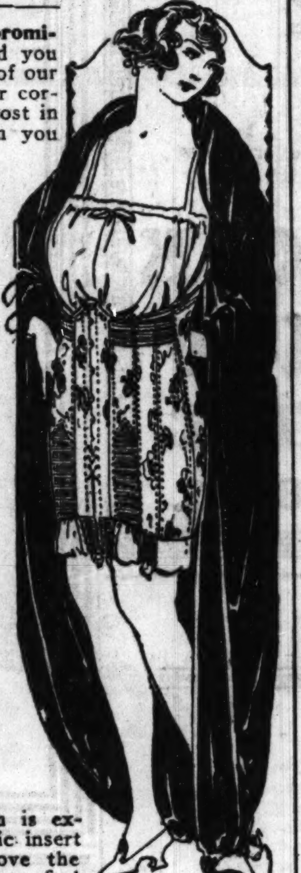
Have Your Corset Fitted

Third Floor—Dearborn Street

"Fitting corsets is an art," said a prominent modiste here recently, "and you have mastered it." It is because of our unexcelled fitting service that our corset section has become the foremost in the city. Today, in urging upon you the necessity of skillful fitting we stress equally our superior services and a corset which has been found to be unusually successful in meeting the needs of so many figures—



The Binner Corset

Binner corset for the tall, long limbed, plump woman, who will find this model "her very own." It is made expressly for this type—comes well down on the figure, takes wonderful care of large thighs at the lower end. The ungraceful lump of flesh that now disturbs will disappear and curves, long and slender, will take its place. The bust is extremely low, with elastic inserts to control the diaphragm; cut quite low in back above the waist line; sizes up to 36, at.............. $10

Another Binner corset for the more average figure comes slightly up over the diaphragm, controlling and reducing it. This model slips away at the side and under the bust, which is extremely low. The crossed elastic insert is very comfortable. Low above the waist line in back. Many women find this Binner corset gives them a better appearance of slimness than any they have ever worn. Sizes to 42 in beautiful brocades (as illustrated) at $13.50. In coutil at....................... $9

Revolt Against National Graft Nears in Spain

MADRID.—[Special Correspondence.]—The unfortunate war in Morocco, the poor success in foreign politics, and particularly the enormous raise in taxes with to apparent results have gradually gotten the Spanish public into such a state of agitation that it is willing to believe nearly anything. The talk of a revolution, a democracy, etc., with all the contrary arguments and opinions might lead an unsuspecting foreigner to believe that all Spain was to be turned upside down in the next fortnight.

On account of this peculiar state of affairs the recent rumor of the abdication of the king led to discussions and verbal combats of all natures. The king finally got the chance to deny in public any such intention. He emphatically declared that whatever he might be, he was not a deserter and that he was not deserter and that the people need have no fear of his abdicating. It is rather significant to know that his speech was heavily aplanded and that he is well received and well liked wherever he goes with the exception of the province of Barcelona.

There is no question that something of a radical nature is bound to happen in this country during the present generation. The political corruption and universal graft now existing cannot endure forever in any country in the world, but the Spaniard is too contented a soul to really start a radical movement until he has been mistreated for a long, long while.

In the Suburbs of Chicago There's the Home of Your Desire

NORTHWARD, along the scenic shores of Lake Michigan, village after village invites you. To the west and south of Chicago more towns, equally proud of their attractiveness, offer homes and home-sites 'mid surroundings that appeal.

Easily accessible, these beautiful places enable you to respond with confidence to the ailuring call of country life and its healthful recreations. Adequate educational facilities—kindergarten, grade and high school—ensure proper instruction for children of all ages, under most modern conditions. Churches of your chosen affiliation extend a welcome.

What greater joy can your boy have than a dog trailing along faithfully at his heels? And your other youngsters can have their pets—chickens, rabbits—and play in the open air. Enjoy beautiful flowers, overspreading shade trees and inviting lawns. Lay out a garden and raise your own vegetables. They taste so much better when you grow them yourself. So make your plans now to live out where the country begins.

City residents planning to move out to any one of these suburbs will be interested in knowing that the same full measure of Electric or Gas Service which they now enjoy will be available to them.

If we can assist you in locating in any of Chicago's suburbs we will be glad to have you call at any of our district offices.

COMMERCIAL ART

A Big Field for Men and Women

Be a Creative Commercial Artist. Don't be the "tell me what to do" kind. Creative artists are worth from $100.00 to $500.00 per week and more. Our academy is the only school basing its instruction upon the actual practices of the Master Commercial Artist. By analysis of Commercial Art Masterpieces we find the methods of the artist. By constructive instruction we teach these principles, developing the student step by step, until he is producing high grade Commercial Art.

The 1923 edition of our course embodies all up to date Commercial Art Practices. Large Commercial Art houses, employing hundreds of artists, have endorsed us as their training school. Students finishing half of this unusual course can secure and hold desirable positions. Four month students can begin to sell drawings.

Home study or class room instruction. Both day and evening classes. Get our big, beautifully illustrated book telling all about Commercial Art and the opportunities it presents as WE TEACH IT. Send 6 cents in stamps for a copy.

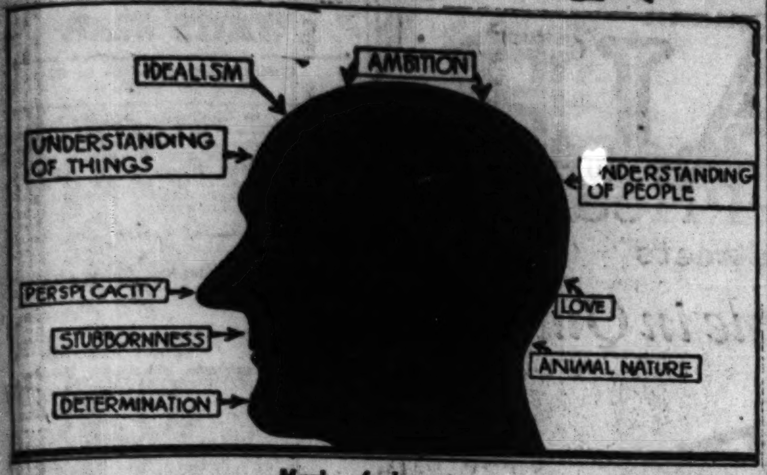
MAN



Marks of character.

CHARACTER IN HEADS.

HEADS reveal a great deal about character. They show the hereditary part of temperament, the pattern upon which all culture and education must be based. People with heads shaped alike view life more or less alike.

A man inherits the shape of his head exactly as he inherits his hair and eyes. Skulls are racial marks, and a scientist can reconstruct flesh, features, coloring, and expression on dry bones with sufficient accuracy to enable friends to recognize the portrait.

Look at heads whenever you have an opportunity. You will not need to see many to convince yourself of the great differences of race and origin between people who may be next door neighbors.

There are five types of skulls for each race. As you look down on heads from above, you see a shape that is long, pear shaped, high crowned, low crowned, or globular.

The Semitic race has heads that are long and narrow. Alpine skulls tend to globular. Aryan skulls are pear shaped. There are, therefore, fifteen shapes of heads that you will meet on the street.

A head that bulges behind denotes an inborn understanding of people. Those who have surveyed the subject say that this feature is absolutely essential for the politician. If a man does not naturally like people, he cannot make many of them like him.

A head that is high over the forehead denotes idealism. This is the dreamer head. But if the crown is also high, a man is denoted who has the ambition to put his ideals into effect.

A slanting forehead does not show a low mentality. On the contrary, it shows an exceedingly rapid mind, one that is totally ectrospective, or outward looking. Every person with this feature will take chances. This shape of skull also shows a fearless, reckless disposition. The early navigators, who sailed the Seven seas without charts or instruments, "by guess and by God" were mostly men with slanting foreheads.

If a man is heavy skinned and has a narrow skull covered by dull, fine black hair, he has no driving power. But a fair man with a hatchet face is just the opposite.

Full temples reveal musical ability. Such people are born to follow and appreciate beautiful tones. Those with narrow, concave temples may like music well enough, but they never learn much, if any. To set a child with a narrow forehead and hollow temples to studying music is as foolish as setting him to bailing out the ocean. But give him a ticket to somewhere, and see him go.

Every person with a peaked occiput lacks staying power. A huge, broad occiput shows brutality. A long, sharp nose shows perspicacity.

There is nothing strange or empirical about these facts. They, and many more, are the attributes of the different races of men we pass every day.

GEOLOGY

FAR BELOW SEA LEVEL.

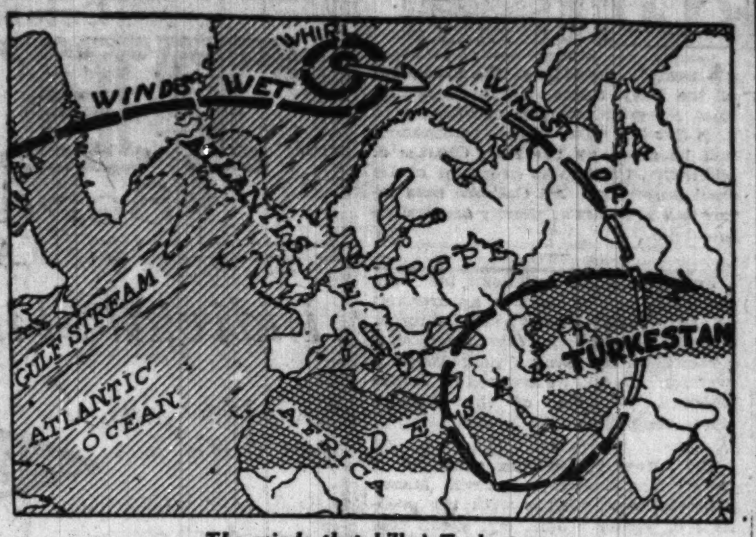
THERE is a place in Chinese Turkestan, called Lukchun, that is far below sea level. Northeast of it rises the mountain wall of Bogdoola, 22,770 feet high. All around are high plateaux, dry, parched, and sinister.

On the other side of Bogdoola lies the great open plain of Dzungaria, also surrounded by a mountain wall. On the north tower the peaks of the Altai, southward lie the peaks of the Tian Shan, eastward lie the barren rocks of the Gobi desert, and westward, through the Dzungarian gate, lies Lake Balkash and the Famine Steppes.

This forbidding region is one of the most interesting in the world. Everywhere in it are found ruins of human habitation. Great cities are here, with their mines, farms, and industries, dead as though time had stricken them as they stood.

Scientists follow human movements by place names. Men will not create new names for places if they can possibly find a previous one to apply. Here the names are in no known language. The few inhabitants who were left have barely managed to keep the memory of their land alive, but no newcomers have appeared to repeat their words.

What sort of a cataclysm could have produced such a quick and violent change? Scientists believe it was done in a few centuries, when Atlantis sank.



The winds that killed Turkestan.

Atlantis, you remember, was a land bridge between Iceland and perhaps Greenland and the British isles. In comparatively recent times all the sea in these parts was land; in fact, England is still rapidly sinking.

When Atlantis stood high the gulf stream played on one side of it and arctic currents on the other, but there was little or no intermingling of the waters. In consequence storms as they passed here were deflected down into Europe, exactly as Alaskan weather comes to the United States.

But the instant there was a gate by which the gulf stream could enter the Arctic ocean all this was changed. A great suction whirl was set up which lifted the storms from all surface contact with the ocean and switched them into the upper air, to descend, dry and thirsty, on Turkestan.

We see this action going on there now. There is every reason to believe that this is the true explanation, for the sinking Atlantis and the North sea correspond in time to the formation of the deserts in Asia and Africa.

MAR-NOT VARNISH
(For Floors and Stairs)
DEAR STAIRS:
April 8, 1923
If folks stopped to consider that you are the main highway—the heavy traffic street—of the house they'd use only me.
I am a tough, elastic varnish that is just made for floors and stairs. Yes, made to be tramped on, and scuffed, made to stand the heavy traffic.
I have a pal too, Old Dutch Enamel, the whitest, smoothest companion a varnish ever had. I recommend him for your risers and banisters.
But use me for your treads.
Sincerely,
Mar-Not Varnish

Your Sherwin-Williams dealer is an expert in varnish. He knows from long experience the futility of trying to make one kind of varnish do many kinds of work. Tell him the surface you wish to varnish or paint and he will give you the right finish for it.

THIS patented Hot Blast tube drives back superheated air (which is free) upon the fire and completely burns the valuable fuel gases which other stoves waste up the chimney. Soot and smoke are also consumed.

Cole's Hot Blast combustion burns these valuable fuel gases, which gas companies sell at $1.25 to $2.00 per thousand cubic feet, and which other stoves allow to escape unburned.

Copyright by Cole Mfg. Co.

Burn Your Coal Twice

Prove It By This Test
Roll a cone of heavy paper. Stick a nail or pencil in middle for handle as illustrated. Hold large end down and light it. Note how smoke pours out small end. This burning compares to underdraft stove or furnace. There is a fuel waste of about 60%.
Now hold a lighted match near the smoke. See how it lights with a puff and burns like a gas stove. Very little smoke remains. The valuable gases are burning. The full efficiency of the fuel is being utilized. This method of full combustion is the Cole's Hot Blast method.

Here's how you do it with Cole's Hot Blast combustion. First, Cole's patented Hot Blast tube drives superheated air—which costs you nothing—back upon the fire and thus completely burns the 10 to 15 thousand cubic feet of gas which is in every ton of soft coal, but which other stoves waste up the chimney. Figure this saving for yourself. The burning of these gases, with soot and smoke, gives you several hours of intense heat which you cannot get with other stoves.
Then, when all fuel gases, soot and smoke, have been consumed, you have a bed of coke—one of the most economical and efficient of all fuels. You close your Hot Blast, open your bottom draft, and proceed to burn this coke, which gives you many hours more heat.
It is because Cole's Hot Blast gives you this double service from your fuel that it

Saves 1/3 to 1/2 in Fuel
The ordinary stove wastes 40% to 60% of the available heat units because of lack of correct air supply and mixture of air and fuel gases. It takes 20 pounds of air to burn one pound of coal completely. Cole's Hot Blast reduces fuel bills by burning more free air and less costly coal.
This perfect combustion is impossible in any but an absolutely air-tight stove, range or furnace. The fuel gases must not escape. Air must not enter except at the proper point. Cole's are positively air-tight. All parts are machined to fit perfectly.
This saving has been proved in many thousands of homes in every part of the country. Any of Cole's dealers listed below will gladly show just how Cole's Hot Blast Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces are constructed, and help you to select the most economical type for your uses.

Cole's Original Hot Blast
Stoves-Ranges-Furnaces
Avoid imitations. Be sure to get the Cole's Original Hot Blast. Look for the name on the door.

This is the famous Cole's Combination High Oven Range, for Coal or Gas. The high oven is kept always evenly heated, and there is no bending or stooping. The range occupies little floor space. Also obtainable for coal fuel only.

Cole's Hot Blast Furnaces—either Pipe or Single Register—provide greatest heating comfort and economy because of Cole's Hot Blast combustion and other important features of construction not found in any other furnace.

This range is without an equal for perfect cooking and baking, economy and beauty. Cole's Hot Blast combustion insures a saving of 1/3 to 1/2, whatever fuel is used. There are thousands of these superb ranges in use, every one giving perfect satisfaction.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

New Church House in Evanston to Be Dedicated Today

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

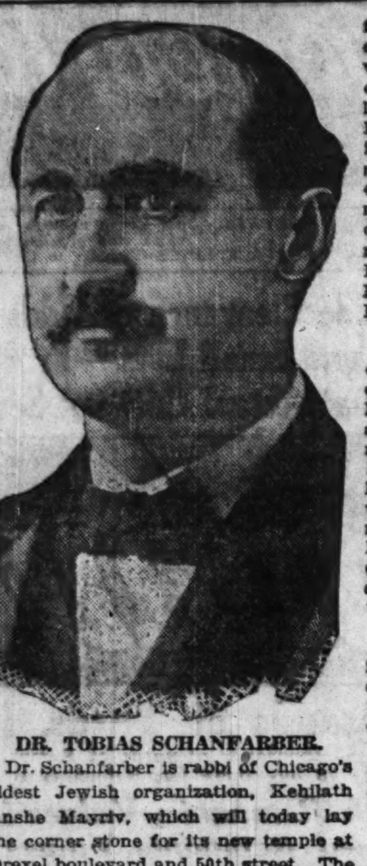
THE First Baptist church, Evanston, Dr. James Madison Stifler, pastor, will dedicate today a $200,000 church house, adjoining its present church auditorium at Chicago avenue and Lake street. The new building is of Bedford stone, and has as its special adornment a square tower containing a hall named after and in memory of Lieut. Kenneth MacLeish who was shot in Belgium while serving as an aviator. The new building affords facilities for all forms of educational, religious and social work carried on by the men's forum, the ladies' aid, young people's societies, and Sunday school.

In addition to MacLeish hall the woman's parlor will be a memorial of Mrs. Charles F. Grey by her daughter, Mrs. Robert L. Scott, and in the men's forum hall the family of the late Senator Francis W. Parker, founder of the forum, will erect a memorial of him. The various carvings and windows are beautiful in design and symbolic in nature. Tallmadge & Watson are architects of the building.

The dedication of the church house will take place today in MacLeish hall at 11 o'clock, with an address by Dr. Nathaniel Butler. At 5:30 there will be a young people's social hour, at 6:15 supper, and at 7 addresses by Wilfred F. Beardsley and Dr. Stifler.

Tomorrow the Chicago Baptist ministers' conference will be held in Kenneth MacLeish hall. The address will be by Dr. F. C. Eiselen of Garrett Biblical institute. Luncheon will follow. At 8 p. m. Dr. Frederick E. Taylor of Indianapolis, president of the Baptist northern convention, will speak on "The New World Movement." Tuesday will be Evanston day. Lunch will be served to the Evanston Kiwanis club, 12:15, and at 8 community night, with Evanston pastors present and an address by Dr. George Craig Stewart, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church. Wednesday will be given to the special interests of the local church.

The annual meeting of the Chicago presbytery will be held next Tuesday, beginning at 10 o'clock, at the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, South Marshfield avenue and 64th street. Dr. George P. Magill, moderator, will preach the annual sermon at 11 o'clock. There will be the election of delegates to the Presbyterian general assembly, which meets in Indianapolis May 17, and the election of officers of the presbytery.



DR. TOBIAS SCHANFARBER.

Dr. Schanfarber is rabbi of Chicago's oldest Jewish organization, Kehilath Anshe Mayriv, which will today lay the corner stone for its new temple at Drexel boulevard and 50th street. The ceremony will take place at 3 o'clock. Addresses will be made by Jacob Schnadig, president of the congregation; Dr. Gerson B. Levi, rabbi of B'nai Sholom Temple Israel, and Dr. Schanfarber. Dr. Abraham Hirschberg, rabbi of Temple Sholom, will offer prayer, and Dr. Joseph Stolz, rabbi of Isaiah temple, will pronounce the benediction. Henry N. Hart, honorary president, will lead in the ceremony of placing the cornerstone. The choir will sing three anthems.

The new temple will cost with the ground between $325,000 and $350,000. Until the temple is ready for occupancy the congregation will hold services on Saturday mornings at the Hyde Park Presbyterian church, Blackstone avenue and 53d street.

The congregation was organized in 1847, and in 1851 erected its first temple at Jackson boulevard and Clark street, where the federal building now stands. The government gave permission for the placing on the federal building of a bronze tablet indicating that the first Jewish temple in Chicago was erected on that site. Dr. Schanfarber has been rabbi of the congregation twenty-two years.

Ground will be broken today at 2:30 for the First Methodist Episcopal church at Lake Forest. The building, which will be of stone and will cost over $50,000 exclusive of grounds, is located at Deerpath avenue and McKinley road. The total seating capacity will be 650 and the community room and gymnasium will seat between 400 and 500 at a banquet. The ceremony today will be in general charge of the pastor, the Rev. Stuart B. Edmondson, assisted by the Rev. Allison F. Clark, district superintendent; the Rev. William E. Grose, the Rev. C. A. Kelley, and other neighboring pastors.

A dramatic debate in the interests of law enforcement will be held this evening in the La Grange Methodist Episcopal church by O. G. Christgau and John W. Langley. Tomorrow evening the debate will be given in the Harvard Congregational church, Oak Park; Tuesday evening, in the Maywood Methodist Episcopal church; next Sunday evening in the Berwyn Methodist; April 17, Oakland Methodist; April 24, Irving Park Baptist; and May 18, Logan Square Presbyterian.

The Lutheran brotherhood will hold its second annual banquet next Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street. Prof. W. A. Granville, Gettysburg, Pa.; Dr. S. S. Waltz, executive secretary of the brotherhood in America, and Dr. H. D. Hoover, president of Carthage college, will be among the speakers.

The Universalist Church of the North Shore, the Rev. Lucy W. Markley, pastor, will dedicate its new building today at 6002 Winthrop avenue. The principal speaker at both the 11 and the 3:30 o'clock services will be the Rev. John Smith Lowe, D. D., Boston, general superintendent of the Universalist church. The special dedicatory service will be at 3:30, when the Chicago Universalist pastors will be present. The building is a former residence fitted up for church purposes.

The Rt. Rev. E. F. Hoban, bishop, will administer the rite of confirmation today at 2:30 in St. Barbara's Catholic church, Throop near 29th street, and at 4:30 at St. Peter's church, Clark and Polk streets.

Forty hours' adoration service will be held at St. Lucy's Catholic church, Lake street and Mayfield avenue, beginning today. The Rev. W. P. Corcoran, C. S. C., missionary priest at Notre Dame university, will preach today at 11 o'clock mass. He will also preach at 8 o'clock this evening, tomorrow and Tuesday evenings.

The annual retreat for the members of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul of the archdiocese of Chicago will begin next Wednesday at the Cathedral of the Holy Name, North State and East Superior streets, continuing to next Sunday. The retreat conferences will be given by the Rev. Charles J. McCarthy, C. M., vice president of De Paul university. All Catholic men interested in works of charity are invited to attend.

Francis S. Moore will begin his twenty-eighth year of service as organist of the First Presbyterian church, Grand boulevard and 41st street, with a recital at the church next Tuesday evening. He will be assisted by James Goddard, baritone, of the Chicago Opera company.

Dr. Alfred E. Stearns, principal of the Phillips academy, Andover, Mass., a specialist in dealing with the problems of young people, will speak this evening at 8 at the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall on the subject, "The Challenge of Youth to the Older Generation." At 7 o'clock the speaker will be Dr. Ernest F. Tittle, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston. Dr. Stearns will speak tomorrow evening at an Amherst college alumni dinner.

The Rev. Robert B. Stansell, D. D., pastor of the Grand Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Milwaukee, Wis., will speak on the union of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal Church South at the Methodist ministers' meeting tomorrow at 10:30 at the Northwestern University building, Lake and Dearborn streets.

The Religious Education association will hold its twentieth annual convention from Wednesday to Saturday next at Cleveland, O. One feature will be a banquet attended by the charter members of the association, which was organized in Chicago in 1893.

The Rev. C. J. Robertson will begin today his pastorate of the Memorial Church of Christ, Oakwood boulevard, west of Cottage Grove avenue. The church is a federation of Baptist and Disciples of Christ churches.

Health Restored by Radium

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However, the benefits of this precious health-giving substance have in the past been only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford this treatment which offers so much relief from suffering and disease.

Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radio-active energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of blood, thus removing congestion, which is the real cause of most diseases.

To prove just what this remarkable treatment can do for you, we will send our appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble, or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature giving complete information. Radium Appliance Co., Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

Laugh at Father Time

If Hair is Turning Gray, use Sage Tea

YOU can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

The Monoclass Cabin Ships to Europe

Canadian Pacific Standard

THESE Canadian Pacific "One Class" cabin liners set a new standard of luxurious, thoughtful service at moderate cost. Comfortable cabins, excellent cuisine, beautifully appointed lounges, dining salons, smoking and card rooms, libraries, and spacious decks have made Canadian Pacific one-class cabin steamships the choice of discriminating travellers.

Yet the rate of passage on Monoclass cabin steamships is only slightly more than half of the first-class fares on ships of two classes of cabin accommodation. Eleven liners—varying in size from ten thousand to seventeen thousand gross registered tons—comprise the Monoclass cabin fleet.

London and Paris in a Week

Make your reservations early on a Monoclass cabin liner. Get a foretaste of Old World beauty and charm at Montreal and Quebec! Enjoy a two days cruise down the St. Lawrence while a picturesque panorama of cliffs, forests, and historic towns of old French-Canada passes in review. Then follow only Four Days Open Sea. Monoclass cabin liners leave Montreal and Quebec for Europe almost every day.

SWITZERLAND

Some of the many good reasons why Americans abroad always go there

Switzerland's best recommendations to Americans is that everyone who has ever been there once goes back again. Her matchless and majestic scenery, her wealth of sports—from mountain climbing to golf—her invigorating and rejuvenating climate, her superior traveling accommodations—railroads, steamships, motors—her splendid hotels and pensions, all combine to please and satisfy the tourist. The friendly hospitality of her people, the ease and grace with which service is everywhere extended, give Americans that most comfortable sense of welcome.

LAUSANNE-OUCHY, chief point on the Simplon line, facing the Savoy Alps, most convenient headquarters for excursions in all directions. All sports in perfection. An educational centre of repute.

GENEVA, with its classical lake, ever attractive and interesting as a resting place, combines beauty, wealth and intellect and is a world-renowned university town. Excursions to Mt. Blanc. New Golf course.

ZERMATT, at the foot of the majestic Matterhorn, a most exquisite high alpine resort. Then via the picturesque LOETSCHBERG route to the BERNESE OBERLAND, where the JUNGFRAU RAILWAY takes you up 13,750 feet to the "Top of The World." Far below and all about spreads a panorama of such inspiring grandeur and beauty that its memory must always remain a most treasured possession.

LUCERNE, the "Mecca" of all tourists—its loveliness proverbial, its variety of sports and amusements most interesting—the starting point for excursions in Central Switzerland.

Plan to go to Switzerland this summer—the only country in Europe unchanged. No taxes. No excessive rates. No profiteering on tourists. The same cordial welcome—greater and better accommodations for all, whatever your purse. Rates $2.00 a day up including meals.

Write for our new portfolio of Switzerland—No. 7-N—most attractive booklets descriptive of its wonderful scenery, cities, sports, life, beautifully illustrated. It is free.

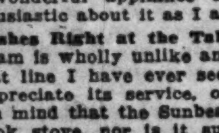
Marie Stewart's Recipes

REAL MEALS, PIPING HOT, COOKED WITHOUT A GAS STOVE

Imagine it—being able to cook such regular "home" dishes as Calf's Liver on Toast, Beef Balls with Creole Sauce, Apples Saute, Ham and Egg Scallop, without a kitchen stove! Yet it is possible. Any one of these dishes and forty more equally "real meals" can be cooked in any room, even in the boudoir—in any room in which there is an electric light socket. A new kind of electric toaster and grill makes this wonderful thing possible. I refer to the Sunbeam Electric Toaster and Grill, with which I have just completed a series of cooking experiments.

No doubt many of my readers have already heard about the Sunbeam. Anyway, I'm sure that those who have this wonderful appliance are just as enthusiastic about it as I am.

Cooks 49 Dishes Right at the Table



The Sunbeam is wholly unlike anything in that line I have ever seen. To fully appreciate its service, one must bear in mind that the Sunbeam is not a cook stove, nor is it supposed to take the place of a gas range. Sunbeam occupies a place of its own, filling a very definite need for people who appreciate home-cooked food. It is easily handled by anyone. The Sunbeam Toaster and Grill invites the bachelor maid, tired of restaurant fare; the professional man in limited quarters; the couple who board, but who like a bit of home cooking; those who live in furnished rooms; the business woman who lives alone; employed girls who room together and prefer to get their own breakfasts and delight in an occasional supper aided by some handy and excellent delicatessen. Men who have well-equipped homes, but who occasionally have to get their own breakfasts, look upon the Sunbeam Toaster and Grill as their greatest aid to a good start for the day.

An informal luncheon becomes a simple matter with this toaster-grill and the young housewife may entertain her guest at ease with this new, practical appliance.

Afternoon Tea is easily accomplished and doubly welcome with its cinnamon toast or crisped wafers from the toaster. A cup of tea to a friendly caller, hot chocolate with one's chum or mulled grape juice to welcome a tired comrade, all are easily available and simple in service.

After a shopping trip or wearing committee meeting, the wise woman prepares a cup of hot milk, or bouillon, to rest and refresh her. It only takes a few minutes with the Sunbeam Toaster and Grill, and means so much to tired nerves and body.

I have tested any number of recipes on the Sunbeam, ranging from rather elaborate dishes to the simplest, and I offer you here just a few of the forty-nine dishes which may be cooked on the Sunbeam:

Cream Toast

With reflector directly under the coils, make a white sauce in the pan over the coils by melting two tablespoons of butter (or bacon fat), adding two tablespoons of flour, and when well mixed, pour in one cup of milk. Stir gently until smooth and bubbling, season lightly and place pan in slide nearest bottom, with reflector in slide directly under the coils to keep warm while making toast. Graham, whole wheat or white bread may be used, this amount of sauce moistening four slices. Minced cooked ham, bacon, or sausage in the sauce adds an agreeable taste. Hard cooked eggs, sliced or chopped, increase both flavor and food value. The ingenious cook with appreciation of seasonings may vary this formula in numerous ways.

Oysters—Sunbeam Style

Look over half a pint of oysters to remove bits of shell and drain the liquor off into a cup. Place reflector plate directly under the coils and pan on top of the coils with two tablespoons butter, half a cup of celery and a small green pepper, both finely cut, and cook slowly for ten minutes. Add three tablespoons of flour, mix well and pour in one-fourth cup of juice from oysters and half a cup of rich milk. When bubbling, add oysters, salt and pepper and stir gently. Remove reflector plate and place pan below in slide farthest from the coils while making toast. Serve as soon as the edges of the oysters curl, or add an egg beaten with two tablespoons of cream and heat through without boiling, for added richness and delicacy.

Makes Perfect Toast

This can be done only on a flat surface. Toasters that hold the bread in an upright position lose so much of their heat that it takes longer to toast the bread, and the slow process does "re-cook" the inner portion of the slice.

Sunbeam makes the most delicious toast imaginable because it does toast quickly and evenly and on a flat surface. Cheese crackers, cinnamon toast and fancy cut sandwiches are made quickly and perfectly.

Toast making is not limited to the rack alone. You can make four slices at one time, by laying two of them in the grill pan and placing it in the slide directly under the coils, while the other two are browning above. It is a simple matter to pull out the pan to turn the slices over. In this way the toasting capacity of the Sunbeam is doubled.

I congratulate the makers of the Sunbeam on the efficiency of this toaster and grill and also on its workmanship. You can see at a glance that it is exceptionally well made. Sturdy, exquisitely finished, generous in size. If I were trying to think of a gift for a lady friend, single or married, I do not know what would be more ideal than the Sunbeam.

I must not omit to mention that the makers of Sunbeam have a splendid little booklet of recipes, "49 DISHES AT THE TABLE," which they send postpaid and free to anyone who requests it. I have had several of my friends write for this attractive and helpful little booklet, and I'm sure that it is something every woman will appreciate. A postcard to the Chicago Flexible Shaft Company, 5600 Roosevelt Road, Chicago, brings the booklet promptly.

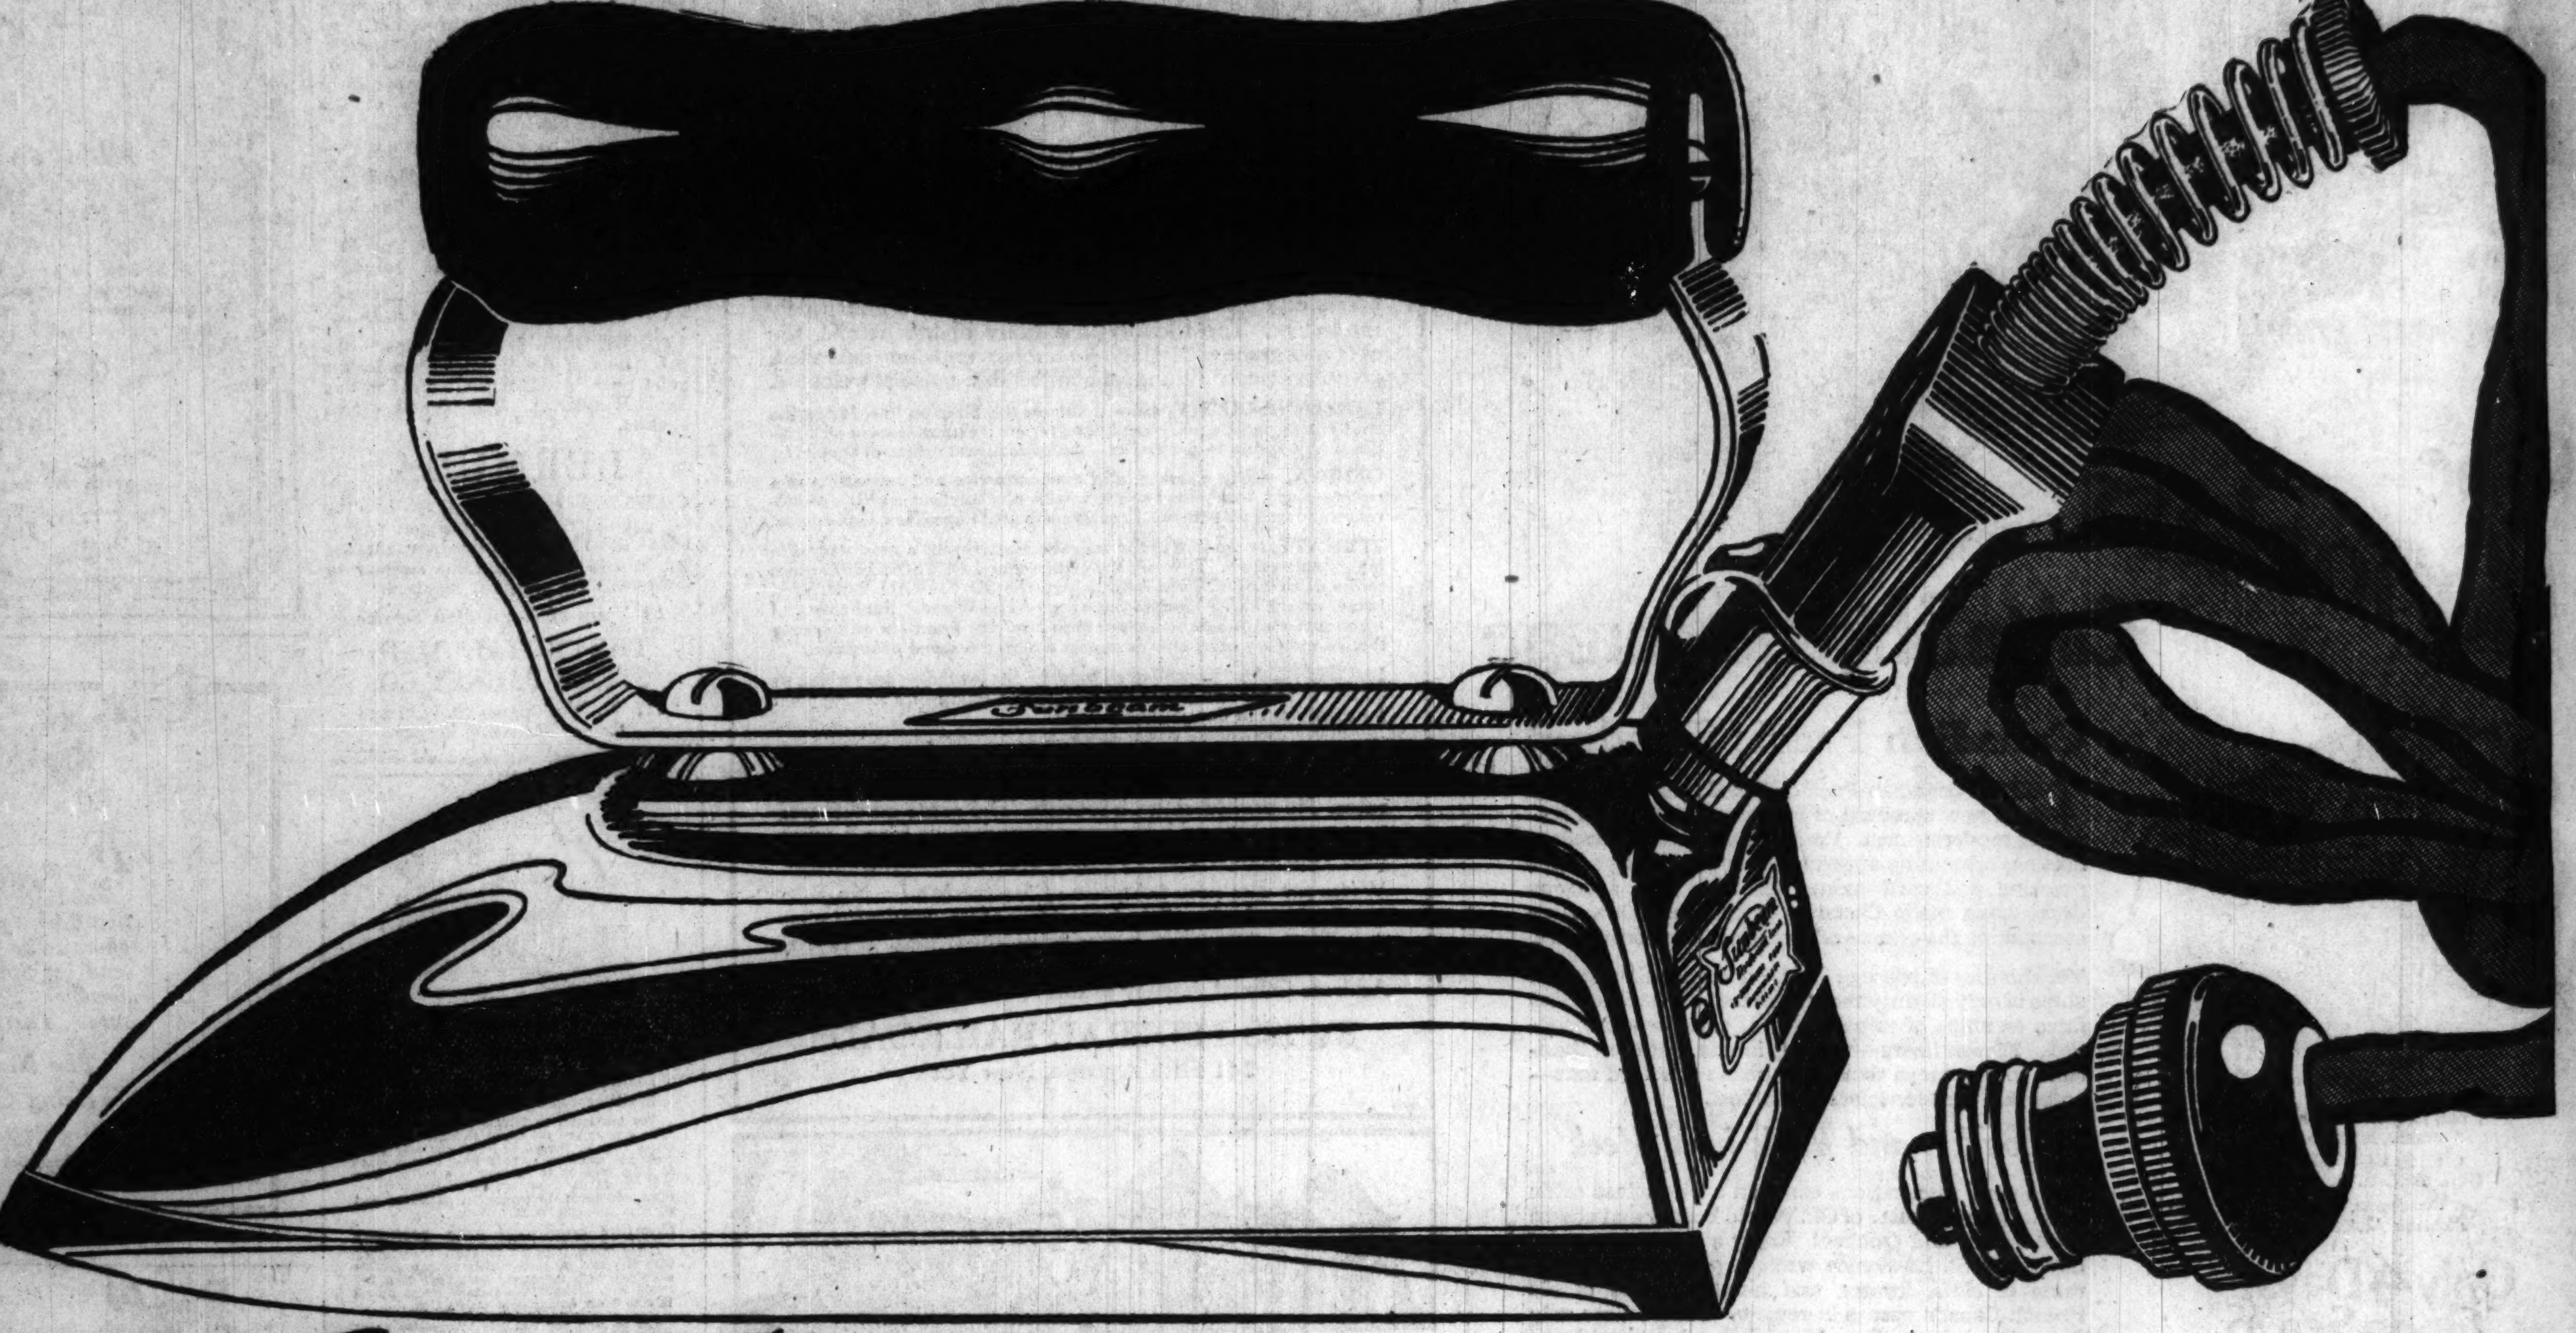
7 New Invention Multi-Plug



at last ~ the perfect electric iron

– seven astonishing improvements!

Here's the electric iron you're hearing about today. It's the wonderful SUNBEAM. Women everywhere are discussing it. Even the blasé electric appliance trade stands amazed—for here is perfection in an electric iron never before conceived.

Introducing new standards in electric iron design and construction, the SUNBEAM also introduces new standards in electric iron performance, service and durability.

You never knew ironing to be so easy as the SUNBEAM makes it. You never knew an iron to do such fine work as the SUNBEAM does. You never knew an iron to be so graceful, so easy to handle and yet so sturdy throughout it will give a lifetime of service with no "lay-offs" for repairs.

Just a moment's study of the SUNBEAM'S construction and you will see why it is the great iron it is. It brings forth seven astonishing improvements—seven distinct advancements in electric iron design and construction. Note them here:

1. Guaranteed Heating Unit—no breakdowns—lasts a lifetime.
2. Perfect Heat Distribution—edges as well as point are hot, giving you a completely heated ironing surface.
3. Improved Shape—the scientifically correct shape for an iron. Adapts itself to flat or fancy pieces and does better work on all.
4. Super-Quality Finish of Ironing Surface—starch cannot stick or char.
5. Cooler Handle—the hot handle of the ordinary electric iron is fatiguing. The cool SUNBEAM handle saves your strength and energy.
6. Sturdier Plug Guard—saves plug from breaking or cracking when dropped on floor or struck against wall.
7. New Multi-Plug—a new invention in a plug—several plugs in one—fits other electric appliances.

All through the SUNBEAM, even in the apparently "little things" you will find evidence of the quality that expresses itself in perfection in the whole. All vital connections in this iron are silver-brazed—a rare practice in electric iron construction. Even the nickle plating of the SUNBEAM is an extra heavy job.

Just see the SUNBEAM (with its de luxe double-deck stand) at any good dealer in electrical appliances. Let the dealer show you what it represents in electric iron construction, service and durability, and you will agree that at $7.50 it is the greatest value in the world in an electric iron.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Executives and Managers.

SALES MANAGER—

Our proposition is out of the ordinary and will require a man of the same type. Our product—educational instruction and service—is sold to women by women. It is of such a nature that it appeals only to high grade women, and consequently those carrying our message must be of the same caliber. We are an established, going concern, operating successfully from coast to coast.

One who has had much experience successfully handling sales forces composed of women, not under 35 or over 45 years of age, who is interested sufficiently in cultural studies to appreciate their worth in the present day world, who has flawless references, and who is confident enough of his sales ability to depend entirely upon his commissions after he knows our proposition, is the man we are looking for.

The man selected will be put in charge of our established New York office. Commission will be liberal and will give an excellent opportunity to find out "just how much you are worth." In view of the opportunities, unless the earnings ran over $15,000 a year, we should not consider the sales manager a success. If you believe you are the man and wish to apply, full details must be contained in first letter. Address F K 200, Tribune.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A BIG OPPORTUNITY IN AN UNLIMITED FIELD.
REAL SALESMEN WANTED.

This is addressed to experienced salesmen who are "signing 'em up" right now. To real producers, making $3,000 or better, the Addressograph offers a proposition worth looking into.

In 1921 [a hard year for many salesmen] Addressograph salesmen averaged $6,300 in paid commissions per man.

Great opportunities exist and greater ones are developing in the sale of Addressograph products to approximately 1,000,000 offices, small and large, in 500 distinct lines of business. Although 100,000 machines have been sold since the company was established, 29 years ago, the field has hardly been scratched.

No other office device can be used in so many profitable ways. 60,000 prominent concerns use Addressographs for:
1—Selling [circulars, letters, etc.]. 2—Recording. 3—Shipping. 4—Collections [statements, bills, etc.]. 5—Disbursements [payroll], dividends, etc.] 6—Routing [drivers' sheets, factory orders, etc.]. 7—Addressing of all kinds. 8—Identification tags for machinery, milk cans, etc.

Nearly 10,000 users in Chicago area. Ask any of the following:

International Harvester:
"As necessary as our telephones."
Sears, Roebuck & Co.
[65 Addressographs.]
Commonwealth Edison Co.
A. W. Shaw Co.
Chicago University.
John Magnus Co.:
"Saves us $10,000 annually."
Marshall Field & Co.
[Large users in wholesale and retail.]
Illinois Bell Telephone Co.
Continental & Commercial National Bank.
Illinois Central Railroad.

Thousands of prospects constantly being educated to buying point by extensive advertising, making selling easier for Addressograph salesmen.

No live, successful salesman can afford to ignore this opportunity for advancement.

Specify fully age, nationality, experience.

Apply by letter only.
MR. FELLOWS, 901 W. VAN BUREN-ST., CHICAGO.

AN INCOME TODAY!
A Big Income Tomorrow!!
A FORTUNE AHEAD!!!

That's a lineup worthy of a real salesman's consideration.

The man who can qualify for this opportunity must have had sales experience equal to the following:

SELLING ORDINARY INSURANCE.
SELLING HIGH GRADE SECURITIES.
SELLING EDUCATIONAL COURSE.
SELLING A SUCCESSFUL BANK SERVICE.
SELLING MONEY RAISING CAMPAIGN.
SELLING ADVERTISING SERVICE.

If you can qualify we will pay you a drawing account, give you a restricted district in Chicago, and furnish you with remarkable co-operation, including a superadvertising campaign.

Write giving details of your experience or call personally upon Mr. W. E. Swanson, Suite 158, Lobby Floor, 29 S. Salle-st.

ATTENTION!
ANOTHER RAISE IN RENT.

May first will see approximately 28% of the families in Chicago paying increased rents, and we predict higher rents again this fall. High rents are forcing people to buy their own homes. We have just started on the greatest building plans in our history. The first group of 3,000 homes and two flat buildings on our building program are just being completed.

We need ambitious men to help us handle these sales.

EXPERIENCE NOT NECESSARY.

Men who never sold anything before and who have been with us less than a month are averaging from $100.00 to $150.00 per week. In their previous positions they were inside salary slaves making $30.00 to $50.00 per week.

We have 30 years of successful experience in subdividing and building. Our properties are located from 19 to 23 minutes from the loop. All improvements are included. The property is zoned and restricted. We have the finest subdivision property in Chicago today. Get out of the rut. Get a place in the sun—what others have done you can do. Decide to make something of yourself NOW.

If you are over 25 years old and have a clean past record and if you are willing to work hard to make $100.00 or more per week, come in. All applicants courteously received.

SALESMAN WANTED.

One of unusual skill and strong, aggressive, pleasing personality — who can successfully develop present accounts and add new customers to our list in exclusive territory in north central states. Permanent, desirable connection on straight commission basis, which offers earnings of $6,000 to $8,000 per year from the start. We guarantee the right man earnings in excess of $100 the first week in his territory with reasonable possibilities for double this amount each week thereafter. Applicants must have good business record and successful sales experience of the highest order to qualify. About one week's preparation is necessary in main office before starting out. This is a good connection with a highly rated and old established specialty house—and pioneer and recognized authority in its line. Please write fully covering past experience and stating age. Also give telephone number as well as street address where you can be reached for appointment. Do not answer unless you can make immediate connection and are willing to leave Chicago. Address A V 279, Tribune.

SALESMAN,

with mechanical training. Man with engineering training or plant experience, for selling woven wire screens and screening machinery.

Applicant should be competent to study manufacturing processes and should be the type who welcomes opportunities to visit plants and help superintendents with adjustments. Previous selling experience is desirable but not indispensable.

Applicant should reside in Chicago. Apply by letter only, giving full details as to experience, education, salary desired, etc.

NEW BUILDING

3740-50 PINE GROVE-AV.
BETWEEN WAVELAND AND GRACE.

Are you a desirable tenant? If so, you can still get one of the six flats that were rented but money returned due to the fact that we are very strict as to character and responsibility of applicants.

If you were one of the many tenants that were disappointed because all were rented, this is your chance.

4 room apartments with in-a-dor beds and showers, in the best section of the North Side; near lake, Sheridan-rd., busses, Broadway cars, and elevated.

Rent $90. Agent on premises from 10 to 5:30, or phone Dearborn 5581.

WILL SACRIFICE BEAUTIFUL HOME,
7301 PRINCETON-AV.

An unusual opportunity to obtain a modern home with 2 car garage, situated on an exceptionally fine corner. This home is practically new and the expensive face brick construction, the tile roof, the interior woodwork, canvased walls, modern baths, suite for domestic help, and many other modern appointments all contribute to make it a most desirable home. There are 4 master bedrooms, all corner rooms and splendidly equipped. Owner is willing to accept $9,000 cash for his equity. Compared to other valuations, we think the price about $4,000 below the real value. Shown by appointment only.

Canada.

FOR SALE—CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY LANDS. Your big opportunity. In Central Alberta and Saskatchewan are rich, open prairies ready for the plow and park lands, interspersed with trees affording shelter for stock. Grain growing, dairying, and live stock raising are carried on successfully. The Canadian Pacific is offering these fertile lands in Lloydminster and Battleford Districts, where now are homes of thousands of prosperous farmers. Here is grown the world's prize wheat and oats. Farmers soon become independent on these lands. Average price, $18 per acre. Terms under settlement conditions requiring occupation and reasonable improvements, 10% down, next principal payment end of 4th year, interest first 2 years 2% per annum, balance at 6% and 16 equal annual payments. M. E. THORNTON, Supt. of Colonization, Canadian Pacific Railway, 904 1st-st. E., Calgary, Alberta.

FOR SALE—PROFITABLE FARMING—IN the famous Lethbridge Northern Irrigation District, in "sunny" Southern Alberta. Rich soil, ample moisture, right climatic conditions, and good markets mean big crops and a good margin of profit. Ideal conditions for dairying and hog raising. Spring work now beginning. Land can be put into crop this year, with possibility of returns at the end of the season that will cover the cost of the land. Eighty and 160 acre parcels, wholly or partly improved, can be bought for $12 to $30 an acre. Easy terms. Low cash payment. INVESTIGATE WITHOUT DELAY. Cheap railway rates. Get in touch at once with the Province of Alberta, Irrigation Council, 23 Provincial Building, Lethbridge.

YOU CAN OWN A FARM

In western Canada you can buy low priced farm lands so rich and fertile that one crop has been known to pay for it in full. Easy terms; small cash payments. Social and living conditions are the same as those you now enjoy. Same language and climate.

Send for free booklet telling about the choice lands for grain growing and mixed farming along the lines of the Canadian National Railways. Special low rates and personally conducted excursions. FOR SALE—160 ACRES OF LAND IN SUNNY southern Alberta, containing a grove of trees, a creek of spring water; ideal for stock in summer, fall, and can be worked on shares this year; $35 per acre. B. E. JOHNSON, 2138 W. Ohio-st., Chicago, Ill. Seeley 3007.

Illinois.

FOR SALE—FIRST CLASS DAIRY FARM located on the Fox River, McHenry County, Illinois, containing over 250 acres. Good improvements. About 30 acres of this farm can be subdivided into summer resort lots, which would be quite profitable to a person who could afford to give the time to take care of this subdivision. In fact, these lots would probably bring enough to pay at least one-half of the cost of the farm. Farm is located on three gravel roads and at one of the principal bridges crossing the Fox River. Easily accessible to all transportation. Will consider part cash and part trade for improved Chicago real estate. Address F O 161, Tribune.

FOR SALE—REAL BARGAIN; 188 ACRE dairy farm on main rd. 1 mile east from Batavia, Kane county; exceptionally good soil; land well tiled; slightly rolling; almost all under cultivation; about 30 acres fine maple grove; 8 r. house, 2 barns, silo, etc.; known as the Bueiter place. Price, $190 an acre; about ½ cash; must be sold to settle estate. This place has wonderful possibilities on account of being located on what will shortly be the new and principal concrete state highway from Chicago to Mooseheart and the Fox River towns. Call or address Charles E. Schiller, 3644 Wabansia-av., Chicago. Phone Belmont 2758.

SPRING BUILDING OF HOMES

The home you live in which you do not own is not in reality a home—it becomes so only when you are truly paying for it.

WITH A SMALL AMOUNT DOWN.

We will start you on your way if you will let us explain our plan of building, either by mail, phone, or a personal call.

INSURANCE

Our new building plan embodies an insurance clause whereby either the husband or wife is insured sufficiently to cover the total amount of monthly payments. So you are doubly protected at no extra cost to the homeseeker.

We Pay the Premiums

All costs come out of our profits and are not added to the building cost.

OPEN EVENINGS TO 9 O'CLOCK.

FAIRLY PRICED USED CARS OF THE BETTER GRADES

All cars offered by us are cars that have been consigned to us for sale. The owner has agreed to accept a fair market price.

We act as the broker, handling all details, and furnish service, facilities, arrange for terms, insurance, etc.

We aid you in getting a car at the right price, placing our judgment and experience at your disposal.

You are both our customers and we must be fair to each.

We will not accept a car for sale excepting at its real value.

We are not forced to get big prices due to over-allowance on a trade.

Our plan is the fairest one ever offered.

All popular makes in stock, and more arriving daily. Come in, look the present stock over—about 50 cars—and if you don't see what you want leave your specifications, and we will notify you when your car comes.

MARMON 1923 TOURING. This car will appeal to the person contemplating the purchase of a new Marmon. It is the standard current model 7 passenger Marmon with low "sport" lines in the latest Marmon blue color. The mileage is unusually low. It carries standard equipment, including wood wheels, 5 Silvertown cord tires, 2 Biflex spring bumpers, motometer, nickeled drum headlights, etc. At our special price you will net a handsome saving. $2,600.

CADILLAC TOURING CAR, 1919 D. L. 57-EE. This is probably the best conditioned Cadillac of its type and model you will find in the Chicago territory. It has had 100% care and attention mechanically and operates as smoothly and quietly as it did when new. Our mechanical department has checked the chassis and it is ready for instant use. The paint shop has given it a burn-off paint job and refinished it in attractive Japanese blue. Presents a handsome appearance. Has automatic squegee, 2 spotlights, bumper, motometer, rear view mirror, clock, tools, etc., and 6 excellent cord tires. We do not believe a Cadillac of this model, in similar condition, can be duplicated at $1,050.

PACKARD 2-25 TOURING 7 PASS. Just recently has been rebuilt by the Packard people at a cost of $565. New pistons, rings, wrist pins, etc., installed and driving units, etc., overhauled. It is in first class mechanical condition throughout. Paint is dark gray and is in good condition; general condition throughout good; 6 cord tires, etc. We do not believe a Packard of this model, in this condition, could be duplicated anywhere at our price of $750.

WILLS SAINTE CLAIRE TOURING. Here is a car that cannot be classed as the ordinary used car. The few miles that it has been driven have tended only to improve its mechanical condition. Everything about the car is first class and its original silky finish is like new. Equipped with disk wheels, original Royal cord tires, new spare spring bumper, etc. We are offering it at a price that enables you to make a 25% saving: $2,000.

PAIGE BROUGHAM, 5 PASS. COUPE 6-66, 1921. This is an unusually roomy 5 passenger car with wide doors, and offers high class transportation at low cost. We have given the car a burn off paint job and it presents the appearance of new. Upholstered in heavy broadcloth that shows little or no wear. Chassis has been "Bird-Sykes Rebuilt" and is guaranteed. New set of cord tires, bumper, motometer, heater, other equipment. We believe this to be the best sedan value at the price today. $1,875.

PAIGE SIX-66 SPORT, ROOMY 4 PASS. A "Bird-Sykes Rebuilt" car that is in splendid condition throughout. Refinished by us in Moleskin Gray, renickeled and presents a new appearance. Completely equipped, spare tire, 2 bumpers, automatic windshield wiper, sun visor, step plates, drum headlights, etc. This smart outfit is smooth running, easy to operate, and offers years of dependable service for a very reasonable expenditure. $1,275.

JEWETT TOURING CAR, 1922. Late model 5 passenger car, that is in new car condition throughout. Original finish has luster of new car. Top and upholstery excellent. Carries our mechanical guarantee. Bumper, motometer, lock, 5 good tires; performance is unequaled for any car of its size. Economical and most satisfying to drive. $875.

NASH 4 CYL. 1921 LIGHT 5 PASS. Has been just refinished a dark green, black trimming, and presents a most attractive appearance. Has been overhauled by us. Carries our mechanical guarantee. An economical, roomy car that will deliver dependable service at most reasonable rate. Well equipped with good tires, usual extras. Bargain, $675.

8 Bargains AT THE Peerless FACTORY BRANCH.

HUDSON SEDAN, 1923. This is the latest series Hudson Sedan that has been run less than 5,000 miles; in fact, it has not been driven enough to limber it up. The paint, tires, and upholstery are in such condition that the car could be easily sold as a new automobile. It has not been turned in because of any mechanical fault or comfort, and if you could see and ride in it we know that you would not hesitate in buying it today. If you are contemplating the purchase of a new Hudson Sedan we would advise you to see this car. The price is only $1,750.

BUICK SEDAN, 1921. It will be difficult for you to distinguish this car from new. Mechanically it is exceptionally fine. Paint, tires, and upholstery are like new. It has a great deal of extra equipment and we believe that if you could see and ride in it you would be more than pleased with its appearance and performance. It is being sacrificed as our second bargain for today at $1,250.

PEERLESS COUPE, 1922. We have not had a car of this type to offer to the public for about 2 months and feel fortunate in being able to offer this one, because it is in wonderful condition. It is very near new; in fact it has not quite been driven 5,000 miles. The velour upholstery shows practically no wear. Tires are like new. Mechanically it will carry our standard warranty. An exceptional offering for today's sale in this high grade 4 passenger enclosed car. Price, $2,500.

COLE 8 SEDAN, 1921. To duplicate this car today it would cost you considerably over $3,000. It has been privately owned and carefully driven but a few thousand miles and its general appearance and performance would indicate that it had always received the very best of care and attention. The owner has spent a great deal of time out of the city and therefore the car has not had the average use. This car must be disposed of today to complete a deal and therefore we are sacrificing it at our price of $900.

PEERLESS SPORT MODEL 56. This is our standard 4 passenger 4 door sport car that we have just recently rebuilt and refinished. Will carry our standard warranty, is equipped with an excellent set of cord tires, 1 extra, bumpers front and rear, motometer, and many other extras. This car will not stay in our possession long, as it is too good a bargain for a real buyer to pass up in view of the ridiculously low price that we have put on it. This is a special offering for today's sale. $1,000.

PAIGE SEDAN SIX-66. This is the standard 7 passenger Sedan that is practically the same car as they are delivering new today. This particular one is way above the average in detail. Mechanically it will bear a most rigid examination and demonstration. Paint, tires and upholstery are exceptionally fine. This car can be purchased at a saving of considerably over $2,000 as compared with the price of a new one today. It is an automobile that should really be seen to be appreciated and represents a real bargain at our price of $1,350.

PEERLESS SEDAN, 1922. This is practically a new car. It has just been traded in as part payment on a new car to be delivered later. The paint, which is a Dustproof Gray, has not a mar or blemish on it anywhere. Tires do not look as though they had ever been used. Mechanically it will carry our standard warranty. Cars like this are scarce and the last one we had only remained in our stock for one day. Here is an opportunity to get a car that is less than a year old at a very substantial saving as compared with the price of a new one today. It will undoubtedly be sold to the first person who looks at it for our price of $2,500.

PEERLESS TOURING, 1920. Rarely have we had the opportunity to offer to the public a car as late as this one in the same fine condition that this car is in. It has just recently been refinished a Dark Green. Mechanically it is way above the average. It has not had the average use and we know that some lucky purchaser will be given the utmost of satisfaction for many thousands of miles. The equipment is very complete. The cord tires are excellent, and an inspection and demonstration will prove to you, without a doubt, that it is a rare bargain at our price of $900.

CADILLAC'S SPECIALS

OLDSMOBILE 8 TOURING CAR painted dark blue and presenting a fine appearance. This car is a bargain for any one desiring economical transportation. It is excellent mechanically, and the tires will give long service. Equipment includes front bumper, motometer, stoplight, and two spare tires. Price for immediate sale, $650.

DANIELS 7 PASSENGER TOURING CAR. An all-weather car equipped with winter sides for protection against storm and cold; it presents an unusually fine appearance. The blue paint is excellent and the low racing line with protection bars at the rear give it snap and distinction. The upholstery and interior appointments show practically no signs of use. Equipment is very complete and includes shock absorbers, front bumper, two spare tires, radiator cover, stoplight, etc. Priced for immediate sale at $750.

NATIONAL 1921 4 PASSENGER COUPE. This is an unusual bargain for the small family who desire a comfortable, commodious enclosed car seating four persons. It is upholstered in a fine quality of silk mohair and is painted a dark blue. The driver's seat is slightly advanced and there is a folding seat for an extra passenger. The tires are excellent and equipment includes spare tire, heater, motometer, etc. Mechanically will bear close inspection. A bargain at $1,200.

JORDAN, 1921, 7 PASSENGER SEDAN. The body on this car was designed and built by a custom body builder and is distinctive in appearance. It is painted an attractive shade of maroon and the upholstery is of a fine quality of broadcloth. Mechanically the car is good and it may be depended upon to give satisfaction. The cord tires are almost like new. The equipment is very complete and includes a heater for the rear passenger compartment, snubbers for easy riding, spare tire and tire cover, front and rear bumpers, etc. Price for immediate sale, $1,500.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59 VICTORIA COUPE. This car is an unusual bargain for the woman driver and for the small family. It has been thoroughly and completely overhauled mechanically and will carry the same warranty we give on a new car. It has been repainted in our Coach Department a beautiful shade of maroon. It seats four persons comfortably and is upholstered in silk mohair. Equipped with five new cord tires, tire cover, front bumper and other extras. Price, $2,300.

LAFAYETTE 1922, 7 PASSENGER TOURING CAR. This car has just been painted a beautiful shade of dustproof gray. It has had comparatively low mileage in the hands of the original owner, and, having recently been overhauled, is in excellent mechanical condition. It is equipped with five new cord tires, motometer, front bumper, and spotlight. Here is an unusual bargain for the man who wants a high class automobile and fine appearance at a saving of $2,000. This is identical with new cars of this make being delivered today. Price $2,500.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 61, 7 PASSENGER TOURING CAR. This car came into our hands in unusually fine mechanical condition, and has since been thoroughly overhauled to carry the same warranty that we give on a new car. It has been repainted in our Coach Department a rich Royal Blue and equipped with new cord tires throughout. This offering is for the man who ordinarily would not consider the purchase of a used car. Our price represents a clear saving of $700. Equipment includes new spare cord tire, tire cover, motometer, and front bumper. Price, $2,650.

JORDAN
We Have Made IT POSSIBLE

For you to purchase one of our Used Car Values by making a down payment of 1-3 of the list price and extending the payments over a period of one year with absolutely NO BROKERAGE CHARGES to pay.

JORDAN SEDAN. A dignified light 5 passenger sedan of the type that has won its way into the hearts of every one who appreciates motor car value. The mechanical performance you will find to be uniform with that of a new car and we believe the riding qualities, under the worst possible driving conditions, will greatly surprise you. The necessary practical accessories have been added to make driving more comfortable. Carries our New Car Warranty. Special reduction, $1,750.

1922 STUDEBAKER SPECIAL "6" 5 PASS. TOURING. Not a detail on this car shows signs of anything but the most careful treatment. The previous owner drove it comparatively very little and then only under the most favorable conditions. Almost $200 worth of extra equipment has been added, making a practical and comfortable car to drive and handle. $875.

1921 FORD SEDAN. Has received the personal attention of the service superintendent of a large automobile company since the date of its purchase. Exceptionally well equipped, Hassler shock absorbers, cord tires, starter, demountable rims, door locks, etc. This is a Ford that has had CARE, which its mechanical condition and appearance will absolutely prove. $360.

1920 PAIGE TOURING 6-55. This is a 7 passenger model and has been rebuilt in our own shops. The finish is Westlake Maroon with the wheels in a lighter shade, forming a very pleasing contrast. Has tan seat covers, bumper, spare tire, spotlight, transmission lock, windshield wiper, and several other practical accessories. Has received very careful treatment and you will find it in the pink of condition. Specially priced, $700.

COLE SEDAN, 4 DOOR, 7 PASS. In excellent shape throughout. Mechanism, finish, and tires have seen chauffeur care since the date of original purchase. Its actual intrinsic value is several hundred dollars higher than our price. $350.

JORDAN "MX" TOURING. With only 4,400 miles of driving this car stands as spotless as those on our new car sales floor. You're missing something in the way of riding qualities if you've overlooked the Jordan. Find the automobile that suits you most in its driving and handling—then try this one—you be the judge. The finish is the stylish "Jordan Crane-Simplex" and the equipment is entirely complete. Our New Car Warranty safeguards your investment. $1,450.

PACKARD

OLDSMOBILE TOURING. This is the last "Big Six" model produced. It is a large 7 passenger touring car of sturdy construction and will make an ideal car for summer touring or for use as a tow car. The mechanical condition is good; the tires and paint first class. We advise an early inspection. $150.

KISSEL SEDAN, 1919 MODEL. This is a high class small 5 passenger Sedan, beautifully upholstered in striped tan velour. It has been refinished in Dark Blue and all necessary mechanical adjustments made and is ready to put into immediate service. We do not know where it would be possible to get a better value at $750.

HAYNES SEDAN LIMOUSINE 1922 MODEL. This car has had extremely low mileage and of course is like new in every detail. It is most completely equipped, with new spare tire, front and rear bumpers, stop signal, spotlight, tire covers, windshield cleaner, sun visor, etc. We are particularly fortunate in being able to offer a high grade car of this description, costing new nearly $4,000, at the exceptional price of $1,750.

MERCER SPORT, 1920 MODEL. We have made all necessary mechanical adjustments to the motor and chassis, repainted the entire car in a very pleasing combination of Battleship Gray and Black, and it is ready to put into immediate service. Extra equipment includes seat covers, 2 extra wire wheels, 2 spare tires, step plates, rear view mirror, etc. This speedy high class 4 passenger car can be purchased at $1,500.

PACKARD TWIN SIX TOURING MODEL 2-25. We are offering in this car an opportunity to purchase a high class Packard Twin Six automobile in first class condition throughout at a marked saving. It has been overhauled in our shops, repainted in standard Packard Blue, and will render excellent service for a long period of time. It is priced at only $850.

PACKARD TWIN SIX TOWN CABRIOLET. Here is a Packard so admirably constructed and finished that we doubt, indeed, if you will ever find a more inviting closed car. It is a distinctive custom built Town Car Cabriolet, of 4 or 5 passenger capacity, and will make a special appeal to the person who likes a touch of individuality with good taste. Chassis has been Packard rebuilt, is equipped with new Kelly-Springfield cord tires, and will be warranted and serviced the same as a new Packard vehicle. It is an extreme value at $3,500.

LOCOMOBILE SPORT COUPE $2,250

The only one of its kind!

Did you ever see a Locomobile Sport Coupe? No. Of course not, for this is the only one in Chicago. Words are inadequate to describe the sylphlike beauty of this superb equipage. It has long, graceful, narrow, low lines, and a quiet elegance and refinement that is seen but rarely in a motor car. The body was designed by a famous artist and executed by the World Famous Motor Coach Builder, C. P. Kimball & Co.

From a mechanical standpoint it is as perfect as a Locomobile can possibly be—and that is saying much when you stop to consider it is America's highest priced automobile. Although this car has actually been driven it has received such wonderful care that it appears as the first day.

Consider the low figure we are asking for this magnificent car—less than the cost of the body—less than the cost of numerous mediocre cars. A marvelous value that warrants your careful consideration. Come in and see it today.

Stearns-Knight
6 CYLINDER SPORT.

THE VERY LATEST.
So far as we are able to ascertain this is the first one of these marvelous silent, smooth running, vibrationless Stearns-Knight 6 cylinder Sport cars ever offered on the Chicago market.

This is the last word in beauty and smart appearance and we challenge any one to run it alongside of a brand new one and distinguish between them except that this one is especially finished and equipped.

The body is finished in Rolls-Royce Blue with wide black stripe outlined in ivory. The radiator and large custom built, distinctive appearing lamps are in silver. A pleasing contrast is afforded by the natural wood wheels with black hub fenders. The new seat covers are in neutral tone gray cravenette cloth, piped in black patent leather, with top boot to match.

Equipment consists of automatic "Pines" winter front, De Luxe motometer with silver wings, parking lamps, automatic windshield cleaner, step plates, Rolls-Royce Blue patent leather tire cover, Biflex bumper, etc.

If you desire a car that is "different" in appearance and distinctive in its style you need look no further. Come in today.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR
Destroyed FOREVER by multiple electrolysis 60 to 700 hairs removed per hour; no pain, no scars, absolutely perfect and GUARANTEED PERMANENT by RESPONSIBLE people that are EXCLUSIVE SPECIALISTS. THE OLD RELIABLE DRUM & DRUM GUARANTEE IS YOUR MOST DEPENDABLE SAFEGUARD.

EXPERIENCE AND RELIABILITY INSURE

NOTE—DRUM & DRUM, E. D. Specialists, have had many years of experience in the permanent destruction of superfluous hair, moles, warts, etc. They have treated thousands of cases from a few stray hairs to beardlike growths and not a single failure. THEIR CLEAN RECORD IS THEIR MOST VALUABLE ASSET.

For the benefit of the public they have prepared a small booklet on "THE ART OF MULTIPLE ELECTROLYSIS," which may act as a guide to those that do not know where to get the most expert treatment obtainable and to those that have become discouraged and lost confidence through frivolous and inexperienced operators.

It is to be remembered that THEIR SKILL, THEIR KNOWLEDGE, and THEIR EFFICIENCY, combined with the VERY BEST equipment and material used, is that which qualify DRUM & DRUM, E. D. SPECIALISTS, TO LEAD SUPREME. Send for their free booklet.

COLISEUM TO BE DOUBLE DECKED WITH NEW FLOOR

Father Dearborn's loud and persistent wail about lack of exhibition space for conventions and exhibitions of various sorts, a cry of distress which waxes especially bitter when the automobile show comes along, is at last going to be heard. Charles R. Mr. Hall's plans call for a movable all steel floor which can be put in place in sections by means of a traveling crane in less than twenty-four hours. A huge storage space will be dug underneath the Coliseum and after the big crane has lifted down the floor sections and tucked them down in their resting place, when shows needing the extra space are over, it will crawl in after them, fold itself up and snooze peacefully until another show comes along that needs the new floor.

Will Add 50,000 Sq. Ft. Floor Space.

The present balcony has 3,100 permanent seats. The proposed steel movable floor will have room for 7,500 seats. Or in case it is to be used for exhibits as it will for the 1924 Own Your Home show and the 1924 Automobile show, it will add 50,000 square feet of floor space to the present 100,000 on the main floor.

The two exhibitions mentioned, the Own Your Home and the Automobile shows, already have agreed to use the proposed extra floor. Mr. Hall has written to the twenty or more other exhibitions of various kinds and if enough reply favorably the double decking idea will be put through as soon as the Coliseum's schedule permits.

Plan 17 Foot Headway.

There'll be a seventeen foot clearance between the two floors and in the center of the building will be a huge light well which in the case of the Own Your Home show would permit the erection of a bungalow or house extending up through the second floor.

The whole project, Mr. Hall emphasizes, is to be done to please his tenants and not as a money making proposition. And the carrying out of the project will depend entirely upon the replies received from the various exhibit managers.

As already mentioned the own your home and automobile shows already have agreed to take all the additional exhibition space supplied by the proposed new steel floor.

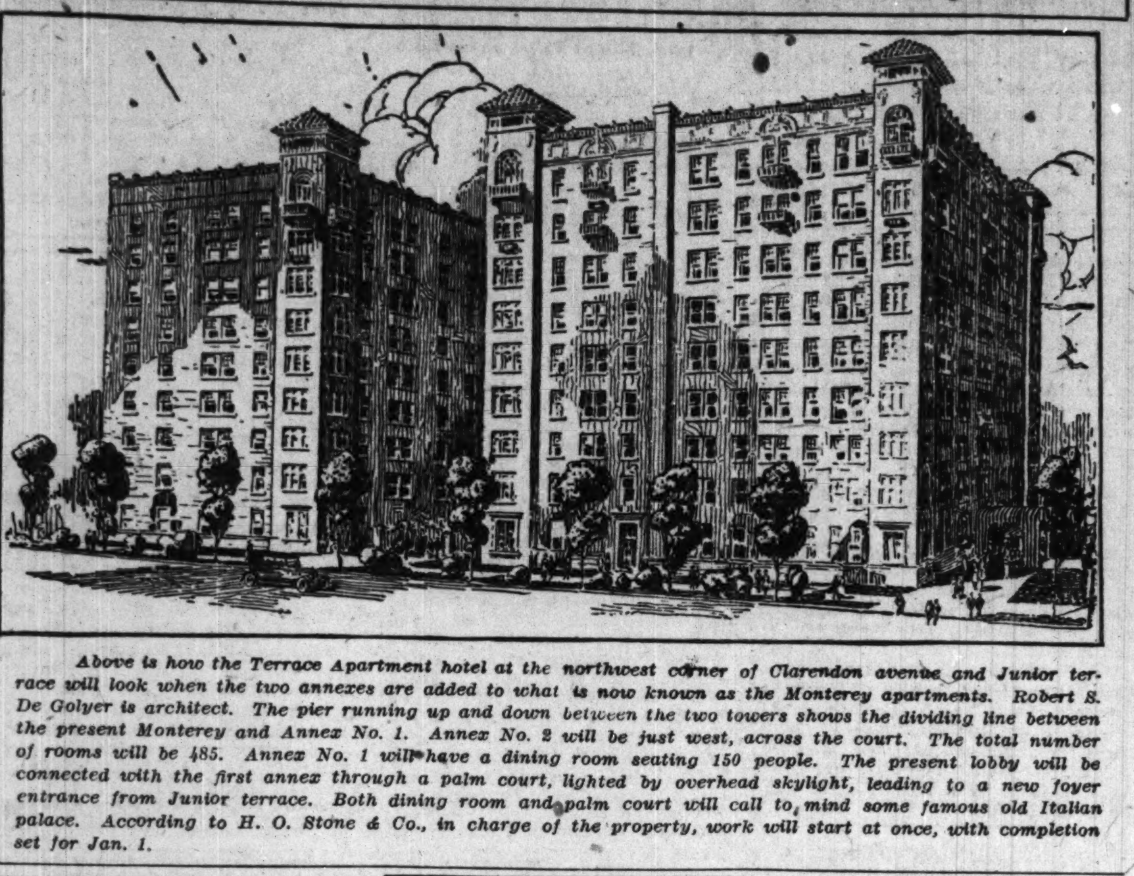
Terrace Apartment Hotel at Clarendon and Junior



Above is how the Terrace Apartment hotel at the northwest corner of Clarendon avenue and Junior terrace will look when the two annexes are added to what is now known as the Monterey apartments. Robert S. De Golyer is architect. The pier running up and down between the two towers shows the dividing line between the present Monterey and Annex No. 1. Annex No. 2 will be just west, across the court. The total number of rooms will be 485. Annex No. 1 will have a dining room seating 150 people. The present lobby will be connected with the first annex through a palm court, lighted by overhead skylight, leading to a new foyer entrance from Junior terrace. Both dining room and palm court will call to mind some famous old Italian palace. According to H. O. Stone & Co., in charge of the property, work will start at once, with completion set for Jan. 1.

LAKESIDE MANOR NEWEST "SUB" FOR THE NORTH SHORE

16 Acres at Ravinia to to Be Marketed.

Lakeside Manor is the newest north shore subdivision to be announced for home buyers. M. F. Schiavone Lawrence P. Romano, and A. L. Reimenschneider of the Winnetka Improvement company, who have recently sold out the Winnetka Manor subdivision in Winnetka, have purchased from George L. Schein and Otto B Von Linde sixteen acres at Ravinia. This includes Sheridan Highlands and four and three-quarters acres which Mr. Schein and Mr. Von Linde bought last fall from the Andrews estate.

The tracts purchased face south on Sheridan road, also west on Sheridan road, beginning about a block from the lake and running west and north and adjoining the estates of Albert G. Becker and A. D. Lasker. They are all wooded and intersected by one of the most attractive ravines on the north shore.

The Winnetka Improvement company will handle the property and is subdividing it into large lots in accordance with the present zoning law of Highland Park. The average width will be seventy feet. It will be called Lakeside Manor, as stated above and the lots will retail for a total of about $250,000, it is claimed Perry Ulrich and the General Realty company were brokers.

HEART DISEASE KILLS WOMAN.

While visiting the home of a friend at 5035 West 23d place, Cicero, yesterday, Miss Mildred Rusy, 23 years old, 1359 South Avers avenue, dropped dead, apparently from heart disease.

Brokers' Notes

Arthur P. Hubbell & Co. have opened another office in Park Manor, at 511 East 75th street, under the management of G. A. Brinkman. Telephone is Stewart 7020. Their main office is at 2204 East 73d. According to George Shaffer of THE TRIBUNE sporting department, Mr. Hubbell is one of the best tennis players in the city.

The H. Traeger & Sons Realty company has opened a Rogers Park office at 6536 North Clark, in charge of Joseph Traeger, advertising manager of the firm. Telephone Sheldrake 5716. A renting department, specializing in Rogers Park apartments, has been added.

The Schermann Construction company has opened a branch in the Javaras building at Austin and Madison in Oak Park. Russel C. Smith and Charles T. Houha will be in charge.

Chester E. Cleveland will discuss "Public Ownership" at the regular Tuesday session of the Real Estate market of Chicago in the rooms of the Cook County Real Estate board at 1:30 p. m.

S. L. Cooper, formerly a large builder of apartment buildings and theaters, has opened a real estate office at 82 West Washington and will specialize in south side and loop properties. D. M. Fawcett, formerly of the Howard & Orr company, is associated with him.

Some Residence Sales

Harry L. Monroe, manager of the General Electric company, has bought the three story, fourteen room stone residence at 4800 Kimbark avenue from Mrs. Lillian C. Dudley, through J. Grafton Parker & Co., for $42,500. The lot is 75x151.

The George R. Hemingway organization of Oak Park reports selling the residence at the northeast corner of Elmwood and Iowa, Oak Park, for Mrs. Frank Kimball to Frank E. Tye. W. P. England, who negotiated the sale, also sold fifty feet north of the Kimball residence to A. H. Troyke, who will erect a brick residence.

Henry H. Brigham, president of the North American Car company, bought the residence at the northeast corner of South and Greenleaf avenues, Glencoe, built twelve years ago by Charles J. Mortimer. Mr. Brigham's present residence at 520 Greenleaf avenue will be occupied by his son, Erwin R. Brigham, whose marriage takes place in June.

Isaac C. and Charles E. Gifford have sold their residence at 4637 Drexel boulevard to C. D. Johnson and Adolph Lindstrom for $37,500 through James J. Parker & Co. The lot is 130x238.

SINCLAIR BUYS MAYWOOD CORNER.

The Sinclair Refining company has bought the southeast corner of Washington boulevard and 5th avenue, Maywood, 125x98, from Louis Landsman, for $15,000, for a gas station.

TWO ADDITIONS PLANNED FOR THE MONTEREY

To Be Called Terrace Apartment Hotel.

Further details on a real estate transaction reported a few days ago as pointing to a good sized building operation were given out yesterday by H. O. Stone & Co. and confirm the preliminary announcement and enlarge on it. The Terrace Apartment Hotel company, headed by H. S. Osborne of New York City, has outlined a plan whereby the present Monterey apartments, at the northwest corner of Clarendon avenue and Junior terrace, will have two annexes erected, which will make the entire property, when completed, represent a reported investment of about $3,000,000.

The name "Monterey" will be shelved and the project will be called the Terrace apartment hotel. With the two annexes it will front 170 feet on Junior and 125 on Clarendon.

Robert S. De Golyer, original architect for the Monterey, has drawn plans for the first annex, which will contain 142 rooms, all with bath. The present building has 193 rooms, divided up into two and three room kitchenette apartments. Later on when leases expire, work will start on annex No. 2, which will contain 150 rooms, making a grand total of 485 rooms.

In the acquirement of the various pieces of realty comprising the total site, H. O. Stone & Co. and James J. Parker & Co. represented the different parties. Sonnenschien, Berkson, Lautmann & Levinson were attorneys.

Sea Food Restaurant for Wilson Avenue District

The Wilson avenue district is to have a new specialty eating place. The Sea Food Restaurant corporation has leased the store at 4657 Sheridan road for six years at a term rental of $26,000, through Robert A. Guarno & Co., and will specialize in fish, poultry and steaks. The corporation is opening similar cafés throughout the country, it is said.

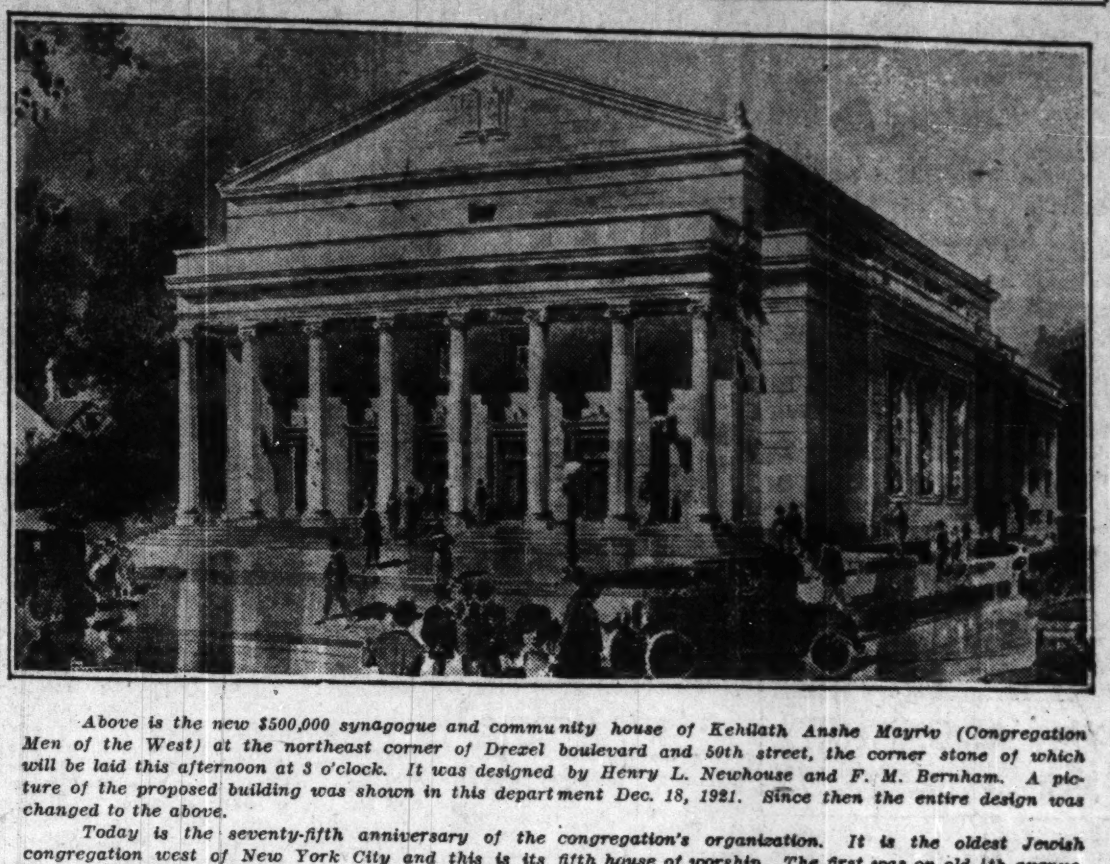
New Home of Chicago's Oldest Jewish Congregation



Above is the new $500,000 synagogue and community house of Kehilath Anshe Mayriv (Congregation Men of the West) at the northeast corner of Drexel boulevard and 50th street, the corner stone of which will be laid this afternoon at 3 o'clock. It was designed by Henry L. Newhouse and F. M. Bernham. A picture of the proposed building was shown in this department Dec. 18, 1921. Since then the entire design was changed to the above.

Today is the seventy-fifth anniversary of the congregation's organization. It is the oldest Jewish congregation west of New York City and this is its fifth house of worship. The first was on old 4th avenue, near Van Buren; next Michigan and 14th; then Indiana and 26th, and later Indiana and 33d. The rabbi is Tobias Schanfarber. Jacob Schandig is president of the congregation.

DE MET LEASES MORE SPACE FOR CANDY BUSINESS

De Met & Co., Inc., who now have one of the most attractive candy and luncheon shops in the loop, at 7-9 West Randolph, designed by Architect Howard P. Sturges, have just leased the four story building next door on the west at No. 11, and as soon as Mr. Sturges can draw plans for alterations, will occupy it.

The first floor, of course, will be added to the retail candy shop, giving it a total frontage of sixty feet. The upper floors will be remodeled into a modern candy kitchen, from which De Met will supply the Randolph street store and several new loop shops he plans opening.

August van Glahn is lessor and has rented the 20x80 building to De Met's for $16,000 annually for the first nine years and $17,000 annually for the last ten years. Albert H. Wetten & Co. represented the lessor and Howard C. Winne the lessee.

Gold Coast Residence to Be Used for Modiste Shop

The fourteen room residence at 719 Rush street, just south of Superior street, occupied for the last thirteen years by Mrs. James Morrison, has been leased by Alma H. Brindley for a term of years at an annual rental of $3,900 to Madame Bennati, who will occupy it as a modiste shop. W. J. Boyd of the Union Realty company and Miss Stahl of H. O. Stone & Co. were brokers.

TO BUILD AT CICERO AND DIVERSEY.

George J. Batsakis will build a two story store and office building at the southeast corner of Cicero and Diversey. He bought the 120x50 site from Nicholas C. Powers for $20,000 through John P. Fermos & Co.

New Subdivisions

Henry Hogans has bought forty acres at the southeast corner of Crawford and 67th from Mrs. Mary E. Miller of New York City for $35,000, assuming approximately $10,000 in special assessments, and will subdivide it through William D. Murdock & Co., with 25 foot business lots on Crawford and 33 foot residence lots on the balance. Charles V. McErlean represented Mrs. Miller. Her father, David J. Ely, bought the property in 1862 for $2,000. The new subdivision will be called Hogans' Marquette Park addition.

The twenty-six acres on the west side of California avenue, between Pratt and Albion, the purchase of which was announced last January, are being subdivided by Ellis & Stouffer into 159 lots and sold on the syndicate plan at auction. The same form was used by them in disposing in thirty days of the fourteen acres lying two blocks east of Ridge and about 400 feet north of Howard street, in Evanston, known as the Howard Terminal addition.

News of the Architects

Walter Eugene Clark, Ph. D., professor of Sanscrit and comparative philology at the University of Chicago, will give an illustrated lecture on sculpture and architecture in northern India before the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects on Tuesday evening in the clubrooms of the Art institute. Dinner will be at 6:30 and Prof. Clark's talk will follow. Most of the pictures to be shown were taken by Prof. Clark during his travels in India.

Architect Albert P. Dippold announces the removal of his offices to the South Side Trust and Savings Bank building at 4651 Cottage Grove avenue. His telephone is Atlantic 1500.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

WANTS ALL UNFIT SUBDIVISION LAND BARRED FROM USE

William Zelosky Wants Law to Protect Public.

The following story was crowded out of last Sunday's real estate department through lack of space. It has so much worth-while information in it, however, that it is given herewith. The lecture was given Tuesday evening, March 27.

WILLIAM ZELOSKY
Cooney photo.

Land which has neither good drainage nor transportation should be prohibited by law from being subdivided, according to William Zelosky, head of the William Zelosky company, in a lecture on "subdivisions" delivered before the realty class of the Central Y. M. C. A. School of Commerce, on Tuesday evening. Mr. Zelosky also declared that it would be a great benefit to the city if future subdivisions would be compelled to have section lines and diagonal roads not less than 120 feet wide and half section lines 100 feet wide.

Names Six Essentials.

"Land ripe for subdividing should have within easy walking distance at least one line of transportation and necessary outlet for drainage," said Mr. Zelosky, "for without these two essentials no city land is ripe and should be prohibited by law from being subdivided."

Mr. Zelosky listed six essentials a modern subdivision should have. They are as follows:

"First, established building lines leaving ample space for lawns, parkways and gardens.

Urges Substantial Construction.

"Second, building restrictions providing minimum cost and character of buildings. Only structures of permanent and substantial construction should be permitted.

"Third, if the subdivision contains forty acres, though 160 or more is better, it is then practical to establish residential, apartment and business zones. The land will have a greater value in the subdivision which prohibits the unsightly sandwiching of a bungalow in between two apartment buildings, an apartment between two bungalows, or a store in a purely residential street. On the other hand business frontage will greatly enhance in value if adjacent streets are limited for residential purposes only.

Calls Elm Trees Best.

"Fourth, beautify the grounds with landscape gardening; plant trees and shrubbery. Elm trees give the best results, although the poplar gives quicker growth.

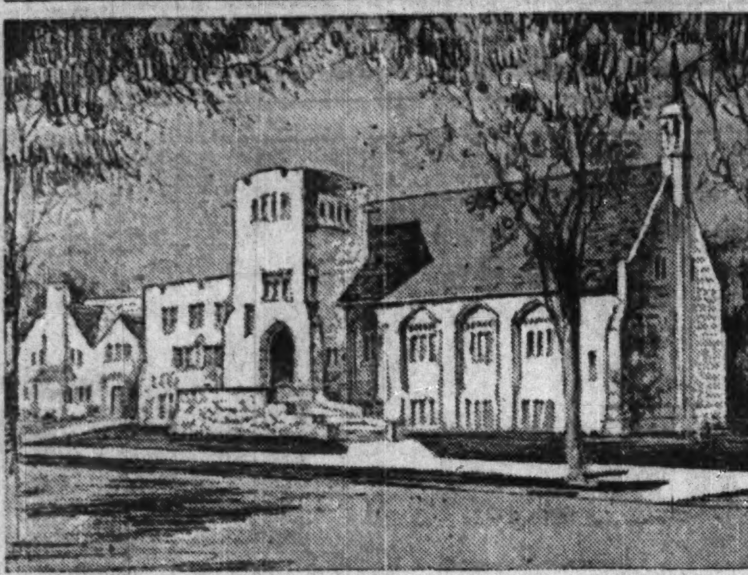
"The subdivider should support his subdivision with home building. He should give his lot buyers the benefit of his experience and scientific knowledge. He must demand of his contractors that they use every method of good construction.

"When the subdivision is made, street improvements should be provided for immediately, with sewer, water, gas and all necessary service pipes laid inside of curb, in order to prevent tearing up of the street when it is paved, electricity, cement walks and wherever possible, street paving."

ARCHITECT SELLS APARTMENTS.

Sidney Lovell, architect, has sold to Paul L. Day, who then conveyed title to Judge Howard W. Hayes, the three eight room apartments at 5124 Kenwood, for $48,500, subject to $19,000, through T. D. O'Hern & Co.

Lake Forest's New Methodist Church



Ground will be broken today for the new Lake Forest Methodist Episcopal church at Deerpath avenue and McKinley road. It will cost approximately $60,000 and will be of stone. Architect Howard Shaw's plans call for a community room and gymnasium in the basement. The main church auditorium will seat 325, with a gallery for eighty more. When the Sunday school rooms are opened into the main church about 600 can be accommodated. The Rev. Stuart B. Edmondson is pastor.

USE HORSE SENSE WHEN APPRAISING PROPERTY, SUGGESTS MARK LEVY

MARK LEVY.
[Walinger Photo.]

Mark Levy, of Mark Levy & Brother, discussed "Real Estate Appraisals" before the realty class of the Central Y. M. C. A. school of commerce on Tuesday evening. Among his suggestions to future appraisers Mr. Levy said: "Above all, when you've fairly determined the value of the property, have the courage of your conviction to stand on that appraisal and allow no one to influence what, in your opinion, is the fair market value of the property.

"Too many real estate men or appraisers haven't the back bone or the courage of their conviction, morally as well as practically, to express without hesitation their frank opinion in face of their hearer or client whom they know or believe has a different opinion. In other words, too many appraisers attempt to please the other fellow, or the party they represent instead of frankly using their own best judgment, what some people might call common sense or horse sense.

"All businesses and professions are becoming more and more one of specialization. If a man is ill he goes to a doctor and if he wants legal information, he goes to an attorney. And so it is that corporations, banks, firms and individuals, who desire to acquaint themselves with the fair market value of real estate investments and other real estate holdings, employ a competent, qualified realtor. A piece of land may have a certain value to one individual yet worth more or less to another."

Motorists Induce Mr. Kaap to Open Loop Candy Store

Motoring Chicagoans are responsible for Otto Kaap of Green Bay, Wis., deciding to venture into the loop candy shop field. According to Gilbert Keebler of E. F. Keebler & Co., who has just leased a 14x28 shop at 103 West Monroe street in the Standard Trust building to Mr. Kaap for five years from May 1 at a term rental of $37,500, the Wisconsin confectioner's sweets attracted the attention of automobilists. So many advised him to open a Chicago store that at last he decided on the one just rented from Albert Hoefeld. If this is successful Mr. Kaap may open several more.

Hawthorne Workers Build a Dozen Homes a Month

The Hawthorne Club Building and Loan association, composed entirely of employés of the Hawthorne works of the Western Electric company, in its report just issued, shows applications for loans totaling $200,000 on file. This money will finance new homes for Hawthorne people within the next six months. The present building schedule of the association involves the erection of approximately a dozen new homes a month.

PLAN $3,000,000 16 STORY HOTEL OPPOSITE DRAKE

Will Have 600 Rooms and Open August, 1924.

Plans are practically completed by Weller & Rippel, Inc., architects and engineers, for a $3,000,000 sixteen story 600 room hotel, to be erected directly across Walton place from the Drake, with entrances on both Walton and Delaware places. James H. Davis, owner of the Addison hotel in Detroit, has bought the site and will own and operate the new Gold Coast hostelry.

It will front 100 feet on Walton and 150 on Delaware, with a depth through from street to street of 215 feet. And it will not be a "shirt front building"—it'll be built of the same materials on all four sides, Mr. Davis states.

Glass Floor Dancing Space.

The novelty of the sixteen story hostelry will be the glass floored dancing space in the big 107x75 main restaurant. Some time ago Weller & Rippel completely remodeled Mr. Davis' Detroit hotel and installed a glass floor in the café, which proved such a success that it will be elaborated on in his new Streeterville hotel.

In the Chicago hotel it will be 30x60. Flood lights, both white and colored, will be thrown up through the glass, and, combined with the lighting effects on ceiling and sides, will produce gorgeous effects. There'll be a stage at one end of the restaurant.

The hotel will cater to the same class of transient trade that uses the Drake. Suites can be arranged, however, for permanent guests. In addition to the main restaurant, there'll be a coffee shop, and on the second floor will be a banquet hall, seating 400.

Plan Women's Health Club.

On the top floor a women's health club is planned, which will have a gymnasium, beauty parlors, Turkish baths, indoor golf, etc. Every room in the hotel will be equipped for radio. Work will start Aug. 1 and will be ready for guests on Aug. 1, 1924.

Mr. Davis' purchase of the site was the last of a series of deals. The property is 225 feet east of Michigan avenue, on Walton. The 100 feet, extending through to Delaware, was sold by Dr. John Auld to Bernard H. Forman, who in turn sold it to John C. Krietenstein for $180,000. Mr. Krietenstein sold it to M. J. Flanagan for $200,000.

Mr. Flanagan also bought the next fifty feet on Delaware, east of his first purchase, from Ralph Renwick, and then sold the two buildings to Mr. Davis for a reported $300,000. Ross & Co. represented Mr. Renwick and Callistus S. Ennis & Co. represented all the other parties.

Plan $125,000 Apartments Facing North Shore Park

Architect R. Berhard Kurzon has drawn up plans and work will start in a few days on a $125,000 fifteen apartment building, with four, five and six rooms, at 1119 Lunt avenue, overlooking North Shore park and the lake. The lot is 50x172. Irving Isador is owner. Completion date will be Oct. 1.

ALBERT FUCHS TO BUILD $1,000,000 CO-OP APARTMENT

12 Story Structure for Bittersweet Place.

Albert Fuchs, managing owner of the Albert Fuchs Chateau theater block at Grace and Halsted, announced yesterday that he is having plans drawn by Architect August C. Wilmanns for a $1,000,000 twelve story apartment hotel, which he may make a coöperative project. The site is on the north side of Bittersweet place, at the lake shore, and has a frontage of 200 feet. The new hotel will be called "The Bittersweet."

Mr. Fuchs some time ago bought the old Jenney residence on part of the property, and Mr. Wilmanns remodeled it into two apartments of twelve rooms each. The new hotel will stand just west of the remodeled residence, overlooking on the north the Marine hospital grounds. Every room in the Bittersweet, Mr. Fuchs says, will have a view of the lake.

There'll be sixty apartments of three rooms and bath. That means one bedroom, living room and a combination dining room and kitchen. The floors will be so arranged that the apartments can be rented or sold with four rooms and two baths or five rooms and two baths. The hotel will have a large public dining room and a tea room is planned for the roof. Work will start May 1, according to Mr. Fuchs, with completion date set for April 1, 1924.

New Maps

New maps always are valuable both to the real estate fraternity and the general public, so we're always glad to announce any we learn of. Arthur L. Webster, Du Page county surveyor and Wheaton realtor, has just issued a revised map of Elmhurst, which shows fifteen new subdivisions not on the former map, a map which brings Villa Park to date; an up to the minute map of Glen Ellyn, and a new map of Westmont. Mr. Webster says his new map of Du Page county will be further improved with more definite highway data. He states he gave away a thousand of his Cook and Du Page county maps at the recent Own Your Home show.

Two Loop Stores Leased for Restaurant Purposes

David Woodar has leased the store and basement at 178 West Washington, from Morris Krause for five years at a term rental of $21,000 and will occupy the premises with Woodar's restaurant. The Brownlee Realty company also report leasing the store and basement at 6 North Franklin for E. C. Ruttenberg to Alfred C. Murr for ten years at a term rental of $90,000. This also will be used for a restaurant.

TEXAS COMPANY LEASES CORNERS.

The Texas company has leased the southwest corner of 67th and Jeffery and the northeast corner of Clark and Waveland.

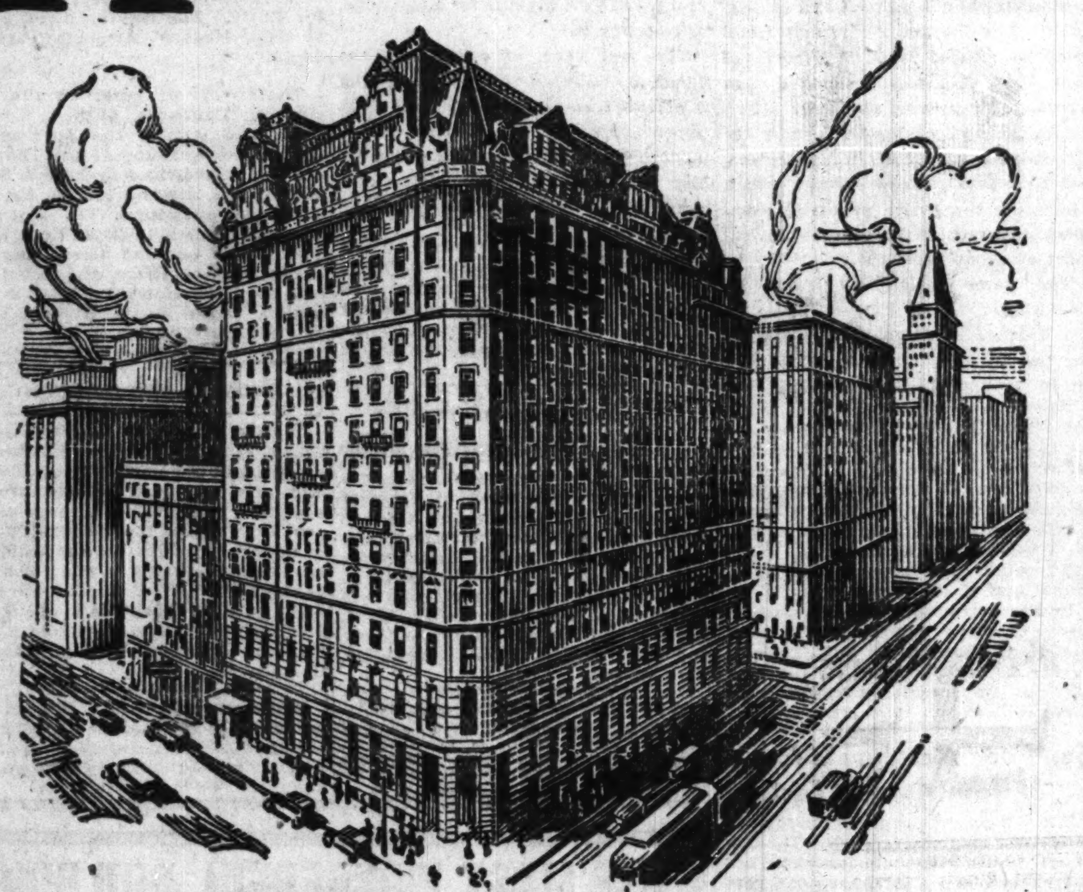
KEWANEE



National City Bank, New York City. McKim, Mead & White, Architects; Baker, Smith & Co., Heating Contractors; Geo. A. Fuller Co., Builders. Six Kewanee Boilers.

Answers the Most Important Requirement

When you erect a big building, it is for one of three purposes—either to occupy, to rent or to sell. But no matter which purpose it is, all the interests involved, are best served by the KEWANEE all-steel smokeless firebox boilers.

They give maximum heat without cessation and, therefore, insure steady comfort—they burn any kind of fuel and are operated at minimum cost which adds a lot to the profit account. They are a distinct asset when you want to sell, because they fully answer the primary and most important consideration.

The American public is now pretty well educated on the heating subject. Renters of either flats, commercial or industrial buildings, have learned to LOOK IN THE BASEMENT FIRST. When they find the KEWANEE Boiler, the transaction is nine-tenths closed.

The Kewanee Boiler invariably satisfies. It treats you right and never disappoints. It can't crack or leak or get out of order when heat is most needed. It has a record of achievement second to none.

If you want definite details to confirm all these statements, ask the highest class architects and heating contractors, or write to The Old Man Behind the Boiler. He'll write right back.

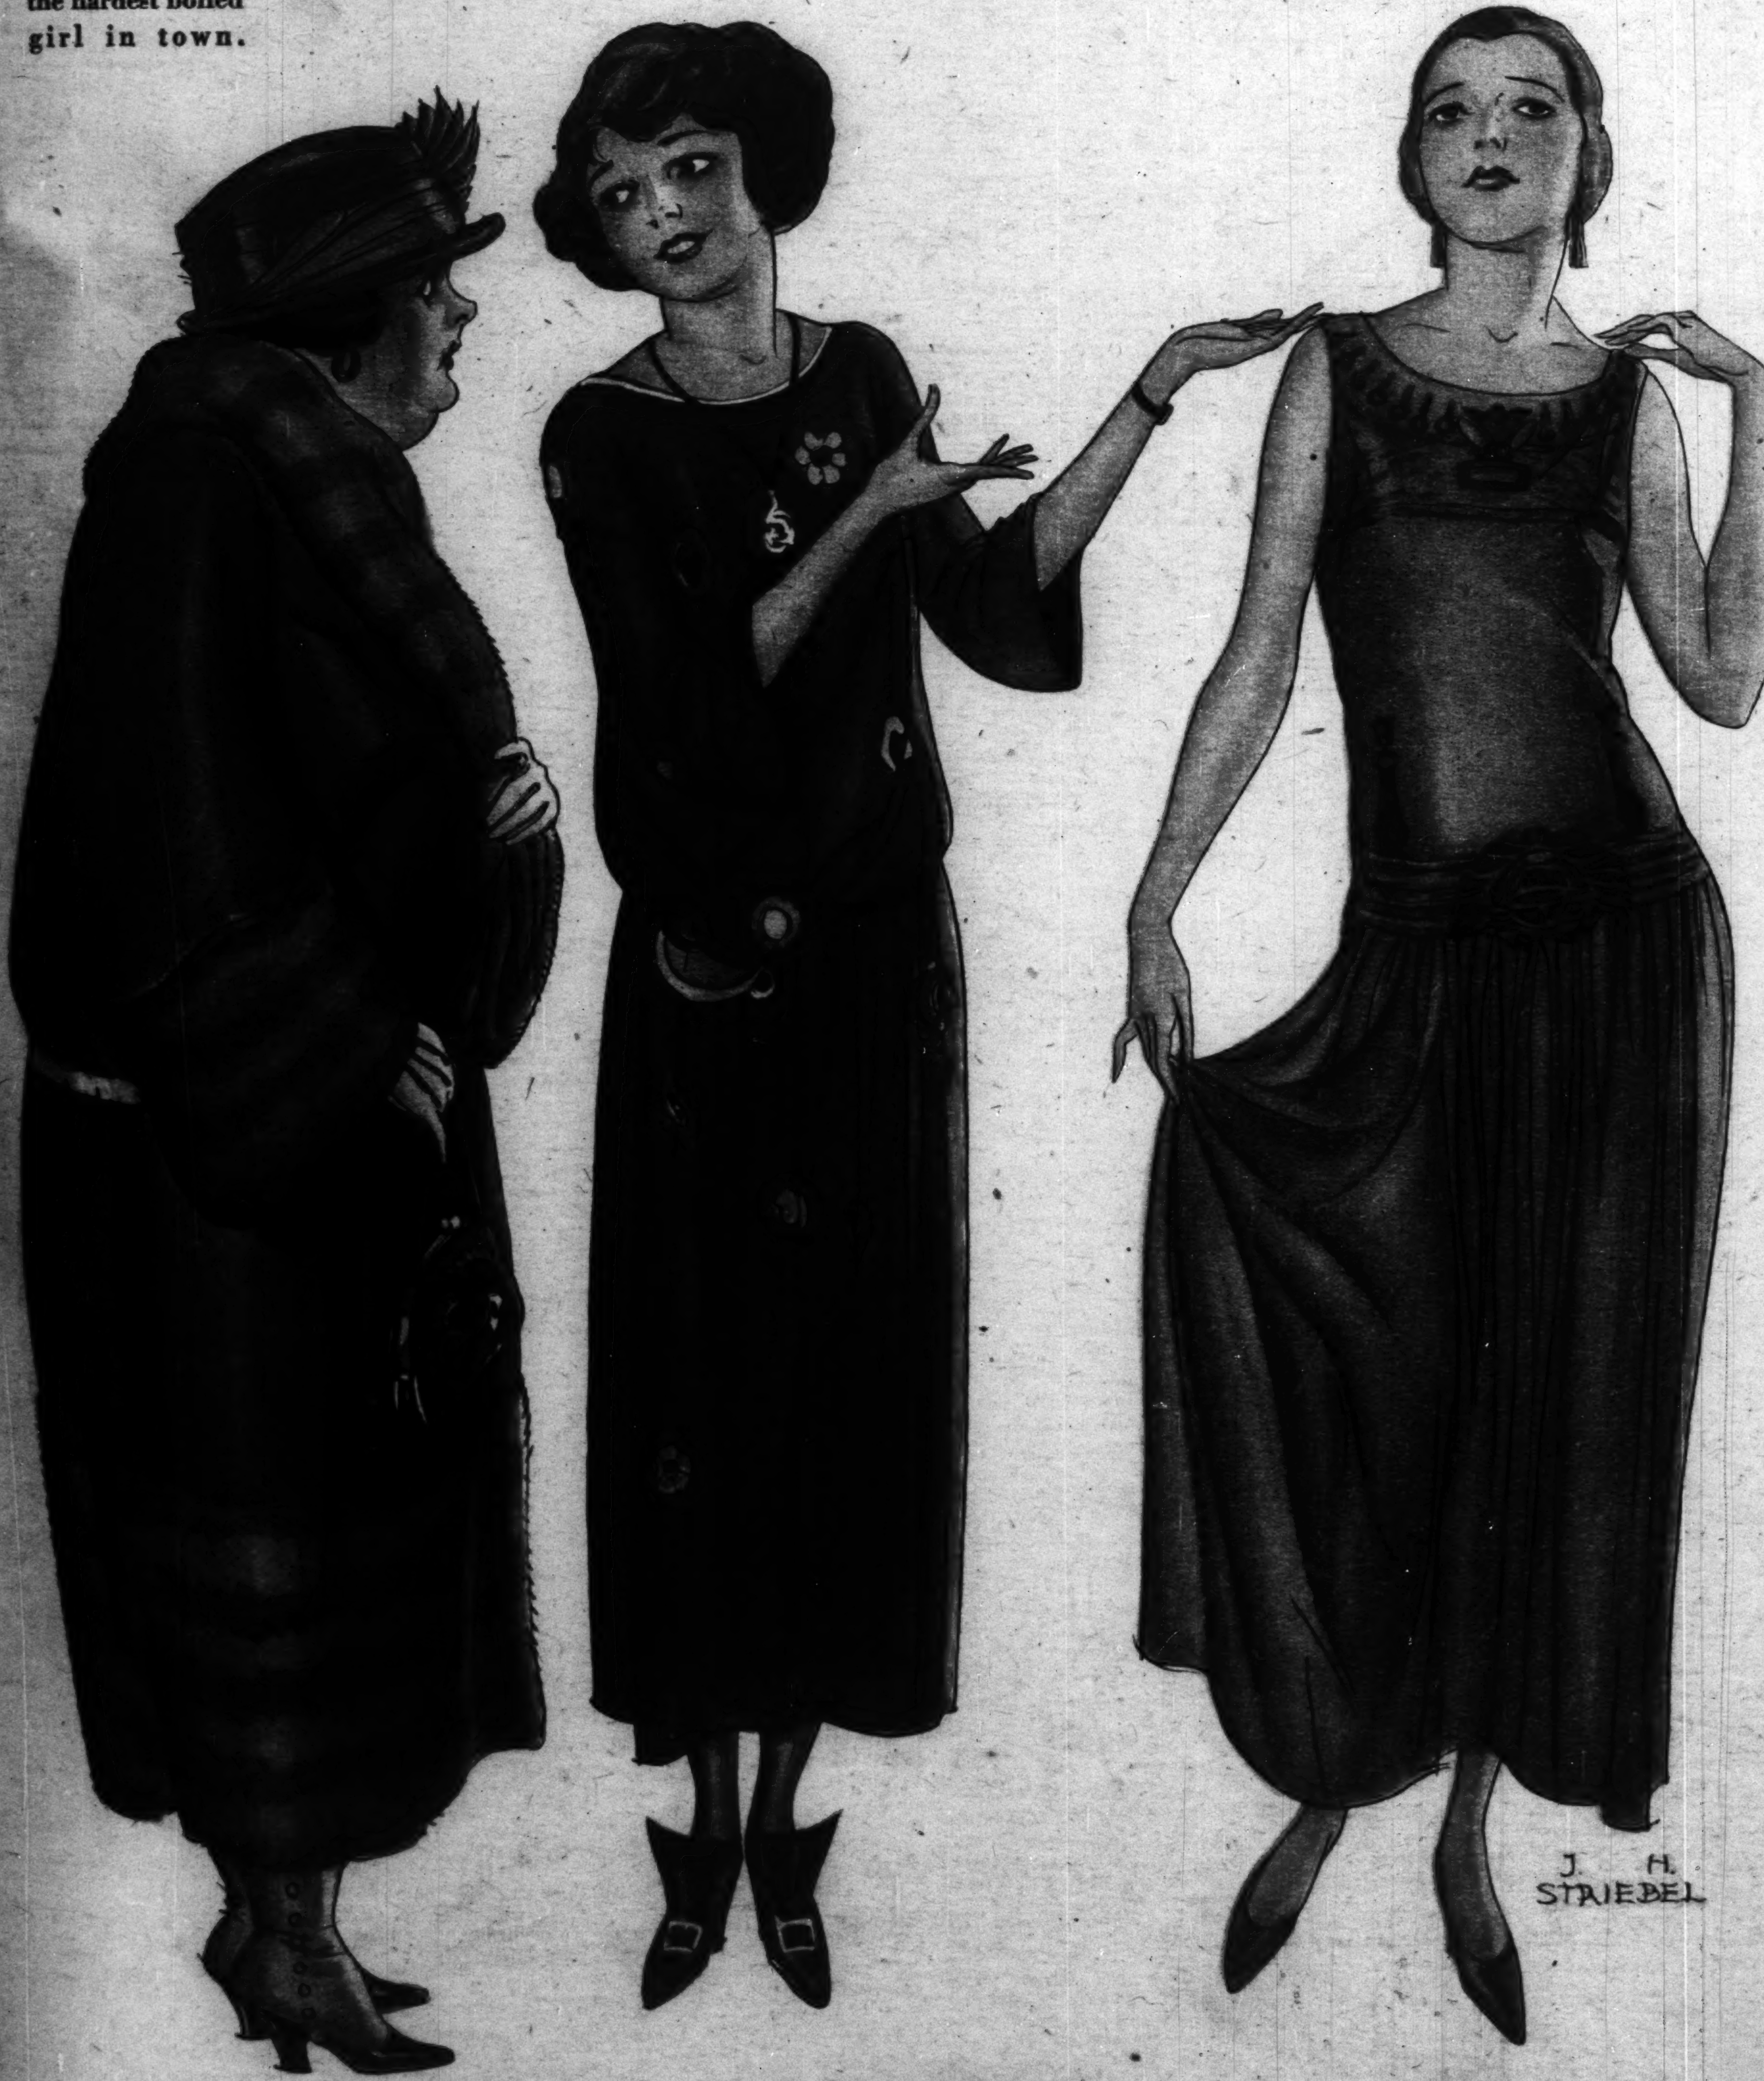
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

APRIL 8, 1923

Coloroto Magazine



THE MANIKIN

"Yes, madam, you'll look just like that!"

Just a few drops
combed into the hair and almost immediately you can see "listless locks" begin to take on new life, new lustre, new silky sheen—stray ends and straggly strands melding into glorious waves and curls.

And in 20 minutes
your mirror shows you a new head of hair—marcelled and curled as you like it best; with a natural wave that no artificial beauty-parlor process could possibly duplicate.

Marvelous New Spanish Liquid

Makes any hair naturally curly in 20 minutes

The Spanish Beggar's Priceless Gift

by Winnifred Ralston

FROM the day we started to school, Charity Winthrop and I were called the touseled-hair twins. Tom Harvey nicknamed us that—horrid, red-headed Tom Harvey who used to put burrs in our pigtails and angle worms in our inkwells.

Our mothers despaired of us. Our hair simply wouldn't behave. There were Martha Brown, Helen Stahl, Betty Davis and Leah Cohen—all with wonderful curly hair. But Charity and I could never coax ours out of a straight line.

As we grew older the hated name still clung to us. It followed us through the grades and into boarding school. Then Charity's family moved to Spain, where her father was in diplomatic service, and I didn't see her again for five years—not until last New Year's eve.

A party of us had gone to the Drake Hotel for dinner that night. As usual I was terribly embarrassed and ashamed of my hair. When the bobbing vogue first came in I had my hair cut, hoping against hope that would improve its looks. Realizing my mistake, I permitted it to grow again and by New Year's eve it was just long enough to be unmanageable.

Horribly self-conscious I was sitting at the table, scarcely touching my food, wishing I were home. It seemed that everyone had wonderful, lustrous, curly hair but me and I felt they were all laughing or worse, pitying me behind my back.

My eyes strayed to the dance floor and there I saw a beautiful girl dancing with Tom Harvey. Her eye caught mine and to my surprise she smiled and started toward me.

While there was something strangely familiar about her face I didn't recognize her—then. No—it—it couldn't be.

About this girl's face was a halo of golden curls. I think she had the most beautiful hair I ever saw. My face must have turned scarlet as I compared it mentally with my own straggly, ugly mop. I had never been so thoroughly ashamed of my hair before.

Of course you have guessed her identity—for it was really she—Charity Winthrop who once had dull straight hair like mine.

It had been five long yeas since I had seen her. There was everything to talk about, but I simply couldn't wait. I blurted out—"Charity Winthrop—tell me—what miracle has happened to your hair?"

She smiled and said mysteriously, "Come to my room and I will tell you the whole story." She was stopping at the hotel. We excused ourselves and rushed to Charity's room. I listened breathless while she told me this strange story:

Charity tells of the beggar's gift

"Our house in Madrid faced a little, old plaza where I often strolled after my siesta.

Miguel, the beggar, always occupied the end bench of the south end of the plaza. There he sat all day long, asking alms from the passersby. I always dropped a few centavos in his hat when I passed and he soon grew to know me.

The day before I was leaving Madrid I stopped to bid him goodby and pressed a gold coin in his palm. That was the best investment I ever made."

"Hija mia," he said, "You have been very kind to an old man. Digamelo (tell me) senorita, what it is your heart most desires."

"I laughed at the idea, then said jokingly, Miguel, my hair is straight and dull. I would have it lustrous and curly."

"Oigame, senorita," he said—"what you wish is even simpler than I thought. Many years ago—a Castilian prince was wedded to a Moorish beauty. Her hair was black as a raven's wing and straight as an arrow. Like you, this lady wanted los pelos rizos (curly hair). Her husband offered thousands of pesos to the man who would fulfil her wish. The prize fell to Pedro, the droguero. Out of roots and herbs he brewed a potion that converted the princess' straight unruly hair into a glorious mass of ringlet curls.

"Pedro, son of the son of Pedro, has that secret today. Years ago I did him a great service. Here you will find him, go to him and tell your wish. Adios, senorita, vaya con Dios."

"You can't imagine, Winnifred, how funny it made me feel. I did not take it seriously, of course. I never expected to look up this mysterious Pedro, but some whim changed my mind and I called a coche and gave the driver the address Miguel had given me.

"At the door of the apothecary shop, Pedro, a funny old hawk-nosed Spaniard, met me. Nervously I stammered out my explanation. When I had finished, he bowed and vanished into the rear of his store. Presently he returned with a bottle which he handed to me.

"By this time I was terribly excited—could hardly wait until I reached home. When I was finally in my room alone, I took down my hair and applied the liquid as directed. In twenty minutes, not one second more, the transformation, which you have noted, had taken place.

"Come, Winnifred—apply it to your own hair and see what it can do for you."

Breathlessly I watched Charity take a bottle from her wardrobe trunk. Tremblingly my fingers undid my hair and applied the liquid.

Twenty minutes later as I looked into Charity's mirror I could hardly believe my eyes. The impossible had happened. My dull, straight hair had wound itself into curling tendrils. My head was a mass of ringlets and waves. It shone with a lustre it never had before.

You can imagine the amazement of the others in the party when I returned to the ballroom. Everybody noticed the change. Never did I have such a glorious night. I was popular. Men clustered about me. I had never been so happy.

The next morning when I awoke, I hardly dared look in my mirror fearing it had all been a dream. But it was true—gloriously true. My hair was curly and beautiful.

Then the thought came to me I had no right to keep this great secret to myself. There were thousands of women just like me who would give anything to know my precious secret.

So I asked Charity's permission to take a sample of the Spanish liquid to my cousin who is a chemist at the Century Laboratories. For days he worked, analyzing the liquid. Finally he solved the problem, isolated the two Spanish herbs, the important ingredients.

They experimented on fifty women and the results were simply astounding. Now he told me, the Century Chemists were prepared to supply the wonderful Spanish Curling Liquid to women everywhere.

Take advantage of their generous trial offer—

I told my cousin I did not want one penny for the information I had given him. I was only too glad to know the formula was to be so easily available. I did make one stipulation, however. I insisted that he introduce the discovery by selling it for a limited time at actual laboratory cost plus postage so that as many women as possible could take advantage of it. This he agreed to do.

That is the opportunity you have now. Please believe me, who was once called tousel-head—no matter how straight, dull and unmanageable your hair is, this Spanish Liquid Curler will work magic for you.

No need to undergo the torture and expense of the so-called permanent wave, which might even destroy your hair. You can have natural curly hair in twenty minutes. One application will keep your hair beautiful for a week or more.

Don't delay another day. For the Century Chemists guarantee satisfaction or refund your money. I know from actual experience that you will be more than pleased.

EVERY SO OFTEN you read that a Ziegfeld Follies girl has lost an automobile, a husband, a dog, or a diamond. Perhaps she is in a hair pulling match over a lounge lizard or marries a millionaire. Ziegfeld girls are famous all over the world for their beauty; and their beauty gets them into and out of lots of trouble. Pictures show some of the fairest of this year's crop. Story is that Ziegfeld's Follies won't come to Chicago this year. The business continues good in New York and the girls just hate leaving their comfortable apartments and putting up in hick hotels in hick towns like Chi.

At the Longchamps races one may mingle with Princes, Dukes and Duchesses—the élite of world society.

Djer-Kiss Cold Cream and Vanishing Cream. Fragranced with Parfum Djer-Kiss these soothing creams are indeed fairy aids to the beauty of Madame and Mademoiselle.

Fashion's new Perfume Vogue

Dainty Vanettes of fragrant, French Djer-Kiss

SURELY Madame and Mademoiselle have already observed that smart women everywhere are now carrying these dainty Vanettes of Djer-Kiss. Dainty personal paquets they are, filled with Parfum Djer-Kiss. Crystal bottles, French in their charming oval design, French in their fragrant contents.

Everywhere, the leading shops are showing them—these Vanettes filled with Parfum Djer-Kiss. They are the day's new mode. How quickly have women of fashion approved Monsieur Kerkoff's new and so French idea—to carry always a Vanette of his charming French fragrance,—Parfum Djer-Kiss!

Surely then each American lady will arrange that a Vanette of Djer-Kiss nestles always in her handbag or her purse. She will tuck a Vanette in her week-end bag. Her guest room dressing table, too, will contain, always, a Djer-Kiss Vanette.

Then will the toilette of Madame and Mademoiselle possess the allurement of Monsieur Kerkoff's odeur Parisienne—Djer-Kiss.

A Parisian Harmony of the Toilette

So that the harmony of her toilette may be quite perfect and quite French Madame will wish to employ not only Parfum Djer-Kiss but all those other Djer-Kiss spécialités, those toiletries which breathe so charmingly and so subtly this same French odeur.

She will wish Face Powder Djer-Kiss so soft, so pure—adding to Madame's own charm a charm entirely French. In her Cold Cream and Vanishing Cream she will welcome the fragrance of Djer-Kiss.

After the bath her chosen Talc will be Talc Djer-Kiss—Talc of an exquisite fairy softness. Among her dainty lingerie will rest little pillows of Djer-Kiss Sachet. So with her Toilet Water, her Rouges and Soap—each will be fragrant of Djer-Kiss, each will whisper the secrets of romance Parisienne. Together they will bring to the toilette a harmony indeed French and indeed fashionable.

Do not delay, Madame, in making the charm of Djer-Kiss completely your own. Purchase, today, at your favorite shop a Vanette of Djer-Kiss. Purchase also all those other Djer-Kiss Spécialités. Realize the full perfection of the French art of Monsieur Kerkoff.

GREAT GUNS OF THE U. S. A.

UNCLE SAM'S HEAVIEST GUN that travels on its own wheels, the 8 inch howitzer. It fires a shell weighing 250 pounds.

THE OLD FRENCH 155 C. P. F. which was used by our artillery corps during the war.

TEN INCH HOWITZER (240 MM.), an improvement over the gun which knocked Antwerp to pieces. This model is taken apart and mounted on wheels for the march. It forms part of the equipment of the 5th field artillery.

A Daughter of the Day

by Lucian Cary

The Hardest Boiled Girl in Town; the Town's Richest Young Roisterer; an Auto Wreck on a Country Road in the Wee Small Hours; a Country Doctor, and Schubert's Love Song, "Thou Art My Peace."

MABEL'S mother was twenty in the days of the Gibson girl. Mabel's mother preferred the waltz to the other dances, but she two-stepped also—in a dress of pale blue dotted Swiss whose hem touched the floor when she dipped. Mabel's mother was the most popular girl in Belleville.

That was in the days when country clubs were unknown—at least they were unknown to Belleville, Ind. And the Packard car had a two cylinder engine and a detachable tonneau that you entered from the rear. And drinking was something that happened in a place called a saloon. (You entered that from the rear, too, if you were a careful young man.) And even the most self-respecting girls wore cotton stockings. And college boys who played football wore their hair long and parted it in the middle. (So did college boys who did not play football.)

Mabel's mother was the soprano of the First Congregational church choir. But she was perfectly capable of playing ragtime on the piano at home and even of singing a ragtime song, like "In the Good Old Summer Time." Mabel's mother wasn't a prude. Indeed, the mothers of other and less popular girls whispered that she was a flirt. That was in the days when there were two kinds of girls—those who flirted and those who didn't.

Everybody said she would marry Chuck Wiltshire, whose father owned the lumber yard, and the brick kilns, and the farm mortgages. Or, if she didn't take Chuck, she would certainly take Harvey Payne, whose family owned the First National bank and the electric light company. Everybody knew that young Dr. Norton was in love with her, too, but that he hadn't a chance. He was just beginning to practice and he had no money and besides he was a serious minded sort.

But one night in June young Dr. Norton walked down to Mabel's mother's house to make a call. She was at the piano, singing to her own accompaniment. She was singing the songs of Schubert. At the moment she was singing the song called "Du Bist die Ruh'," which means "Thou Art My Peace." It is not a hymn. It is a love song, sweet and tender and appealing. Young Dr. Norton paused on the front porch to listen. It seemed to him that the song that came floating through the open window was the most poignantly beautiful thing he had ever heard. It was so beautiful it hurt. He stood perfectly still for a moment after Mabel's mother had sung the last phrase. Then he took a deep breath and opened the screen door and walked down the hall. He met Mabel's mother in the doorway.

"Why," she said softly, and her voice had the clear softness of her singing, "why, it's you."

"Yes," said young Dr. Norton, and put some depth of feeling, some secret meaning into that single word.

They stood there looking at each other in the half dark, and not speaking. At least they were not speaking in words.

And then she was in his arms and he was telling her that he loved her.

Everybody in Belleville was surprised except Aunt Emmeline Peabody.

"I expected it," Aunt Emmeline said calmly. "I knew she was that kind of a girl."

Mabel's mother taught Mabel to play the piano and sing. Mabel's mother died when Mabel was thirteen or fourteen. Mabel might have succeeded her mother as the soprano of the First Congregational church choir, but she never did. Mabel grew up in a different age—our age, the age of country clubs and cars and bobbed hair and cigarets and synthetic gin. Mabel's father was a busy physician before he invented the Norton operation, and after that he was busier than ever, what with his practice in Belleville and his trips to Indianapolis and Chicago and Cincinnati and St. Louis to perform the operation.

By the time Mabel was twenty he had to engage an assistant to take charge when he was out of town. The assistant's name was Robert Arlington Agnew, but everybody called him Bob. He had rather a hard row to hoe in Belleville because all of Dr. Norton's patients preferred to wait for Dr. Norton. Bob Agnew had had good training and he was an extremely earnest young man. But he wasn't Dr. Norton, and somebody let him know it about twice a day. He gradually lost his boyish smile and grew steadily more earnest as he drove his flivver through Belleville, making the rounds of patients who really wanted to see Dr. Norton and frequently said so. Of course he got all the long drives out into the country, all the late night calls, all the jobs that a young doctor must do because he is young.

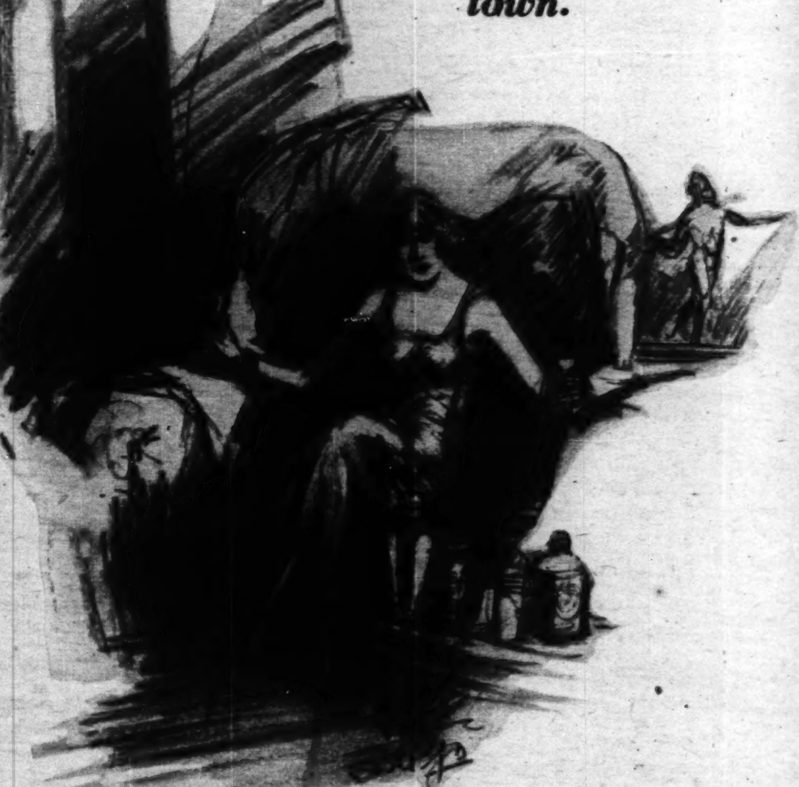
But if Mabel did not succeed her mother as the soprano of the First Congregational church choir she did succeed her as the most popular girl in Belleville. She was more than that—she was the acknowledged leader of the "younger crowd." She had more daring than any of the others and more liberty at home. She was quite on her own when her father was away, and it was almost the same when her father was at home. They saw each other every night at dinner—unless Mabel had a date at the country club—but they did not often meet at breakfast.

THE younger crowd was the town scandal. It led a life very disturbing to the peace of a quiet, old fashioned Indiana town. It regarded none of the accepted conventions of Mabel's mother's day, or any other day since the one when Alaric and his barbarians descended on proud old Rome. Ministers preached sermons about it, and the school board complained of its effect on the high school, and the judge of the Circuit court made pointed comments on the subject in charging a jury. Everybody said that somebody ought to do something about it. But Mabel's father was admired and respected and loved in Belleville, and Mabel was the leader of the younger crowd. Nobody wanted to speak to Mabel's father about Mabel, and nobody did.

Mabel thought nothing of starting for Indianapolis, forty miles away, at ten o'clock at night in order to dance at Fisher's roadhouse. Mabel liked to leave Fisher's at three o'clock in the morning and drive that forty miles in the hour just before dawn, roaring through sleeping villages with the cutout open to Belleville and home. Maizie Van Blarcom and Jane Carter had mothers. but when it was very late—so late they didn't dare go home—they stayed at Mabel's house and nobody knew what time they got in.

Everybody supposed that Mabel was engaged to Jud Sparks. Or, if not to him, to Top Wells. She went about with one almost as much as the other that spring she was twenty. But when summer came she was seen oftener with Jud. It came gradually to be taken for granted that Jud was the man. But opinion was divided as to whether Jud was lucky or unlucky.

Mrs. Hicks, who was a deaconess in the Methodist church but who had an eye for what is going on in this world, said it would be a good thing for Belleville if they would marry each other and move away. And though Belleville is a kindly town the remark was much quoted.



The hardest boiled girl in town.

Mrs. Hicks mentioned the subject to Mrs. Orville Smith one afternoon when they met in Wabash avenue.

"She's a bad influence, that's what she is," Mrs. Hicks said.

Mrs. Smith did not debate the point.

"I heard she smokes cigarets."

"Heard!" Mrs. Hicks said. "Why, I've seen her. I saw her last Tuesday night, sitting in that speedster Jud Sparks drives, right in front of the postoffice. She was waiting for him and she was smoking a cigaret right there in plain daylight on Main street."

Mrs. Orville Smith leaned closer to Mrs. Hicks' left ear.

"I heard," she whispered, "that she drinks!"

"Of course she does. What do you s'pose they go to Fisher's for?"

"Well," Mrs. Orville Smith said, "I do hate to think it of Dr. Norton's daughter."

"Why," Mrs. Hicks continued, "my son says she's the hardest boiled girl in this town. That's what he calls her—hard boiled."

"It comes of going around with these fast young men who have more money than sense," Mrs. Orville Smith observed. "That Jud Sparks is just no good, and young Wells isn't much better."

Mrs. Hicks pursed her lips grimly.

"They aren't any worse than she is. She's a—a case."

Mrs. Orville Smith sighed gustily.

"It's too bad her mother died. Her mother was a fine woman."

"Yes," Mrs. Hicks admitted. "And she'd turn in her grave if she knew what her daughter is like. I don't know what's come over the world that a mother like that could have such a daughter."

"It's like they say about ministers' sons turning out so bad," Mrs. Orville Smith observed.

Mrs. Hicks opened her mouth to reply to this sally, but at that moment she saw a car coming down the street, and she paused to stare at it.

The car was a powerful speedster and it was doing thirty miles an hour. A girl in a brightly colored sweater did not so much sit as lie behind the wheel. She looked neither to the right nor the left as she shot by within a yard of Mrs. Hicks and Mrs. Orville Smith.

"I will say she's pretty," Mrs. Orville Smith observed.

"Hmmm," said Mrs. Hicks. "Going to meet Jud Sparks at the factory. That's the way girls are nowadays. They've got no shame. They run after the men."

Mabel was going to meet Jud Sparks, but it was rather because she had nothing else to do than because she wanted especially to see him. Life had somehow gone stale for Mabel these last months. She no longer had her old zest for it.

JUD felt that in her when the speedster came to a halt with locked rear wheels and smoking rubber in front of his office door. Mabel didn't usually abuse a car that way.

"Well, old thing," he said, "what's the matter with you?"

"Got a cigaret?" Mabel asked.

"Yes," Jud said uncomfortably, "but I wish you wouldn't smoke it here."

Mabel frowned.

"Come across," she said.

Jud produced a package of cigarets. Mabel took one, lit it, and inhaled deeply. Jud glanced involuntarily over his shoulder. Mabel, observing the gesture, grinned amiably.

"Afraid somebody will see me?"

"Well——" Jud said, hesitating.

"You're fine," Mabel said. "With three drinks inside you you're a perfect devil, but sober you believe in safety first, don't you, Jud?"

"I think you smoke too much, anyway."

"You do, do you?"

"Yes," Jud said belligerently, "and if you were my wife I'd cut you down to three cigarets a day."

Mabel grinned derisively. She had the eyes and brow of a Madonna, but her mouth was, as Maj. Buckmaster had said, an incitement to riot.

"You've got a fine chance, Jud," she said.

Jud's face became suddenly grave. He took a step forward and, with his hand on the speedster's wheel, looked into Mabel's eyes.

"Of course, you know, if you will marry me I'll let you do anything you like."

Mabel looked boldly back into Jud's eyes

"Yes," she said. "I know it."

"Well, then, will you?"

Mabel stretched herself and yawned like a sleepy kitten.

"I don't know if I will or not. I don't find you as amusing as I used to."

"What is it you don't like in me, Mabel?" His tone was earnest.

"O," she said, "you're like all the rest—you're getting serious—you don't want to play any more."

Jud's eyes dropped and he was thoughtful for a moment.

"I wish I could think of something you'd like to do—something that would be really jolly."

"You can't," Mabel said. "There isn't anything to do in this town that isn't a bore. So we might as well get the gang together and drive over to Fisher's."

"Why drag in the gang? Why not go alone—just us two?"

"Two is a bore," Mabel said. "A foursome is the least I can stand."

"All right," Jud said patiently. "We'll get Top and Maizie, but they can go in his car. You and I will go in mine."

They found Top and Maizie at the country club and had dinner there and drifted in to the usual Saturday night dance. It was after ten when they started for Fisher's. Jud was exasperated with Mabel by that time, and when he was exasperated he got sullen. He was silent all the way to Fisher's. Mabel didn't mind his silence. She liked watching the road leap up under the long beam of the headlights as they rushed through the summer night, and thinking her own thoughts.

JUD was in a mood to get drunk when they got to Fisher's. He ordered one gin rickey after another. Mabel told him he'd better quit. His answer was to order another. Maizie and Top protested. Jud got belligerent.

"You'll get too drunk to drive home," Mabel said.

"I drive better when I'm drunk," Jud said bitterly. He ordered another gin rickey.

Mabel winked at the waiter. That person, wise in the ways of his trade, nodded and brought Jud another drink. Jud raised it to his lips defiantly and drank deeply. Then he set the glass down hard.

"There's no gin in that," he said angrily. He turned and yelled at the waiter. The waiter, all solicitude, returned.

"I want my gin," Jud said loudly.

"Please," the waiter whispered. "Please don't talk so loud, sir."

"I want my gin!" Jud roared.

The waiter put his hand on Jud's shoulder.

"Please, sir—people will hear you."

Jud rose to his feet.

"Don't you sir me," he roared, and took a swing at the waiter. The waiter ducked. The table went over with a crash of glass. Fisher appeared from nowhere. The other waiters came running up. Four of them seized Jud and walked him out. Mabel and Top and Maizie followed, trying to look as if nothing were happening and not quite succeeding.

Jud was trembling with anger. It took the combined efforts of Mabel and Top and Maizie to prevent him from carrying out his announced intention of breaking down the door. Mabel had plenty of time to regret her folly in teasing Jud into this mood before they could get him into his car. Then he insisted on driving himself.

"It isn't safe," Top whispered to Mabel.

Mabel shrugged her shoulders.

"I know," she said. "But I'ye taken a a chance before."

There had been times when she had got a thrill out of driving home with Jud when he was drunk enough to take all the chances. But tonight she was coldly indifferent. She was disgusted with Jud and herself and Belleville.

"I'll start off first," Top said. "Maybe he'll trail behind me."

"Let him pass you if he wants to," Mabel whispered back.

For the first twenty miles Jud drove so slowly that the red tail light of Top's car often disappeared round a curve or over a hill. Mabel decided that the row at Fisher's had sobered him. But half way home he stopped the car and turned to Mabel. His breath was heavy with alcohol.

"Now," he said, "kiss me."

Mabel did not want to kiss him. Mabel shrank from him. But it was wise to humor him when he was in this mood. She put her cheek against his.

"I said kiss me," Jud growled.

Mabel turned up her mouth. Jud kissed her roughly. Then he drew back.

"You don't want to be kissed, do you?"

"No," Mabel said.

"What's the matter with you?"

Mabel had stood all she could. She was angry at herself for permitting Jud to kiss her. She wanted to say something that would hurt.

"Your kisses haven't any kick," she said.

Jud glared at her.

"O, they haven't!"

"No," Mabel said.

"All right," Jud said and reached for the gear lever.

Jud stepped on the gas. The car hit forty miles an hour, forty-five, fifty, and still the speedometer climbed. Mabel did not dare protest. She could only hope that Jud would have drunkard's luck.

The car slowed down going up Hendon's hill, although Jud gave it all the gas it would take. They were doing less than thirty when they reached the top. Mabel saw the lights of another car coming down on them at high speed. Mabel gave a little involuntary gasp of fright. But Jud swung the speedster sharply over and they were by. Mabel gave a little gasp of relief. But the danger wasn't over. Two wheels were in the ditch and the car was jumping almost uncontrollably. Jud's answer was to step on the gas. Mabel saw a telephone pole. If Jud wasn't careful he'd sideswipe it. There was a grinding, a crash of glass, a blackness.

When Mabel came to she was lying on the hood of the engine. For a moment she did not dare move. Then slowly and painfully she put her hand to her head. It came away wet and sticky. She tried to raise herself and succeeded. She climbed down and stood, dizzy and sick, steadying herself with one hand on the fender. Then she saw Jud.

HE was lying beside the car with one leg oddly doubled under him. She could see him only as a shape in the light of the one remaining head lamp. But the position of that leg was clear. It was sickening.

He made no move or sound. He was undoubtedly dead. But she ought to make sure. For the moment she hadn't the courage to touch him and make sure.

Suddenly and involuntarily she sat down. She did not want to sit down. She wanted to get away from that place. She wanted to run. But she couldn't stand up any longer.

She turned her head slowly. She saw that the right front wheel had struck the telephone pole. She had gone through the wind shield. Jud had been thrown out to the left. She clasped her hands around her knees. She wondered if she were going to faint. She set her teeth against the feeling, against the waves of dizziness. She must reach Jud. She must make sure.

Mabel sank to one elbow. Mabel turned and crawled toward Jud on her hands and knees. Mabel touched his face. His face was warm. Mabel put her hand inside his coat, over his heart. She felt nothing but the quick beat of her own pulse. She pressed her hand more firmly against Jud's body over his heart. It seemed to her that she could hear his heart faintly pumping, like an overtone of her own. She bent over him, bent her face to his. But she could not tell whether he was breathing or not.

Then she felt the blood welling over his hand. There was a great deal of blood. He would bleed to death.

Mabel reached down suddenly and tore at her skirt. The pain in her arm and shoulder gave her pause. She could not tear the cloth. But she must tear it. She got a start at the seam and tore the hem off her skirt. She wrapped the strip around and around Jud's arm and knotted it.

"Now," she said to herself, as if repeating a lesson, "I need a stick."

She felt the ground, exploring it as far as she could reach. But there were no sticks. She began to crawl, feeling every inch of the ground for a stick. She crawled around in front of the car, and in the light of the still glowing head lamp she saw a spoke broken out of the dished wheel. She got that spoke. She completed her tourniquet. And then she could no longer set her teeth against the waves of dizziness, and she sank down in a heap.

She did not know how long she lay there. Some sound aroused her. It was the beat of an engine. It was the beat of a flivver coming up Hendon's hill in first. She sat up. She must flag it. She must get to the road—where they would be sure to see her. It was a long, long way to the edge of the road. It was six or seven feet.

Mabel crawled three feet, four feet, five feet. Mabel waved an arm desperately at the approaching lights.

The flivver stopped and Bob Agnew got out.

"Where are you hurt?" he asked.

"Head," Mabel said.

He bent over her, flashing an electric pocket torch. She winced as his fingers explored her scalp.

"You've got a nice cut," he said. "Needs

Let Me Tell You About the Remarkable Discovery Which Removed My Superfluous Hair at Once

To look at my face today—to see my skin as free from hair as a baby's and as clear and rosy looking as that of a young girl—you would not believe that I was once literally a "bearded woman" with hair on cheeks, chin and lips, and with a skin coarse and blemished.

A Woman's Experience

The transformation has been marvelous—all through a truly wonderful discovery of Science which immediately banished every vestige of the hair and gave me this perfect complexion. This, after I had suffered from embarrassing hair growths for years, and tried numerous ways to relieve the condition—even the painful electric needle.

Now I want every woman who suffers from unsightly, embarrassing hair growths to know about this discovery which removes the hair at once and which gives lasting results. I want to tell women how they can use this method themselves, in the privacy of their homes, and prove, without risking a penny, that it is all I claim for it.

The discovery which Science brought to me is unlike anything else you have ever tried. It is not a powder, not a paste, not a wax, not a liquid, not a razor, not electrolysis. It causes no pain—no burning, no itching, no scarring. It not only removes the hair—it gives the skin a new beauty—makes it soft, clear, rosy, free from pimples, roughness and other blemishes. It does not have to be applied by a beauty specialist. You use it yourself. It's the simplest, easiest way you can imagine.

You will never have to buy another thing for removing your superfluous hair, as this discovery removes it for the rest of your life.

My Free Book Tells the Secret—Send for It

I have written a book which tells how I came to discover this amazing method and how any woman can get rid of superfluous hair, in this amazingly effective, lasting and simple way. Don't send a penny—don't make any promise. Just write to me. The book is free. A post card brings it.

about six stitches. Hurt anywhere else?"

"No," Mabel said.

"Sure?"

"M-m-m," said Mabel. She could scarcely move her right arm and shoulder, but she knew nothing was broken.

The young doctor flashed his torch on Jud Sparks. He bent down. For long minutes his fingers were busy. Then he straightened up.

"Is he—is he——" Mabel hesitated. She wanted to ask if Jud was going to die, and she could not quite say the words.

"No," said Bob Agnew.

There was something peculiarly convincing in that "No." Indeed, Bob Agnew's every movement had the quiet assurance of a man who knows exactly what to do and wastes neither words nor gestures in doing it. Mabel found herself, a little unwillingly, giving him her respect. She had never thought of him as a doctor, but only as her father's assistant. She had hardly seen him except when he was with her father. She hadn't realized what he was like when the responsibility was his.

Bob Agnew got his kit out of the flivver and found bandages and his hypodermic syringe and various vials.

"Much pain?" he asked.

"Some," Mabel admitted.

He gave her a hypodermic injection and bandaged her head expertly.

"Now," he said, "you sit still—the stitches can wait till we get home."

He cut off Jud's sleeve and examined the wound in his arm. Mabel leaned forward.

"I can hold the torch," she said.

"You sit still," Bob Agnew said crisply.

When he had bandaged Jud he ran the flivver close alongside.

"You can never get him into your car alone," Mabel protested.

Bob Agnew did not answer. He did get Jud into the tonneau of his car and braced him there with the seat cushions from the wrecked roadster. Then he lifted Mabel into the front seat and got in himself.

"All set?" he asked.

"All set," Mabel answered.

"It's rather a good thing you put that tourniquet on his arm," Bob Agnew said quietly.

The words gave Mabel a singular thrill of pride. They meant more than they said. They meant that Bob Agnew approved of her nerve. She sank back against the cushions. The pain was leaving her now. She felt deliciously drowsy. She felt strangely content.

She must, she realized later, have gone to sleep. Top and Maizie were there and she couldn't remember where they had come from. And then somebody was undressing her. And then she felt the pain of having the cut in her scalp cleansed, and the pain of each separate stitch waked her, but she drifted off again.

She slept and wakened and slept again, and through it all ran some curious, half frightening, half pleasurable nightmare.

LATE the next afternoon she was ready to be propped up in bed. She had had a long sleep. She felt light headed, but she was all right. She was impatient for Dr. Agnew's call. And yet she dreaded it. She wanted to ask him not to tell her father what time it was when he had found her beside the wreck of Jud's car. And she was ashamed to. She did not want to seem like a naughty child.

She remembered she had never been very nice to Dr. Agnew. She had ignored him. She wondered idly how he happened to be out so late the night before. And then she thought of what Belleville would be saying. The story would be all over town by now.

It was nearly six when Dr. Agnew came in. She gave him her best smile.

"How do you do, Miss Norton?" he said formally. He did not smile back.

"I'm all right," Mabel said.

He looked at her appraisingly—the cool look of a physician examining a patient.

"Yes," he said, "but you'd better stay in bed tomorrow."

Mabel felt a slight antagonism rising in her. She was not used to taking orders from young men. This young man's tone meant he took it for granted he would be obeyed.

"How is Jud?" she asked.

"He will be out in ten days or so. Severe bruises and a gash in his arm, but nothing broken."

"Wasn't his leg broken?"

"No."

Dr. Agnew rose to his feet.

"Sleep as much as you can," he said. "I'll dress that wound again tomorrow."

He was gone. Mabel was disappointed. She had meant to have a talk with him and somehow she hadn't. She had hardly exchanged an unnecessary word with him. Dr. Agnew was different from other young men. He was irritatingly composed, calmly authoritative.

The next morning he came in and dressed her wound.

"Look here," she said, as he was going, "may I have my friends in to see me?"

"Surely."

"Well——" Mabel said, and hesitated.

"Yes?"

"I wanted to ask you—is it necessary—when my father comes home—to mention just what time it was when you came along the other night?"

"No," said Dr. Agnew.

"It would be very nice of you," Mabel said, looking up at him from under her eyelashes.

"I shan't mention it."

He did not smile. He was positively inhuman.

"I haven't thanked you," Mabel said. "But I'm really awfully grateful to you."

He bowed.

Mabel smiled mischievously.

"What," she asked, "were you doing out so late yourself?"

"I had a confinement half a mile up the road," he said. "It was a first baby—a bit late."

Mabel flushed: She had a sudden sense of the disparity between her reason for being on Hendon's hill at three o'clock in the morning and his.

"I see," she said.

Maizie and Top came to call in the afternoon.

"You've started something this time, Mabel," Top said.

"It's in the paper," Maizie said.

"Not the horrid details?"

"It says," Top explained, "that Jud Sparks was an experienced driver, and nobody can understand how he happened to hit a telephone pole unless the fact that he had been to Fisher's roadhouse had something to do with it."

Mabel started.

"Is my name in the paper?" she asked.

"You are referred to as the young lady who is believed to have been with him, the daughter of one of our most respected citizens," Top said with unction.

The phrases had an unpleasant sound to Mabel, but she wasn't going to admit her sense of shame to Top and Maizie.

"I'm out of luck," she said lightly.

"You are," Top said.

She wondered for a long time after Top and Maizie had left if there was any way of concealing the worst from her father. Perhaps it would be better to tell him the whole story. He would be deeply hurt. He would see so clearly that it was quite as much her fault as Jud's. And then she realized something that she had been turning over in the back of her mind all day without ever once permitting herself to realize it. She did not love Jud Sparks. She never had loved him. She never could love him.

She had her dinner on a tray. The food tasted good. She was herself again. But she did not want to stay in bed. She wasn't sleepy. She wanted to go downstairs.

She slipped into some clothes—put on a tea gown she liked—went down into the living room. But there was nobody to talk to. And she couldn't go out. From where she sat she could see the corner of the office wing of the house—her father's surgery. Dr. Agnew was, she knew, keeping office hours. He was there for hours every day. He had been there for hours every day for nearly a year. And yet she didn't know him at all. She had never talked to him. She had never wanted to talk to him. She wondered what he thought of her. He probably shared the town's opinion. He probably thought she was a spoiled child.

Mabel went over to the piano and sat down on the bench and idly turned the pile of music there. She hadn't played much this last year. But she felt the impulse now to play something—something gentle—a reverie. She began to play quite spontaneously something that came into her head without thinking what it was.

Suddenly she was aware that somebody was standing in the doorway. It was Dr. Agnew.

"I thought I told you to stay in bed," he said.

"I—I—I'll go right back," she said. And she did. She wondered afterward why she had obeyed him so promptly. She hadn't obeyed anybody in years.

When she was up and about again she asked him in to dinner.

"I want to talk to you," she said.

He smiled. It was the first time he had smiled at her.

"I should like to," he said.

She did not succeed in inveigling him into talking about himself at dinner. He answered direct questions amiably enough. But he did not expand. And he had to go back to the surgery almost as soon as dinner was over.

When he rose to leave, Mabel decided to be bold.

"You don't approve of me—do you?"

"I think," he said gravely, "that you are charming."

Mabel took a cigaret from the box on the small table beside her, lit it, and inhaled it deeply.

"That isn't what I asked," she said, and she drawled the words unnecessarily.

"O," he said, and his tone was patient, "you are a little spoiled. But you'll marry and settle down and get over that."

"I don't think I will marry," Mabel said.

"I supposed," he said coolly, "that you were engaged to Jud Sparks."

"No," Mabel said.

She thought he gave her one little, sharp, interested glance, but she wasn't sure.

"Good-night," he said.

"Good-night," Mabel said.

Mabel played the piano for two hours after he was gone. She was upset, and the difficulty of playing well when she had neglected her practice steadied her.

But she was a long time going to sleep.

SHE saw Dr. Agnew often after that, and he unbent a good deal, but he was always too busy to talk for long. Her father came home and she told him the whole story. He listened gravely. When she had finished he got up and walked back and forth across the room.

"Well?" Mabel said.

He paused.

"What do you think about it?" he asked.

"I think I was a little fool and I'm ashamed," she said.

Her father smiled.

"Then," he said, "I haven't anything to say."

Mabel had known all the time that he would take it like that. It would have been easier if he had stormed.

He went off to the surgery and Mabel went to the piano. She didn't know what she wanted to play. But she wanted to play something. She wanted to sing. Finally she found a collection of songs that had been her mother's, and she sat down to try them. They were in German, and the German came a little hard at first. But she had learned it once and as she sang on it came back to her. She sang the "Wiegenlied," and "Im Abendrot," and "Haidenröslein." And then she came to "Du Bist Die Ruh'." She remembered the feeling with which her mother had sung that song, and she had the wish to sing it as her mother had sung it.

When she had finished the last phrase she listened. Somebody was coming down the hall. She rose and walked over to the doorway. It was Dr. Agnew.

"Why," she said softly, and she was surprised at the softness of her own voice, "it's you."

"Yes," said young Dr. Agnew.

Mabel had a sudden sense of panic, all compounded of joy and fear.

They stood there looking at each other in the half dark, and not speaking. At least they were not speaking in words.

And then she felt herself swaying a little. His arms were around her and he was saying, "I love you," and she was holding up her face to his.

Everybody in Belleville was surprised except Aunt Emmeline Peabody. She came upon Mrs. Hicks and Mrs. Orville Smith in Wabash avenue.

"What do you think——" Mrs. Hicks began.

"I expected it," Aunt Emmeline said calmly. "I knew Mabel was just like her mother."

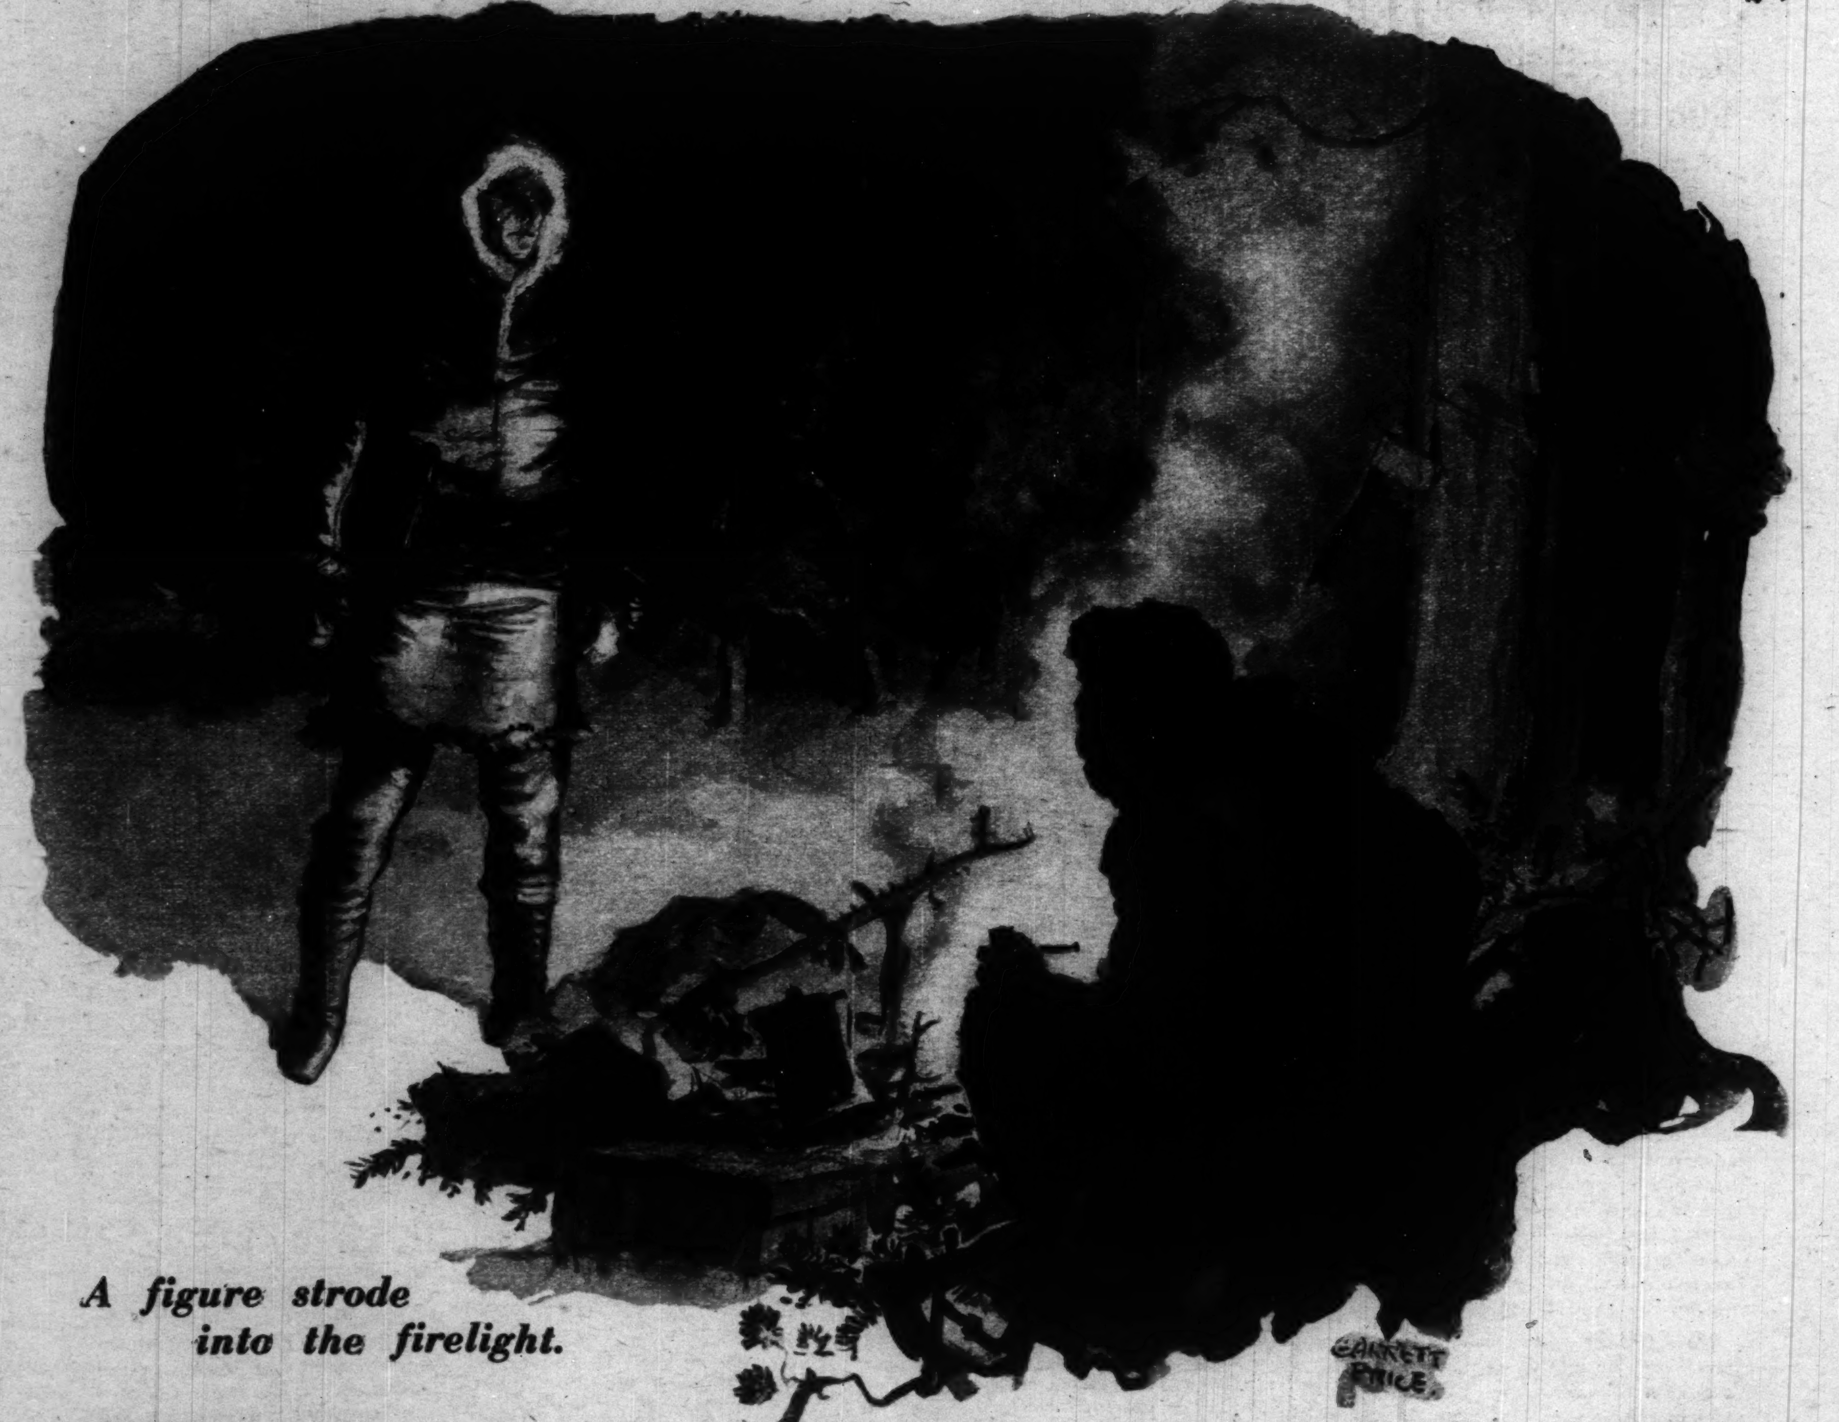
INDIAN BLOOD?

BY Robert E. Pinkerton

Blue Ribbon Fiction



A figure strode into the firelight.

NINTH INSTALLMENT.

A Crisis in the Great Fur Fight.

TWO days after his interview with Janet Donald disappeared from Fort Bruce. He went in the night and it was thirty-six hours before his absence was discovered. Immediately the tension in the Hudson's Bay increased. Corrigal rushed his post managers back home and each man was resolved to fight.

Yet the old spirit of battle of the Hudson's Bay was lacking. That spirit had always been arrogant, confident, sometimes supercilious, and often it had carried the great company to victory through the sheer belief of its servants that the H. B. C. was unconquerable.

Now, and if any one realised the change he could not have explained it, there was a new attitude. It was not alone that the Keewatin company had made serious inroads at three posts. It was no longer the whirlwind campaign Donald had waged or his recognized ability as a fur man. It was not the unexpected that was feared in the coming winter. Rather it was a spirit that Donald himself, unconsciously, it is true, had introduced.

Men's minds persisted in going back to the battle with Millington, to the charges that Nee-tah-wee-gan had screamed across the great enclosure, to Corrigal's grim silence, to the Layards' reticence, and to the lonely figure in the new buildings down the shore. This last perhaps more than anything else had influenced them. There was something ominous in his intensity, in his silence, and in his long hours of toil, but still more in what they believed was seething within his brain.

For no one doubted that Donald's attack was actuated solely by hatred of Corrigal and a desire for revenge. They pictured the first as bitter and all-consuming, the second as a blazing, implacable driving force of such intensity that even the mighty Hudson's Bay would feel its impact. There was something sinister in it, something unreal, and the very fact that each man sympathized with Donald, although perhaps unconsciously, heightened the impression.

No one knew whether this aspect of the situation affected Corrigal. Though his men found him more approachable, none accused him of currying favor in his last resort. His back was to the wall, for no district manager survives two unsuccessful years, and yet he seemed to look forward to the winter with eagerness.

"He's fooled us," Nicol MacKar said the night before his departure. "He's made us think he cares about nothing except the company, and it's the fight that gets him. He's been a different man since this happened."

"He made me think of a horse going to the post in the Derby when I talked to him this afternoon," Harry Milner added. "Why, the old chap was actually champing his bit and rearing on his hind legs. I fancy he's a regular sport after all and likes a little competition."

"Yes, and maybe it's something else," Sandy Hay declared. "Who is the one person a man can take a licking from and smile?"

"What do you mean?" Nicol demanded.

"Only that the old hag, Nee-tah-wee-gan, told the truth a year ago."

"Corrigal never did deny it," Milner said.

"Nor has Donald ever boasted of it," Sandy added. "There's blood in this fight, lads, and it's Nicol and Millington and me that's going to get splattered."

BEFORE the lakes and rivers froze over that fall John Corrigal left Fort Bruce. Special messengers traveling in fast canoes had brought the news he expected, that Donald had not extended his activities. He had not built new posts, but would concentrate on Whitefish Lake, Fort James, and Kenogami, the three places with which he was thoroughly familiar. Accordingly Corrigal had departed at once to be on the firing line at the beginning of winter.

At Whitefish Lake he found that Donald had shifted Philip Collinge to Fort James and that a French Canadian, Joe Barrere, had taken his place.

"I don't understand that," Corrigal said. "Millington had Collinge thoroughly licked here at Whitefish."

"Yes, and Norton has always licked Millington," MacKar answered. "This winter he'll do it again. It's at Fort James that you can look for trouble. Donald has more than one iron in the fire."

"You mean he hates Millington as well as me?"

"I don't know as Donald hates him exactly. A man doesn't hate a snake, but he

THE STORY SO FAR

FOR thirteen years Wen-dah-ban is kept hidden in the forests by Nee-tah-wee-gan. She tells him he is the son of a white man, but will not name his father. The boy believes he is all white. Merton Layard, Hudson's Bay company manager, takes him into his home and Mrs. Layard names him Donald Norton after her father. Donald becomes the playmate of little Janet Layard. After some years Donald wins a small post and eventually forces his way to command of the Hudson's largest district, Fort James. Meantime he has met and learned much from Philip Collinge, manager for the rival Keewatin company, and has visited England.

Meeting Janet again after her absence of seven years, Donald falls in love with her. He has a rival in Dale Millington, a young English post chief. Millington influences Mrs. Layard to let Donald understand he cannot hope to win Janet. For two seasons Millington raids Donald's district, and the latter's fur receipts are short. Donald sets a trap and Millington's man buys a marked skin. Old Mactavish, the Hudson's Bay general manager, dies and is succeeded by John Corrigal, who has no faith in half-breeds.

Corrigal takes Donald's post from him without waiting for the youth to prove Millington's duplicity. Enraged, and remembering stories he has heard, Donald accuses Corrigal of being his father. Donald and Millington fight and Donald batters his rival terribly. Donald disappears. Before the whole post Nee-tah-wee-gan accuses Corrigal of being Donald's father. To the Layards Corrigal denies this, but he leaves their home when Janet shows she doesn't believe him.

Donald reappears as general manager for the Keewatin company. At three posts he makes great inroads into the Hudson's Bay business. Donald's company builds headquarters at Fort Bruce. He appears there as manager, but keeps confined to his quarters. Janet visits him one night and tells him she loves him. He tells her he can never marry her, never have children to bear the burden of the half-breed as he has borne it. She leaves in despair.

INDIAN BLOOD?

gets a strange sort of pleasure out of killing one."

Nicol apparently had ignored Corrigal's first reference to the personal relations between the district manager and Donald, but he watched closely to see what effect his statement had.

"I imagine he classes me with Millington," Corrigal said.

"I'm not in the lad's confidence. I haven't seen him since the day of that fight at Fort Bruce. He set himself up against the whole white race then."

"That's the Indian in him."

"Yes, but the Indian or something else, you couldn't blame him. I'd have run amuck myself."

"You mean that he didn't have a square deal?"

"Do you think he did?"

Nicol had been in the service as long as Corrigal and he was thoroughly of the old school. He had no fear of the district manager, and he waited calmly for what he believed would be an outburst. But Corrigal apparently was unruffled.

"I'd do the same thing again," he said quietly. "I believe I was right. Was Norton here this fall?"

"A week. Then he went on to Fort James."

"And he won a lot of hunters?"

"I don't know whether it was Donald or the Frenchman. Barrere's an uncanny brute. He doesn't seem to do much. For a time when the hunters were outfitting I couldn't see that he did anything but sit in the sun and tell them stories. He can talk Ojibwa better than I can English, and he had the whole band laughing."

"And I suppose he talked those Indians into taking 'debt' from him?"

"He did and I don't know how he did it. I was talking to them myself all the time and I thought I'd lined up about all we lost last winter. But he got them and a few more."

Corrigal went on to Fort James. Millington had glowing reports, so glowing that the district manager spent a day going over the books to verify them. They showed that the Hudson's Bay was regaining lost ground, and when Corrigal learned that Donald had gone to Kenogami he hurried on, finishing the long journey on the new ice. He found Sandy Hay in much the same plight as Nicol MacKar.

"You've got to face the situation," Sandy declared after his discouraging report. "When it comes to straight trading Norton's got us licked. He knows every hunter at the three posts and they know him and believe in him. They'll trust him in anything. The only thing that will win is to boost prices for fur and lower the cost of goods."

It was the unfailing weapon of the Hudson's Bay and more than one free trader, limited in the scope of his operations by slight capital, had fallen before the vast resources of the great company. In a way it was an acknowledgement of defeat, this swinging of the great bludgeon, and Sandy had expected that his suggestion would arouse Corrigal's anger. But the district manager continued to stare out of the window.

"Norton has gained such headway," he said at last, "that such a method, to be effective, will wipe out the profits of the entire district for two years at least."

Sandy whistled.

"Then there is only one thing left," he said. "You will have to take him back."

"No!" Corrigal thundered as he turned and struck the table with his fist. "I won't surrender. I'm going to crush this fellow. I've got to do it."

All the pride of the great company was Corrigal's, and in addition there was the personal element, the memory of that last scene, when Donald had scorned him for what he believed he was.

"Norton will burn himself up," he continued. "He can't last. And even if he does we can whip him. We've got to. The Hudson's Bay never lost a fight like this, and it isn't going to lose one now."

Thus with the first snow and the first ice Corrigal began to fight as he never had before. He drew on every resource, his long experience, his knowledge of Indian character, and the driving power that had always won for him in the past. He forgot Fort Bruce and the other posts. He thought only of Kenogami, Fort James, and Whitefish Lake. He wore out dogs and half-breed drivers traveling from one to another. He spent sleepless nights devising ways to thwart and trick the opposition. He drove the post managers as ceaselessly as he drove himself.

His efforts began to have an effect. For a time the decision hung in the balance, and then the strong tide that had set in toward the Keewatin company the previous winter reached the ebb. Slowly but surely all three Hudson's Bay posts gained headway.

IN the middle of December a messenger came through with a letter from the commissioner in Winnipeg. It was a short letter, amazingly so for one that had required such effort and hardship in its passage through more than a thousand miles of wilderness, and it merely instructed the district manager to "get that man Norton back into the service without delay."

Corrigal smiled grimly when he read it, thrust it into a pocket, and redoubled his efforts. And then, as if Donald himself had known of the arrival of the order, that young man seemed to attack all along the line. There was something demoniacal in the fury with which he forced the fight, and there was something uncanny about the manner in which he met every move with a counter thrust.

Donald was everywhere, seemingly at once. If Corrigal made the journey between two posts in three days he made it in two. If Corrigal slipped away secretly he arrived at his destination only to find Donald there ahead of him. If he devised some clever scheme to win hunters he discovered that Donald had already put it into practice.

Corrigal knew Donald was not paying higher prices for fur or selling goods for less—a fact which only stung the more because he sensed in it a reflection of his own determination to fight the thing out man to man, to make it a test of individuality and not of the resources of the two companies. He forgot the letter in his pocket and plunged into the struggle not only with renewed energy but with a zest he had never known before and which he could not have explained.

Yet he found himself baffled at every turn. He saw Philip Collinge, who had been down and out, a failure, suddenly develop into more than a match for the wily Millington. He saw Joe Barrere, once an itinerant free trader with nothing back of him, continue his easy, laughing, story-telling way and reap a rich harvest of pelts. He saw Sandy Hay, steady, reliable, often brilliant, struggling almost helplessly in the presence of the unknown Jack Harlan, a young fellow Donald had brought from Winnipeg to run the new Kenogami post.

The previous winter the Hudson's Bay post managers had sensed the unusual in the conflict, had glimpsed Donald's fanatical driving force, and had been awed by it. As Corrigal hurried from post to post, as his spy system uncovered new and constantly distressing facts, as the ledgers and monthly statements stamped "true" upon rumor after rumor, the cumulative effect was inevitable. Gradually—for all fur land is under the influence of the dreary, brooding spirit-filled north — his viewpoint began to be tinged by the common conception of Donald.

Corrigal tried to throw off this new thought, to convince himself that no such force could win, and he started on a swift round of the three posts. After a conference with Nicol MacKar he jumped back to Fort James.

"You want to remember I'm fighting two men, not one," Millington said when he had finished his report. "I don't know what has happened to Collinge. When I saw him last at Whitefish Lake he was done for. Now he's a moose.

"And Norton! I don't know what he's doing at Kenogami and Whitefish, but it can't be a great deal, because he spends so much time here. Early as it is, I know he has made two trips this winter, and each time he has come in with a toboggan load of fur. He's going right out among the hunters, leaving Collinge to run the post. And Collinge does it."

Corrigal went on to Kenogami. He made a quick trip of it, for he found a freshly broken trail, a fact that impressed upon him through each of the one hundred and fifty miles that Donald was just ahead. As he sat in his cariole, wrapped snugly while a half-breed driver sped at the rear, it seemed that he had been doing nothing else since the first ice but follow, that the young man he had not seen since their first interview at Fort Bruce a year and a half before was always just ahead, always arriving somewhere first, always striking the first blow.

At Kenogami Sandy Hay was as blunt as Millington had been.

"I could handle Harlan," he declared. "Left alone, Jack couldn't dent us here. But Norton's on his tail all the time and makes another man of him. Donald himself is really running the post. He's district manager, post manager, and tripper besides. He got in here yesterday afternoon and this morning at four o'clock he was off again, out in the bush, talking to the hunters, buying their fur. He'll be back here in a few days with a toboggan piled high."

Corrigal said nothing. He had gotten the point. His adversary had not only outgeneraled him but he had worked far harder and he had succeeded in instilling a fighting spirit in his men. These were the facts, facts that had been impressed upon him time and again since the winter began, and in addition there was the other side of it, something vindictive, something of the supernatural.

Corrigal remained at Kenogami three days. He knew he had come to the point where he must at least compromise. Fighter though he was, victor though he always had been, he began to see that the situation was getting beyond him. He believed that if he swung all the mighty power of the Hudson's Bay into line he could crush this young upstart, but there was a bad year behind him, the letter from the commissioner in his pocket, and the memory of that last interview with Donald.

He started back to Fort James. Not only had he seen that Donald was concentrating on Millington but he had begun to suspect the young Englishman. Something wasn't right at Fort James, though he had been unable to get a hint as to what it was.

THE first night out from Kenogami he camped late, but even later, when he was smoking his after supper pipe beside the fire, the dogs began to growl and soon he heard the tinkle of bells. A few minutes later a team dashed out of the darkness and instantly bedlam broke loose. In the confusion Corrigal waited anxiously. He suspected at once that new orders were being rushed through from Winnipeg and he feared what they might be. But as the drivers hurried to quiet their snarling animals a figure strode into the firelight and he recognized Norton.

"O!" Donald exclaimed when he saw Corrigal. "I expected to find my own team here waiting for me."

He stared at the older man for an instant and then turned back to the trail. Corrigal did not speak. He knew that he should. He wanted to. But even as he groped for an opening he heard Donald's sharp command and the strange team dashed past the camp and on toward Kenogami. Donald was running ahead, his driver at the rear, and the toboggan was high and bulging with fur.

Few things have stronger effect on a Hudson's Bay man than the sight of fur in the hands of the opposition, yet in that moment the thing that impressed Corrigal most was the appearance of Donald himself. He had stood there in the firelight, his parka hood thrown back, his head high, his chest extended by his exertions on the trail. His face had hardened instantly when he saw Corrigal, but it was not drawn by weariness. The black shadows and the red light had brought it out, heightening the effect of the strong features and giving an impression of force and will that could not be subdued.

For a long time that night Donald's face haunted Corrigal. He had expected to see hate and cunning, exultation and contempt. He had been confident that when they did meet there would be a sneer, even a taunt, perhaps vilification. Instead there had been only dignity, quiet confidence, and undeniable strength. There had been no desire to remain and revel in victory. Only a quick explanation and immediate departure.

This impression remained with Corrigal the next day as he sped on toward Fort James. At daylight when he stopped for breakfast his dogs again began to growl and soon the tinkle of bells was heard. A moment later a team of magnificent huskies, dogs undoubtedly imported from the far north, dashed past. Running ahead of them was Donald.

It was a little thing, being passed by another dog team, and yet in that instant it pictured clearly for Corrigal what the entire winter would be like. Late the night before Donald had been speeding toward Kenogami with a big load of fur. Now he was traveling swiftly toward Fort James. He had met his own team, sent on the harvest of pelts, and was off to a new post and fresh conquest.

Corrigal leaped to his feet.

"O, Norton!" he called, bellowing above the clamor of his dogs.

Donald halted and looked back. Corrigal went forward until he was out of hearing of the drivers and then beckoned Donald to him.

It had been Corrigal's impulse in that first moment to capitulate, but as the younger man walked up, alert, confident, and wholly at ease, his own pride and that inherent pride of the great company forbad. The cold, hard mask he had always worn dropped into place.

"It's about time we got together," he began.

Donald did not speak. He only waited and his very silence made Corrigal's task the more difficult.

"The commissioner has written me to ask you to come back to the company," the Hudson's Bay man continued.

"In your district?" Donald asked quietly.

"Yes."

Donald remained silent.

"Well?" Corrigal demanded at last.

"Of course the commissioner knows why I left the service," Donald said.

"Not unless you told him when you were in Winnipeg."

"I had nothing to tell him."

For a moment neither man spoke. It was evident that Donald was waiting, yet there was not a trace of arrogance in his manner. And Corrigal, who had been prepared for something wholly different, could not adjust himself to conditions which he had never believed possible.

He had pictured a savage desire for revenge, an overconfident bearing, a sneering, bitter, venomous expression. Instead he found a dignity equal to his own, a complete absence of rancor and contempt, and, more than anything else, he sensed a purpose so powerful it ignored any personal issue. Nothing that had happened, Donald's undeniable success, his dashing, sweeping campaign, or the fire and vigor of his attack, had impressed Corrigal so much as the young man's appearance.

Outwardly calm, the mask still in place, the district manager stood there trying to find a way out of a perplexing situation. In that moment he saw what he must do, but his pride did not succumb easily. And while he struggled Donald spoke.

"I don't believe we can get together, Corrigal," he said as he turned away.

He walked back to his dog team, sat down on the partly loaded toboggan, and was off. He did it quietly and simply, without any show of defiance, a fact which kept Corrigal staring after him until he was out of sight around a bend in the trail.

DONALD was always glad to arrive at Fort James. Joe Barrere at Whitefish Lake and Jack Harlan at Kenogami were merely pawns in his game, men through whom he could carry out his plans. Philip Collinge was a friend, and in their long years of close association a bond not only of sympathy but of sincere devotion had grown between them.

This bond was vastly strengthened by their isolation and by the similar tragedies that shaped their lives. The very thing which had cut Donald off from the world he desired had bound Philip to an existence that became doubly bitter because of its very hopelessness, and out of this common lot there had come not only devotion but understanding.

All the north country had its opinion of what had caused Donald's action, but Philip alone knew what Evelyn Layard had guessed, that the rage which had prompted his defiance of Corrigal in that last interview in Fort Bruce had quickly subsided, that Donald had returned to the north with the Keewatin company not to gain revenge, not because of hatred of Corrigal, not to humble the Hudson's Bay, but to prove that in spite of his Indian blood, in spite of a mixed and somewhat indistinct parentage, he could be as white as any man in fur land.

Philip knew that Donald was seeking merely to prove his own integrity of character and that he had adopted the only way open to him. Yet the very fact that his purpose was so single and so high had in itself given him an advantage of which even Philip was aware, for it was this quality which had impressed and baffled Corrigal in their meeting on the trail.

And Donald alone understood Philip Collinge. Life had always been a failure for the Englishman, and when Millington had come to Whitefish Lake he had seen a quick end to his despairing struggle. But with Donald beside him battling against a future more oppressive than his own, not only the opportunity and the incentive but the courage were provided for a final effort at rehabilitation.

More to help his friend than to further his own success, Donald had transferred Philip to Fort James, face to face again with Millington, and there with his friend's advice and driving will power behind him the Englishman had begun his struggle upward.

Thus the life of each was bound up in the fur trade so completely and the present struggle affected them in so many ways no discussion of it could escape the personal problems of the two men. When Donald reached Fort James after his meeting with Corrigal, Philip sensed at once that something had happened. Yet he, too, had important news to convey.

"Nee-tah-wee-gan is here," he said as soon as Donald had removed his trail clothing.

"Nee-tah-wee-gan!" Donald repeated in amazement.

He had not seen her since that day she had been waiting for him outside Corrigal's office at Fort Bruce, nor had he heard anything of her. But the fact that interested him most was that she had come to Fort James. She had not followed him there for four years before, and he remembered her expression of fear when he had told her he was going to the larger post.

"That's strange," he continued. "I couldn't understand it, but she has never been here since ——. You know, I was born here, and she went to Kenogami soon after."

Philip nodded. He had heard all that years before, for gossip plays an important part in the barter for pelts, and he knew Corrigal was manager at Fort James then.

"I haven't seen her," he said, "though she has been here a week. She is living in an old cabin over at the Bay."

"At the Bay!" Donald repeated, and instantly he was alert.

"Yes. She appeared suddenly and Millington has been grumbling about her being a nuisance. But that's surface talk only. I happened to discover that he brought her here and that he is giving her rations."

There was no need for the two to speak. Each understood what the other was thinking. Philip knew all about the strange relationship between Donald and his mother and the inexplicable hatred she bore for him.

"You haven't learned anything else?" Donald asked quietly.

"No."

"We'll have to go to the bottom of that as soon as possible. I'll get in touch with the Bay tonight. Corrigal will arrive after dark and that will help. I saw him on the trail yesterday morning."

"You mean you talked to him?"

"Yes."

"What did he have to say?"

"You know," Donald answered slowly, "I felt rather sorry for him."

"Sorry!" Philip exclaimed.

"In a way. I got his viewpoint. The commissioner has ordered him to get me back. It's the easiest way out for the Hudson's Bay, of course, and the hardest for Corrigal."

"What did you tell him?"

"He suggested that it was time we got together. I waited for the only thing he can say to me and—he didn't say it."

"You don't mean about——?"

"All I ever want from Corrigal is what is due me," Donald interrupted harshly, "an admission that he made a mistake when he kicked me out."

"He'll never admit that."

"I'm not so sure. I'm beginning to get a new idea of him. He's got a lot of pride, of course, his own and the pride the Hudson's Bay gives a man. He's got to be licked before he'll see that he was wrong."

"But you're licking him! Every day!"

"Only because he's made a straight fight of it. He could have crushed us last winter simply by raising the price of fur. He had that weapon, but he didn't use it."

"The commissioner wouldn't let him."

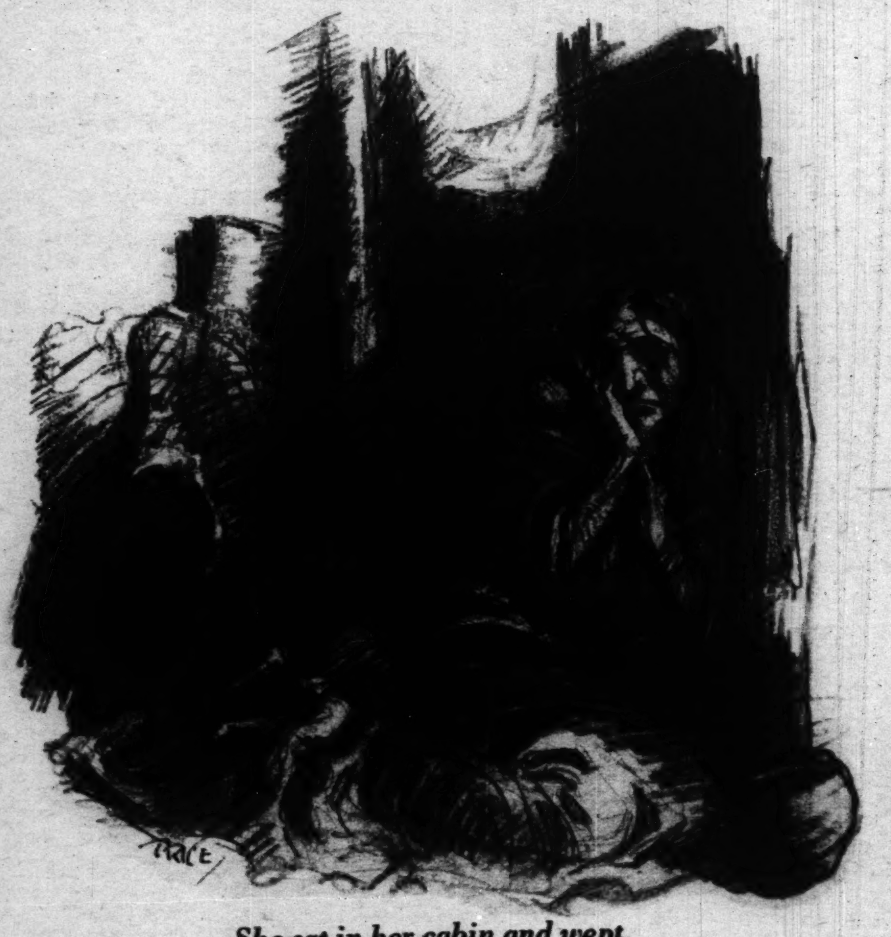
"He could have done it and let the commissioner know afterward. No, Corrigal started with the idea he could lick me by straight trading. He didn't, and that put him on his mettle. He's out to prove he was right, just as I am, and he's going to risk everything to do it."

"But, my dear fellow!" Philip protested. "You said you felt sorry for him. What is there in all this that can arouse compassion?"

"I got a glimpse of Corrigal once, the real Corrigal, here at Fort James. You remember that his wife and baby died when the dwelling house burned thirty years ago. It was the first time he had been back, and it loosened him up. He talked more than he intended, and I could see what made him what he is."

Philip jumped to his feet and strode across the room, but even the sudden physical exertion was not sufficient outlet for his wrath.

"You're too damned decent!" he cried.



She sat in her cabin and wept.

INDIAN BLOOD?

"After what Corrigal did to you! After what he's responsible for!"

"Don't, Phil," Donald said quietly. "I used to feel pretty strongly on that subject myself. I did all last year and then—then I began to understand some things. I don't blame him any more. I don't blame any man. Unless—well, unless a fellow has an object lesson directly in front of him, knows exactly what may happen, it's so easy, so——"

HE broke off and stared out of a window. His face was gray and drawn, and Philip, knowing something of Janet and remembering the change that had come to Donald after his departure from Fort Bruce a few months before, understood. And because he understood, and because Donald had touched upon his own problem, his own folly and its consequent and irretrievable disaster, he was the more moved by the greatness of his friend's spirit.

In that moment his admiration and his love soared to new heights, but as he strove for some new expression Donald turned to him suddenly.

"What's Millington doing?" he asked. "It's about time he cut loose with something really crooked."

"You mean he can't stay straight?"

"Yes, and I've picked up a few facts."

Philip was relieved that they were back on normal ground, for he had the Englishman's distrust of emotional situations.

"That's one place where you don't waste sympathy," he laughed. "And we certainly have gotten into him."

"That's why I'm expecting something," Donald said, "and I wouldn't be surprised if Corrigal is suspicious of Millington, too. I've learned positively that earlier in the winter Corrigal was satisfied with the way things were going here at Fort James."

"But that is just when we were getting in our best work," Philip interrupted.

"Exactly. It means only one thing. Millington fixed his books and monthly statements."

"But he can't make them come out right next spring."

"He can if he gets a lot of fur in the meantime."

"But if he doesn't?"

"Millington is up against it hard and he knows it. He was sent back here a year ago only because it was too late for Corrigal to get any one else after I left. This year Corrigal couldn't afford to put a new man in with such a fight on. He had to keep Millington, and Millington knows this is his last chance to make good."

"But what can he do now? We've got nearly half the hunters lined up solidly, and between your trips and those the men have made we've already bought a lot of fur."

"It's not going to be anything usual or any feeble effort either," Donald assured him. "I'll get busy on the thing tonight."

Donald's sources of information at each of the three posts where he was pressing the Hudson's Bay so hard were exceptional. He not only knew each hunter and each employé of the great company but he had retained his influence over them despite the fact that he was with the opposition. His thorough knowledge of the Ojibwa character and language made it possible for him to learn nearly everything that was going on in the rival posts without arousing suspicion.

That night he did not return to the dwelling house until late.

"Learn anything?" Philip asked when he entered.

"Yes, but I don't know what to make of it. A Hudson's Bay tripper brought Nee-tah-wee-gan here a week ago. I couldn't find out where she came from, but the man left without a trade outfit and was gone five days."

"That means Millington sent for her, as I said."

"Of course. He brought her here and he's giving her rations and a cabin to live in, though he grumbles about it and makes threats to turn her out."

Philip was silent for a time.

"You think——?" he began at last.

"There's no doubt of it. Nee-tah-wee-gan wouldn't hesitate to do anything to harm me. But I can't imagine what it can be. She did everything possible years ago."

The next morning Philip learned that Corrigal had arrived the night before and had gone on to Whitefish Lake before dawn.

"The thing I have been afraid of has come," he declared when he had told Donald. "He's making a quick round of the three posts, dropping the word that fur prices are to go up when the hunters are in at New Year's."

"No," Donald answered confidently. "I don't think so. He wouldn't take so drastic a step right now without carrying out the commissioner's orders to get me back. Besides, Corrigal isn't going to fight me that way yet. He still feels that he is going to beat me. No, it's not Corrigal I'm watching, but Millington."

He spent the day in an effort to get information, but without result. Hunters had already begun to arrive and the Indian houses of the Hudson's Bay and the Keewatin company were filling up. All the men brought toboggans piled high with pelts and when that fur was traded, when the Indians returned to their distant camps, the first half of the winter's battle would be decided. Success or failure was only three days distant.

Donald was fully alive to the situation, but, though he mingled with the hunters and learned that he would hold the advantage he had already gained, he was uneasy. Outwardly there was every indication of victory. The hunters to whom the Keewatin company had issued "debt" signified their intention of meeting the obligation. Many of those who had received "debt" from the Hudson's Bay declared that they would trade only a part of their fur with Millington.

"I tell you, we've got Millington right!" Philip declared. "Cheer up! He can't do anything now."

"He's got something up his sleeve," Donald answered. "He's not lying down and taking this. I know he's ready to spring something, but I can't find out what it is."

"What could it be? There's nothing he can do at this late hour. Our Indian house is crowded. We never had so many hunters staying here. And they say they're going to trade with us."

BUT Donald refused to be reassured. He prowled about the post talking to hunters and employés, and that night after dark he went down the shore to the Hudson's Bay. It was a risky proceeding, not that there was any personal danger, but it imperiled his underground lines of communication. If Millington saw him talking to a Hudson's Bay employé that man would cease instantly to be a source of information. Yet he was so certain the situation was serious he dared to do it. His sensitive intuition, developed in all successful fur traders, foretold trouble.

But he returned with only disconnected bits of gossip. Millington had spent the entire evening reading in the dwelling house, an indication of confidence or of carelessness. Nee-tah-wee-gan had hardly stepped outside her cabin since her arrival, and she had not spoken to any of the employés. A few of the older ones remembered her, but when they had approached her she had covered her head with her shawl and turned away.

"And they say she does nothing but sit in her cabin and weep," Donald told Philip. "I don't understand that. I never knew her to shed tears, but they tell me it's almost like a death wail."

He had learned, too, that Millington was preparing for a big feast the next day, one to which all the Keewatin Indians were invited.

"That's the regular New Year's affair, only he's a day ahead with it," Philip said. "But the one we have planned for the next day will be a jolly sight better."

"I think," Donald said absently as he stared past his friend, "that it's at the feast that Millington is going to spring his surprise. We've got to be ready for it."

At noon the next day the Keewatin post was depopulated. Every hunter had gone to Hudson's Bay. Indianlike, they took all they could get, whether from the company they had deserted or the last to which they had given their allegiance.

After luncheon Donald and Philip went into the warm living room for an uninterrupted afternoon with the books and reports. They knew that so long as free food and free tobacco held out at the Bay not a hunter would come near them. It was thus that they did not see the Indians return long before dark. The men did not come straggling back, but hurried along in a compact group. Once inside the Keewatin Indian house, they gathered their fur, loaded their toboggans, and departed for the Hudson's Bay post.

THOROUGHLY COWED by Pettersen Marzoni

A Winning Hand in Stud Poker Made a Bull Fighter of Buck Thomas, and Many and Foreboding Were the Complications That Ensued.

MIGHTY few poker faces exist outside of fiction, and Buck Thomas was not a possessor of one of the few. So when the case queen rounded out his hand to a nice full Don Mateo Escobal might have noted a slight flush on his cheekbones and a tendency to twitch at the corners of Buck's mouth. Don Mateo didn't notice it. He was too busy counting out the profits on the third jack which, added to his other two and a pair of nines, made a fairly satisfactory hand at stud.

Had he noticed the telltale signs he would have saved himself no small financial inconvenience and he might have helped out Buck a lot. As it was, one of the most famous matadors that ever rode a tramp steamer up the coast of Central America, arose from his seat a few minutes later with nothing left save his bull ring reputation and the neat but not gaudy habiliments of ordinary life.

Piled on the table before Buck was a heap of cloth, glowing in colors like a prism burst. Topping the pile were two swords. Of course, there was money besides.

"Buenas noches, señores," the pride of Seville was ever polite. "I have enjoyed the evening very much. I trust, Señor Buck, that we may meet again."

"I hope so, Don. You are the best company I ever met at a poker table."

The clothes did the trick. Of course, no male is supposed to feel the lure of brilliant colors in mere body coverings. However, men do wear lavender pajamas with pale pink stripes. Buck admired the nifty effect produced by one of the matador's best ring costumes as he tried it on before the narrow mirror in his stateroom that night. It might be well to mention that Buck's third queen had cost Don Mateo Escobal the complete trappings of his picturesque career.

"No wonder the dames fall for these bullfighters," Buck announced to the mirror. "These clothes are there. I'd like to give the game a whirl myself. Except I would have to fight bulls. Bull I can handle, but bulls?"

Next morning the Siboney was chugging up the coast when Buck's inspiration arrived. Rather it was brought on by the captain of the steamer.

"What are you going to do with your new outfit, Buck? Take up bullfighting? Or are you planning to go home and join the circus?"

"I might take up the game at that. If a spiggoty can get away with it I can."

"You would have to change your name. No follower of the game would go to see a man named Buck Thomas spear a bull. They used to fight bulls at Milfuegos, where we are going to stop next. Why not get off and give them a treat? Tell them you heard they wanted a good bullfighter."

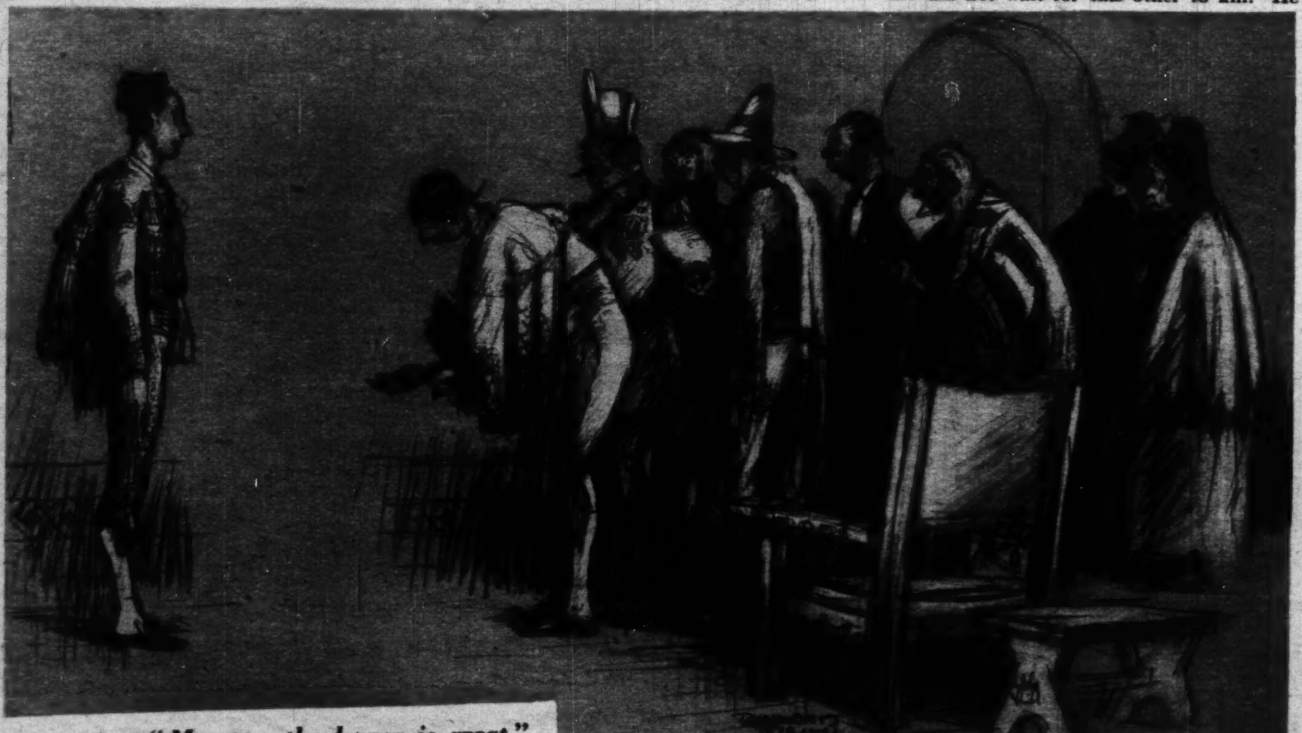
Buck laughed.

"You're on."

THOUGH the impersonation would have caused the Sevillian blood of the don to boil in his veins, there would have been somewhat of balm in the situation could he have witnessed the reception accorded Don Mateo Escobal, née Thomas, in Milfuegos the next night. The élite of the city thronged the lobby of the Hotel Grande to get but a glimpse of the great matador.

The great matador was unwilling to disappoint any one. He paraded in the company of the army and navy and political heads of Milfuegos. Rather they paraded in his company, because was he not Don Mateo Escobal; slayer of a hundred, no, a thousand, millions of bulls in the ring of Seville, where only the great of the earth were permitted to perform? Minor matadors came there, begging but the chance to act as the chulo, the picador, the banderillero, for the masters.

And here was the master himself. Maidens ranging from claro to colorado bridled behind their fans as they watched the great matador. Even the duennas patted hastily at their mantillas when it seemed possible they might come within his range of vision. When a duenna becomes interested in a man he is a godling.



"Maestro, the honor is great."

All Milfuegos, unable to crowd within the hotel, thronged its wide porch and cluttered up the sandy road at its front. All of them eager to see and greet the great Don Mateo Escobal.

All but one, that is. He, too, was in the throng. As a matter of fact, he knew he was to be given the opportunity to greet the pride of Seville. But did his pulses throb at the honor? Rather they thumped muted, muffled as a loosened snare drum.

Manuelo Moreno was a man alone.

Since the Siboney had dropped her precious freight at Milfuegos that noon dull, gray despair had settled on his soul. Disappointment had crushed his heart in an icy grip. Manuelo Moreno was a man seeing himself cut off in his youth. Doom lay just ahead of him. Not one word had been spoken to him of the misfortune that awaited him, but he knew the moment was at hand. He would be allowed the privilege of meeting the great Don Mateo Escobal, and then—he dared not think.

The admiral caught Manuelo Moreno's eye as he entered the hotel and nodded. Glooming in his corner, the Milfuegan noticed the jefe staring at him. The jefe nodded. General Gonzales, the real head of Milfuegos, and, O, mi vida, father of the adorable Mariana, stopped to speak with him.

"It is understood, Manuelo?"

"It is understood, General."

Now the general beckoned to Manuelo. The hour had come. With lagging footsteps he approached the group, halted for a moment. All eyes were turned on Manuelo as he walked across the short open space to where Don Mateo Escobal stood.

And no eyes looked harder than did those of the great don himself, now all Buck Thomas. Because what Buck saw was another attired even as he—a matador in silken breeches, coat decorated within an inch of its seam, white silk stockings, and silver buckled shoes.

Buck shut his eyes, then opened them again. The figure advanced. Not threateningly, but with the air of deference to which Buck was becoming accustomed. Don Mateo Escobal was himself again. Probably just a little stunt to make the visitor feel at home.

"Señor, Don Manuelo Moreno," the general was speaking.

The great matador bowed and allowed himself the slight unbending of a smile.

The pomponned cap of Manuelo swept the ground as he bowed.

"Maestro," Manuelo's voice threatened to be unsteady. He caught himself. "The honor is great. I have made you my inspiration in my poor, weak efforts. I have but read of your tremendous exploits, your magnificent victories. And now I am honored beyond all measuring in being allowed to ask that I may see you work miracles in person. But two weeks from tomorrow Milfuegos will return again to the sport that once made her name the glory of America Del Sud. What greater glory can we dream but that the great Don Mateo Escobal himself should show us his skill on that day?"

"Bravo, bravo," cheered the crowd.

"Señor, Don Manuelo is but voicing the great hope of all Milfuegans," the general had stood Manuelo's talk as long as he could. "He was to have defended the honor of Milfuegos against the terrific beast we have brought from the plains. But so soon as he learned of your heaven brought arrival he besought us that we permit him to request of you the so great favor that you take his place. More, he refused to do his modest best in the presence of the maestro. May we implore your acceptance?"

WHO had told him they had stopped bullfighting in Milfuegos? Why hadn't he found out? Buck wasn't afraid of a bull, but he was afraid of a town full of people who would expect him to kill a bull with a little sticker. He doubted whether he could do the job with an axe. There was no chance to refuse, no grounds on which to base a refusal. They would attribute his refusal to haughtiness, and old Gen. Gonzales came from Aragon, where the term arrogant first came into use. Buck Thomas let himself in for a job when he hooked that third queen against Don Mateo Escobal. But Buck was game.

"Señoras, señores," and his flame lined cloak swept the floor at his bow, "you do me honor, a thousand honors. My poor efforts to reward you will be of an insignificance, but they shall be yours."

In the tumult that followed Buck found himself on the way into the moonlit patio with the fairy hand of Señorita Mariana Gonzales resting lightly on his arm. Here was something, at any rate. A watchful duenna was trying to fight her way through the crowd.

"Ah, señor, I adore a brave man," and Mariana's eyes glowed even in the moonlight.

"Brave is right, kid," was Buck's unspoken comment.

"I do it for you, señorita," Don Mateo spoke. "When you looked at me there was nothing I would not do."

Whether at home or abroad, American or Sevillian, Buck Thomas was a fast worker. But before he could get into his stride Mariana's duenna descended upon them, clucking like a spinster hen looking after a borrowed brood, and carried away his inspiration.

Buck had better luck next afternoon. A small boy, goggle eyed with the privilege of being near the great matador, brought him a note from the adorable Señorita Gonzales, naming the hour of three at which he might call. The hour was early, and Mariana had planned it so. There had been no siesta for the fat duenna, who was compelled to help array the beauty of the house of Gonzales in her most brilliant plumage. Mariana had never before felt the urge to duck a chaperone, but when the time came she knew how to do it. So did Eve.

Fifteen minutes after Buck made his decorous greetings to Señorita Gonzales, the duenna was catching up on her lost siesta in the shade of a palm, and Don Mateo Escobal was forgetting bulls in the new dangers risked from Mariana's eyes.

No need to try to follow the conversation. When a fast worker from the States with a fluent command of Spanish and a willing listener get together all limits are off.

WHEN the duenna awoke Buck left. The day was over for him. It was worse than that for Manuelo, who was just unslinging his guitar as the great matador emerged from the garden gate of the Gonzales palace and turned to kiss the white hand Mariana held out to him.

Manuelo groaned. This was too much. Mariana was almost his betrothed. Had she not told him that when he conquered the bull he might visit her in that garden? Yet she did not wait for this other to kill. He took Manuelo's bull away frim him, and now he was taking the girl. It was too much.

Buck turned at a crash behind him. Manuelo had splintered his guitar against the garden wall. What good of music with Mariana gone?

Scented gardens, moonlight nights, and the ever so charming Mariana almost drove the thought of the fiesta out of Buck's mind. Esteban brought it back the morning before the fight. He called for the maestro and drove him to the plaza de toros for an inspection. It looked all right to Buck, because the fences were new, the only thing in which he was interested. If he had to run he wanted to get clean away from the bull and take his chance with the crowd alone. He didn't want to mix it with both.

Then, with pride, Esteban led him to the bull pen. If the bull had been wild before he was unbraked violence now. A day without food and only half enough water had left him crimson of eye and flaming of nostril. Looking at his pawing hoofs Buck voiced a silent wish that he might dig himself under before the fight was pulled. He couldn't face this thing in the ring.

He might kill him now. But old Esteban was rubbing his hands waiting a word of praise for his achievement. This Miss Fortune came along and tapped Buck on the shoulder. He straightened himself.

"Have you arranged the final meal?"

The Sea Prodigal

By Ethel M. Colson

The Sea He Loved and the Father Who Loved Him Bring Peace at Last to the Wayward Son and the Girl of His Unhappy Romance.

"THE captain's compliments, sir, and would you be so good as to pay him a brief visit?"

The Rev. John Garvey, dreaming in his stateroom in the good ship Dunsiatic, five days out of Capetown and plowing her way stanchly through a long run of bad weather, looked up uncertainly. The lad in the doorway repeated his message.

"The captain's compliments, sir, and would you be so good as to pay him a brief visit?"

"Certainly, certainly," said the Rev. John Garvey; then, partially overcoming his abstraction: "I will come at once."

But the dream still held him as he strode along in the messenger's wake.

At the door of the captain's quarters the sea executive rose in ceremonious greeting.

"I have a favor to ask of you, sir; of your cloth, rather," he began, the visitor being seated. "There has been a death on the ship. A third class passenger, who came aboard ill, as I now understand, died last night. I always read the service myself, in such case, if no clergyman is available, but when we have a member of your profession with us——"

"Of course. Naturally," the Rev. John Garvey smiled assent as the other hesitated. "I shall be glad to officiate. When shall I be required?"

"Eleven o'clock tomorrow morning," the captain answered, with evident appreciation. "I shall be deeply obliged to you. Dr. Stone will acquaint you with particulars. Thank you very much."

His attention was demanded at the moment, and the clergyman took his leave. The dream, the long, sad dream that had so long enveloped him, settled about his consciousness again as he took his way back to his room.

HE had always been interested in the sea, the Rev. John Garvey. The easy accommodation of his walk to the roll of the ship betokened natural sea sympathy. In youth he had thought of following the seagoing footsteps of many ancestors until the higher call had directed him elsewhere. But the old sea love had lingered, unbroken, and had been born anew, and more strongly, in his only son.

Jock, named after his father, but so nicknamed by himself in infancy, had been sea mused from his cradle. Through boyhood he had insistently maintained that he meant to be a sailor; at fifteen he had announced that if not immediately apprenticed to the sea he would run away and find himself a berth as a cabin boy. His parents knew him, so as a "brass bounder," a duly accredited cadet of the merchant marine—he would have none of the navy, even could this have been managed—he left home, proudly, a little before he was sixteen.

All went well at first. Jock seemed to pick up seamanship by instinct; every one liked him. Every time he came home for those cherished glimpses between voyages he was more and more enthusiastic concerning his chosen calling. But one time, with his twentieth birthday well on the horizon, Jock's father, meeting the Jarvis at Liverpool, was invited to a serious talk with Captain Harford.

Jock, it seemed, might do well not to follow the sea further. O, yes, he'd make a good sailor. O, yes, again, he was a good lad, generally speaking. But there were special temptations in the way of a fine looking youth as headstrong as he was reckless, and Jock, despite his pleasant ways, was none too steady. The first officer, who had had some medical training, dropped an extra word of warning. It wasn't easy for a seaman to look out for colds and exposure, and Jock, though tall and sturdy, in some ways was not too strong.

The father spoke to the boy duly, but the boy was adamant. Him leave the sea? Now, when he was just nearing promotion, would be an officer so shortly? He'd be—interlude of scornful, indignant laughter—he'd be drowned first! Besides, he'd never be any good anywhere but at sea.

"Well, try to be careful, my son, and be good, too," the father yielded. And Jock, grinning, promised that if the last clause of the request couldn't be accomplished he'd try to be as careful as he could.

But the next voyage end brought another warning from the captain, who didn't quite know what was wrong, but suspected "a woman somewhere." And from the voyage after that Jock didn't return at all.

"He's deserted, in plain English," Captain Harford told Jock's distressed father. "Left the ship at Glasgow, where we touched first. And, what's more, some of the ship's money went with him. I sent him ashore to buy some small stores and gave him the money to pay for them. O, I don't mean he's planned to abscond," seeing his listener turn pale; "I don't think that badly of him. But —well, I'm sure there's a woman in it; he was so eager to get ashore at Glasgow, and I suppose the money was spent on her."

The father made good the money, of course. It wasn't a great deal, and the captain, who liked Jock, was glad enough not to mention that matter to the owners. But he couldn't conceal the fact that the boy was missing, and that, inevitably, meant a black mark on Jock's shipping score. Capt. Harford rehearsed a few sharp things he'd say when the lad turned up, and the lad's father also planned grave adjurations. But neither said anything to Jock, either then or thereafter, because Jock never turned up at all.

THE REV. JOHN GARVEY fairly combed Glasgow until he was called home by the sudden illness of Jock's mother. And he promised her, not many days later, that as soon as she was—better—he'd seek their only child until he found him, and that the finding should mean home for the beloved recreant, loving help rather than reproaches, the beginning of a new life.

Within a few weeks he was free—and lonely—so he at once set about keeping his promise. He had a fair private income, having entered the church rather from conviction than necessity. The rectory was his own, the Dulcy "living" being family property. His wife's small fortune was to be used in finding its missing beneficiary. So as soon as arrangements could be made for a new incumbent the Rev. John Garvey, with a strange feeling of leaving even his accustomed soul behind him, packed his bags and started off.

He had been ten years a-wing when Captain Gaunt asked him to read the burial service, and his unrewarded quest had taken him to strange and distant places. From the regions of deepest cold to the tropics, from the far east to the far west and back again; Spain, Norway, South America, Alaska; China, Germany, Australia, Italy; back and forth, back and forth, with the briefest of interlarding home visits, he had shuttled, always with some will o' the wisp clew before, behind him.

Jock was of the fair, upstanding type so common among young Englishmen. He was not, as his father soon felt sure, using his own name; he probably, moreover, was determined to remain in hiding. All events, all possible search, by sea or shore, hitherto had proved futile. Only on the long journey just concluding had Jock's fast aging father, led by the chance word of an old school friend of Jock's, enjoyed the slightest gleam of success.

But in Johannesburg, staying in the cheap hotel the chance friend had mentioned, he had heard of a young English woman, ill, alone, impoverished, and had sent up his card with the penciled request to be allowed to call upon her if he could be of any service. Promptly he had received the return message that Mrs. Chisholm would be glad to see him indeed.

He found her in the employés' quarters, very weak, very nervous — she cowered away queerly, indeed, at sight of him—in utter, varied need of assistance. She had been at death's door, and the strangeness of another world still hung about her, but she seemed, also, somehow familiar, being much like many other village girls that he had known. She was pathetically glad to talk with some one—any one—from "home," and presently, when he had sympathetically elicited particulars of her plight, she, in turn, told him she thought she could aid him. She—she thought she knew why he was in Johannesburg. She—she had known the name as soon as she saw it; she knew who he was as soon as he entered. Jock had shown her his picture, had spoken of him so often. She—she was Jock's wife.

SHE had no condemnation for Jock, though Jock's father divined that she had suffered much with, possibly through him; though she was here alone, ill, in poverty of the direst. They had loved each other always, she insisted, only they had been unfortunate. Jock had never meant her harm.

"Are you really married to him?" Jock's father asked, a trifle sternly.

"No," with sudden sobbing, "not married, but—it's my own fault that I've not been. Only——" and the whole pitiful story came out.

Jock hadn't betrayed her, and she hadn't schemed for him, either. They'd been the best of friends for—for a long time before either thought of love or marriage. She was working in Liverpool when Jock told her he couldn't live without her, and there was no time for the bans to be published, and they'd no money for a special license, and, anyway, Jock wasn't of age. So they'd meant to wait, since they must, and then—with blushes that proved her modesty still unvanquished—somehow, the night before Jock sailed, their love had—had overcome them. And then—she knew she'd the price to pay.

"So I wrote to Jock where he'd told me," so ran her story, "and told him. He was in China then, but he wrote me to meet him in Glasgow, because it would be easier to get married secretly in Scotland. And then, when the ship touched there, I was ill—that was a long voyage, and the baby was coming—and he couldn't leave me, so the Jarvis sailed without him. And then, well, he was disgraced and disrated, but he didn't think of that until the doctor said I should live."

"And the child! Why weren't you married as soon as you recovered?" the Rev. John inquired, gravely.

"The child died," the girl made sorrowful answer, "and after Jock had been reported missing we were afraid to try getting married under our own names. And then, when we got jobs in the same ship—Jock was cook's helper and I went out as stewardess—they didn't allow married couples, so we were just Mary Jones and John Smith and didn't let on that we'd known one another before. And after we got out here we had such a struggle that we didn't seem to have thought for anything but just living and helping each other, so after a while we forgot all about not being really married. We felt married, somehow. A while back Jock was set upon our going to the parson, but I—wasn't willing. I—I want Jock to make a fresh start, somewhere, and it'll be easier if he's alone."

"And where is Jock?" Jock's father tensely demanded.

"He's on his way home," the girl told him, with mingled pride and pain and pleasure. "We've been saving for it a long time, and we couldn't get together more than enough for one passage. So I made him go by himself."

"And he went, leaving you here, ill and alone?" Jock's father uttered shamed and despairing protest. At that the girl tried to sit upright in her wrath.

"You're not to think ill of him!" she cried hotly. "I made him go. He wouldn't have gone for worlds if he hadn't thought it would be better for me. It broke my heart to say good-by to him; that's why I fell ill as soon as he was gone; but I knew he'd die if I didn't. He's a sick boy, poor Jock is. He's just worn out with trouble and doing work he's not fit for. And I knew he'd be gone for good soon if he didn't have good rest and good food and good care."

"But I can't understand how he could bring himself to desert you after all you'd been through together," the listener heard himself saying. "I can't understand how he could be such a cowardly cad."

And at that the girl crumpled back on her pillows in an agony of shame faced abandon. He didn't understand at all, she presently blurted out, and she—she didn't know how to tell him. There was a—a man, there, in the hotel, who—who liked her. He'd noticed her at her work when Jock was off on a bush job. And she'd—she'd made Jock believe that she—that she liked this other man, and that she'd got money put by somewhere, just so he'd be willing to leave her. But O!—sobbing suddenly—she did hope that some time Jock's father would tell him why she did it. For she didn't love the other man, though he was a nice chap, good and kind and rich into the bargain. She didn't love any one but Jock, bless him! There'd never been any one else for her, really, and never would be. Only, it was the only way to get him to go home.

THE REV. JOHN learned a lot in that moment. His knowledge of human nature always having been rather intensive than extensive, the disclosure of this child's sacrifice amazed him. He had always thought of girls "of that sort" as so different from this abashed, unselfish, gentle slip of a creature. He bade her farewell a little later, saying she must rest, and he would come again on the morrow. And he was strangely moved by the hot, clinging touch of her lips on his hand.

She was calm again next day and greeted him with a shy, wavering smile that made her seem very innocent and girlish and that brought back that first fancy that he surely must have known her before. Asked as to her plans, it seemed she had none. She was not strong enough to work yet and her funds were completely exhausted. She couldn't go home, having no home to go to. Her mother had been long dead and her stepfather had never been good to her. That was why she had gone to Liverpool in the first place. There would be no use in asking him for help even if she could bring herself to it. No; she was better off out here. She'd manage, somehow, as soon as she could—could get turned around.

"But Jock?" Jock's father made quiet suggestion. Why not, since he, Jock's next of kin, was here and most willing to help her, why not go back to England with him, be quietly married, and——

But the girl shook her head with sad determination.

"No, no!" she cried, weeping. "I want Jock to get well and start over. That's why I—I deceived him. And I'm—I'm not of his class; I never was, even though he loved me, and I've seen him with other Englishmen out here. And even the war hasn't changed things so that I wouldn't hamper him in England. I know it, and I'll never live in England with him! And he couldn't live much longer out here."

"And the—the man you spoke of?" the Rev. John Garvey astounded himself by asking, after a long silence. "Does he mean marriage? Does he know just how things stand with you? And could you love him enough to make him a good wife?"

O, yes, it seemed, the man meant marriage. He'd made that clear, and also that he suspected something of the way things were with her and Jock. He'd said something about never making love to a married woman. He was quite straight, she was certain, and could be trusted. But as to loving him—she might be a good wife, perhaps, if she tried hard enough, but she could never, never—weeping again—really love any one but Jock.

Another long silence, then the Rev. John Garvey self-administered a second great surprise.

"I might have a talk with him, find out his intentions," he suggested. And was ashamed before the flood of gratitude this mild friendliness brought out.

The projected talk proved simple. Returning to his own room, the Rev. John Garvey found the man in question waiting outside it. And the man, with likable directness and honesty, explained his presence at once.

He had heard that Mr. Garvey was a clergyman and a friend of—of Mrs. Chisholm. Well, he wanted to marry the lady and was glad to speak to any friend of hers about it. Yes, in answer to a quiet question, he had felt sure of something a little irregular in regard to Chisholm; else he wouldn't have spoken to her. But he knew a good woman when he saw one, and—well, his own life hadn't been spotless. He wouldn't be afraid to be proud of her as his wife.

He had no grudge against Chisholm either, it further developed. A nice fellow, and down on his luck for certain. But Chisholm had—gone, and, anyway, he, the other man, wasn't robbing him. Chisholm, unless a miracle was worked—speaking so easily, not knowing how he tortured the heart of the other — Chisholm was due to cash in his checks shortly. Of course, good English air and good care, if he could get it, but—well, anyway, Chisholm had gone, and the poor, dear girl was stranded. And he'd prove he meant all right by her. He'd marry her today if she was willing. The reverend could marry them himself.

So "the reverend" married them next day, the girl giving, a little reluctantly, the name of "Nellie Mason," the man, with a deprecating grin, adding another name to the two under which he usually traveled. They set off on the honeymoon journey to a better hotel, and the Rev. John Garvey, bestowing his blessing upon them, with a little gift of money for the bride, the promise to let Jock know, if possible, why she had sent him away, and solemn adjurations to forget Jock now and do her duty by her new husband, not forgetting to call upon Jock's father if at any time she needed assistance, took his way to Capetown. Jock had a fortnight's start of him already, and he wanted to be at home as soon as possible after the boy got there. Nellie thought, though she wasn't sure, that Jock would go straight to his father. A comprehensive cable already had carried welcoming directions to the confidential friend who now dwelt in the rectory, the faithful old servant who loved Jock almost as well as himself.

THE call for him came a little before eleven the next morning. With the ship's doctor, who had supplied him with necessary details, he went up on deck. The day was gray, gloomy, foggy. The fog, in fact, came right up to the rail of the vessel, seeming to shut off all the rest of the world with its impalpable, dreary curtain. The clergyman's white and black vestments chimed well with the ghostly gray harmony round about. So did the dull, clinging apparel of the few kind hearted people whom the doctor had asked to be present, the fewer curious ones who had scented something unusual and had come, despite the inclement weather, to linger on the outskirts of the little group gathered near the ship's waist. The gold braid on the captain's uniform provided the sole apparent touch of brightness, relief.

Except the flag, that is. For over the still, canvas swathed form on the improvised bier was spread the glorious standard of the country to which, though long absent, the dead man had yet belonged.

The captain saluted the clergyman. The clergyman, oddly moved, began the service.

"I am the resurrection and the life. I know that my Redeemer liveth——"

The high, brave words rolled out, sonorous, splendid, echoing back strangely from the fog curtain, yet strangely lost, at regular intervals, in the dull blare of the fog whistle. Prayer followed, then, if possible, more solemnly—

"We therefore commit his body to the deep, looking for the general resurrection in the last day and the life of the world to come."

The captain raised a hand, so did the minor officer standing near, so did the cadet a little farther away, so did the able seaman yet more distant. The signal, relayed to the engineer, stayed the ship's progress for a brief moment. Two more cadets held the flag in place, a minor officer gently lifted the inner end of the plank hidden beneath it, the clergyman made the sign of the cross, and through the narrow opening of the rail the weighted body slipped slowly, feet first, and sank, with a fog softened splash, into the sea.

The Rev. John Garvey, sincerely religious, found himself praying instead of preparing for luncheon, and in his simple communion the stray derelict just speeded to eternity and the boy Jock were curiously intermingled. But for the unselfish sacrifice of the girl Nellie it might—it might have been Jock.

LATE that afternoon came a rap at the door, and the Rev. John Garvey opened to the ship's doctor, a pleasant, industrious youngster earning experience at sea. In his hand the visitor held a small package and some papers.

"Are you very busy?" he inquired, being invited to enter. "If not, may I have your help? The captain asked me to go through the effects of the poor devil you ushered out of the world this morning, and there's little enough to go by. We want to communicate with his people, of course, if possible. I don't find any names or addresses, and 'John Smith, Capetown,' the name and address on the poor chap's ticket, don't help much, but here's a photograph with a Dulcy trademark. And I thought, seeing that I understood you to say yesterday that you came from Dulcy, that you might be able to give me a hand."

The doctor gave him two photographs and the dead man's letters, and was suddenly summoned elsewhere.

The clergyman glanced at the girlish face upturned and was shocked into full attention. Of course he knew it! Nellie Martin! Little Nellie of the mill, whom he had known and loved from her cradle. Nellie, who from an unhappy home life had fled to seek work in the nearest city. How well he remembered the good advice and letters of introduction he had given her, and the two or three letters she had written him after getting fairly started in her new life and work. It came to him now that he had practically forgotten her, that he had heard nothing from her directly for some time before his long pilgrimage had begun.

He pondered quietly Nellie's connection with the dead man, laid down the crude village photograph, and took up another. A still cruder photograph, this one, a tintype of Nellie and a tall lad in sailor's costume, the two with linked arms in the usual awkward position. The face of the boy was in shadow and the clergyman glanced but casually at it. He turned instead to the package the doctor had left.

This, being unfolded, disclosed more photographs. Another picture of Nellie, in finer and more sophisticated clothing, with "For the dearest boy in the world" scrawled across the base of it. And a photograph of—Jock!

This time the shock was electric. The Rev. John Garvey shook and shivered as he blankly rescanned the inscription, as hastily hunted out the magnifying glass somewhere among his belongings. Scrutinizing the dim features with its aid, he found them unmistakable. None of the photographs were dated, but no dates were needed by the man who so eagerly examined them. In his quiet library at Dulcy was a duplicate of the early portrait of Nellie, paid for out of her first village earnings; next to his dead wife's portrait, among the most cherished belongings that went everywhere with him, was a duplicate of Jock's portrait—evidently, as a second look betrayed, ruthlessly torn from the frame that had once inclosed it. The tintype, as evidently taken between voyages, was dated by Jock's uniform. And the two more formal portraits were wrapped, with portraits of himself and of Jock's mother, in a silk kerchief on which the mother had embroidered the boy's initials when first he went to sea.

The Rev. John Garvey found himself on his knees again, shortly, tears running down his face, yet with his heart, though broken, somehow lightened of the heavy load that had so long oppressed it. He saw it all now, thought himself blind not to have suspected the truth sooner. Jock had always been fond of Nellie—Nellie Mason she was, in truth, though always, in village manner, called by her stepfather's name—had played with her regularly in childhood, had fought all her childhood battles.

He rose from his knees and began to look through the papers the doctor had handed him. Very few, very simple. The worn purse in the ship's envelope on top contained very little money—about enough, as the father thought with a sob, to have taken the boy to Dulcy. Underneath, a receipt for the passage from Capetown, a clipping or two from English papers—one, dated ten years back, noted the death of Jock's mother—and, thank heaven, a penciled letter beginning "Dear father:——"

The Rev. John Garvey regarded that letter almost with adoration, devouring it hungrily. But it was unfinished and very short.

"Dear Father: I'm on my way home like any prodigal, ill, penniless, wretched. I thought I could last until I got home, but the weather's bad, I've been so bad myself that I had to miss two steamers, and I'm getting doubtful. So there are one or two things I must say.

"I went away with Nellie Martin, father. I can't go into particulars now, but I never meant to wrong her, and she's not a bad girl and never has been. She's stuck to me like a brick, and she's always loved me. But I simply can't work any longer, and I doubt if I live long even if I get to you. So—well, there's a man in Johannesburg who loves Nellie, and he's a good sort of chap and can take care of her. So I've got out. I don't take any stock in her trying to make me think she loves the other fellow; I know she's only doing it to get me to go home without her, because we never could scrape together enough money for two tickets. And I love her as much as ever. But I can't do a thing for her but this, and——"

The letter broke off abruptly, as though the writer's strength had failed suddenly. And, search as the father might, he could find no other word anywhere, no personal message, no hint of love and tenderness for himself. And yet—was not the letter itself indubitable proof of the dead son's love and truth in his own direction? Had he not turned, in his extremity, to his father, knowing that father's love would not fail?

THE Rev. John Garvey laid his cheek against the boyish pictured face for a few moments, then he sat looking at the photograph and the letter until the cheerful young doctor returned.

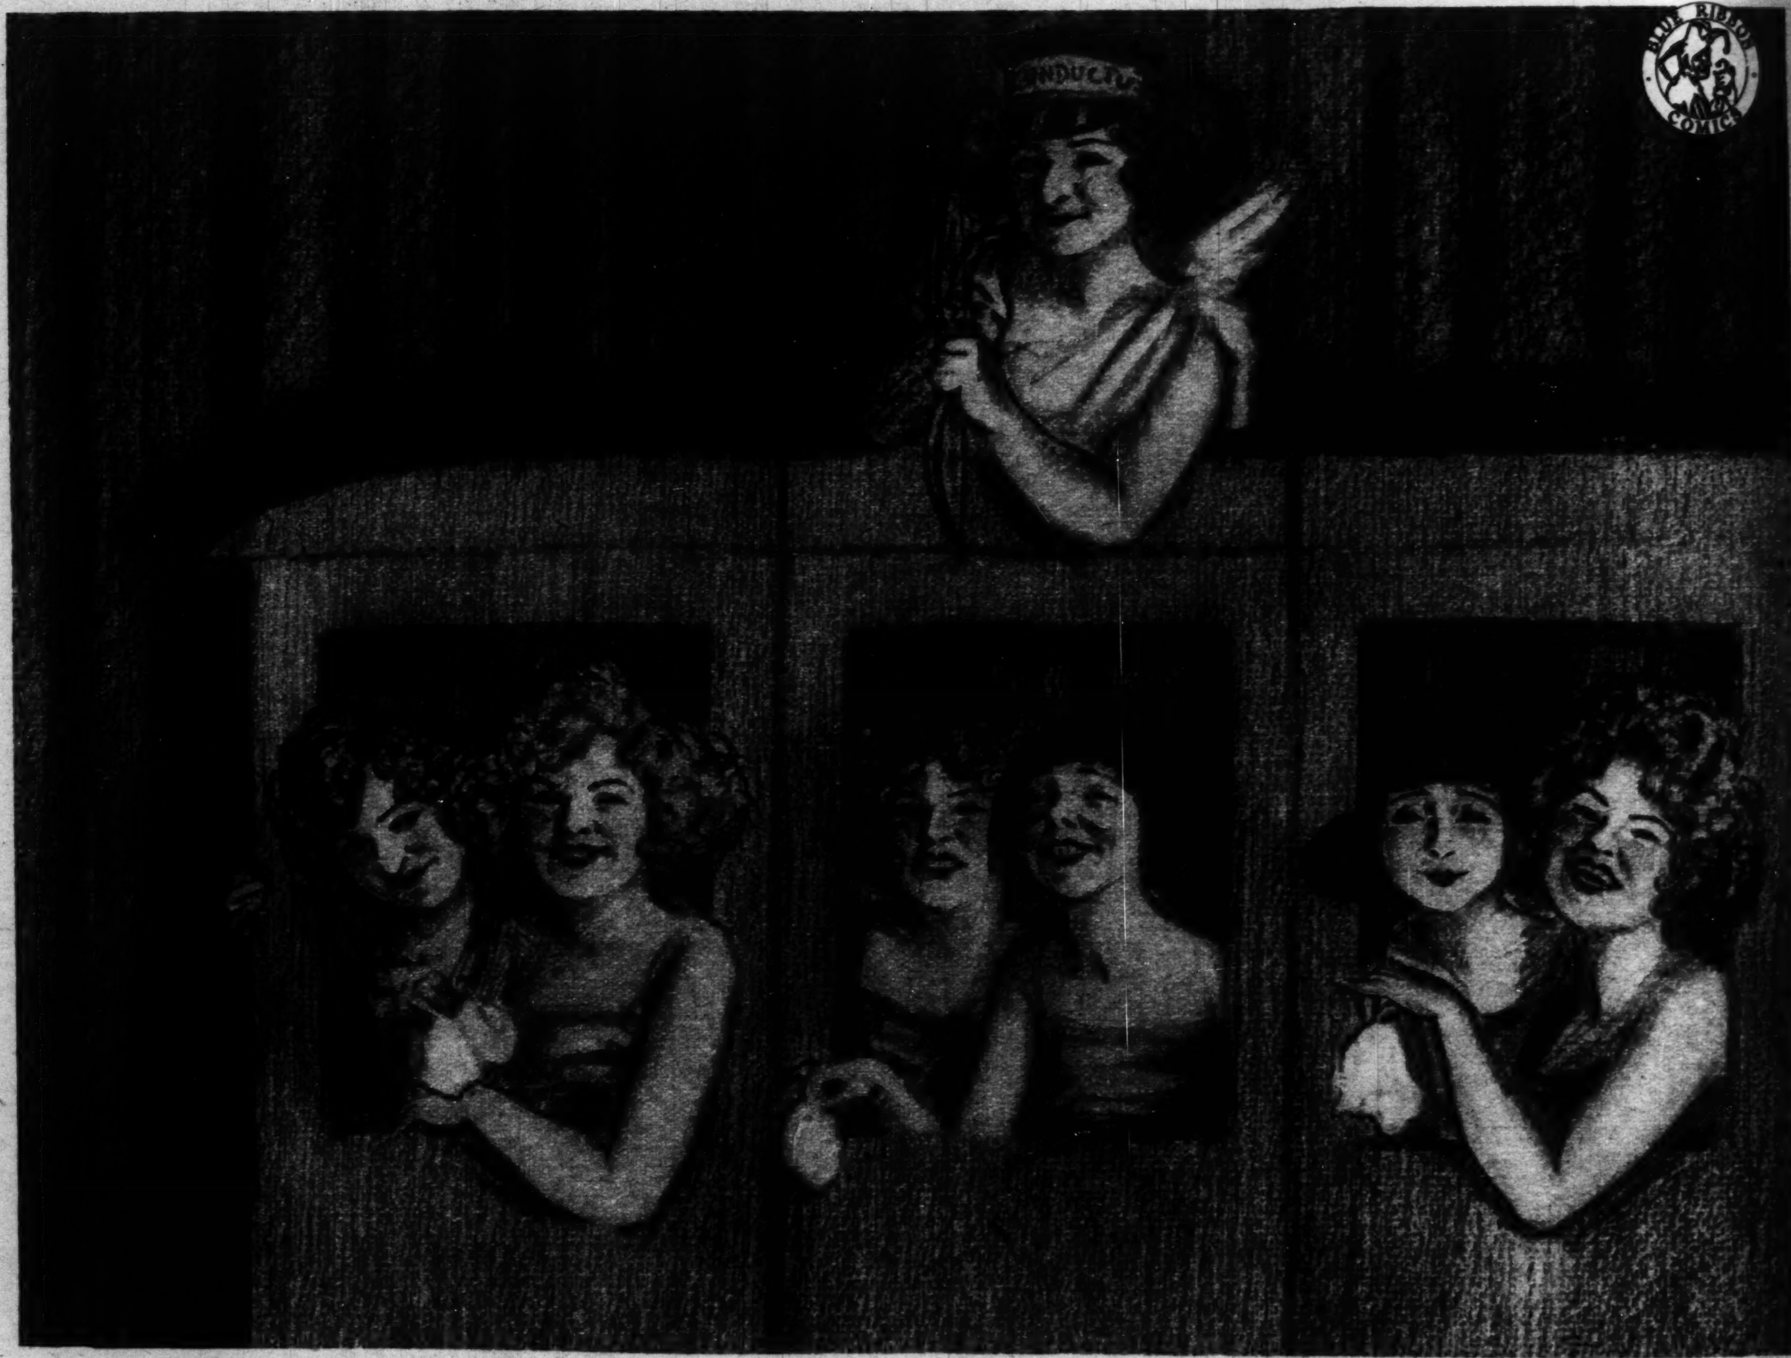
"Sorry I was kept so long, but I had to soothe a woman with sea sick hysteria," he grinned, entering. "Find any trace of the pictured parties? Know who they are?"

"There are no names or addresses," the Rev. John Garvey answered, steadily, "but I have known both young people. They both grew up in my parish, though both left Dulcy long since. The girl (no need to publish their piteous romance, to wear his own heart upon his sleeve, even before the kindliest of fellow humans) evidently was the young man's sweetheart; this, no doubt, is a photograph of them taken together. The girl has no relatives, I believe, but the young man has a—a father living. I can take care of the things and see they are delivered, if you like."

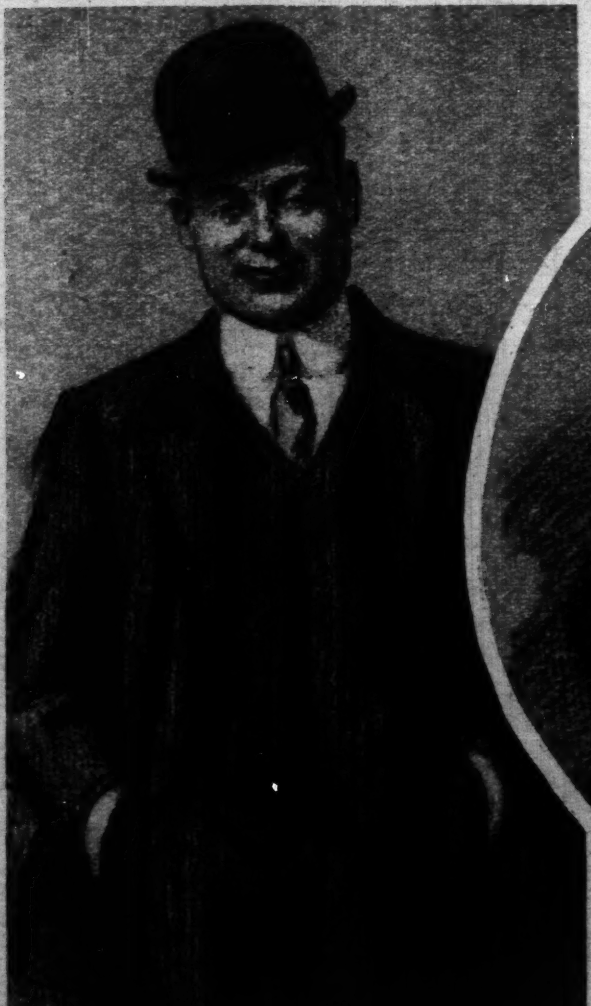
"Will you?" The cheerful young doctor, all unseeing, grasped happily at the suggestion. "Awfully good of you. I'll tell the captain. Yes," picking up Jock's portrait (the Rev. John Garvey had quietly laid his own and his wife's aside), "that's the dead chap, all right, allowing for the change sickness and death had worked. 'John Smith,' noting the disposition of John Smith's effects on the memorandum he had brought with him. "'Date of death, Nov. 18, 1921.'"

He nodded and smiled his way out, and the Rev. John Garvey, quietly replacing the photographs in the embroidered kerchief, looked with a sad but tender smile at the loving face of Jock's mother.

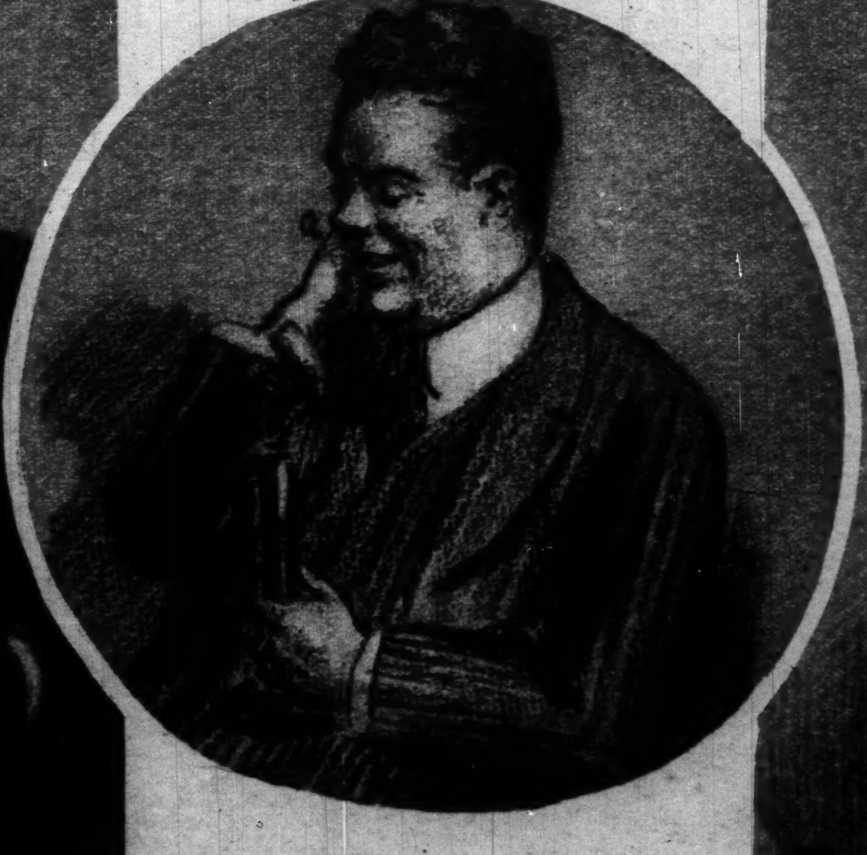
"I did the best I could, dear," he murmured, "and, anyway, he turned to us at the last, with a new life before him, and—he was coming home!"



The theatrical managers know just what to do about the tired business man and do it by bringing on the chorus. In this number—the second encore of "I'll Build You a Railroad of Love, Dear," in that snappy revue, "Let's Be Frank"—the girls have gone and put a railroad car together out of scenery and are having the grandest time! What will they do next!



The reg'lar feller—a big, strong, silent man and a little cutup all rolled into one, is the automobile salesman.



"Good morning! Is this Mr. Gallagher? This is Mr. Shean speaking." The junior member of the house of Kittywake underwear is calling up a friend. It's one of those comic telephone conversations.

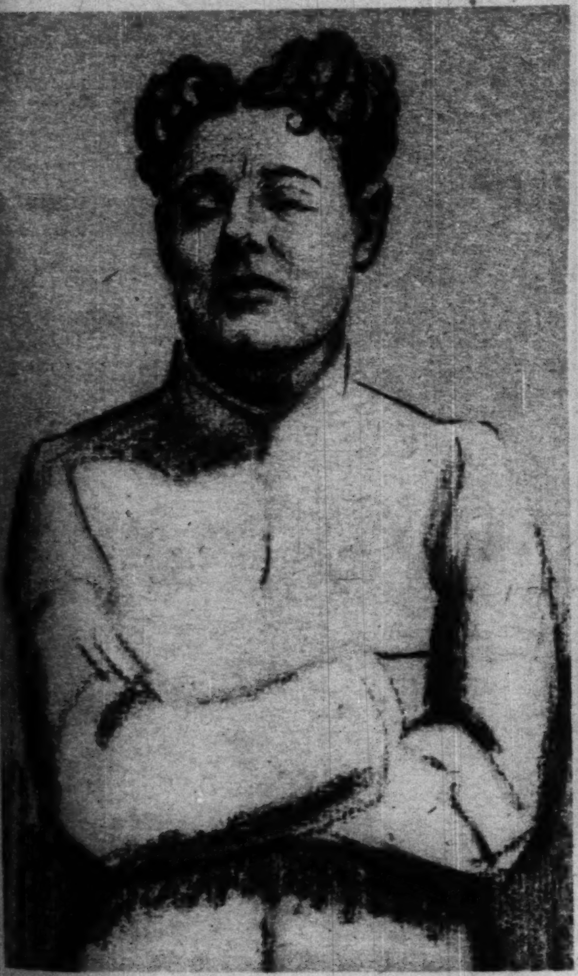
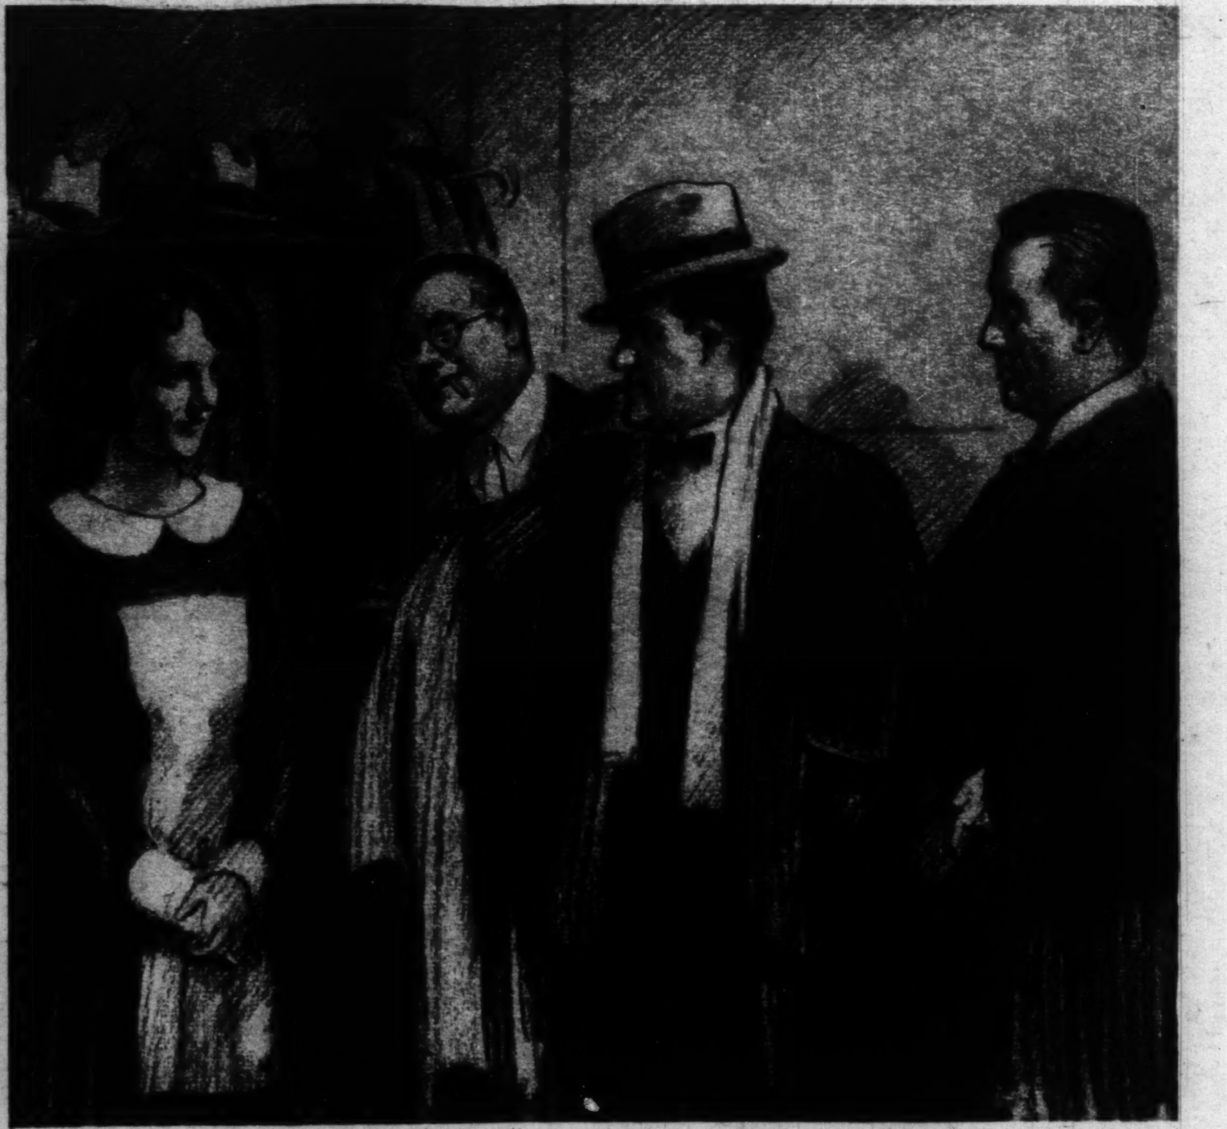
The Tired Business Man

By W. E. HILL

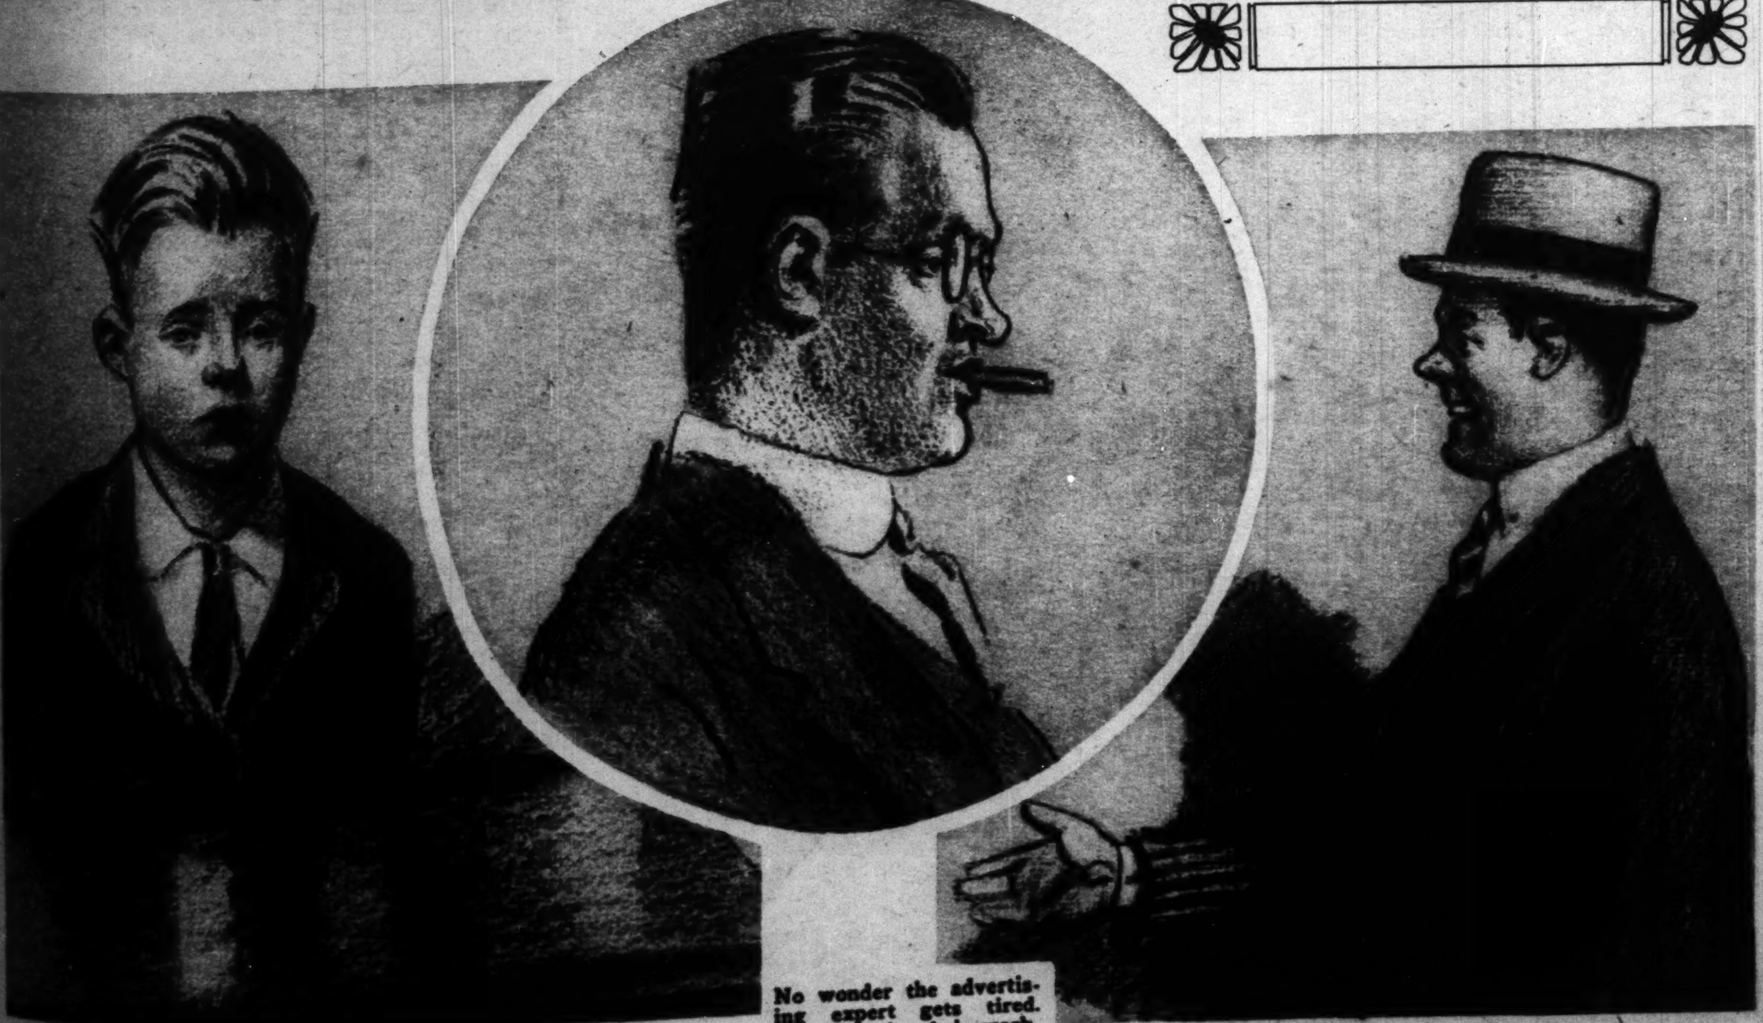
Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune



The tiredest of T. B. M. is the young man at the soda fountain. O, the languid way he tosses his curls before starting in on the egg chocolate!



What makes the tired business man so tired? That's what his wife would like to know once and for all. Well, for one thing, entertaining the out of town clients at the Club Petite cabaret, or the Oneonta room of the Hotel Ruggles, has a lot to do with that tired feeling. Clients on a party never want to go home sober. Or go home at all for that matter. (This is the third time these past two weeks Mr. Graus has had to do the honors with out of town clients. It is near closing time at the dance palace and yet neither Mr. Maginnis nor Mr. Schwartz wants to go home. They are trying to annex the coatroom girl to their party and go over to Stauch's.)



Day in and day out Robert sits behind the mahogany desk looking busy only at those times when the boss comes through. At other times he is a typical T. B. M. Robert's duty is to come back and tell the applicant that so and so is at a conference and can't see no one. Occasionally when the boss needs to make an extra impression on a visiting client he will open a door leading into Robert's anteroom and say, "This is our reimbursement department." Robert has adenoids.

No wonder the advertising expert gets tired. This morning he's working on the "Princess Crosspatch Hairnet" campaign and it's uphill work, what with one person wanting this and another that.

The successful handshaker is a very buoyant personality. Always handing around business cards in case some one forgets his telephone number. After a busy day of backslapping and "Well, hel-lo, Eddie—Well, well, well, how's the old kid!" etc., the buoyant personality is all used up. Home for the night with the wife and kiddies, the handshaker becomes just a tired business man.

THOROUGHLY COWED

"What final meal, maestro? He has eaten his last."

"You do not understand," Buck was condescending now. "You do not know the last dose that is given him?"

"I know of no dose, maestro." Esteban felt his world slipping.

"It is well I asked. It is quite possible you do not know my methods. You have done what you can with the animal, but I have a preparation which I give to every bull just an hour before he goes into the ring. It adds to his ferocity beyond human reckoning. It makes him a giant in strength, untiring in endurance, a monster in rage. With my own hands I will prepare it for you, and you will give it to him just one hour before he is led before me tomorrow. Let no one but yourself do this thing."

Esteban bowed in shame that he had not heard of this latest refinement in the so great sport.

"It shall be as the maestro directs."

Buck almost danced his way back to the carriage. If only he could see the American consul alone for five minutes the thing was done. Straight to the consulate he drove, and fortune was still with him.

Sam Robbins was alone. He listened for a minute in silence and astonishment to the famous matador—had he not helped receive him?—then doubled with laughter. Buck finally managed a grin, and when the shouting died went on with his story. A few minutes later, with a little package tightly grasped in his hand, he drove away from the consulate and back to Esteban and the bull. There he prepared a mash with enough morphine to kill half the bulls of Milfuegos, and, whistling blithely the toreador song from Carmen, he rode away to see the charming Mariana.

Buck had made up his mind to propose. He would quit this matador thing after this one scrap and settle down. He would go into business and, with the general behind him, make enough money to go back to the States in a couple of years. Mariana would knock 'em dead in Minneapolis. Life was pretty good, after all, if you just knew how to manage. Being a matador was a cinch if you used your brains.

SO at ease was Don Mateo Escobal in the household of Gen. Gonzales he was permitted to enter unannounced through the garden gate. Mariana usually was there to greet him. Today she wasn't, and he was almost in the patio when he heard strident voices, one angry voice. It sounded familiar, but it couldn't be. Mariana could never talk like that. Mariana could, and frequently did.

Through a torrential burst of Spanish, tumbling headlong from those beautiful curling lips, denunciations with the fluency of the Castilian, Buck managed to catch a few phrases.

"You shall not sit in the principal box."

Mariana strode as she talked. Viciously she lifted the perrecito, the tiny dog which shared her tempers with her father, to the other end of the patio with a sharply pointed toe. Through the wails of the pup Buck heard more.

"You and your stupid jefe and your dull almirante shall not be with me. I shall be alone. Is he not mine? Is not the honor coming to him to be mine also?" and the cooing voice of Mariana reached the proportions of a calliope on that last "mine."

"But, Mariana, how can I explain?" the general gave an impression of ducking a possible missile by the tone of his voice.

"Explain? What should I care? Tell them I do not care for them. For me alone is the principal box where he shall come to me and lay his triumph at my feet so all Milfuegos, all the world shall see."

"But, Mariana——" in truth the general must have ducked now, because he broke off short, and Buck stepped back just in time to dodge a hurtling object, flying through the door, to fall with a crash on the stones of the walk. It was a little marble clock that had stood on Mariana's table.

When the clock stopped Buck started. A marble clock was one of the ornaments in Buck's dream home when he should cease roving. It would tick off the flying moments of love. He moved off silently and rapidly, almost slinkingly, through the garden gate. He didn't leave so that he might approach from the front and ring the doorbell decorously. He went away from there and stayed not on his going. Safe in his room, he bowed three times to the east, rapped on wood, crossed his fingers, and wrote a note.

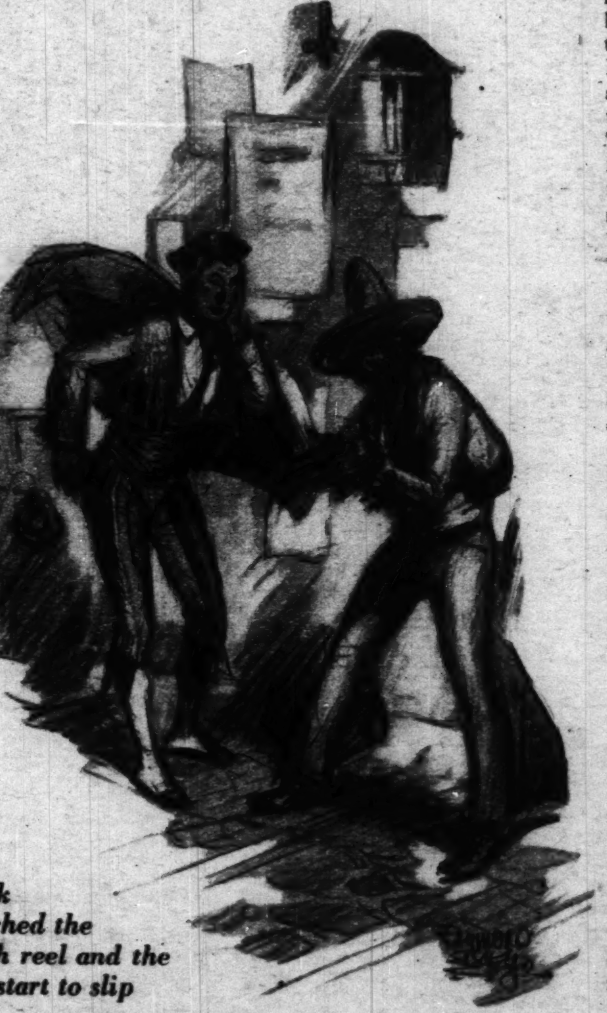
Mariana read it later that afternoon. Don Mateo Escobal assured her of his devotion, but explained that he must deny himself all pleasure, even the greatest of pleasures, a vision of her beauty, until the fiesta. He reminded her that he would call to drive her to the plaza de toros.

Gen. Gonzales found urgent political affairs that kept him out that night until Mariana was asleep.

THE day of the fiesta dawned cloudless, but Milfuegos was almost hidden under a cloud of dust, raised by the shuffling feet of the thousands gathered from the surrounding country for the bull fight. Outside the Hotel Grande cheering throngs brought Don Mateo Escobal bowing and smiling to the window.

He could afford to smile. The old brain of Buck Thomas had made everything jake for the famous matador he was to be until after 2 o'clock. Then the Siboney was due in, and life would once more be worth while. The bull was fixed, and so was Mariana.

Buck knew everything was all right with him or he would never have been able to walk in on that conversation just in time to save himself from a lot of trouble. Any girl that could stand General Gonzales on his ear would never be Mrs. Buck Thomas. That was one of the jobs of the matador that Buck Thomas wouldn't take on. He might not be able to get any morphine.



Buck watched the earth reel and the sky start to slip

There at the fighters' entrance to the arena stood Esteban and the satellites of the great Mateo. They bowed to the ground as the matador assisted Mariana from the carriage and handed her over to the waiting general. Smilingly Don Mateo greeted his retinue.

"Is all arranged, Esteban?"

"It is, maestro."

The matador drew him aside and asked softly, "The mixture, what of that?"

"I presented it to him as directed, but so great was his rage the beast ground it into the earth. The maestro need have no alarm. He will be ferocious. Hear him roar in rage."

And indeed he roared. Roared most fortunately, because it covered the groan which arose from the heels of the buckled slippers of Buck Thomas, who watched the earth reel and the sky start to slip from its moorings. The bull hadn't eaten the mixture? He had ground it into the earth? Maybe——

"Did he not eat any of it?" Possibly the taste had made him sore. If he got a mouthful that would help some. Buck didn't know how much morphine a bull could stand, but he had loaded that mash to the ultimate.

"Not one single grain, maestro." Esteban trembled at the wild look in the eyes of the great matador. "He drove me from the small gate before I could rearrange the wonderful mixture. He spurned it with his feet. But, indeed, señor, he is ferocious."

Ferocious? Buck knew he was ferocious. He knew he was going to be more and more ferocious, and he would have nothing to tame him with except a little sword. A little sword? Now it seemed but a penknife. Not that the size would make any difference. Unless he could get away pronto his troubles would be over within an hour. A few minutes more or less would not make any difference. The cheers of the admiring multitudes waiting outside the gate for Don Juan Mateo Escobal, the great matador, didn't relieve the feelings of Buck Thomas, who had talked too much about his desire for a man-eating bull. But Buck would go down game. The glare he turned upon Esteban almost withered that functionary's soul.

"A thousand million pardons, maestro, but I could not prevent it. Of a surety but he is ferocious, of a ferocity that will satisfy even so great a one as you."

"Basta! You have failed. My plans have miscarried."

TREMBLING with failure, Esteban threw open the gate and bowed as Buck Thomas walked through, wondering whether his knees would hold him until he could get to a place to sit down. His one idea was to stall off this fight until the Siboney got in. Then he might try to make a run for her before the crowd could get him. But there was no Siboney.

Buck decided there was nothing to it but to stall as long as possible. He owed it to Don Mateo to kick off as bravely as he could, so he was a noble figure as he entered the ring in the solemn procession before the fight. Whatever did duty for a welkin in Milfuegos rang to the thousand throated cheer that greeted him.

From her box in solitary grandeur Mariana smiled upon him — that proprietary, possessing smile of charming women who think they have a male just where he should be. The general doffed his hat most statelily. Around the ring went the procession, and back beneath the box of Mariana, where it halted.

Then a gate was opened at the opposite side of the ring. For a moment there was an empty space. Then it was filled by a red eyed, flaming nostrilled bull that somehow had changed into the proportions of an elephant since Buck last viewed him.

"El toro! El toro!" went up the cry from the thousands.

"Cheer on, boys, you don't know just how much toro there is going to be in this performance," Buck told himself.

And beside Buck there stood another who viewed the bull with no feeling of satisfaction, but not for the same reason. That other was Manuelo Moreno, who accompanied the great matador so that he might see at first hand how a master delivered the telling thrust. This was to have been Manuelo's bull, but now it was another's. Manuelo gritted his teeth and waited.

Nor did he have long to wait, because the bull hesitated but a moment, then dashed straight for the group beneath Mariana's box.

Galloping horses, flaming cloaks flaunted in his face, loud cries—nothing checked that tearing rush which brought up with crashing force against the barrier behind which Buck and Manuelo disappeared with more speed than grace.

This rush was but the first of many which followed in rapid succession. Never was there such a bull, such ferocity, such endurance, such wild rage of destruction. Chulo, picador, banderillero, nothing could tire him down. Three horses he caught in his mad rushes. Every man in the ring went over the barrier to escape his charges.

Buck stood and watched. He figured just how long the crowd was going to wait before it yelled for the matador. This stuff had been going on for an hour now. And the bull was still going strong. Buck patted himself at different places, wondering which one the bull would strike for.

Manuelo could restrain himself no longer. "When will the maestro deliver the stroke?"

The maestro didn't answer. He treated Manuelo with cold disdain. Besides he wanted to keep his eye on that bull. It had almost caught him once when he tried a half way smile up at Mariana.

Even bulls tire sometimes, and the rushes of this particular toro shortened. He began to weave his head from side to side. The banderilleros approached more nonchalantly and placed their darts.

"The stroke," yelled one of the bleacher seats. The others took it up.

"The stroke! The stroke!"

DON MATEO'S moment had come. But it wasn't the kind of moment the crowd thought. Buck thought it was his last. And as the last note died out of the call for the stroke Buck heard clear the whistle of the Siboney in the harbor. That must have stirred his benumbed brain.

The great matador stepped out into the ring. He turned and beckoned Manuelo to his side. He looked up at Mariana as though bidding her good-by. He meant it to be.

Turning to Manuelo, Don Mateo stepped out of the picture and Buck Thomas took charge. He tossed Manuelo the red cloak and with a bow handed him the muleta, the short sword of the matador.

"Señor, to you be the honor. I cannot deprive Milfuegos of the glory due its own hero. I would not feel right here," and Buck laid his hand upon his heart.

Manuelo Moreno had always believed in miracles, but he thought they happened to other persons. Never did he hope to be present at one. To take part in a miracle as the chief actor was beyond his comprehension. Dazedly he stared around in the silence that fell on the arena.

What had happened to him, Manuelo Moreno? Did he but dream? Thousands of times he had pictured this great moment, and here it was. Hesitatingly he stepped toward the bull. Then halted.

"Ah, Manuelito, have you the fear?" taunted a bleacher seat. "Give back the sword; let the real matador deliver the stroke."

That settled it. Real matador, eh? Was he not a matador? Had he not learned in the butcher's pens? Then did Manuelo Moreno mount to fame, for he stood before the short rush of the so-ferocious bull, and, as he had done with the haggard steers on the plains beyond Milfuegos, he drove home the glistening steel.

A cheer leader would have sold his soul to get hold of a crowd that could lift itself in one mighty rush of sound as did those Milfuegans, when the great matador stood smiling as the home town boy showed that a sandlot matador could deliver the goods when he got in big company. Don Mateo Escobal himself hastened to drape a chain from his own shoulders around the neck of Don Manuelo, the pride of Milfuegos.

A silver sliver arched in the sky; myriad stars winked at myriad myriad fireflies which winked again; phosphoric was the wake of the Siboney. But though that celestial night there was no smile in the house of Gonzales. There was wailing and tearing of hair, as welling tears dropped from the lustrous eyes of Mariana on the brave coat of Don Mateo Escobal. It had been found with his hat on the shore of the bay with the going of the sun.

There was a choking gasp and a crash from the main saloon. Capt. Hardie of the Siboney, twelve hours out of Milfuegos, southbound, dashed from his cabin and stopped at the sight which met his eyes. His most important passenger was stretched unconscious upon the floor, and over him stood Buck Thomas, with his fists tightly clenched.

"What's this? What are you about? Why did you hit him, Buck?" demanded Capt. Hardie.

"He asked me if I knew how to play stud poker."

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

WHAT GOGO AND THE DUNCE SAW.

BY WM. DONAHEY.

IT had rained during the night—not hard, just a soft, gentle spring rain—and when the warm sun came up in the morning one could almost hear the tiny buds struggling to open. The birds were happy, and they sang with all their might, while the bees flew everywhere in the warm air.

Even Mr. Toad felt the spring weather, 'way down deep in the ground under the big heap of stones where he had burrowed in the fall. All winter he had slept while the ground was covered with snow and ice, but now he knew he could come out, and he began to wiggle his toes, for they were quite stiff from sleeping so long. Little by little he worked his way towards the surface of the ground, and towards evening he sat blinking in the twilight. He was hungry from his long fast, and he quickly devoured several huge angleworms which the warm rain had brought to the top of the ground.

"Now I must hurry to the pond," he said to himself, and he set off with business-like hops towards a small pond that lay near by. This pond was the meeting place for all the toads in the neighborhood, and every spring they gathered there in great numbers. Mr. Toad smiled to himself as he hopped along, for he was sure to meet many old friends; but O, Mr. Toad, why didn't you wait until the next day? However, probably you would have met Mr. Skunk just the same.

Mr. Skunk enjoyed the spring weather, too, and as evening drew near he set out, in his slow, lazy manner, in search of food. He picked up a few worms and bugs, but that was not quite to his liking; he wanted something more filling.

"A nice fat bird would taste well," he muttered to himself. "Or even a toad would do."

Now Mr. Toad came hopty hip, hopty hip, on his way to the pond, right towards Mr. Skunk, but Mr. Toad never saw Mr. Skunk, for there were so many stones and so much grass about it was quite impossible for a short fellow like Mr. Toad to see far ahead.

Two Teenie Weenies saw Mr. Skunk, and they probably would have warned Mr. Toad had they known that he was in the neighborhood, but they never saw the fat little fellow until it was too late.

The Dunce and Gogo had been in the woods all afternoon digging up May apple roots for the Doctor.

They had gathered a big bag of the roots, which the Doctor used in his medicine, and were on their way home when they saw Mr. Skunk. The two Teenie Weenies had stopped to rest when they discovered Mr. Skunk, so they slipped behind a stone and fairly held their breath, hoping the ugly fellow would pass by without discovering them.

Mr. Skunk slowly walked towards them, and just as the two Teenie Weenies were about to run he stopped. Very carefully, most carefully, the Teenie Weenies peered over the top of the stone behind which they were hidden, and they were just in time to see Mr. Toad hop into sight. Mr. Toad never let on that he saw Mr. Skunk, and tried to hop by, but Mr. Skunk reached out with one of his front feet and turned Mr. Toad over on his back. Mr. Toad never uttered a sound. He just lay out flat and pretended that he was asleep. Mr. Skunk chuckled in a wicked way and began to knead Mr. Toad and to roll him around, much as though he was kneading bread. After Mr. Skunk had kneaded Mr. Toad for a few seconds Mr. Skunk sniffed of Mr. Toad, and then—but the two Teenie Weenies saw no more, for they ran—how they ran! A deer mouse could not have kept up with them as they sprinted for home. The Dunce led most of the way, but when he stumbled and fell over a hickory nut shell Gogo took the lead, but only for a short distance, for the Dunce soon took the lead again, which he kept until they burst into Teenie Weenie village.

When the two Teenie Weenies had told the rest of the little people of what they had seen every one was much impressed. The Lady of Fashion cried. The General shook his head solemnly; but the Indian, who knew much about the ways of skunks and toads, only grunted and smiled sadly.

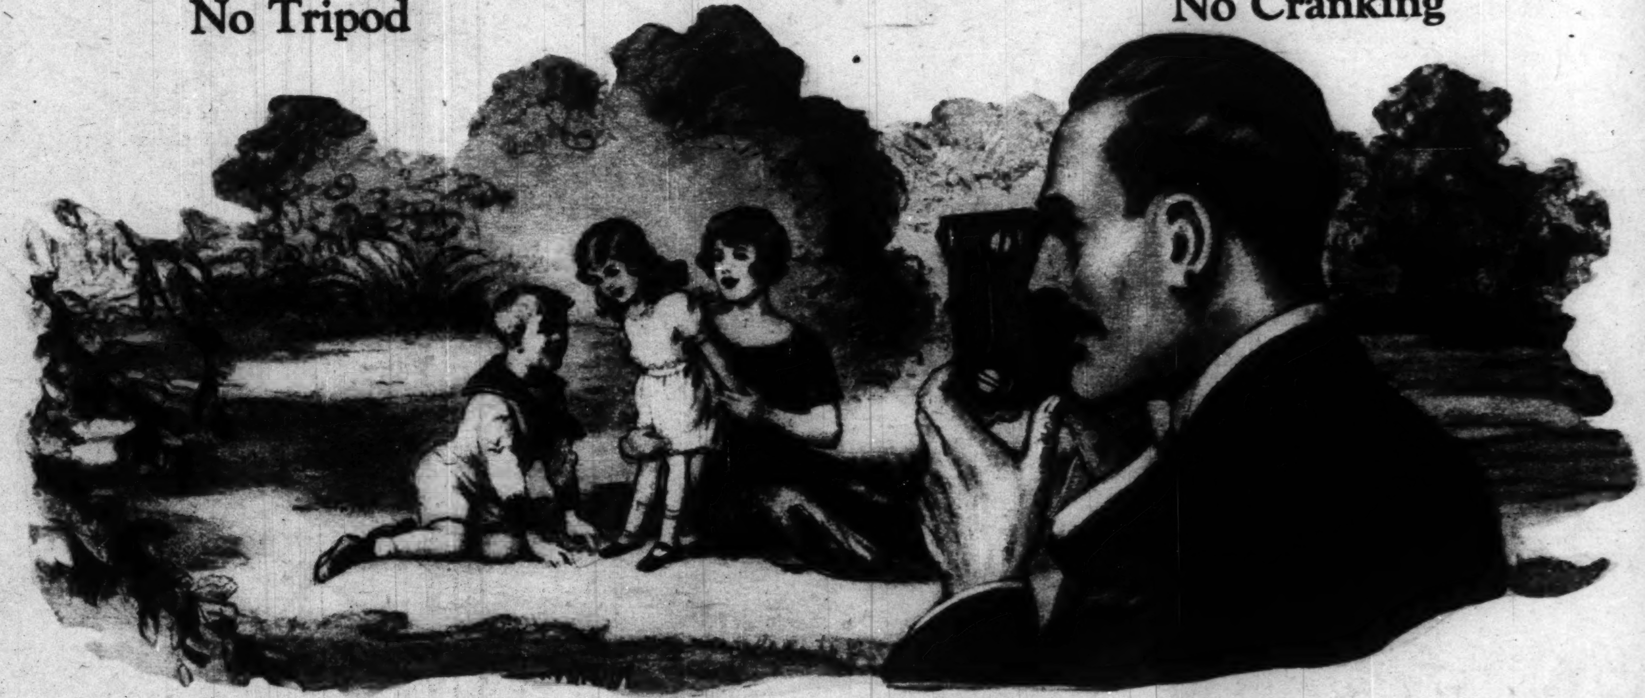
Make your own Movies

No Tripod

No Cranking



Such fine motion pictures

as only experts could take before—now yours easily

ALMOST over night the remarkable change has come about. Years have been spent on preparations. And now, at last, Sept takes motion picture making out of the exclusive control of professionals and gives it to all—ALL.

Sept is just a hand-full of a camera. You do not crank Sept; you merely press a button and it does the reeling. You do not use a cumbersome tripod; Sept rests in the hand as lightly as a pair of books. How different from yesterday's heavy labor with the awkward professional camera. A child can use Sept.

But the pictures are not different. Sept pictures are the same in size, clearness and smoothness of action as those of professionals. Explorers and travel-lecturers have used Sept during the past year, have shown the pictures on the screen and you have not detected any difference. So, too, with news-reels at the theater.

Motion Pictures at home—a marvelous entertainment

Pictures of children at play; they are kept playing on the screen in your home, playing with the same winsome grace years after they have grown up. What a record to keep!

A simple projector makes your home the happy meeting place of family and friends in your Sept movies. Pictures of your travels; you bring them home and you, your family and your friends re-live the scenes again. Pictures of hunting and fishing trips, pictures of your game at its best, of your companions and business associates. These are not stiffly posed snap-shots, but pictures fairly tingling with natural action.

At your call, right in your own home, they step out upon the screen, and carry you back into the incidents they come from.

These very days there are scenes happening all about you which you will always regret not having put into Sept Motion Pictures. More than two thousand Sept Cameras are now in use in America, and many more are taking pictures in France and England. This even before public attention was focused on Sept. And tomorrow you yourself can start taking Sept Motion Pictures.

In addition to taking motion pictures the Sept Camera is instantly adjusted to the taking of snap-shots or time-exposures. Merely a turn of a dial. You press the same button. It is entirely automatic and the fine lens gives beautifully clear definition, whatever type of picture you take.

Go and see Sept at any place where cameras are sold. Feel the lightness of Sept, its perfect balance in the hands. Examine its marvelous reeling mechanism that makes motion pictures at the pressure of a button.

For information on the specialized uses of Sept and the testimony of prominent people who have so used it, address

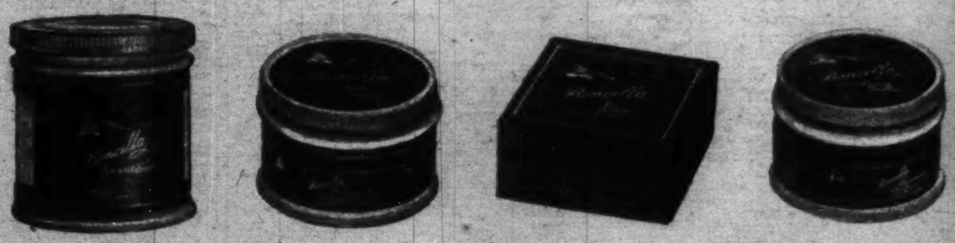
DO YOU REMEMBER WAY BACK WHEN----

THE FAMOUS ELLEN TERRY was at the top of her wonderful career? Since 1856 she has been one of the leading figures of the English speaking stage. Of late years she has graced the movies, too.

OSMOND TEARLE led his own company on the speaking stage of America, England, and even Africa? He was the step-father of Conway Tearle, idol of the girls who like the movies. When did Osmond thrive? Please don't ask —we might tip off Conway's age.

FREDERICK B. WARDE, famous English Shakespearean actor and manager, first played in America? Probably you don't—that was in 1874. But he was back on the eastern stage just a few years ago.

HENRIETTA CROSMAN first began to win fame in a stage career that has lasted forty years? She made her debut 'way back in 1883 in that old, familiar friend, "The White Slave." The late Charles Frohman starred her in various productions.



The Stenographer's Beauty Requires Unusual Care

If you are a stenographer, you know what a nerve strain and tension you are working under day in and day out. When you finish at night, you know you are tired and nervous, but do you know what is happening to your complexion?

If you could see your face in a mirror while you are typewriting, you would probably observe a set, rigid expression which is gradually causing tiny, downward lines to appear at the corners of your lips and about your eyes. This is the result of the constant noise and the physical effort required to operate your machine and will eventually cause the facial muscles to droop and sag and the fine lines to become wrinkles.

You need exceptional facial treatment to counteract this tendency, and the one especially fitted to meet your need is

Boncilla

BEAUTIFIER
The Clasmic Clay

Boncilla Beautifier is a most unusual remolding and revitalizing face pack. It is a blue gray clasmic clay which contains certain medicinal qualities that act upon the skin just as famous mineral baths act upon the body—cleansing it thoroughly, drawing out impurities, stimulating the circulation, and revitalizing the nerve tissues.

Other Modern Habits Are Detrimental to Complexion Beauty

Steam heated apartments and badly ventilated rooms dry the natural oils of the skin, causing it to appear dull and lifeless.

Smoke-laden air fills the pores with accumulations of dust and dirt that cannot be eliminated with ordinary methods.

Crowded cars and automobiles discourage exercise and fresh air necessary to a good complexion.

Rich food and irregular meal time causes blemishes and imperfections to appear.

Late hours and artificial recreation cause dull, tired faces and drooping facial muscles.

Boncilla Beautifier Meets a Definite Complexion Need

Remember, a woman is only as old as her complexion. And Boncilla Beautifier keeps you looking young.

It Is Easy to Use BONCILLA

You simply spread this fragrant clay on the face with your finger tips and allow it to dry. It requires no tedious rubbing or massaging; the method of application is as inviting as the results are delightful. You will experience a wholly new sensation while Boncilla is drying. You can feel its invigorating action going to the very depths of the pores; you can feel its exhilarating, beautifying processes bringing out your natural beauty—creating a new beauty that is deeper than skin deep.

Successful business women realize that to attain the greatest efficiency in any undertaking, the finest available tools must be used. And just as you would find it impossible to turn out the best work with a poor typewriter, you will find it impossible to acquire that real, deeper-than-skin-deep complexion beauty with any inferior clay pack. Keep in mind that Boncilla is the original, genuine, clasmic facial pack, and the only one that can accomplish this deeper-than-skin-deep complexion beauty.

BONCILLA Beautifier is the original, Genuine Clasmic Clay Pack.

Boncilla Is Guaranteed to do these six definite things for the face or your money will be refunded.

1—Clears the complexion and gives it color.

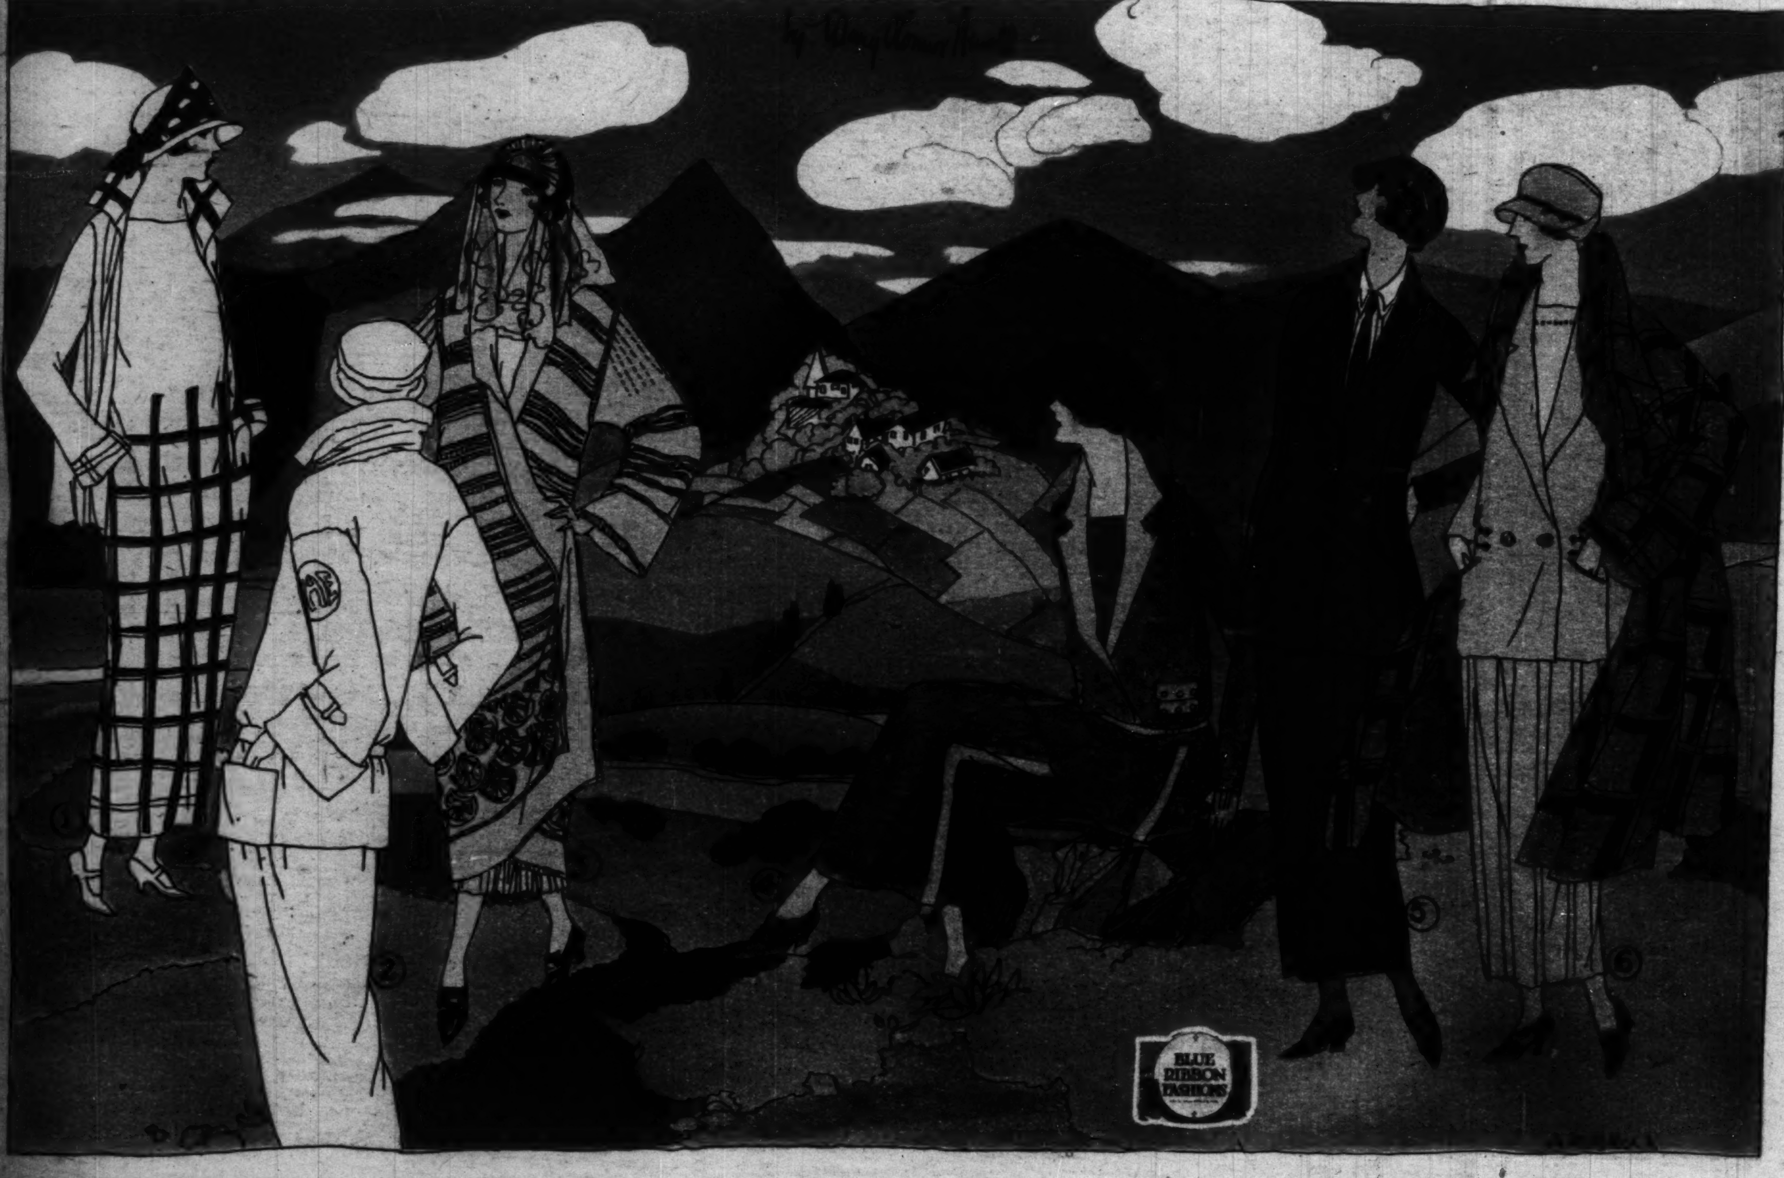
Travel Togs That Would Shake Off the Dust of Many Pharoahs



This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

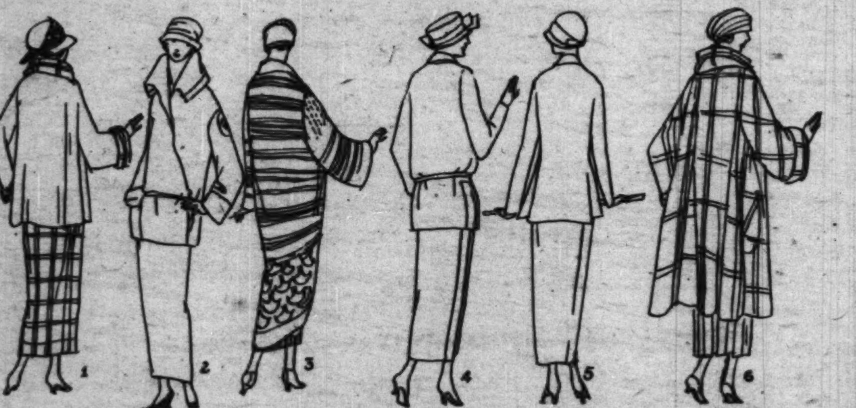
SHE is starting on a trip—Colorado, the Grand canyon, California. She wishes to take clothes with her that will be appropriate for outdoor wear now and practical for use later on her return. What do I advise?

"Will sports things be popular this summer?" she asks.

"More so than ever!" I can answer to that, and feel the time well spent discussing her problem, while the wrinkles are being ironed out of the first importations off the boats from the Paris openings, and the horizon is still obscured, in the minds of many, by threats of change in the weather, due to the discovery of old Tut-Ankh-Amen's actual whereabouts.

The dust raised by textile makers and garment manufacturers debating the issue of whether to make more or less Egyptian patterns and clothes, against a style furore that may or may not continue at fever pitch, is comparable only to that raised in the Valley of Kings by the original excavators. And an early Easter makes spring style showings seem unusually late. We can afford to take a little trip today.

Before starting I may say that those who have hewn closely to the line observed at smart gatherings in New York and at Palm Beach, as illustrated in these columns, need have no fear of anything that is coming out of the trunks of buyers of French styles. There are no radical spring changes in style. The flat back, or, as some put it, rather gruesomely, the unbroken back line, is conspicuous, but not universal. The rule of the straight, slender line is generally observed, but not altogether. There are ripples, and flares, and even some bustles. The pleasing, soft beauty of clothes, and liberty to handle the three piece suit much as you please, so long as you wear it, are outstanding notes. The new clothes only multiply instances of the popularity of braiding embroidery, the use of fabric contrasts, within the lines of the silhouette to which we have become accustomed.



OTHER VIEWS OF TODAY'S DRAWINGS.

I would ask our traveler to get a topcoat first of all—a genuine camel's-hair, if she can afford it. They are not new, but in fine taste, and the camel's-hair vogue is strong this spring both in suits and topcoats. The newest coats are fleece finished plaids and the like. The figure at the extreme right wears a splendid example of what I mean, a cocoa colored fleece finished utility garment, with black plaid. Such a coat is youthful, smart for motoring, boat trips, or standing by on a cool day watching sports on the tennis court or the links. The preferred length is three-quarters and the cut is the swing back with the regular sleeve.

She wears under the coat in the drawing a suit of beige kasha, the box coat piped in black and the skirt tightly box plaited. A white crêpe de chine overblouse couched with black thread goes with this. In her bag she could have a beige colored blouse, more or less embroidered, to wear with the skirt, converting it into a two piece dress. The embroidery would carry colors toning it up with another hat, besides the simple felt with its black ribbon trimming which she now wears.

The strictly tailored suit next to her, second from the right, is an admirable style. It is navy blue Poiret twill and has a flare. Finger tip and even longer suit coats appear often in the modes now arriving from Paris, in navy blue, too, many of them, or tan. And these suits, in faille, soft cloth, or twill, as the case may be, run largely to navy, carrying a mandarin blue trimming contrast, either of handwork or fabric, or bisque with beige, or beige with tan.

Third from the right is a suit illustrating fabric contrasts in trimming. Gabardine is used, beige trimming brown. This is a side fastened model, with slender, tailored collar and lapels, and cunning pocket trim set on the body of the coat. It is girdled and suggests a Norfolk. The straight skirt carries a band of the beige, as if part of the vertical piece on the coat. There is a blouse of soft green crêpe.

If this were converted into a three piece costume, or dress with coat, as it easily could be, it would answer perfectly the whole day's requirements in travel and even an informal evening's needs.

White was declared the preferred shade at winter resorts, both here and abroad. That means a white summer. Our traveler may make her choice of an all white suit of serge, pictured on the second figure from the left, or a white knit silk dress. Both, if she can afford them, will serve excellent uses.

A gay little sports turnout of simple effectiveness, to wear on a trip to the links, or just sauntering about the hotel, after arriving at the resort, is pictured at the far left. It is of white flannel combined with white, plaided with red. The stripes manage a brief tour up the waist. There is a string girdle of red. A red and white plaid kerchief trims the white felt hat. Yes, the handkerchief craze is still alive and bustling.

Gay little coats of cretonne, tapestry, cricket flannel heavily embroidered, leather—all are good. To include one or more, even in the briefest luggage, is to make no mistake.

No. 2 to the left illustrates a breezy, boxy, big collared type of white serge sports suit that can undertake various combinations without loss of dignity or smartness—dignity, by the way, being a strong feature of all the new spring wear. Flappers, this also means you! Its sleeve monogram, still going strong in the styles, is of yellow, another of the best bets for the coming summer.

Now we take up the subject of a dressier coat for the traveler. A wrap coat this dressier garment must be, by all the signs. For informal wear the straight front opening, but when we consider anything that aims at dressiness this spring we move immediately to the side line. So with No. 3. Of course, it is yellow. Cork colored, to be exact. It is of twill, and has embroidery of a sort all over it, in this instance of colored string. Paris declares for that trimming decidedly. She is friendly still to twilled fabrics, though we see such wrap coats in soft wool materials that look like velvet, and in crêpes.

Such coat wraps display the unbroken back line at its best, and uniformly extend to the skirt's edge. As in the case of the one shown, trimming in the same color seems to be preferred, though exceptions to that are numerous. Perhaps if I describe them as much trimmed but most conservative in line and color I cover the general situation.

All over trimming of cire and soutache appears on such semi-formal coats again and again in the French importations.

Examine the mouth glands—physicians advise when teeth mysteriously decay

The medical profession adopts a new point of view on tooth decay

RECENT experiments show that the six little glands in the mouth are slowly drying up. This, according to scientists, is the real cause of tooth decay.

We have known for years that the acids which are constantly forming in our mouths slowly eat their way into the enamel unless we can counteract their effect.

Now scientists declare that the fluids from the salivary glands would permanently check the acids—if these glands could be made to work normally.

A famous doctor discovered how to make these glands flow normally

Pebeco Tooth Paste was first prepared by a famous specialist for this very purpose.

Among his patients were several whose glands were slowly drying up. Their teeth, also, were decaying rapidly.

After experimenting with several formulas he found one which gently stimulated their glands to normal action. By using it regularly he found their tooth decay was checked.

Further investigation showed that many people whose teeth were decaying in spite of constant care, were suffering from slowly drying up mouth glands.

When he realized how many people needed this treatment he made his formula into a tooth paste and literally gave it to the world. Like so many great scientists he received no material reward for his discovery. A chemist was allowed to have it to manufacture and put on the market. This was Pebeco Tooth Paste—a dentifrice which not only cleans and polishes the teeth, but which also causes the mouth glands to flow more freely and keep the mouth in a normal condition.

Investigations among Indians on the Northwestern Coast showed that less than 4 out of a hundred ever had a decayed tooth. Today 98 civilized people out of every hundred suffer with tooth decay. Because of our soft cooked foods our glands no longer protect out teeth.

The Sialometer—a new instrument physicians use to study the glands of the mouth

A small air pump[1] sucks the body of the instrument[2] tightly against the inside of the cheek, directly over the opening of the gland. The saliva passes from this chamber through a silver tube[3] to a measuring flask[4]. The instrument can be worn while talking and eating. (See Journal of Experimental Psychology, Vol. 1, p. 462.)

Why these glands no longer flow naturally

Experiments with a new instrument called the sialometer have shown the reason why our salivary glands no longer flow normally.

Our diet today is so soft and easily swallowed compared to the food Nature intended us to eat that chewing has become almost unnecessary. And it is this chewing that makes the glands work. The sialometer shows they are 20 times more active when we chew.

Primitive man had practically perfect teeth. Chewing hard tough foods kept his mouth glands working—protecting his teeth.

How acids destroy the enamel when the mouth glands slow down

When the glands slow down the acids of the mouth begin to eat their way into the enamel. Even though you brush your teeth several times a day these acids are constantly forming. Small particles are left, enough to feed hundreds of acid-forming bacteria.

Nature intended the fluids from the salivary glands to wash away these acids as fast as they form.

Photographed by Alfred Cheney Johnston

Beautiful women have beautiful teeth. The regular use of Pebeco will give you healthy mouth glands, the only sure way to beautiful teeth.

How Pebeco works

Pebeco has a peculiar effect upon the salivary glands. The moment it enters the mouth it causes the glands to flow copiously. This continues for a long time. Thus the teeth are cleaned and the conditions which Nature intended are established. The mouth cleans itself automatically. As fast as acids form—the saliva washes them away.

Pebeco is neither acid nor alkaline. It does not attempt to change the quality of the saliva; that is regulated by Nature. It merely increases the flow to the normal amount.

Take home a tube tonight and note its invigorating taste. It will keep the glands of your mouth active and your teeth sound and healthy. 50c at all druggists. Manufactured only by Lehn & Fink, Inc.

How SALLY JOY BROWN Conducts the 'Friend In Need' Department

By Margaret Reidy Stevers
(Sally Joy Brown)

THE PURPOSE of the "Friend in Need" Department of The Tribune is to be "the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together."

For example: Suppose you have refurnished your living room and don't know what to do with the discarded rug, but revolt at the idea of throwing it away while some service is left in it. The Department will be glad to tell you of some poor family to whom the rug would be a god-send.

From this it might seem that the Department works as follows: (a) Get the offer of an article; (b) find a recipient therefor. As a matter of fact, this process has been reversed, and now consists rather of (a) receiving an appeal for an article; (b) procuring a donor thereof. The present appearance of the Department in print reflects this latter order. The standing box and the Sunday lead address themselves to possible givers; below them comes the array of letters setting forth the needs of askers. These letters are by no means all that are received. Usually for each letter printed we have a number making the same request on file. The most appealing letter of the group is printed as a "puller" for the others.

WORKING METHODS: Aside from procuring offers, our central problem, as in all work essentially philanthropic, is that of guarding against malingerers and "spongers." Since an investigation staff obviously is impracticable, we solve this problem by bringing the donor and recipient together. Instead of receiving donations and forwarding them, we supply would-be donors with names and addresses and request them to deliver their goods in person. Each donor thus becomes his own investigator—an arrangement which not only relieves the Department of an enormous burden but creates a thoroughly "human" relation between donor and recipient. The office routine is based entirely upon this basic working principle.

For example: When a request is received --as, for example, when a widowed mother asks for children's clothing—the name, address and request are copied on a card for file. If the letter is to be used in the paper the card is white; if not the card is yellow. The white cards are filed by name and the yellow by article, as "Baby Clothing," "Bedding," etc.

Usually each request printed draws several offers. The "white card name"—that is, the name of the person writing the appeal—is sent to one of the offerers, and "yellow card names"—that is, names of people who make the same request, but whose letters were not printed—sent to the others. From our experience with the "pulling power" of various types of appeal, we try to maintain a balance, printing appeals enough in each class to draw offers for all the "yellow card" names on file in that class. If the yellow cards in any category pile up, we stage a little "drive" for the particular article until the surplus disappears.

Substantially the same control is applied to unsolicited offers, of which we receive many. If the donor offers some article in common demand, such as a bed, we give him a name direct from the file and the matter is closed then and there without anything appearing in print. If no request is on file, but we know one will be received shortly, we file the offer on a blue card. If the offer is for something which is not requested often—puppies and cars are frequent subjects of such offers—we place the name in the "white card" file and print the offer. The offer is snapped up immediately —as you may judge from an experience one Sunday several months ago, when the offer of an Airedale puppy drew over 1,700 telephone requests by Sunday night!

THE "HUMAN" SIDE OF THE DEPARTMENT: Here we come to the meat of the walnut! From the formal description given above, the department routine may seem a dry shuffling of offers and appeals, resulting finally in a "matching up" of one with the other. In reality the story is sprinkled with broken homes restored, children set on the pathway to robust, productive maturity, and we are even credited with having averted suicides! In several cases, some person in bad health has asked for bedding or sick room appurtenances, and before the case was closed had undergone a needed operation, recovered health, the family had been outfitted with clothing and furniture, and was booming along the road to prosperity—all through interest enlisted for it through "The Friend in Need!"

On the donor side, we have good-hearted but unthinking people changed to enthusiastic fighters for social good, wealthy, childless mothers enlisted as temporary godmothers to some poor family, and the like. Not infrequently a whole circle of people is enlisted—as when, in response to a printed offer we send from ten to a hundred appeals received, and the donor, struck by the pathos in all of them, not only gives the article but drums up responses among friends or throughout a club or office for the others.

I can think of no better characterization than to say that, hidden behind our modest appearance in print, is a constant surge of the old "neighborliness," the readiness to "help out" another, once so characteristic of all Americans. It is all but starved out now in our cities, with their lack of back fences and village postoffices, the media through which news of misfortune circulated in the older days, but the spirit still lives in our people, and is being exercised now by a growing circle of people through The Tribune as intermediary.

SALLY JOY BROWN helps thousands of people every year. Those who give and those who receive are both benefited. A striking example of The Tribune's intense interest in the welfare of its readers—an instance of its putting its tremendous influence to work to do good. The "Friend in Need" department appears in The Daily Tribune as well as on Sunday. Another of the many reasons for your reading The Tribune seven times a week!

You Need Never Say This Again

—"I've just washed my hair and can't do a thing with it."

NOW you can wash your hair as often as you please, and, by applying a small amount of Stacomb, dress it immediately. Stacomb keeps it in place.

It brings out those soft lights that add charm and lends that lustrous, luxuriant effect which distinguishes the dainty woman's hair.

Dry and brittle hair, loose strands, and the vexing short locks that so inevitably detract from the appearance of careful women are all overcome by this new product.

Aids Hair Dressing

Stacomb makes the curl stay in. Try it with curling or waving. Note how it prevents singeing and cracking, how it helps to create the silken, lustrous waves and curls. After permanent waving, too, it keeps the hair vital and healthy.

Unlike brilliantines and bandolines which leave an unpleasant stickiness and harshness, Stacomb produces a delightfully soft effect. It is delicately scented—rose tinted—not a liquid—surely a necessary aid to beautiful hair.

Men and boys, too, find that it keeps their hair in place and enables them to comb their hair immediately in any style they prefer. Your drug or department store can supply Stacomb. Or send the coupon with ten cents for a trial tube.

The Coils Cushion the Crash

REMARKABLE TEST

Reprinted from an editorial in Motor Age:

"* Witnessed several tests with the Ramspring Bumper where a heavy car was driven against a brick wall and telegraph poles and the like. No inconvenience was felt by the passengers. One test was made at twelve miles an hour. The Bumper and car were uninjured."

Sounds incredible, but Ramspring Bumpers are built on principles of shock absorbers, only vastly more powerful.

Their very appearance lends a feeling of security, yet they add smartness to the most exclusive cars.

The heavy encased coil springs (exposed in the picture) absorb the shocks from any angle. They act as cushions. The double steel bar with rounded ends all in one piece, is distinctive.

There are no rattles in a Ramspring. It insures complete protection.

The risk to be without a Ramspring is unfair from the standpoint of personal safety or car investment.

HE LIKES HIGH LIFE, does Mr. Raccoon of our Lincoln park zoo. Here he's gazing over the scenery, wondering when the big rush of spring visitors will be out to see him. A haughty chap, Mr. 'Coon. And why not? Some day his fur may cloak the graceful form of some beautiful girl. Ah, what a glorious destiny!

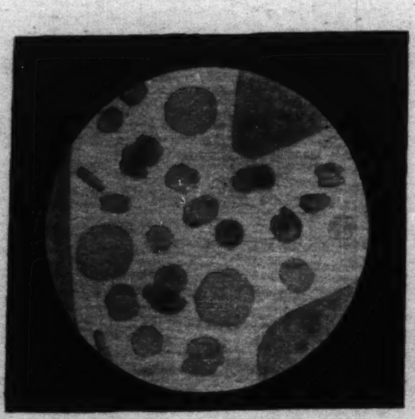
PLAYFUL PETER EATS 'EM ALIVE, and that reminds us—NOW IS THE TIME TO SWAT THAT FLY! One killed now will wipe out thousands that might be produced later on. Alligator Pete gobbles flies by the hundreds daily in his boudoir in the London zoo. He's 3 years old now, and good for about three more centuries if he doesn't meet an untimely end.

(Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)



From an actual micro-photograph of the blood stream, taken at a point where two veins join. The small dark rings are red corpuscles; the large ones are the white corpuscles—the "policemen of the body."

When the policemen of the blood turn cannibals

"the curse of present day civilization"

READY at a moment's notice to fight danger anywhere, the millions of white corpuscles in the blood are the police force of the body.

They are our only real protectors against the lurking germs of disease. Yet thousands of men and women by daily neglect are transforming these white corpuscles into an army of savage enemies.

How constipation poisons these blood-cells

Every day the human body throws off a great quantity of waste, which gathers in the intestines and must be gotten rid of regularly. Otherwise the waste products decay and form one of the most deadly poisons known—phenol—which soaks through into the blood.

Read an eminent scientist's account of what happens then:

"When the white blood cells," he says, "are compelled to live constantly in an irritating blood stream filled with the poisons absorbed from the bowel, these policemen of the body become as it were, intoxicated; and instead of performing their customary work of protecting the body against disease germs, they literally devour the body itself—actually eat up some of the brain cells, kidney cells, etc.!"

A body in such a state falls an easy prey to disease. Is it any wonder, then, that constipation is believed responsible for 50% of all our ills? That is why the first thing your doctor wants to know—no matter what you consult him for—is: Are you regularly getting rid of these poisons—or letting them collect in your system?

Drugs only increase the trouble

Drugs and cathartics are worse than useless, for they force the intestines to act by nervous irritation, and require larger and larger doses in order to blast a way through.

At last we are realizing that only by strengthening the weakened intestinal muscles, and gently encouraging them to act themselves, can we get rid of constipation and all its evils.

That is why physicians and hospitals are prescribing Fleischmann's Yeast today—not as a medicine, but as a fresh corrective food which gives the intestinal muscles regular, natural exercise.

Every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast consists of millions of tiny living plants, which mix with the waste products in the colon, softening them and increasing the bulk of the waste. This greater bulk gently encourages the muscles to act, and at the same time strengthens them by offering just the resistance they need.

Your own physician will heartily endorse this principle of regularly exercising the intestinal muscles as the only way to relieve constipation and all its evils. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast—yeast in its natural fresh form. Recent experiments have shown that yeast corrects constipation only when its cells are alive and active, and that it loses its laxative effect when these cells are "killed" and dried.

Fleischmann's Yeast is in no sense a purgative and does not produce immediate violent action. It is a nourishing food—not a digestion-disturbing medicine—and like any other food it must be eaten regularly to secure results.

Eat at least 2 or 3 cakes a day—plain or dissolved in water, milk or fruit juices—preferably half an hour before a meal, or the last thing at night. If you eat it plain, follow with a glass of water. Get several cakes at a time—they will keep in a cool, dry place for several days. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast. All grocers have it.

"Beautiful — triumphantly happy — surrounded by a world of loveliness and romance

THE WOMAN YOU WOULD LIKE TO BE

There is a dream—

that lives in the heart of every woman. The little stenographer going to and fro on her way to work; the young housewife lingering over her household tasks; the rich man's petted child—the poor man's daughter—all share it.

Each one dreams of the woman she would like to be.

No matter how distant your dream seems—you can attain it.

In a hundred ways—it lies in your power to make yourself the woman you would like to be.

Every girl's opportunity—

Do you long first of all to be beautiful?—to have a face that charms and attracts the people about you?

Beauty depends largely on yourself—on the fastidious care you give to your appearance.

Can you, for instance, imagine a woman's face being lovely and attractive if her skin is disfigured by blackheads—by ugly little blemishes?

A flawless skin is one of the things most essential to a woman's beauty. It is one of the things that depend on her alone. With the right care any girl can have a fresh, clear complexion, smooth, soft, brilliant with life and color.

You can overcome these faults—

If there is some fault in your complexion that continually worries you—if it is pale and sallow, or excessively oily, or disfigured with blemishes, or if the pores are too large—then you can be sure you are not giving your skin the right kind of care.

Begin now to overcome this condition. You can make your skin what you will, for each day it is changing; old skin dies and new takes its place. Give the new skin the special treatment it should have, and see how quickly the defects in it will disappear.

How you can find the right way—

You will find the right treatment for each type of skin and its needs in the booklet of famous skin treatments wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Each one of these treatments has been tested through years of study and experience. By using these treatments regularly, thousands of girls and women have overcome the faults in their complexion and have gained the lovely clear, soft skin they longed for.

Begin, today, to give your skin the treatment that will make it fresh, radiant, flawless, as a beautiful woman's skin should be.

You cannot be too careful—where the skin of your face is concerned. It is a well known scientific fact that the nerves which control the blood supply are more sensitive in the skin of your face than elsewhere—and that consequently the skin of your face is more liable to disturbances.

For this reason the soap which you use daily on your face should be of the best quality obtainable.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, and see what a beneficial effect it will have on your skin. Woodbury's Facial Soap is made of the purest ingredients, by a formula perfected through long study of the skin's special needs. Used regularly in your daily toilet Woodbury's will tend to improve the whole tone of your complexion.

A 25-cent cake of Woodbury's lasts a month or six weeks for regular toilet use, including any of the special Woodbury treatments. You can also get Woodbury's in convenient 3-cake boxes at any drug store or toilet goods counter. The same qualities that give it its beneficial effect in overcoming common skin troubles make it ideal for regular use. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York, and Perth, Ontario.

A complete miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations

For 25-cents we will send you a complete miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations containing:

A trial size cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap
A sample tube of the new Woodbury's Facial Cream
A sample tube of Woodbury's Cold Cream
A sample box of Woodbury's Facial Powder

Together with the treatment booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch."

Send for this set today. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio. If you live in Canada, address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, Sherbrooke St., Perth, Ontario.

In a hundred ways . . . it lies in your power to make yourself the woman you would like to be Above, you will read of one way—simple as it is, no girl can afford to neglect it. You, too, can have a beautiful, fresh clear complexion, if you give your skin the right care.

Begin today—get the booklet of famous Woodbury skin treatments that is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap, and learn the right method of caring for your skin. Begin using Woodbury's tonight. The sooner you commence your treatment, the easier you will find it to get results.

CRUISERS, 'SUB AND AIRPLAN
U. S. NAVY NEE

Weakness Seen
Fleet Maneuvers

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNI

BALBOA, C. Z., March 31.—The need of light cruisers, bigger and ter submarines, and an efficient adequate air force, with airplane riers, was demonstrated by the ma vers of the United States battle fl

We have enough destroyers and are all first class ships, none bette any navy. Our glaring deficiency in ships of the type necessary to port destroyer attacks, and lack which would spell disaster in battl

Proper support of destroyers con of our own capital ships fully gaging those of the enemy so a render difficult the diversion of portion of the enemy's battery aga the destroyers, but this in itself is sufficient support, because our own stroyers would encounter the re ance of the enemy's light cruisers be unable to reach a firing positi close enough to the enemy battle to make certain a sufficient num of hits to disable the enemy's capi ships.

Must Be Backed by Cruisers.

Any destroyer attack, it has be proved, must be backed up by 10, ton light cruisers. It appears cert that the side having a preponderan of light cruisers is in a position make a determined destroyer att that would have every chance of cess. This is the vital element t is now missing in our fleet. We h no 10,000 ton light cruisers even jected, and only the 7,500 ton O which has just gone into commi
Nine other 7,500 ton cruisers

Japan has eleven light cruisers, built since 1918, and is building
teen more of 10,000 tons each.

Incidentally, it may be stated t the use of light cruisers in support destroyer attacks is only one of many purposes for which this most portant type of vessel would be u in time of war.

Holding Control of Sea.

A great fleet of battleships, with the auxiliary types, must combine great naval battles that decide control of the seas, but it is cruiser which will exercise that trol once it is gained. The object naval battles is simply to gain cont
of the ocean highways so they may used for our own purposes and de to the use of the enemy.

The importance of the control of seas can be realized when it is sidered that the United States ha sea borne trade of over $12,000,000, annually, upon which our prosp and standard of living depend.
could maintain ourselves under co tions of close blockade that would mit of no imports or exports, bu would be a bare existence, involv many hardships and certainly en ing the financial and economic coll of the country.

Farmer Vitally Concerned.

The farmer is probably one of most vitally concerned, as he exp annually over $3,000,000,000 worth farm products, the surplus that ca be consumed in our own country which must be marketed abroad if is to live and prosper.

Another element of the fleet pr necessary by the maneuvers is mine laying submarine, which can proach, without detection, any ene base, sow it with mines, and dep without leaving a trace of its act ties. This type is found in the Brit and Japanese navies, but is miss in ours. Existence of mine lay submarines renders all movements
a fleet difficult, slow, and cautious.
anchorage grounds must be swept mine sweepers before they ca made available for the fleet. E then the danger is not eliminated, cause the submarine mine layer m follow the sweeper and "lay eggs" in his wake.

Japan Has Big Submarines.

In this connection it is interes to note that after the arms confere

some as high as 2,000. All prob
